

Stewy was a lab rabbit, a victim of many cruel and unusual experiments.

That is why he only had three legs. He had witnessed countless dark deeds done to his friends, so much so that he was actually glad when his tormentors removed his eyes. One thing he learned from all of the horrors was that no matter what the color of their fur, all rabbits are pink inside.

One day, Podesta, one of the managers of the lab, decided to take him home for some "spirit cooking". That is how he got the nickname Stewy. Podesta wasn't very bright, he left the door open and Stewy escaped into the forest, scratching and poking himself with sticks due to his blindness.

He was found nearly dead by a fox and a monkey and although the fox usually ate rabbits, the monkey convinced him to spare Stewy, so they all became friends.

The Chinese mythological white hare making the elixir of immortality on the Moon is embroidered onto an eighteenth-century Imperial Chinese robe

One day an old beggar was walking through the forest and stumbled upon the three amigos and said he was faint from hunger.

Fox brought him fish from a stream and the Monkey brought fruit from the trees, but Stewy could only offer grass. So he told the beggar to build a fire, and when it was built, threw himself onto the flames to offer himself to the old man.

The beggar ripped off his disguise and revealed himself as the great Emperor and rescued Stewy from the fire. He was so impressed by Stewy's spirit of self-sacrifice and generosity that he made him the moon rabbit who would live forever and mix the herbs of immortality for all.

The legend of the moon rabbit lives on in Asian and even North American Indian cultures. It was adopted by the PINK BUNNIES - a group formed by a Protestant Military Chaplain who was at war with evil.

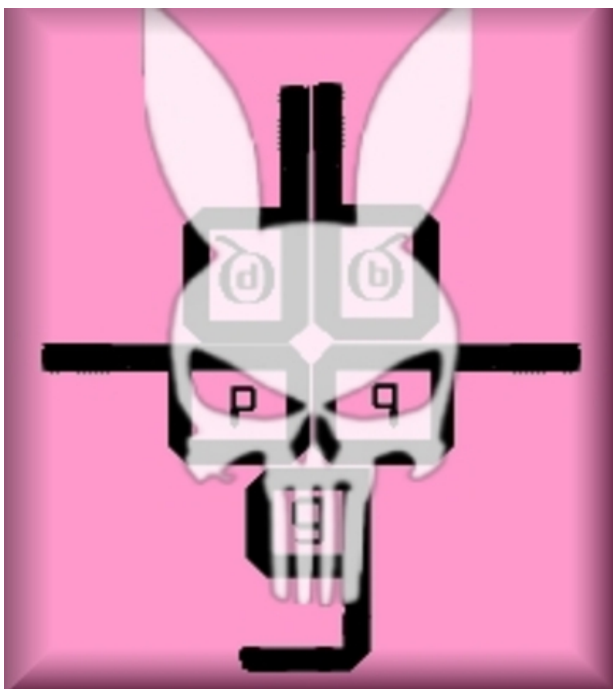

He saw the same spirit of self-sacrifice in Christ who died for ALL and said this:

John 15:13 Greater love has no one than this: to lay down one's life for one's friends.

The Chaplain formed the group with the help of Military contacts who shared his convictions. Insiders with skill sets not meant to be shared with others because compartmentalization kept them all controlled and useful for only what the corrupt political class assigned them to do.

For decades, they remained underground, gathering data and resources for an attack upon the very font of evil in Rome. The city on 7 hills that rules over the Kings of men.

The initial group were mostly tech geeks, one had an interest in 3VL. It led to the creation of a weapon of unbelievable power and the letters p,b,g,d and q are its only ammunition.

Sun Wukong fights the Moon Rabbit, a scene in the sixteenth century Chinese novel, Journey to the West, depicted in Yoshitoshi's One Hundred Aspects of the Moon

The principles behind its great power are explained here, part of a training course offered to new recruits on the Island of Wiggly Piggly.

The weapon will be deployed as Operation – Eyes of the Lepus

The mission objective is to reduce the pope to a steaming pile of excrement, triggering a SHITSTORM that will once and for all end the Vatican's corruption of governments and evil crimes against humanity. Follow the red shoes and the money - Stewy did.