govt reluctance -

What is holding us back? We aren't confident of our traditions. We are still dubious about Brexit but it must stand or it has delivered. The UK comes out of covid in surprisingly good shape. We have a long way to go. We need to launch a bigger plan to change Britain for the better. The status of the UK is appalling. Too many people go to university & come out with too much debt. People stay in only low level jobs for far too long. We need to create a national story, a national myth. Athens is an example of a great UK at a great time. So is our support for Ukraine. We need to think again about our economic strategy. Are we doing too much? Should we not be cutting taxes & spending more?
