In 2017, Guatemala made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government released the Roadmap for the Prevention and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, distributed a new inspection protocol providing guidance to labor inspectors, including on conducting child labor inspections, and approved legislation tripling the budget of the school feeding program. However, children in Guatemala are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The lack of a sufficient number of labor inspectors and resources limited the Ministry of Labor’s ability to combat the worst forms of child labor, particularly in rural areas outside the capital. In addition, existing social programs are insufficient to reach all children engaged in exploitative labor and, in particular, do not target children working in domestic service or agriculture.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guatemala are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Guatemala.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	7 to 14	6.3 (193,917)
Attending School (%)	7 to 14	89.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	3.5
Primary Completion Rate (%)		82.7

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Planting and harvesting coffee, sugarcane, broccoli, bananas, plantains and flowers (8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14; 15; 16)
	Picking macadamia nuts and tea leaves (17)
	Production of rubber and timber (17)
	Harvesting palm kernels† and producing palm oil† (18; 12; 19)
Industry	Mining, † including silver mining† (2; 20; 21; 22)
	Construction, † including as bricklayers and mason helpers (11; 23; 24)

	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking, and stealing and transporting contraband as a result of criminal and gang recruitment (4; 22; 31; 11; 33; 30)

† Determined hazardous by national law or regulation as understood under Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children as young as 5 years old work in coffee fields picking coffee beans and mixing and applying pesticides. (39; 40) In agriculture, working conditions for children involve using machetes and other dangerous tools. (22) Children, both Guatemalan-born and from other countries, are also engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, including in sex tourism. (41; 34) Traffickers are increasingly using social media to recruit children. (34)

In 2017, the Ministry of Education held 14 dialogues with 1,400 participants in 13 departments—including teachers, parents, and students—on the importance of maintaining attendance rates and integrating sex education and social development for girls into the national education system. (31) However, significant barriers to accessing education remain, particularly for girls, indigenous children, and children in rural areas. (22) Reports conclude that there is a high degree of illiteracy among girls—especially indigenous girls and girls from rural areas. (42; 43; 5) Indigenous children also have lower enrollment rates compared to other children. (5)

Although education is free through grade 6 in Guatemala, there is an insufficient number of primary and secondary schools, especially in rural areas. (44) Additionally, secondary school fees, distance from schools, lack of safe and affordable transportation to school, and other prohibitive costs associated with attending school create barriers for children to access education. (31; 44; 12) Due to the heightened security risks for girls traveling alone, girls in rural areas have lower enrollment rates in secondary school than boys. (31)

The lack of bathrooms in some schools discourages some students from attending school. (12) The education system is also unable to address the needs of students with disabilities. (31) In addition, there are not enough qualified teachers to provide instruction in the predominant native languages and insufficient classroom materials available in these languages. (22; 45; 43)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guatemala has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guatemala’s legal framework to adequately protect children from exploitative child labor, including prohibition of non-state compulsory military recruitment.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Articles 31 and 148 of the Labor Code; Government Accord 112-2006 (46; 47)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 148 of the Labor Code; Article 1 of Government Accord 250-2006 (46; 48)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 4 of Ministerial Accord 154-2008 (49)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 202 of the Penal Code; Article 51 of the Law of Integral Protection of Children and Adolescents; Article 108 of the Migration Law; Decree 10-2015 (50; 51; 52; 53)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 202 bis and quater of the Penal Code, as amended by Articles 47 and 48 of the Law Against Sexual Violence Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons, No. 9-2009 (50; 54)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 36–42 of the Law against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons, No. 9-2009 (54)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 27 of the Penal Code (50)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 68 and 69 of the Constitutive Law of the Guatemalan Army (55)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 57 of the Law of Integral Protection of Children and Adolescents (51)
Non-state	No		Article 245 of the Constitution; Article 57 of the Law of Integral Protection of Children and Adolescents (56; 51)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 74 of the Constitution; Article 33 of the National Education Law; Ministerial Agreement 1055-2009 (57; 58; 56)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 74 of the Constitution; Article 1 of Government Agreement 226-2008 (56; 59)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (2; 56; 60; 61)

Although Articles 32 and 150 of the Labor Code allow the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MTPS) to authorize children under age 14 to work under exceptional circumstances—including if the MTPS determines that children must work to support their family due to poverty—the law does not define the total number of hours, kinds of tasks, or age range applicable for this exception, which is inconsistent with international standards on light work. (46; 47) No such exceptions were granted in 2017. (62)

While the Constitution prohibits the establishment of non-state armed groups, there are no criminal penalties for the recruitment of children into non-state armed groups. (56)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security's (MTPS) Inspection Division (IGT)	Enforce child labor laws, including prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor, by inspecting businesses and responding to child labor complaints. (2) Refer children found in child labor to government social services and complaints to the MTPS Adolescent Workers Protection Unit. (63; 58; 64; 65) Refer cases of worst forms of child labor to the Secretariat Against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons (SVET) and unresolved cases to labor courts for review and sanctions, as appropriate. (2)
National Civil Police ( Policía Nacional Civil )	Investigate cases of child trafficking through the Trafficking in Persons and Forced Labor Unit located within the Special Investigation Police, and operate a hotline to receive reports of suspected child trafficking cases. (21; 66; 67)

(35; 67; 68) Maintain a Child Rescue Unit that determines safe placement for minors who have been abused. (35)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Guatemala took actions to combat child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

The 2017 Labor Inspectorate budget was lower than the previous year because, unlike in 2016, the Labor Inspectorate did not receive a budget supplement. (31) The number of labor inspectors may be insufficient for the size of Guatemala's workforce, which includes more than 4.6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Guatemala should employ roughly 308 labor inspectors. (76; 77; 78)

The Ministry of Labor reports that the Labor Inspectorate "attended to" 32,785 cases in 2017—16,656 through worksite inspections and 16,29 through conciliations at the Ministry. The information raises questions as to whether the Ministry is treating conciliations as an enforcement mechanism, equivalent to inspections by desk review. (71) Concerns have been raised about inspectors increasingly conducting conciliations in lieu of inspections and some inspectors being assigned to perform only conciliations, which could compromise the Inspectorate's role as an enforcement entity. (79)

Although labor inspectors may conduct unannounced inspections, reports indicate that the timing of some inspections has become predictable, taking place when employers are required to pay quarterly bonuses. (21; 22) Announced inspections, or inspections that occur at a predictable time are more likely to allow time for employers to temporarily hide or remove children who may be engaged in child labor. Additionally, although laws governing the minimum age for work and hazardous work apply in both the formal and informal sectors, labor inspectors rarely inspect informal workplaces where child labor violations are most likely to occur. (2; 31) Some reports question the quality of inspections for child labor violations, particularly the scope and coverage across industries. (21; 22) Civil society organizations state that, during worksite inspections, labor inspectors many times meet only with business owners or supervisors and bypass conducting worker interviews. (15; 17)

In 2017, 37 children—2 of them under 13 years old—were removed from child labor as a result of inspections. Research did not reveal how many of these children received social services. (31) While the government has created a mechanism for filing complaints regarding child labor, reports state the mechanism is not efficient in responding to those complaints. (31)

In 2017, the MTPS distributed a new labor inspection protocol, including guidance on child labor inspections. (80) However, civil society reports that labor inspectors are not adequately trained to perform inspections for child labor. (12; 16) While the Labor Inspectorate regained its authority to impose administrative sanctions in June 2017, civil society reports that the process of imposing and collecting fines has been extremely slow. (31; 15) In addition, inspectors—especially those outside Guatemala City—lack sufficient resources such as fuel, vehicles, computers, printers, ink and paper, and are not paid per diem to cover lodging and food to conduct inspections in areas far from regional MTPS offices. (22; 81; 82; 19) As a result, inspections were not carried out in several large rural areas. (19)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guatemala took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the National Civil Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (31; 72)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (22)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (25)	Yes (31; 72)
Number of Investigations	43 (22)	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	97 (22)	140 (31)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	19 (22)	4 (31)
Number of Convictions	19 (22)	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (31)

In 2017, the government opened a regional office in Quetzaltenango to prosecute trafficking cases in departments in the western region of Guatemala. (72) Additionally, the MTPS conducted an inspection sweep of 1,734 businesses in Quiché, resulting in 8 child laborers being rescued. (34) In May 2017, the Special Prosecutor’s Office Against Trafficking conducted 36 strategic raids targeting tortilla factories and cornerstores suspected of labor exploitation of children. (83) These raids resulted in the rescue of 22 children from child labor. (83) The government secured 1 forced child labor conviction, detained 4 people suspected of trafficking of children and rescued 22 children—most of them indigenous and from rural areas—from forced labor in tortilla shops. (2; 84; 32; 34) However, the total number of convictions related to the worst forms of child labor is unknown.

In 2017, SVET provided trafficking in persons training to judges and court staff, military personnel and civil servants, including 500 crime scene experts and 3,000 prosecutors. (34) SVET also conducted training and awareness campaigns on trafficking in persons throughout Guatemala, interacting with 146,221 citizens. In addition, SVET trained guards from 176 private security companies, school-age children vulnerable to trafficking in persons, 48 National Police Academy trainers, and 3,627 public sector employees. (34) However, while criminal law enforcement personnel receive training, reports indicate that training is inadequate outside of the capital. (31) The Public Ministry specifically noted a need for training on the recruitment of children by criminal groups. (72) Law enforcement agencies also lack sufficient vehicles, fuel, and criminal investigators, particularly outside Guatemala City. (22; 85)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination between agencies.

Guatemala

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission for the Eradication of Child Labor (CONAPETI)	Coordinate government policies and efforts to combat child labor. (2) Led by the Vice President's office and composed of several government ministries, as well as representatives from industry associations and trade unions. (20; 86) Met twice in 2017. (30)
Departmental Commissions for the Eradication of Child Labor (CODEPETI)	Coordinate government efforts to combat child labor at the departmental or regional level. Composed of department-level representatives of CONAPETI member agencies as well as NGO and business representatives. (2; 21) Replaced the Labor Ministry Executive Secretariats. (2)
Intra-Institutional Coordination Protocol to Assist Child Laborers	Sets guidelines for MTPS inspectors to identify child laborers, remove children from the worst forms of child labor, and coordinate services for such children with other government agencies. (49)
Secretariat Against Sexual Violence, Exploitation, and Trafficking in Persons (SVET)	Coordinate all government efforts against human trafficking, including for commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor, by responding to cases and providing support for victims. Operate shelters to serve minor victims of trafficking and a hotline to file child sex tourism complaints. Led by the Vice President's Office. (67; 68) In 2017, released a protocol for processing trafficking cases, assisting victims, and strengthening relationships with other ministries and NGOs working to address trafficking. (34)
Inter-Institutional Committee Against Trafficking (CIT)	Develop and manage initiatives to combat human trafficking. Relunched by SVET in 2016, co-chaired by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and includes 28 government and civil society institutions. (35; 67; 68) In 2017, met 3 times. (34)
National Working Group for the Prevention and Protection of Children and Adolescents Against Sexual Exploitation in Activities Related to Travel and Tourism (MENACESNNA)	Aims to prevent sexual exploitation of children and adolescents in the travel and tourism sector. (25) Oversees the Code of Conduct Against Sex Tourism, a mandatory code for trade group membership that forbids providing services to customers believed to be engaging in commercial sexual exploitation of children. Presided by SVET and includes 10 government, private sector, and civil society institutions. (25) In 2017, conducted workshops that trained 496 people in Petén, Izabal, Escuintla, Santa Rosa and Sacatepéquez Departments to promote awareness of the Code of Conduct. (87)

In 2017, Guatemala joined the Regional Action Group of the Americas to share technical expertise, improve implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of national policies, and promote the elimination of the commercial sexual exploitation of children in tourism. (87) In 2017, Guatemala also became the Technical Secretariat of the Regional Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons and Illicit Traffic of Migrants and participated in 2 meetings with other Central American countries. (30) Additionally, UNODC led a discussion with representatives of the Guatemalan Judiciary to strengthen coordination between the Public Ministry, National Civil Police, and Judicial Branch to protect children from commercial sexual exploitation. (88)

Despite improvements in interagency coordination to address trafficking, there continues to be a lack of effective coordination among other government institutions and civil society actors who provide services and protection to victims of child labor. (4; 21; 35) Additionally, although the government established specialized courts—including a 24-hour court in Guatemala City—to hear cases of human trafficking of adults and children and gender-based violence, judges are often unable to schedule hearings and trials in a timely manner. (82)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the implementation of several policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Roadmap for the Prevention and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2016–2020)	Aims to prevent and eradicate child labor by addressing poverty; guaranteeing rights to health for children and adolescents; guaranteeing access to education, especially for children in or at risk of child labor; coordinating and enforcing child labor laws; raising awareness regarding risks and consequences of child labor; and implementing a system to monitor and evaluate child labor. Led by CONAPETI and CODEPETI. (22; 89; 90; 91). Launched in January 2017. (31)
Protocol for Providing Comprehensive Health Care to Children and Adolescents in the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Requires public health workers to enter information into a database about any child whose injuries may have been labor related. Implemented by the Ministry of Public Health and Social Assistance. (20; 93) Research did not reveal whether any actions were taken under this policy in 2017.

Policy	Description
Protocol for Identifying and Assisting Child and Adolescent Victims of Commercial Sexual Exploitation	Establishes procedural guidelines for government agencies and NGOs responsible for the protection and care of child and adolescent victims of commercial sexual exploitation. Overseen by the Secretariat of Social Welfare and Departmental Social Welfare Offices and implemented by SVET. (2; 94) Research did not reveal whether any actions were undertaken under this policy in 2017.
Inter-institutional Protocol for the Protection and Attention of Victims of Human Trafficking	Provides instruction on how to process sex crimes, including commercial sexual exploitation of children, and assist prospective victims of trafficking in persons. (25; 73) In 2017, the government ran the campaign, “I don’t permit the exploitation of children and adolescents.” (87)
Public Policy on Human Trafficking and the Comprehensive Protection of Victims (2014–2024)	Aims to guarantee protection for and comprehensive attention to trafficking victims, and promote prevention, detection, prosecution, and sanction of this crime. (92) Includes a National Plan of Strategic Action that directs the government’s actions on preventing and combating human trafficking. (21; 35; 95) In 2017, the government provided SVET with a budget for the operation of its three temporary and specialized shelters for children and teenagers victims of human trafficking. (87)
Urban Social Protection Strategy	Seeks to prevent children from engaging in street work and to increase training and employment opportunities for youth. (20) Research did not reveal whether any actions were undertaken under this policy in 2017.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (24)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Child Labor Reducing Initiatives*	In 2017, the government launched several initiatives including: (1) SVET campaign conducted in Palacal, Sololá to stop child laborers from being sent to Guatemala City to sell merchandise on the street, (2) SVET online campaign to raise awareness of commercial sexual exploitation of children, and (3) an initiative to make it easier for children of migrant agricultural workers to attend school near the farms where their parents work. (34)
Business Network for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor in Guatemala ( Red Empresarial )	Program that aims to promote prevention and eradication of child labor. Created in 2015 and members include the ministries of Education and Agriculture, MTPS, CONAPETI, ILO, UNICEF, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, and representatives from the private sector. (24; 96; 97; 98; 99) In 2017, the Ministry of Education and the private education group “Business members for education” joined the Network, contributing by conducting social monitoring of elementary rural schools in the departments with highest incidence of child labor. (87)
I Don’t Allow Sexual Exploitation of Children in Tourism†	SVET-administered national campaign against the commercial sexual exploitation of children in tourism. (3) In 2017, the Code of Conduct against Sex Tourism was signed by 11 new private security businesses and 496 individuals. (34) The specialized tourist police force trained 15,206 minors on techniques to prevent becoming victims of sex tourism. (34) SVET launched the campaigns “Be Careful with Grooming” to prevent online grooming of children and adolescents between 10 and 15 years old for sexual abuse and “Protecting Our Greatest Treasure” to create awareness of sexual exploitation of children in tourism and travel activities. (87; 34)
Human Trafficking Referral and Grant Funding†	Program that provides funding to NGOs to assist child victims of human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation. (95) In 2017, the government allocated public funds to state institutions that provide attention to victims of human trafficking. (87)
Committed to First ( Comprometidos con Primero ) Program (2017-2019)*	Program that seeks to decrease dropout rates and increase enrollment and advancement to the next grade at a national level. (31) Goals include generating conditions to achieve competency in reading and writing, providing teacher training, conducting diagnostic evaluations, and supplying educational materials and pedagogical support. (100; 101) Aims to serve 35,000 first grade students. (101) Budget is 4.7 million dollars. (101)

Program	Description
Ministerio de Desarrollo Social (MIDES) Poverty Reducing Programs†	Conditional Cash Transfer for Education and Health Program ( Mi Bono Seguro ) provides cash assistance to families with school-age children, conditioned on children’s school attendance. (20; 65; 102; 31) In 2017, the budget for this program was reduced by almost 50 percent. (31) Food Assistance Program ( Mi Bolsa Segura ) provides food assistance to poor families, with the requirement that their children attend school. (65; 103; 104; 31) In 2017, the budget for this program was cut by 10.6%. (31) Young Protagonists ( Jóvenes Protagonistas ) provides at-risk adolescents with training and formative activities outside school hours. (102; 105; 106; 31) My Secure Dining Hall ( Mi Comedor Seguro ) provides access to food to people in situations of poverty, crisis and emergency, including children. (107) My First Employment ( Mi Primer Empleo ) places working-age youth in apprenticeship programs and grants them on-the-job training and a monthly stipend. (93; 102; 108; 31) In 2017, the government increased the budget for Jóvenes Protagonistas and Mi Primer Empleo by 10.4% and 11.1% respectively. (31) My Middle School Scholarship ( Mi Beca Educación Media ) and My College Scholarship ( Mi Beca Educación Superior ) promotes access to school and college through cash assistance to children between 11 and 24 years old and 16 and 28 years old respectively, who are in situations of poverty and extreme poverty in rural and urban areas. (107) In 2017, the government awarded 640 college scholarships and 5,678 middle school scholarships. (107)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (25; 85; 109; 110)

At the IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor, the government pledged to create a monitoring, evaluation, and follow-up system to track government, private sector, and civil society’s best practices to combat child labor. (111) The government also pledged to implement a predictive model to assess child labor risks. (111)

Although the government has implemented programs to assist children and families, research found no evidence of government programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in hazardous work, including those in agriculture and domestic service. (4)

Conditions in government-run children’s shelters are not adequate, and the government has not ensured the protection and safety of children under its care. (42) In 2017, a fire broke out in a children’s shelter resulting in the deaths of 41 children. (42; 112; 113) The shelter, which housed over 700 children but had capacity for 400, was already facing accusations of abuse and neglect. (112; 84) Civil society reports that conditions in shelters did not improve in 2017. (14)

In addition, the environment for the implementation of social programs that address child labor remains insecure as the government has done little to investigate or prevent further instances of threats, intimidation and violence—including murder against individuals working on social programs including NGO officials, human rights workers, judges, and labor activists. (114)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guatemala (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Eliminate the exception allowing some children under 14 years old to work or establish a light work framework for children ages 12 to 14 outlining restrictions on working conditions, type of work, and number of hours of work.	2010 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO’s technical advice.	2015 – 2017
	Provide adequate training to labor inspectors so they can adequately conduct child labor inspections in all sectors and geographical areas.	2017
	Adequately implement the Labor Inspectorate’s new sanction authority legislation by penalizing violators of child labor laws in a timely manner and by compelling payments and corresponding remediation.	2016 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators have sufficient resources and staff to conduct inspections and investigations in all geographical areas of the country.	2009 – 2017
	Make publicly available the total number of inspections that were conducted, disaggregated by worksite visits and desk reviews intended to assess compliance with labor laws.	2011-2017
	Ensure that conciliations are not used as a substitute for worksite inspections and do not inhibit the effectiveness of the Labor Inspectorate.	2017
	Interview workers during worksite inspections and conduct inspections in informal workplaces.	2017
	Ensure that the timing of labor inspections is not predictable so that they can be truly unannounced as recommended by international standards.	2016 – 2017
	Strengthen the inspection system by adopting a strategic planning methodology based on more accurate data regarding types of complaints, where and when they occur (such as harvesting season), and targeting industries not reached previously by the Inspectorate (including agriculture and informal sectors).	2015 – 2017
	Dedicate more staff and train criminal law enforcement officials, particularly those outside the capital, on laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2017
	Make publicly available the total number of convictions for the worst forms of child labor.	2017
	Ensure that hearings and trials addressing human trafficking and gender-based violence in specialized courts are scheduled in a timely manner.	2016 – 2017
Coordination	Strengthen coordination efforts to institutionalize relationships between civil society representatives and government agencies that provide services to victims of child labor.	2013 – 2017
Government Policies	Undertake activities to implement the Protocol for Providing Comprehensive Health Care to Children and Adolescents in the Worst Forms of Child Labor, the Protocol for Identifying and Assisting Child and Adolescent Victims of Commercial Sexual Exploitation, and the Urban Social Protection Strategy.	2017
Social Programs	Make education accessible for all children, including indigenous children and girls, and children living with disabilities and in rural areas, by recruiting and training more qualified teachers, providing instruction in indigenous languages, building additional schools, and removing school fees and transportation costs.	2015 – 2017
	Expand scholarship and subsidy programs so that children can attend secondary schools.	2016-2017
	Ensure that schools in rural areas have bathrooms for students.	2017
	Initiate social programs to address child labor in agriculture and domestic work, and for children who perform other types of hazardous work.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure high standards of safety and care for children in government-run shelters and expand shelter capacity to prevent overcrowding.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure the safety of NGO officials, human rights workers, judges, and labor activists in order to facilitate a secure environment for the implementation of social programs that address and prevent child labor.	2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Guinea made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government ratified ILO C. 189 on Decent Work for Domestic Workers and adopted a new National Development Plan that includes activities to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children, human trafficking, and child labor. The government also implemented nationwide awareness-raising campaigns on child trafficking. However, children in Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and forced begging. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The government lacks a coordinating mechanism and national policy to address all relevant worst forms of child labor. In addition, the government does not adequately enforce child labor laws or implement sufficient social programs to address the extent of the child labor problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and forced begging. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (6; 7; 8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guinea.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	32.3 (1,152,064)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	49.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	19.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		63.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2014, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018 (9).

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's Analysis of Statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2012. (10)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming and carrying heavy loads † in the production of cashews, cocoa, and coffee (3; 4; 11; 12; 13)
	Herding livestock (3)
	Capturing and processing fish (7; 3; 4; 14)
Industry	Mining † granite, gold, and diamonds (2; 3; 4; 5; 12; 8)
	Manufacturing, activities unknown (1; 3)
	Construction, † including carrying materials (1; 3; 15)
Services	Street work, including as market vendors, beggars, petty traders, shoe shiners, and porters in the transportation sector (3; 4; 16; 17; 18; 19; 14; 20; 8)
	Working in restaurants and informal cottage industries, including as waitresses (3; 21)
	Domestic work (7; 4; 12; 22; 8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Forced labor as market vendors and in domestic work, mining, herding, fishing, and farming, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 3; 4; 5)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (18; 19; 5)
	Forced begging by Koranic teachers (4; 18; 5)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Guinea are trafficked domestically and abroad for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Some Guinean boys are subjected to forced labor in gold and diamond mining, including in Senegal and Mali, while girls are exploited in domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation in various West African and Middle Eastern countries. (3; 4; 19; 23; 24; 5)

Boys placed in the care of Koranic schools in Guinea are sometimes forced by their teachers to beg on the street or to work in fields, and must then surrender the money they have earned to their teachers. (4; 11; 18; 24; 5) In addition, through the system of confiage, parents who are unable to care for their children send them to relatives or strangers who are expected to provide food, shelter, and schooling to the children in exchange for housework. In practice, some of these children receive care and an education, while many become domestic workers and are victims of labor exploitation and abuse. (25; 4; 23; 14; 25)

The Constitution guarantees free compulsory primary education, but many children do not attend school. Birth registration is required to attend school in Guinea, and some Guinean children lack identity documents, which may affect their access to education. (25) In addition, the lack of school infrastructure, cost of school fees and supplies, shortage of teachers, and reported school violence impede access to education, which may increase the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor. (4; 18; 26; 14; 5; 8)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guinea has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In 2017, the Government of Guinea ratified ILO C. 189 on Decent Work for Domestic Workers. (22)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guinea's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including with the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 137.5 of the Labor Code; Article 412 of the Child Code (27; 28)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 2–4 of Order 2791 Working Conditions for Employees Aged Under 18 Years; Article 137.4 of the Labor Code (15; 28)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 415–418 of the Child Code; Articles 2 and 4 of Order 2791 Working Conditions for Employees Aged Under 18 Years; Article 135 of the Mining Code; Article 137.6 of the Labor Code (15; 27; 28; 29)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 194–195 and 323 of the Penal Code; Articles 4 and 137.6 of the Labor Code; Articles 356–360, 385, and 397–399 of the Child Code (27; 28; 30)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 195 and 323–324 of the Penal Code; Articles 356–360 and 385 of the Child Code (27; 30)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 346–348 and 355 of the Penal Code; Articles 356–360 of the Child Code (27; 30)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 137.6 of the Labor Code; Article 383 of the Child Code, Article 344 of the Penal Code (27; 28; 30)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 429 of the Child Code (27)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 792.7 of the Penal Code; Article 429 of the Child Code (27; 30)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 6, Title 1 of Education Decree 97/196-/PRG/SGG (31)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 23 of the Constitution (32)

* No conscription (33)

Guinean law prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children; however these prohibitions do not cover agriculture. Children working in this sector may be exposed to unhealthy environments, including hazardous substances and dangerous equipment. (25; 3; 4; 15; 28) A revised Child Code that contains a more specific list of hazardous child labor activities in all relevant sectors was developed, but it was not approved during the reporting period. (18; 14; 34) Article 2.6 of Order 2791 prohibits children under age 18 from working in the extraction of minerals and materials from mines and quarries, but Article 135 of the Mining Code permits children below the age of 16 to work in mines and quarries as assistants. This exemption allows an opportunity for children to perform hazardous activities legally. (15; 29)

Guinean law allows children between the ages of 12 and 14 to perform light work in the domestic work and agriculture sectors. (15; 27) However, the law does not prescribe the number of hours per week permitted for light work, nor does it specify the conditions under which light work may be done as defined by international standards on child labor. (35) The Labor Code only imposes a minimum age for employment for children employed by employers but does not address situations in which children work on their own account, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (25; 28; 36; 37)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Enforce all labor laws, including those related to child labor. (25; 38; 14) Chair the Child Labor Monitoring and Surveillance System, which aims to identify and remove children from exploitative labor conditions. (1; 18)
Office for the Protection of Gender, Children, and Morals (OPROGEM) Special Police Unit	Enforce laws related to the protection of minors, including the worst forms of child labor. (19; 14; 5; 34)
Ministry for Social Action, Promotion of Women and Children (MASPFE)	Provide protection and social services for victims of child labor and human trafficking. (4; 14) In 2017, conducted a national media campaign to raise awareness of child trafficking. (24)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with financial and human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspectors	53 (39)	Unknown (40)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (41)	Yes (14)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	No (41)	No (40)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	No (41)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	No (41)	Yes (37)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	678 (14)	250 (24)
Number Conducted at Worksites	678 (14)	250 (24)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (41)	Unknown (14)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	0 (41)	Unknown (14)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	No (41)	Unknown (14)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (41)	Yes (14)
Routine Inspections Targeted	No (39)	No (14)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (41)	Yes (14)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (41)	Yes (14)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (41)	Yes (14)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (41)	No (40)

In 2017, the MOL had 53 inspectors in Conakry, although the total number of labor inspectors employed nationwide is unknown. (39; 41; 40) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Guinea's workforce, which includes approximately 5.5 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Guinea would employ about 139 inspectors. (39; 42; 43; 44) Reports indicate the MOL lacks the trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding to conduct child labor inspections and hold legal proceedings. (25; 45; 14)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with allocating financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (14)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (14)
Number of Investigations	7 (46)	19 (24)
Number of Violations Found	7 (41)	Unknown (24)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	1 (41)	8 (24)
Number of Convictions	0 (41)	4 (24)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (41)	Yes (14)

During the reporting period, the Office for the Protection of Gender, Children, and Morals (OPROGEM) had 23 agents in Conakry and one in each of the country's 33 regional offices. (14) OPROGEM remained understaffed, underfunded, and without sufficient office supplies, transportation, or fuel to adequately enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (14; 5; 34; 47) In addition, corruption in law enforcement agencies and the judiciary impeded efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. (24; 5)

Guinea

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Ministry for Social Action, Promotion of Women and Children (MASPFE), provided reintegration services to 16 child victims of human trafficking. (24) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that social services available are not adequate to meet the needs of the victims. As a result, the government relied on NGOs to provide shelter and other basic services to victims. (14; 24; 5; 34; 47)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices (CNLTPPA)	Coordinate anti-human trafficking efforts, including for children. Led by the Ministry for Social Action, Promotion of Women and Children (MASPFE), includes representatives from OPROGEM, MOL, and other ministries. (4; 19; 24; 5) In 2017, CNLTPPA organized a nationwide media campaign in observance of World Day Against Trafficking in Persons, as well as events in the main border crossing with Sierra Leone. (24; 5)
Committee for Monitoring, Protection, and Defense of the Rights of the Child (CGSDE)	Implement, coordinate, and monitor government efforts on child protection. Led by MASPFE. (41; 19; 34) In August 2017, published a report that outlines the government's efforts and priorities on child protection. (48)

Limited budgets for these committees during the reporting period affected their ability to operate and coordinate efforts to address child labor, including all its worst forms. (14; 5; 34; 47) Although the government has established a coordination mechanism on human trafficking, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate the government's efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons	Aims to enhance the legal framework to raise awareness, provide protection and care for human trafficking victims, and prevent human trafficking. Led by the CNLTPPA. (18; 49; 5) In 2017, received $5,600 for victim assistance services. (24)
Education Sector Program (2015–2017)	Aimed to increase access to primary, secondary, and technical and vocational education, particularly for vulnerable populations. Under the Ministry of Education, supported by international donors. (50; 51) In 2017, obtained $12 million from the Government of Germany to support implementation of the program. (52)
National Development Plan (2016–2020)†	Seeks to promote sustainable development and social equality. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation and supported by the World Bank. (53; 54) Includes activities to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children, human trafficking, and child labor. (53)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Although the Government of Guinea has adopted a policy on trafficking in persons, research found no evidence of a generalized child labor policy. (37)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2016–2019)	Seeks to develop a National Action Plan for the elimination of child labor, including all its worst forms. Overseen by the MOL and supported by the ILO. (55) In 2017, developed methodological guidelines to improve labor law enforcement, including child labor laws. (37)

Program	Description
Plan Guinea-Conakry Program	Aims to strengthen the capacity of key actors to improve children's rights in the areas of education, survival, and protection. (16) In 2017, improved classroom facilities for 650 primary schools in Guinea. (56)
UNICEF Country Program (2013–2017)	UNICEF-funded program that supported the Government's efforts to enhance education, birth registration rates, and social inclusion, and to strengthen the child protection response to the Ebola virus disease outbreak. (57) In 2017, conducted awareness-raising campaigns on child labor and expanded child protection programs in the Faranah region. (58)
World Bank Country Program	World Bank projects in Guinea that aim to increase access to quality basic education and youth employment, improve school infrastructure, and strengthen safety nets for vulnerable populations, especially those affected by the Ebola virus disease outbreak. (59; 60; 61; 62) In 2017, provided cash transfers to an estimated 5,000 vulnerable households. (62)

Although the Government of Guinea has implemented programs on children's rights and education, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in agriculture, domestic work, mining, or street work.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guinea (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that children under age 18 are prohibited from performing hazardous work that fall into an R.190 category, such as agriculture.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that all children are prohibited from participating in hazardous mining.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that light work provisions of the law are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children working outside of a formal employment relationship and children who are self-employed.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Increase the resources, training, and number of criminal law enforcement officials and labor inspectors to adequately enforce child labor laws.	2009 – 2017
	Publish complete information on Labor Inspectorate funding, number of labor inspectors employed nationwide, number of child labor and criminal law violations, as well as the number of penalties imposed and collected.	2011 – 2017
	Strengthen labor law enforcement by authorizing the Inspectorate to initiate targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2015 – 2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between the MOL and the MASPFE to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms.	2016 – 2017
	Address corruption in law enforcement agencies and the judiciary that impedes efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor, including all its worst forms.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that the CNLTPPA and the CGSDE receive adequate funding to fulfill their missions.	2010 – 2017
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by assisting unregistered children to obtain birth and identity documentation that entitles them to access school; increase school infrastructure and teacher availability; remove school-related fees; and ensure the safety of children in schools.	2010 – 2017
	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children in manufacturing, to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that social services are properly funded and adequate to meet the needs of victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2017
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture, domestic work, mining, and street work.	2010 – 2017

Guinea-Bissau

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Guinea-Bissau made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government published the results of the national child labor survey. However, children in Guinea-Bissau engage in the worst forms of child labor in forced begging. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. The government has not determined the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. Law enforcement officials do not receive the appropriate training and resources to adequately conduct inspections and prosecute cases of child labor. In addition, social programs do not fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guinea-Bissau engage in the worst forms of child labor in forced begging. (1) Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (2) According to a national child labor survey, more than 169,200 children ages 5 to 17 work; 85 percent of these children work in agriculture. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guinea-Bissau.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (%)	5 to 14	57.4
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	68.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	48.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		64.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2010, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2014. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of cashews (6; 3)
	Fishing, activities unknown (3; 2)
Services	Domestic work (3; 2)
	Street work, including car washing, shoe shining, and vending (7; 2)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8; 9; 1)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, and street work, including begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10; 9; 1)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In Guinea-Bissau, organized networks of traffickers affiliated with Koranic schools force boys to beg within the country and in The Gambia, Guinea, Mali, and Senegal. (1) Although many Koranic school teachers provide religious education as traditionally intended, some force the students, known as talibés, to beg on the streets for money and food. (7) Most talibés originate from the predominantly Muslim areas of Bafatá and Gabú in the east of the country. (9)

Boys are forced to work in street vending in Guinea-Bissau; they are trafficked for forced labor in agriculture, mining, and street vending in Senegal. Boys from neighboring countries are forced to beg and harvest cashews in Guinea-Bissau. (1) Girls are subjected to forced labor in street vending and domestic work in Guinea and Senegal. Girls are also engaged in commercial sexual exploitation in the Bijagós Archipelago of Guinea-Bissau, on mainland Guinea-Bissau in bars and hotels, and in Senegal. (8; 1)

Continued government instability, in which the parliament has not met in over two years, may have impacted the government's ability to address child labor during the reporting period. (11; 12)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guinea-Bissau has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guinea-Bissau's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including with regard to the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Article 146 of the General Labor Law (13)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 148 of the General Labor Law (13)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 148 of the General Labor Law (13)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 2, 4, and 15 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking; Article 106 of the Penal Code (14; 15)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 2, 4, and 15 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking (15)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 3–5 of the Law to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking; Articles 134 and 136 of the Penal Code (14; 15)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 3 and 7 of the Decree on Narcotic Substances (16)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 2 of Law No. 4/99 (17)
State Voluntary	Yes	17	Article 31 of Law No. 4/99 (17)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 12 and 13 of the Education System Law (18)
Free Public Education	No		Article 12(2) of the Education System Law (18)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (18; 19)

The minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards, as the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working without a work contract. (13; 19)

The General Labor Law prohibits children under age 18 from conducting heavy work, work in unhealthy or dangerous conditions, and underground work; however, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover street work, an area of work where there is evidence of exposure to physical, psychological, or sexual abuse. (13; 1; 2)

The Education System Law states that basic education is compulsory and lasts nine years; however, it only makes basic education free through grade six, leaving children in grades seven to nine without access to free basic education. (18)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Public Administration that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Public Administration	Enforce child labor legislation in collaboration with the Ministries of Interior and Justice, and the National Institute for Women and Children (IMC). (11)
Ministry of Interior's Public Order Police and National Guard	Combat child labor through the prevention of child trafficking. (6; 7)
Judicial Police's Women and Child Brigade	Investigate the worst forms of child labor and refer cases to IMC and NGOs. The brigade comprises 10 officers. (11)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Guinea-Bissau took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Public Administration that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with training for labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspectors	17 (2)	17 (2)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Unknown	Unknown
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	No (20)	No (2)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	No (20)	No (2)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	103 (11)	49 (2)
Number Conducted at Worksites	103 (11)	49 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	4 (20)	0 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	0 (11)	N/A
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	N/A (11)	N/A
Routine Inspections Conducted	No (2)	No (2)
Routine Inspections Targeted	No (2)	No (2)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (11)	Yes (2)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (11)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (11)	No (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (11)	No (2)

In 2017, the government reported that the number of labor inspectors was insufficient. In addition, enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guinea-Bissau took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (20)	Yes (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (20)	Yes (2)
Number of Investigations	0 (20)	26 (2)
Number of Violations Found	0 (20)	75 (2; 21)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (11)	Unknown
Number of Convictions	0 (11)	0 (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (11)	No (2)

In 2017, the government reported that training for criminal law enforcement officials and resources for criminal investigations was insufficient. (2) The National Guard intercepted 53 children destined for forced labor in Senegal at border crossing points and referred them to NGOs. (21) The Judicial Police reported 20 cases of forced child labor and 2 cases of child trafficking. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with regard to coordination efforts.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Inter-Ministerial Commission to Fight Child Labor	Established in 2010 to coordinate the government's efforts to prevent and eliminate child labor. In 2017, the group was inoperative due to a lack of government engagement and resources. (2)
National Committee to Prevent and Combat Trafficking in Persons	Led by the IMC, the committee coordinates government efforts to combat human trafficking. (22) In 2018, the IMC and Ministry of Tourism (MT) developed an Action Plan that involves raising awareness about the worst forms of child labor. (23)
IMC	Coordinate with NGOs and other partner organizations to rehabilitate and reintegrate child victims of exploitation. (7) In 2017, worked with UNODC to train community activists on preventing and combatting child trafficking, including forced begging. (24) Collaborated with the Ministry of Justice to provide birth registration to 190 talibés and their siblings. (21)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy for the Protection of Children and Adolescents† (2018–2030)	Guides the government's policies for combatting violence towards children, including child labor. (25) In 2017, policy was not implemented due to a lack of funding. (2)
National Action Plan on Human Trafficking (2015–2018)	Guides the government's efforts to prevent and combat trafficking in persons. (22) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Code of Conduct Against Sexual Exploitation in Tourism	Seeks to raise awareness on commercial sexual exploitation of children and child trafficking in Guinea-Bissau, particularly in the Bijagós Archipelago. (26) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
UN Country Partnership Framework	Aims to assist in promoting free and universal birth registration, and enforcing human trafficking and child labor provisions. (27) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
UNDAF (2013–2017)	Aims to assist in implementing a national action plan against child labor. (28) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

Research found that the government did not take steps to implement the Code of Conduct Against Sexual Exploitation in Tourism. (1; 23)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating and preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with regard to adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2020)	UNICEF-funded program in collaboration with the government to prevent and combat child trafficking through education, social protection mechanisms, and capacity-building for law enforcement officials. (29) In 2017, worked with the National Guard to raise awareness on child trafficking in 75 villages in Bafatá and Gabú regions. (21)
Friends of the Child ( Associação dos Amigos da Criança ) Shelters	Donor-funded program, with government support, implemented by an NGO that provides social services to vulnerable children, including victims of the worst forms of child labor. Research found that the two shelter facilities lack the financial and human resources needed to adequately assist victims. (30; 1)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (31)

In 2017, IMC conducted awareness raising activities to prevent child labor throughout the country. (2) Although Guinea-Bissau has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guinea-Bissau (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children without a work contract.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that hazardous work prohibitions for children under 18 cover types of work, including street work, that exposes children to physical, psychological, or sexual abuse.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that all 9 years of basic education are free.	2015 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish law enforcement data, including information on the Labor Inspectorate funding, ability of the inspectorate to assess penalties, as well as the number of prosecutions initiated.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that a sufficient number of law enforcement officials receive proper training and resources to inspect, investigate, and prosecute cases of child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating routine inspections rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received, and by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2016 – 2017
	Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2016 – 2017
	Establish referral mechanisms to ensure children found during labor inspections and criminal investigations are referred to social service providers.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure the Inter-Ministerial Commission to Fight Child Labor is active and has adequate resources to make efforts to prevent and eliminate child labor.	2017
Coordination	Ensure implementation of key policies related to child labor including the National Policy for the Protection of Children and Adolescents and Code of Conduct Against Sexual Exploitation in Tourism.	2017
Social Programs	Ensure facilities have adequate resources to assist victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2009 – 2017

Guyana

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Guyana made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government published a Rapid Assessment of Child Labor conducted by the ILO, established a child labor hotline, and hired ten additional labor inspectors. However, children in Guyana continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Law enforcement agencies have insufficient funding and capacity to enforce laws related to child labor, including its worst forms, and existing laws do not fully prohibit using children in certain forms of child labor. Moreover, the government does not have a comprehensive policy to combat child labor or targeted social programs to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Guyana engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8; 9) The 2014 Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey indicated that children living in Guyana's interior are more likely to be engaged in child labor than other children, with 37 percent of children ages 5 to 17 living in the interior engaged in child labor. The survey also indicated that 41 percent of children living in Amerindian households engage in child labor, with 34 percent of these children engaged in hazardous work. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Guyana.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (%)	5 to 14	20.1
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		97.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2012, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (10)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5 (MICS 5) Survey, 2014. (11)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of cabbage, cherries, limes, rice, squash, sugarcane, and charcoal (2; 3; 12; 13; 14; 7; 9; 15)
	Forestry, including logging,† preservation of lumber, and work in sawmills† (1; 3; 7; 9)
	Raising animals, including chickens (9)
	Fishing,† activities unknown (6; 9)
Industry	Construction,† activities unknown (7; 9)
	Mining,† including gold mining and bauxite mining (1; 3; 7; 9)
Services	Domestic work (2; 9)
	Welding and working in scrap iron yards (2; 9)
	Working in stores, bars, and restaurants (2; 16; 9)
	Street work, including selling fruit, washing cars, and begging (2; 4; 13; 14; 9)
	Cleaning boats and ferries and helping load luggage and goods (9)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor †	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2; 3; 7; 8) (13; 14; 9)
	Use in illicit activities, including planting marijuana and smuggling drugs, weapons, and goods (2; 9)
	Domestic servitude (8)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Guyana, including girls as young as age 12, are involved in commercial sexual exploitation in Georgetown and the country’s interior. There are reports of young girls being subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in mining communities as a result of human trafficking. (2; 12; 7; 9) Children are engaged in informal, small scale mining in which they wash gold, operate dangerous machinery, and are exposed to hazardous chemicals. (7; 9)

Children in Guyana’s interior and rural areas have limited access to education due to poor infrastructure, long distances to access schools, transportation costs, and a shortage of trained and qualified teachers. This leads to decreasing enrollment and high dropout rates among students, particularly in secondary school. (2; 17; 7; 18; 9)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Guyana has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Guyana’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including sufficient prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Articles 2–3 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act; Articles 17–22 of the Education Act (19; 20)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Part 1, Article 2 and Part 2, Article 3 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act; Articles 17, 41, 46, and 75 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (19; 21)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		List of Hazardous Occupations and Processes in Guyana; Part 1, Article 2 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act; Articles 17, 41, and 75 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (19; 21; 22)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 40 of the Constitution; Article 3 of the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act (23; 24)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 3 of the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act (24)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Article 50(3) of the Protection of Children Act; Article 3(2) of the Combating of Trafficking in Persons Act (24; 25)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 50(1) of the Protection of Children Act (25)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 18 of the Defense Act (26; 27)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Articles 13 and 22 of the Education Act (20)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 27 of the Constitution (23)

* No conscription (5; 28)

Although the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act prohibits hazardous work for anyone under age 18, the law does not fully protect adolescents ages 16 and 17 from engaging in hazardous work. Part 1, Article 2 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act prohibits night work for minors employed in industry and provides an exception allowing adolescents ages 16 and older to perform certain work requiring continuity through day and night, including gold mining reduction work and the production of iron, steel, glass, paper, and raw sugar, without provisions to ensure that their health, safety, and morals are fully protected or that they receive specific instruction or training in these activities. (19)

Guyanese law does not sufficiently prohibit all commercial sexual exploitation of children as it does not prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child for pornographic performances. (29; 24; 30) Although Article 50(1) of the Protection of Children Act prohibits selling or giving drugs to children, the law does not specifically prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for the production and trafficking of drugs. (25)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Social Protection that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Protection	Monitor and enforce child labor laws in collaboration with the Ministry of Education, Forestry Commission, Geology and Mines Commission, National Insurance Scheme, and Guyana Police Force. The Chief Labor Officer handles special investigations stemming from child labor complaints and oversees routine labor inspections. (4; 29) Includes a Trafficking in Persons Unit and the Childcare and Protection Agency, to which children identified during labor inspections are referred. (4; 15)
Guyana Police Force	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. Works in consultation with the Director of Public Prosecutions, the Ministry of Public Security, the Ministry of Social Protection, the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry of Indigenous Peoples' Affairs, depending on the circumstances of each case. (4)
Ministry of Public Security	Lead enforcement of human trafficking laws. Chair the Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons. (4)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Guyana took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Social Protection that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (3)	Unknown (15)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (3)	Yes (7)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (3)	Yes (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (7)

Although the government hired 10 new labor inspectors in 2017, the Ministry of Social Protection reported that it had insufficient inspectors to carry out labor inspections. Additional funding for the labor inspectorate is needed to adequately monitor Guyana's interior, where child labor is most prevalent. (7; 9) There are insufficient labor inspections conducted in gold mining areas, and there are sometimes delays in accessing the necessary resources for inspections in remote areas, including for transportation and accommodation. (4; 29; 7) The government has acknowledged challenges in monitoring and enforcing the provisions established in Articles 41 and 46 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act, which aim to protect children from work that may harm their physical health or emotional development. (32; 33)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Guyana took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	N/A (31)	Yes (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (3)	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	2 (3)	7 (15)
Number of Violations Found	2 (3)	0 (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (3)	0 (7)
Number of Convictions	0 (3)	0 (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (7)

The government has acknowledged that there is an insufficient number of staff members in the Ministry of Social Protection's Trafficking in Persons Unit. (34; 15) In general, the government's capacity to carry out prosecutions is limited. With only 33 justices and magistrates, the courts have a backlog of cases and more than a 2-year waiting period on all legal matters. (4; 5; 6)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Inter-Ministerial Taskforce on Combating Trafficking in Persons	Report on the nature and magnitude of human trafficking in Guyana, document the government's response, and carry out public education and prevention measures. (35) Combats, through the participation of member agencies, commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. (4) Chaired by the Minister of Public Security, comprises the Ministries of Amerindian Affairs, Natural Resources and Environment, Education, Legal Affairs, and Foreign Affairs. (4; 29) The taskforce convened monthly during 2017. (7)
National Tripartite Committee	Address national labor legislation and policy. Includes representatives from government agencies, labor unions, and employers, including the Ministry of Social Protection, the Consultative Association of Guyanese Industries, the Guyana Trades Union Congress, and the Federation of Independent Trade Unions of Guyana. (4; 36; 37)
Commission on the Rights of the Child	Protect and promote children's rights in accordance with the UN CRC, which includes addressing the worst forms of child labor. (4)

Although the government has established the Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate efforts to combat other worst forms of child labor. In addition, reports indicate that a lack of coordination efforts, regular meetings, and resources impede efforts to combat child labor. (38; 39)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Inter-Ministerial Task Force on Combating Trafficking in Persons Action Plan	Seeks to prevent and raise awareness about human trafficking, provide direct assistance to victims, improve law enforcement's capacity to identify and respond to human trafficking, and strengthen interagency coordination and referral mechanisms. (3; 40; 41) In 2017, provided training on human trafficking to business and civil society representatives. (15)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (6; 42)

The government does not have a comprehensive written strategy for combating and responding to child labor and has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in other policies, such as the 5-Year Strategic Plan on the Rights of the Child (2012–2017) or the National Education Policy. (3; 7; 33; 42; 6)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Guyana Decent Work Country Program (2017 to 2021)* †	Aims to improve working conditions and increase respect for international labor standards, social protection, economic opportunities, and social dialogue. Includes plans to conduct research and raise awareness on child labor, develop a national child labor policy, and establish coordination mechanisms to prevent and respond to child labor and forced labor. (43)
Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor in the Americas Project	Government of Brazil-funded regional cooperation project to address child labor. In 2017, the Government of Guyana published the ILO's Rapid Assessment of Child Labor in Guyana and indicated the report will inform their development of a national child labor policy. (9)
Child Labor Hotline* †	Ministry of Social Protection hotline established during the reporting period for the public to report cases of child labor. (7; 15)

Program	Description
Shelter for Domestic Violence Victims†	Government-funded, NGO-run shelter that houses victims of domestic violence and human trafficking. Provides services, including psychological counseling and practical skills training. (5) Accommodates teenage girls under age 16 who are placed at the shelter at the request of the government's Childcare and Protection Agency. (29) Receives $50,000 annually from the government. (44)
School Meals and Uniforms†	Provides hot meals to 16,000 students at schools in the interior and transportation for students in several remote areas. All students in government-run schools, from nursery to secondary school, receive vouchers to purchase school uniforms, shoes, and backpacks. (4; 6; 45)
6Bs Program†	Provides boots, boats, buses, bicycles, books, and breakfast to school children to improve access to education. (7; 18)
Child Advocacy Center	Ministry of Social Protection and NGO partnership to provide services for abused children. The Ministry of Social Protection's Childcare and Protection Agency oversees the center and makes referrals; funded by private sector donations. (40; 46)
Board of Industrial Training†	Attempts to deter early school dropouts by providing job skills to at-risk youth between ages 15 and 17 who may not be able to complete their formal education. (4)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Guyana.

The scope of government programs targeting the worst forms of child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. (44; 7)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Guyana (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law fully protects all children under age 18 from engaging in hazardous work, including night work.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that the law sufficiently prohibits all commercial sexual exploitation of children by prohibiting the use, procuring, and offering of a child for pornographic performances.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that the law sufficiently prohibits the use of children for illicit activities by prohibiting the use, procuring, or offering of a child for the production or trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors trained and responsible for providing enforcement of child labor laws to have sufficient inspectors to carry out labor inspections.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on the Labor Inspectorate's funding.	2015 – 2017
	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure the Labor Inspectorate receives sufficient funding to monitor the interior, where child labor is most prevalent, and that resources are allocated in a timely manner to facilitate targeted labor inspections, particularly in remote areas and in gold mining areas.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure the appropriate application of Articles 41 and 46 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act to ensure that children are not engaged in work that may harm their physical health or emotional development.	2015 – 2017
	Dedicate more resources, including judicial personnel, to investigate and prosecute court cases related to the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2017
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor, including all its worst forms, and ensure that these bodies engage in regular meetings and coordination efforts.	2014 – 2017
Government Policies	Establish a comprehensive strategy for combating child labor.	2014 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the 5-Year Strategic Plan on the Rights of the Child (2012–2017) and the National Education Policy.	2010 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Ensure that children are not prevented from attending school because of transportation costs.	2014 – 2017
	Increase the number of trained and qualified teachers, particularly in rural and interior areas.	2015 – 2017
	Develop new initiatives and expand existing programs to reach all children involved in the worst forms of child labor, including Amerindian children and children living in the interior; in particular, increase funding to identify and assist victims of human trafficking.	2010 – 2017

In 2017, Haiti made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government deployed 100 officers to the border city of Ouanaminthe to combat human trafficking and provided free tuition-fee waivers to nearly 437,905 children through the National Action Strategy for Education for All. In addition, the government continued to participate in a number of programs targeting the worst forms of child labor, including a new program to combat exploitative domestic work in Port au Prince, Grande Anse, and Sud. However, children in Haiti perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and domestic work. Haiti lacks a clear, easily applicable minimum age for domestic work, and limited resources for the systematic enforcement of child labor laws impede government efforts to protect children from the worst forms of child labor. In addition, social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Haiti perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and domestic work. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Haiti. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	34.4 (815,993)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	34.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary Completion Rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting sugarcane, collecting cut sugarcane, grinding sugarcane, and clearing land for sugarcane production (1)
	Raising livestock (7)
	Capturing and processing fish (1; 10; 6)
Industry	Construction, including transport of construction materials such as sand and rocks (1; 4; 10; 6)

Haiti

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

A 2015 study found that there were approximately 286,000 child domestic workers in Haiti, 207,000 of whom were lagging behind in school. (13; 14; 10; 5) Some parents who are unable to care for their children send them to residential care centers or to relatives or strangers who are expected to provide the children with food, shelter, and schooling in exchange for household work. In practice, some of these children receive care and access to education, while many others become victims of labor exploitation and abuse. (2; 3; 4; 12; 14; 22; 15)

Children are trafficked both internally and externally, primarily to the Dominican Republic, other Caribbean countries, South America, and the United States. NGOs have reported that children illegally crossing the Haiti-Dominican Republic border are often accompanied by adults who are paid to act as the children's parents or guardians until they reach the Dominican Republic. (18; 23; 24; 25; 10; 6; 5) Some of these children are reunited with relatives in the Dominican Republic, while others engage in commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, agriculture, street vending, and begging. (25; 26; 10; 5; 6)

During 2017, the Government of the Dominican Republic continued with the involuntary repatriations of individuals with irregular migration status to Haiti, pursuant to Dominican law. (14; 27; 28) Many of these individuals, including children, are Dominican-born persons of Haitian descent. (29) At the end of 2017, reports indicate that 132,995 individuals migrated spontaneously to Haiti, including 4,167 unaccompanied minors. (28) Some of these children were residing in Haiti in camps near the border with the Dominican Republic, where schools and other basic services are not available. In addition, these children may not speak French or Haitian Creole, the languages of instruction in public Haitian schools. (4; 14; 17; 30; 31) These children, including those who have been deported to Haiti or who left spontaneously, are vulnerable to the worst forms child labor. (30; 5; 31)

The Constitution of Haiti provides free and compulsory primary education. (32; 33; 34) In addition, while many children in Haiti are not registered at birth, unregistered children can access social assistance services and educational programs provided by the government. (35) However, public schools often charge fees for books, uniforms, and school materials. Because private schools represent approximately 90 percent of available schools, most Haitian children are enrolled in private schools that charge tuition and other fees, which make education prohibitive to many families. (4; 14; 36; 37; 6; 7) Other children, especially in rural areas, do not attend school due to the lack of school infrastructure and limited availability of teachers. Out-of-school children are more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (4; 17; 7)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Haiti has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Haiti's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including with the minimum age for work and the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 10 of the Law Organizing and Regulating Labor (38)

In September 2017, the government passed an amendment to the Labor Code that raises the minimum age for work to 16 for contractual work and states that penalties are doubled if the work is done at night. (38; 6) However, the Labor Code applies only to workers who perform work under a formal employment agreement, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (39; 45; 7) In addition, by increasing the minimum age for work to 16 while having a compulsory education age of 15, children age 15 are vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but also are not legally permitted to work. (33; 38)

It is unclear whether there is a minimum age for domestic work because the Act on the Prohibition and Elimination of All Forms of Abuse, Violence, Ill Treatment, or Inhumane Treatment Against Children of 2003 (Act of 2003) annulled Chapter 9 of the Labor Code, which set a minimum age for domestic work at 12. (39; 40; 45; 7) The government has drafted legislation that would set the minimum age for domestic work at 15, but that legislation has not been enacted. (46; 47)

The Labor Code prohibits children ages 16 to 18 from working at night in industrial jobs and in establishments that serve alcohol. (39) However, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover agriculture, an area of work in which children are exposed to hazardous substances and agents, and to temperatures that can damage their health. The Government of Haiti's draft hazardous work list for children under age 18 remained unapproved by Parliament during the reporting period; nevertheless, the current draft does not include all tasks in which children perform dangerous work, such as harvesting, collecting, and grinding sugarcane. (46; 47; 48; 49; 6)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MAST) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Haiti

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MAST)	Enforce laws related to child labor by receiving complaints, conducting investigations, and referring cases to juvenile courts. (39; 45; 50) MAST's Institute of Social Welfare and Research (IBESR) agents perform child protection inspections and are responsible for accrediting residential care centers. Develop and implement programs to raise awareness of child labor and provide social services to child victims of labor exploitation. (3; 45; 50; 51; 10)
Brigade for the Protection of Minors (BPM)	Investigate crimes of the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. Submit investigations to judicial authorities for criminal prosecutions and refer child victims to IBESR. (3; 22; 51) Housed under the Haitian National Police. (10)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Haiti took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MAST that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

MAST's Institute of Social Welfare and Research (IBESR) continued to employ 150 agents throughout Haiti; these included 48 child protection agents and approximately 20 social workers to handle child protection cases, including those involving child labor. (22; 10) Each IBESR regional bureau includes a child protection section that employs five to seven agents. During the reporting period, IBESR conducted child protection inspections in commercial and industrial establishments. (6) Reports indicate that the lack of sufficient resources, such as means of transportation, fuel, and appropriately equipped workplaces, hampered MAST's enforcement efforts, including IBESR's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (22; 53; 57; 6) In addition, the penalties established for violating child labor laws of 5,000 HTG (equivalent to $77) are insufficient and do not generally deter violations. (39)

IBESR also manages the "133" hotline that receives complaints about situations requiring child protection. (10; 5; 58) However, the hotline functions exclusively in Port-au-Prince, leaving rural areas without a mechanism to receive child labor complaints. (59) The number of calls related to child labor received during 2017 is unknown.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Haiti took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (54)	No (10)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (54)	Unknown (6)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (10)
Number of Investigations	772 (60)	991 (6)
Number of Violations Found	182 (54)	178 (10)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (60)	Unknown (6)
Number of Convictions	3 (60)	Unknown (6)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (56)	Yes (6)

In 2017, the Brigade for the Protection of Minors (BPM) maintained a staff of 80 agents in 24 offices around the country, including in 4 offices along the Haiti-Dominican Republic border. (49; 10) Given the prevalence of the worst forms of child labor in the country, the number of criminal law enforcement agents is inadequate. (22) BPM investigated 991 cases of child trafficking, forced child labor, use of children in illicit activities, and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (6) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that the BPM's lack of trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding hampered their ability to enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (10; 5; 6)

During 2017, the Haitian National Police deployed 100 officers to the border city of Ouanaminthe, Haiti's busiest border crossing, to combat human trafficking and the illicit drug trade. (10) The government had one conviction for child trafficking under the 2014 Anti-Trafficking in Persons Law; however, the total number of convictions related to the worst forms of child labor is unknown. (10)

An informal referral mechanism between BPM, IBESR, and NGOs is in place to provide reintegration services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. (10; 5) Although a report indicates that resources and facilities for social services are inadequate, BPM assisted 3,018 children in 2017 through referrals to social services and medical assistance, reintegration into their families, and family mediation. (6) BPM also manages the "188" hotline that receives notifications of alleged violations related to the worst forms of child labor. (56) However, like the IBESR hotline, the "188" hotline functions exclusively in Port-au-Prince, which makes reporting cases involving the worst forms of child labor more difficult in rural areas. (61; 10) The number of calls related to child labor received in 2017 is unknown.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Develop policies, approve programs, and coordinate, monitor, and evaluate efforts to combat child labor in Haiti. Chaired by MAST, includes representatives from IBESR, BPM, and local and international organizations. (62; 63)
National Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons	Coordinate actions against human trafficking, and provide protection and rehabilitation services to victims. Chaired by IBESR, includes representatives from MAST, BPM, and other ministries. (41; 64; 5) In June 2017, organized a conference to raise awareness of human trafficking and identify strategies to address it. (10)
Child Protection Working Group	Implement, coordinate, and monitor efforts on child protection, including protection for child domestic workers. Chaired by IBESR, comprises non-governmental stakeholders and officials from various ministries. (65; 66)

There was no evidence that the National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor conducted meetings or took action to combat child labor during the reporting period. (6)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with adopting a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2015–2017)	Aims to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, effectively implement laws related to human trafficking, provide protection and care for victims, and strengthen social and educational initiatives for vulnerable children. Led by the National Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons. (64; 67; 5) In 2017, partnered with the EU to conduct a survey on human trafficking in Haiti. (10)
National Child Protection Policy (2016–2020)	Aims to protect children from abuse, violence, and labor exploitation, and promotes improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children, with a focus on domestic workers. Led by IBESR and supported by international donors. (68; 69)
National Strategic Development Plan (PSDH) (2014–2019)	Highlights the need to prohibit child labor to ensure sustained and equitable economic growth. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning and External Cooperation and the Ministry of Economy and Finance. (70; 71)
National Action Strategy for Education for All (2011–2018)	Aims to increase access to quality primary education, particularly for vulnerable populations, by subsidizing school fees for both public and private schools. The strategy is overseen by the Ministry of Education and supported by international donors. (72; 73) As of 2017, has provided free tuition-fee waivers to nearly 437,905 children. (74)

During the reporting period, the government did not approve the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, drafted in 2014. (17; 47; 62) Reports indicate that efforts to implement the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons have been slowed by high-level staff turnover at MAST and insufficient allocation of resources. (10; 5) In addition, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Child Protection Policy and the National Strategic Development Plan during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†

Program	Description
Protecting the Working Conditions of People/Proteje Kondisyon Travay Moun (PWOKONTRAM) (2013–2019)	$9.99 million USDOL-funded project implemented by Catholic Relief Services to provide services to households and children engaged in or –at risk of engaging in child labor or other exploitative working conditions in agriculture. (75; 76) In 2017, CRS facilitated a workshop between IBESR and its Dominican Republic counterpart, the National Council for Children and Adolescents (CONANI), to improve child protection services in the northeast border areas. (36; 75) The project reached roughly 4,800 children with educational services and 2,700 households to improve their livelihoods. In addition, the project supports the capacity of the Haitian Civil Registrar system to legally document more than 3,100 individuals. Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Assisting Vulnerable Women and Children in Border Areas (2016–2017)	$4.5 million Government of Canada-funded project implemented by IOM to combat child trafficking and protect Haitian migrants, especially children and women, along the border with the Dominican Republic. (26; 77) In 2017, established Border Resource Centers (CRFs) in four major border sites to identify and assist human trafficking victims. (10; 78)
Combat Child Labor in Domestic Work and the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2017–2020)*	Government of Canada-funded project, implemented by the ILO and UNICEF, to combat exploitation of child domestic workers in the regions of Port au Prince, Grande Anse, and Sud. (55) Builds the capacity of MAST to enforce child labor laws, establishing a network of 35 child protection units, and providing reintegration services to 1,700 child victims of exploitative domestic work. (79; 80)
Youth Reintegration Program (2015–2018)	$1.4 million UNDP-funded program that provides reintegration services to vulnerable youth through professional trainings, job placement services, and entrepreneurship. In 2017, supported 427 youth to obtain agriculture technician certificates from the National Institute for Professional Training. (81)
National Free Education Program (PSUGO)†	Government program to increase poor children’s access to education. Includes school grants intended to eliminate school fees and accelerated learning programs for students who are lagging in school. (61; 82) In 2017, established a partnership with the World Bank to expand program activities, including collecting statistics on quality education. (83)

Program	Description
UNICEF Country Program	$24 million UNICEF-funded program supporting the government's efforts to improve education, health, social inclusion, and protection for children in Haiti. In 2017, implemented projects to protect child domestic workers from exploitation and provide reintegration and educational services to unaccompanied children returning from the Dominican Republic, as well as children affected by Hurricane Matthew. (84; 85; 86)
Government Child Shelter, Census, and National Child Protection Database†	Government program to support child protection. Through IBESR, implements the government's regulatory framework for residential care centers (e. g., orphanages and shelters), collects information on vulnerable children, and tracks them through the National Child Protection Database. (22) Has identified almost 30,000 children residing in 770 shelters nationwide. In 2017, closed four residential care centers for abusive practices and referred the affected children to accredited orphanages. (10)
Providing an Education of Quality in Haiti (2016–2017)	$30 million World Bank-implemented program that aims to strengthen public management of the education sector, improve learning conditions, and increase enrollment of students in selected public and non-public primary schools. (87; 74)

† Program is funded by the Government of Haiti.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms. (88; 89; 81)

Despite IBESR's efforts to collect information for the National Child Protection Database, it does not fully capture all relevant information, including the number of displaced street children and children engaged in domestic work. (59) Although Haiti has programs that target the worst forms of child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in domestic work, agriculture, and child trafficking. (10; 90)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Haiti (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age protections apply to children in informal employment arrangements.	2014 – 2017
	Establish by law a compulsory education age equal to or higher than the minimum age for work.	2017
	Clarify the minimum age for work, including for domestic work.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive and include work in hazardous agricultural environments.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information on Labor Inspectorate funding, whether labor inspectors received adequate training, the number and type of labor inspections, and violations, penalties, prosecutions, and convictions related to child labor.	2013 – 2017
	Create meaningful penalties for employing children in contravention of the Labor Code.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the number of criminal law enforcement agents, as well as training and resources for labor and criminal enforcement agencies are sufficient to adequately enforce laws related to child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 – 2017
	Authorize the inspectorate to assess penalties.	2013 – 2017
	Improve institutional mechanisms and practices to ensure that child laborers identified during labor inspections or through other enforcement efforts receive appropriate social services.	2013 – 2017
	Strengthen MAST's and IBESR's enforcement capacity by initiating targeted child protection inspections, rather than by performing inspections based solely on complaints received.	2013 – 2017
	Expand the hotlines operated by BPM and IBESR to facilitate reporting of child exploitation cases in areas beyond Port-au-Prince, including in rural areas; publish information related to the number of calls related to child labor.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the National Tripartite Commission for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor meets regularly and takes action to fulfill its mission.	2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Approve the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that appropriate funding exists to effectively implement the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure implementation of the National Child Protection Policy and the National Strategic Development Plan.	2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children by removing school-related fees in public schools; increasing the number of schools and teachers, especially in rural areas and camps near the border with the Dominican Republic; ensuring that public schools offer instruction in both French and Haitian Creole; and meeting the specific educational needs of vulnerable populations, including recent arrivals from the Dominican Republic.	2009 – 2017
	Expand the National Child Protection Database, including by identifying displaced street children and children in domestic work.	2010 – 2017
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in domestic work, agriculture, and child trafficking.	2010 – 2017

In 2017, Honduras made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government strengthened legal protections for children by publishing the updated list of hazardous occupations prohibited for children and increasing penalties for violations. The Secretariat of Labor and Social Security also launched a mobile application that enables the public to report child labor violations and the government reconstituted the National Commission for the Gradual and Progressive Eradication of Child Labor to include relevant civil society organizations. In addition, the government supported the expansion of the Bright Futures project to reduce child labor and a new project to address child labor and forced labor in the coffee supply chain. However, children in Honduras engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking. Labor and criminal law enforcement agencies experience financial and human resource challenges that may hinder adequate law enforcement. Also, the government's social programs that address child labor in agriculture do not appear sufficient to address the scope of the problem nationwide, and the government lacks social programs to eliminate child labor in other dangerous activities, such as fishing, mining, and domestic work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Honduras engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Honduras.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	8.6 (158,891)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	87.7

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Reports indicate that 20 percent of the Honduran population is of indigenous or African descent and that children from these groups are particularly vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms. (41; 42) Children in Honduras engage in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and recruitment by gangs into illicit activities. (43; 44; 45; 46; 36; 37; 47) Reports indicate that gangs sometimes threaten families as a means to forcibly recruit children into their ranks, where boys are used to commit extortion, drug trafficking, and homicide, and where girls are engaged in commercial sexual exploitation. (39; 36) Children who lack economic and educational opportunities are the most vulnerable and are also among the most likely to migrate to other countries. Once en route, they are also vulnerable to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (43; 44; 45; 46; 36; 37; 47)

In Honduras, access to education is often limited. Reports indicate that approximately 220,000 children between the ages of 5 and 17 lack access to the educational system. (9) More than 75 percent of these children live in rural areas, where lack of funding for schools and, in many cases, lack of any secondary schools, remain a problem. (9; 40) In urban areas, widespread violence and the recruitment of children into gangs hinders access to education because the journey to and from school has become so dangerous. In addition, school completion rates are low and many children fail to complete primary education. According to 2015 data, only 58.3 percent of girls and 47.4 percent of boys completed secondary school. (2; 48; 46; 36; 49; 50)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Honduras has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

In 2017, the Government of Honduras passed a new labor inspection law with higher penalties for violations and published the updated list of hazardous occupations prohibited for children, which was finalized in December 2016. (61; 54)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist with the operations of the Secretariat of Labor and Social Security (STSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Secretariat of Labor and Social Security (STSS)	Conduct labor inspections and enforce child labor laws through the General Labor Inspection Directorate. (62)
Public Ministry's Office of the Special Prosecutor for Children (OSPC)	Prosecute crimes against children, including trafficking of children, hazardous labor, forced labor, and commercial sexual exploitation. Coordinate with Honduran National Police to investigate crimes and protect victims. (2; 29)
Public Ministry's Technical Agency for Criminal Investigations (ATIC)	Investigate and technically support criminal prosecutions conducted by the Public Ministry, including by the OSPC, such as human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and child pornography. (3; 26; 29)
Prosecutorial Task Force to Combat Criminal Smuggling of Unaccompanied Children and Trafficking in Persons	Investigate and prosecute criminal organizations that engage in the illegal smuggling of unaccompanied children and human trafficking. Overseen by the Special Prosecutor Against Organized Crime and the Special Prosecutor for Children. (38; 63)

Overseen by the Secretariat of Development and Social Inclusion. (26; 64; 65; 66)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Honduras took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the STSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with regard to human resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Labor union confederations, employer organizations, and human rights organizations have indicated that the level of funding and resources for the General Labor Inspection Directorate is inadequate to enforce child labor laws nationwide. (40) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Honduras's workforce, which includes over 3.7 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Honduras would employ roughly 249 labor inspectors. (70; 71; 72)

The total number of labor inspections suggests that each labor inspector conducted roughly 230 labor inspections during the year. It is unknown whether this high inspection ratio for each inspector affects the quality of labor inspections. (73) The STSS and civil society partners have also reported that the number of labor inspections conducted is insufficient to address the scope of labor violations in the country, including child labor violations. (40; 67) In particular, reports indicate that the STSS conducts most inspections in the urban areas of Tegucigalpa and San Pedro Sula while rural areas and indigenous communities, where hazardous activities in agriculture and fishing or diving are concentrated, have had insufficient inspections to address the scope of the problem. (1; 41; 74) Under the new labor inspection process, regional STSS offices, rather than the Inspector General, now issue fines. Although the STSS did not introduce implementing regulations for the new labor inspection law during the year, labor inspectors received training on the new law as well as on agricultural labor inspections and occupational safety and health. (68; 61)

In August 2017, the STSS launched new mobile applications for the public to report child labor violations and to check minimum wage rates and school bonus amounts paid by employers to employees with school-age children. (75; 76) However, NGOs report that STSS procedures for responding to child labor complaints are often inadequately followed, largely due to institutional weaknesses and a lack of resources. (26) Furthermore, there does not appear to be an adequate mechanism for the STSS and the Directorate of Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (DINAF) to reciprocally refer cases of child labor to each other, and reports also indicate that DINAF lacks sufficient resources to adequately carry out its mandates. (26; 29; 40)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Honduras took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with regard to financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (66)	Unknown
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (66)	Yes (66)

In 2017, the Public Ministry investigated cases involving the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation of children as a result of human trafficking, the production of child pornography, the use of children in illicit activities by gangs, and domestic servitude. By the end of the year, the Public Ministry had over 12 detainees on trial and achieved successful conviction for the production of child pornography and commercial sexual exploitation of children as a result of human trafficking. (69) Reports indicate that the level of funding and resources available to the Public Ministry's Office of the Special Prosecutor for Children and other criminal law enforcement agencies are insufficient to address the worst forms of child labor nationwide. (66) Reports also indicate that the number of investigations, prosecutions, and convictions of the worst forms of child labor is not sufficient to address the problem. (39) Research could not determine whether any children were rescued by the Public Ministry and if so whether they received services through DINAF, or how many cases of suspected criminal conduct related to the worst forms of child labor were referred by DINAF to the Public Ministry.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission for the Gradual and Progressive Eradication of Child Labor	Coordinate government policies and efforts on child labor issues. Chaired by the STSS and includes officials from eight government ministries, DINAF, the Supreme Court, and other government entities. (77; 78; 62) Oversee regional sub-commissions, led by STSS and DINAF officials that implement national efforts at the local level. (77; 78; 62)
Inter-Institutional Commission Against Exploitation and Commercial Sex Trafficking (CICESCT)	Coordinate government and civil society efforts to combat commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking, including of children. (79) Comprises representatives from 52 organizations, including several government ministries and NGOs. (79; 55; 80) Oversee 19 local CICESCT committees and implement the Strategic Plan to Combat Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking. (39) In 2017, the government doubled the budget and dedicated 40 percent of the increase to victim services. (81; 47)
Unaccompanied Children Task Force (UAC Task Force)	Provide for the safe repatriation of unaccompanied migrant children and coordinate their reintegration into their communities of origin. Led by the First Lady and comprising officials from seven government ministries, DINAF, and the National Institute for Migration. (38; 82; 77)
Ministry of Social Development	Coordinate social protection policies and the provision of services to vulnerable populations, including child and adolescent victims of violence, human trafficking, and sexual and economic exploitation. (2)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the government reconstituted the National Commission for the Gradual and Progressive Eradication of Child Labor to include relevant civil society organizations. (62)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Roadmap for the Eradication of Child Labor in Honduras	Aims to improve the government’s response to child labor issues. Works at the national, regional, and sub-regional levels and addresses poverty, health education, and social development. (2; 83) Implemented by the STSS. (2; 26)
Strategic Plan to Prevent and Eliminate Child Labor (2016–2020)	Identifies lines of action for preventing and eliminating child labor, including by increasing child labor law enforcement, strengthening engagement with the private sector, developing procedures for inter-agency coordination, and developing social programs to support children removed from child labor. (78) Implemented by the STSS and other executive and judicial branch agencies, as well as employers’, workers’, and other civil society organizations. (78)
Strategic Plan to Combat Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking in Honduras (2016–2022)	Establishes national priorities to combat commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking in four principal areas: prevention and awareness; investigation, prosecution, and punishment of violations; detection, assistance, and protection of victims; and coordination and cooperation. (84)
First Public Policy and National Action Plan on Human Rights	Aims to implement the government’s national and international human rights commitments, including those addressing child and forced labor. (29)
Alliance for Prosperity in the Northern Triangle	Aims to create economic growth, increase educational and vocational training opportunities for youth, and reduce violence in Honduras, Guatemala, and El Salvador, in part to decrease the number of unaccompanied minors who leave Honduras and other Central American countries for the United States and who are vulnerable to human trafficking. Signed by the presidents of each country in 2014. (85; 86; 87)
U.S.–Honduras Labor Rights Monitoring and Action Plan (2015–2018)	Aims to improve the enforcement of labor laws, including laws related to child labor, by implementing legal and policy reforms, strengthening the STSS, enhancing enforcement activities, and increasing outreach efforts. (88)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (89; 90; 91; 92; 93)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Better Life Voucher ( Bono Vida Mejor )†	Government conditional cash transfer program that aims to reduce poverty by providing financial assistance to households when children meet educational and health requirements. Assists over one million children, with 74 percent of participants in rural areas. (80; 94; 47) Objectives include the elimination of child labor. (1)
Program to Combat Child Forced Begging†	DINAF program that identifies and rescues children who are subjected to forced begging and raises awareness of child forced begging through media. (29; 74)
Program for the Reintegration of Returned Unaccompanied Migrant Children	Government program that assists unaccompanied migrant children who have been returned to Honduras. Implemented by the National Institute for Migration, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, DINAF, SEDIS, and the National Center for Social Sector Information. (95)
Program to Prevent Sex Tourism Involving Children and Adolescents†	Government program that aims to raise awareness and provide training on sex tourism for the tourism industry. Implemented by the Honduran Tourist Board, the Ministry of Tourism, and the Tourism Institute. (2 96)
School Meals Program†	Ministry of Education program, implemented with support from the WFP and by the Office of the First Lady, that provides school lunches to students to improve nutrition and bolster attendance. (29; 82; 77)
USDOL-Funded Projects	$2 million Addressing Child Labor and Forced Labor in the Coffee Supply Chain in Honduras (2017–2020); $16.5 million Youth Pathways Central America (2015–2020); $8.7 million Bright Futures (2014–2019); and Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues . During 2017, the Bright Futures project expanded to Atlantida and La Paz to reach indigenous children and children of African descent. For additional information please see our website.

Program	Description
USAID-Funded Projects	USAID-funded projects, including Honduran Youth Alliance, which focuses on gang prevention, including for vulnerable youth; Strengthening Capacity to Build a Culture of Peace (FORPAZ), which aims to improve citizen security, including for at-risk youth; and Improving Education for Work, Learning, and Success (METAS), which aims to increase educational opportunities for youth. (74; 97)

Although the Government of Honduras funds or participates in social programs that aim to eliminate child labor in forced begging, commercial sexual exploitation, and the illegal recruitment of children into gang-related activities, research did not identify programs that specifically target children working in other dangerous activities, such as fishing, mining, and domestic work. In addition, social programs that address child labor in agriculture do not appear sufficient to address the scope of the problem nationwide.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Honduras (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information on the level of funding provided to the Labor Inspectorate.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure adequate funding for the STSS, including to follow established procedures for responding to child labor complaints, for sufficient numbers of labor inspectors according to the ILO's technical advice, and for labor inspections in areas where child labor is prevalent, such as rural areas and indigenous communities where children engage in agriculture and fishing or diving.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that all labor inspectors receive training on child labor, and make information about the initial training for new criminal investigators publicly available.	2014 – 2017
	Determine whether the inspection ratio for each labor inspector is appropriate to ensure the quality and scope of inspections.	2017
	Ensure that there is an adequate, reciprocal referral mechanism between the STSS and DINAF for the enforcement of labor laws and the provision of social services for child labor victims, and publish information on the number of rescued children who receive social services, as well as the number of children referred by social services to criminal law enforcement agencies.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that DINAF has sufficient resources to adequately carry out its mandates regarding child protection issues.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on the level of funding for all criminal law enforcement agencies that respond to crimes concerning the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure adequate resources are provided to the OSPC to adequately investigate and prosecute crimes concerning the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2017
	Publish information on the number of criminal investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions regarding the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Social Programs	Increase access to education by increasing funding to schools, building more schools, particularly in rural areas, and enhancing efforts to protect students from gang recruitment and violence.
Expand social programs that address child labor in agriculture and create programs that aim to prevent children from migrating and to eliminate child labor in other dangerous activities, such as fishing, mining, and domestic service.		2009 – 2017
Ensure social programs reach children who are the most vulnerable to child labor, including children of African descent and indigenous children.		2017

In 2017, India made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government ratified both ILO Convention 182 and Convention 138 and amended the Child Labor Act to prohibit children under age 18 from working in hazardous occupations and processes. The government also launched the Platform for Effective Enforcement for No Child Labor to more effectively enforce child labor laws and implement the National Child Labor Program. In addition, the government released a new National Plan of Action for Children that implements the National Policy for Children, which includes a focus on child laborers, trafficked children, and other vulnerable children. However, children in India engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor producing garments and quarrying stones. Children also perform dangerous tasks producing bricks. The Child Labor Act's hazardous work prohibitions do not include all occupations in which children work in unsafe and unhealthy environments for long periods of time. Penalties for employing children are insufficient to deter violations, and the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups is not criminally prohibited.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in India engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor producing garments and quarrying stones. Children also perform dangerous tasks in producing bricks. (1; 2; 3; 4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in India.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	1.4 (3,253,202)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	90.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	0.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		96.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (5)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from National Sample Survey Round 68 (NSS-R68), 2011–2012. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including producing hybrid cottonseed and hybrid vegetable seeds, cultivating cotton, cultivating chili pepper and rice, and harvesting sugarcane, tobacco, and tea (7; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14; 15) (16; 17; 18)
	Processing cashew nuts† and seafood (19; 20; 21; 22)
Industry	Manufacturing garments, weaving silk fabric and carpets, producing raw silk thread (sericulture),‡ spinning cotton thread and yarn, and embellishing textiles with silver and gold ( zari )† (23; 24; 25; 26; 27; 28; 29; 30; 31; 32)

	Street work, including selling food and other goods, and scavenging and sorting garbage (69; 70; 71)
	Construction† (72)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in agriculture, including producing hybrid cottonseed and harvesting sugarcane, both sometimes as a result of human trafficking (73; 74; 75)
	Forced labor in rice mills, quarrying stones, and producing bricks (2; 3; 76; 77; 78; 79; 80; 81)
	Forced labor in producing garments, spinning cotton thread and yarn, and embroidering silver and gold into textiles ( zari ), (1; 30; 25; 82; 83; 26)
	Forced labor in producing carpets, bangles, leather goods, plastic goods, footwear, and bags (84; 85; 86; 87; 38; 88; 89; 49; 90; 91) (92)
	Forced labor in domestic work and begging, both sometimes as a result of human trafficking (62; 93; 94; 63; 75; 95)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (96; 97; 75)
	Forced recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (98; 75; 99)
	Use in illicit activities, including the use of children to traffic children (100)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Within India, children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation and for forced labor in domestic service. (97; 95; 75) Children are also forced to work as bonded laborers in brick kilns and stone quarries to pay off family debts owed to moneylenders and employers. (2; 101) Children from India’s rural areas migrate or are trafficked for employment in industries, such as spinning mills and cottonseed production, in which they are forced to work in hazardous environments for little or no pay. (73; 25) In addition, armed Maoist groups reportedly recruited children to serve as soldiers in the states of Bihar, Chhattisgarh, Jharkhand, Maharashtra, Odisha, and West Bengal. (99; 75)

Child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, forced labor, and human trafficking are more likely to be children from marginalized groups, such as low-caste Hindus, members of tribal communities, and religious minorities. (75) Children from marginalized groups also face barriers to accessing education. These children are sometimes subjected to discrimination and harassment from their teachers. (102; 103; 104)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

India has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In March 2017, the government ratified both ILO Convention 182 and Convention 138. (105)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in India's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of recruitment of children by state and non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 3(1) of the Child Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act (106)

Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 4 of the Bonded Labour System (Abolition) Act; Sections 370 and 374 of the Penal Code; Section 79 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act (108; 109; 110)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 366A, 366B, 370, 372 and 373 of the Indian Penal Code; Section 5 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act (109; 111)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 366A, 366B, 370A, 372 and 373 of the Indian Penal Code; Sections 4–7 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act; Sections 13–15 of the Protection of Children from Sexual Offense Act; Section 67B of the Information Technology Act (109; 111; 112; 113)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 76 and 78 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act; Section 32B(c) of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substance Act (110; 114)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	16
Non-State	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Section 3 of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act (115)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 3 of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act (115)

In 2017, the government amended the Child and Adolescent Labour Act's hazardous work list to include a schedule of occupations and processes in which children under age 18 are prohibited to work along with a further list of occupations and processes in which children under age 14 are prohibited from working in family enterprises. (107; 106) The government also developed Standard Operating Procedures for Enforcement of the Act. (117)

However, despite evidence that children work in unsafe and unhealthy environments for long periods of time in spinning mills, garment production, carpet making, and domestic work, not all children under age 18 are prohibited from working in occupations related to these sectors. (107; 28; 23; 32; 62)

The recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups is not criminally prohibited. (118) In addition, though sources report that the minimum age for voluntary recruitment into India's Armed Forces is 16 and that individuals must be 18 to be deployed, research did not uncover a copy of the pertinent legislation. (119)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the State Government Labor Inspectorates that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

India

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Government Labor Inspectorates	Enforce state and national labor laws. Refer cases in violation of the law to state police. (69) Refer children to Child Welfare Committees for protection and rehabilitation services. (110)
State and Local Police	Enforce laws pertaining to child labor and human trafficking. (120) Submit information to District Magistrates to determine if a case should be prosecuted in District Court. (121) Refer children to Child Welfare Committees for protection and rehabilitation services. (110)
Anti-Human Trafficking Units	Investigate cases of human trafficking. Established in 264 local police jurisdictions throughout India. (122; 120)
Vigilance Committees	Rescue, release, and rehabilitate bonded laborers and family members. Assembled at the district and subdivision levels by the District Magistrate. (108)
State Revenue Department	Issue release certificates to free bonded laborers and family members from debt. (123)
Child Welfare Committees	Refer children in need of care and protection to welfare services providers under the Integrated Child Protection Scheme, including children involved in hazardous work, begging, and human trafficking, as well as those living on the streets. (110) Established 710 committees across the 660 districts in India. (124)
Central Bureau of Investigation's Anti-Human Trafficking Unit	Investigate and prosecute cases involving the kidnapping and trafficking of women and children by professional gangs operating across multiple states. Take on cases by request of, or in agreement with, state governments. (125)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in India took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the State Government Labor Inspectorates that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including that the central government does not collect data on state government and territory funding and employment of labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown* (118)	Unknown* (126)

Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (118)	Yes (126)

* The government does not publish this information. (126)

The Constitution of India gives state governments primary responsibility for the enforcement of labor laws. (128; 129) While the central government seeks to collect data on child labor violations and prosecutions, this information for 2017 was not yet released during the reporting period. The central government also does not collect data on state government and territory funding and employment of labor inspectors. (130; 126; 127)

The penalties for violating the Child Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act are likely insufficient to deter employers from hiring children. (118) Penalties include imprisonment for 6 months to 2 years and/or fines ranging from $300 to $700. (106)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in India took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including that not all states report the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (127)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Yes (127)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (127)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (110)	Yes (126)

The Constitution of India gives state governments primary responsibility for criminal law enforcement, including laws on child labor. (128; 126) In 2017, the Anti-Human Trafficking Cell of the Rajasthan Police launched Operation Milap, during which it rescued over 500 child laborers. (132; 133) State police in Andhra Pradesh, Odisha, and Telangana conducted Operation Muskan campaigns to rescue and rehabilitate missing children through referral to other government agencies, including many involved in the worst forms of child labor. (134; 135; 136)

The National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) collects law enforcement data from state governments regarding cases involving the Child Labor Act, Indian Penal Code articles related to human trafficking and the commercial sexual exploitation of children, and the Immoral Trafficking Act. (131) However, NCRB data does not provide comprehensive national totals for bonded labor or child labor offenses because not all states report these data. (131) In 2016, the most recent year for which NCRB published statistical data, state governments investigated 402 cases (including pending cases from the previous year) under the Child Labor Act, filed charges in and sent 139 cases to trial, and achieved convictions in 8 cases. (131) For crimes involving human trafficking offenses under the Indian Penal Code, state governments investigated 429 cases, filed charges in and sent 202 cases to trial, and achieved convictions in 4 cases. In addition, there were 5,248 cases investigated, 2,003 cases charged and sent for prosecution, and 37 cases convicted for crimes involving the commercial sexual exploitation of children under the India Penal Codes and the Immoral Trafficking Act. (131) However, NCRB data does not indicate whether offenders were investigated, charged, prosecuted, and convicted for multiple criminal offenses, preventing aggregate numbers from being provided in Table 7. (131) While the NCRB did not publish data on the punishments prescribed or enforced in 2016 for child labor-related convictions, NGO and news sources indicate that punishments were carried out in 2016 and 2017. (137; 65)

In addition, in 2016, there were 187 cases investigated, 103 cases charged and sent to trial, and 3 cases convicted involving the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act in 2016; however, these data were not disaggregated between adults and children and the punishments for offenders are unknown. (131) The Government of India also identified and removed 2,950 children from forced labor, 236 from commercial sexual exploitation, and 115 from domestic servitude in 2016. (138)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Central Monitoring Committee	Supervise, monitor, and evaluate actions of the National Child Labor Projects (NCLPs) across India. Led by the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE); some state governments maintain state-level Monitoring Committees to monitor the NCLPs in their states. (139)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Core Group on Child Labor	Coordinate the integration of social protection programs to reduce child labor. Comprises members from the Ministries of Human Resource Development; Women and Child Development; Housing and Urban Poverty Alleviation; Rural Development; Social Justice and Empowerment; Home Affairs; and community governments ( Panchayati Raj ). Chaired by MOLE. (140)
Ministry of Home Affairs' Anti-Human Trafficking Cell	Implement the government's nationwide plan to combat human trafficking by coordinating with states to establish Anti-Human Trafficking Units and train thousands of officials to combat human trafficking. Requires states to submit quarterly reports to this coordinating body. (69; 120)
National Human Rights Commission	Monitor implementation of the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act. Monitor state governments' actions to identify, release, and rehabilitate bonded laborers through quarterly submissions and exploratory and investigative missions. (141; 142)
National Commission for the Protection of Child Rights	Ensure that all laws, policies, programs, and administrative mechanisms are in accordance with the constitutional protections for children and the UN CRC. Inquire about child rights violations and failures to properly implement laws relating to child protection. (69; 143) Established in all 30 states and in 3 territories, including Delhi. (144)

Research was unable to determine whether the coordinating bodies were active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of State Action Plans for the elimination of child labor for all state governments.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Policy on Child Labor	Describes actions for combating hazardous labor for children, including implementing legislation and providing direct assistance to children. (145) During the reporting period, the policy was implemented through programs operated by MOLE and the Ministry of Women and Child Development (MWCD) with the rescue of 30,979 children from labor through the National Child Labor Project Scheme. (146; 147; 127)
State Action Plans on Child Labor	Details state governments' activities and programs to eliminate child labor from hazardous industries. Child labor action plans in place in 10 state governments: Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Gujarat, Jharkhand, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Meghalaya, Orissa, and Tamil Nadu. (148; 149; 150; 151; 152; 153) In 2017, Telangana state approved a State Action Plan for Elimination of Child and Adolescent Labor. (154)
National Policy for Children	Seeks to guide laws, policies, plans, and programs affecting children. Sets out the policy that state governments should take all necessary measures to track, rescue, and rehabilitate child laborers, trafficked children, and other vulnerable children, and to ensure that out-of-school children can access education. (155) During the reporting period, the policy released a National Plan of Action for Children (NPAC) that focuses on four key areas: survival, health, and nutrition; education and development; protection; and participation. (146; 147; 127; 156)

‡ The Government had other policies which may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (157; 158)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including barriers to education encountered by marginalized communities.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
National Child Labor Project (NCLP) Scheme†	MOLE scheme that operates at the district level to identify working children, withdraw them from hazardous work, and provide them with education and vocational training. Sets up and administers NCLP schools, mainstreams children into formal education, and provides them with stipends, meals, and health checkups. (146) Comprises approximately 3,000 NCLP special training centers that accommodate approximately 120,000 children. Through the Grants-in-Aid Scheme, MOLE funds NGOs to set up rehabilitation projects in districts that do not have an NCLP Scheme. (146) In 2017, the government launched PENCIL (Platform for Effective Enforcement of No Child Labor), an online portal that allows government officials, NGOs, and law enforcement to share information and coordinate on child labor cases at the national, state, and local levels in an attempt to improve enforcement of child labor laws and the implementation of the NCLP scheme. (159; 160)

Program	Description
Integrated Child Protection Scheme (ICPS)†	MWCD scheme that provides children in need of protection—including children withdrawn from hazardous work, forced labor, and human trafficking—with food and accommodation in government-run shelters, as well as non-institutional care in foster homes and adoptive families. Provides rehabilitation and reintegration services to rescued children. (147) Through the Welfare of Working Children in Need of Care and Protection program, provides non-formal education and vocational training to street children and working children living in urban areas not covered by NCLP schemes. (147) In 2017, revised to increase allocations. (161)
Childline†	MWCD-funded 24-hour toll-free emergency telephone service for children in distress. Includes Childline India Foundation-operated telephone service in cities across India, which connects children in need of assistance with hospitals, child welfare committees, shelter homes, and police. (147) In 2016–2017, $6.4 million was granted to fund Childline services in 413 locations. (162)
TrackChild†	MWCD-implemented online portal tracks missing children and facilitates information sharing about missing and vulnerable children among stakeholders, including child protection units, police stations, and Child Welfare Committees. (147; 163) In 2017, established the Khoya-Paya (Lost and Found) website to allow parents and the general public to report and search for missing children. (164; 147)
Central Sector Scheme for Rehabilitation of Bonded Labourers, 2017†	MOLE program, rescues and rehabilitates adult and child bonded laborers. Provides rescued bonded laborers with financial assistance and social protection services. (146) Supports funding of surveys at the district level on the prevalence of bonded labor and the rehabilitation of bonded laborers identified through the surveys. (165; 166) As of September 30, 2017, more than $14 million provided to state governments for the rehabilitation of 289,222 bonded laborers. (166)
Anti-Human Trafficking Activities†	MWCD-operated anti-human trafficking activities, in collaboration with NGOs and state governments. (147) Supports projects to help reintegrate, rehabilitate, and repatriate human trafficking victims, including children, through the Ujjawala scheme. Also provides short-term housing and rehabilitation services, including vocational training for women and adolescent girls, through the Swadhar Greh scheme. (147)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (167; 168; 169; 170)

State governments conduct district-level surveys on bonded labor under the Rehabilitation of Bonded Labor Scheme. However, in surveyed districts, data were not available on the number of victims of bonded labor, including children. (171; 172)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in India (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18 are comprehensive, especially in the sectors in which children work in unsafe and unhealthy conditions for long periods of time such as in spinning mills, garment production, carpet making and domestic work.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Collect and publish national-level data on labor law enforcement, including funding, the number of labor inspectors, the number of labor inspections and those conducted at workplaces, the number of violations found and the penalties imposed and collected for child labor law violations.	2014 – 2017
	Create meaningful penalties for employment of children in prohibited child labor to ensure that they effectively deter violations.	2014 – 2017
	Collect and publish national-level data from all state governments on the number of criminal investigations, violations, prosecutions, convictions, and punishments for all crimes involving the worst forms of child labor. Clarify in existing data whether cases reported involve multiple offenders.	2009 – 2017
Coordination	Publish information on activities undertaken by coordinating bodies.	2017
Government Policies	Work with state governments that do not currently have State Action Plans for the elimination of child labor to establish such plans.	2011 – 2017
Social Programs	Penalize education officials who engage in discrimination and harassment of children and reduce barriers to education, in particular those from marginalized communities.	2014 – 2017
	Make data and findings from district-level bonded labor surveys publicly available.	2009 – 2017

Indonesia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Indonesia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government ratified the Association of Southeast Asian Nations Convention Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, which enhances human trafficking protections for children. In addition, the Ministry of Manpower removed 18,401 children from street work and garbage scavenging in 7 provinces and 46 regencies.

The Indonesian National Police arrested five administrators of an online child pornography group and cooperated with Interpol and the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation to apprehend more of the group's members. However, children in Indonesia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of palm oil and tobacco. The Ministry of Manpower lacks the financial resources and personnel necessary to adequately enforce child labor laws throughout the country. The government also failed to enact the Domestic Workers Protection Bill, on which it has been deliberating since 2010; this bill would impose criminal penalties on employers who do not meet minimum labor standards and outline the circumstances under which children ages 15 through 17 could perform non-hazardous domestic work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Indonesia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of palm oil and tobacco. (6; 7; 8; 9; 10; 3; 11) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Indonesia. While the government collects national data on working children ages 5 through 14, it does not publish the data.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	3.7 (816,363)
Attending School (%)	10 to 14	92.4
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	2.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		98.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (12)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from National Labor Force Survey (Sakernas), 2010. (13)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production and harvest used in plantation industries, including palm oil, which includes growing, fertilizing, cutting, spraying, collecting, and loading palm oil fruits (7; 10; 8; 1; 14)
	Planting, watering, harvesting, and applying fertilizer to tobacco (6; 9; 15; 3)
	Production of rubber†, including tapping trees and using acid† to thicken latex (8; 3; 16; 17)
	Fishing, including on fishing vessels, in processing facilities, and on offshore platforms† (18; 19; 3; 20; 21)
Industry	Mining,† including gold and tin (22; 23; 24; 25; 26; 3; 16; 21)
	Construction,† activities unknown (3; 21)
	Production of footwear, including sandals (16; 3)
	Production of bricks, tile, furniture, and textiles (27)
	Manufacturing pyrotechnics† (28; 3; 29; 30)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, activities unknown (8; 31)
	Driving buses (32)
	Garbage scavenging† (33; 34; 35)
	Horse jockeying (36; 37; 38)
	Domestic work (8; 39; 40; 3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including forced begging and the sale, production, and trafficking of drugs, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (41; 42; 43; 44; 3)
	Domestic work and fishing, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2; 3; 16; 20)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8; 41; 3; 45; 2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children, mostly girls, are subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation abroad, primarily in Malaysia, Taiwan, and the Middle East; within the country, children are also subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in Batam, Jakarta, Bali, Bandung, Bogor, Surabaya, and Medan. Research suggests between 70,000 to 80,000 children in Indonesia work in the commercial sex trade. (8; 46; 3; 2; 47)

Children work in tobacco farming, especially in the provinces of East Java, Central Java, and West Nusa Tenggara, which exposes them to pesticides, long hours of work, and extreme heat. (6; 3; 48; 11; 49) Children also work on palm oil plantations tending the nursery, collecting fallen palm fruitlets, and spraying toxic herbicides to help adult laborers meet their quotas and earn premium pay. (50; 51; 52; 3; 7)

Although the National Education Law mandates free education, Embassy research indicates that schools impose additional fees on students to cover school activities. The added expense may hinder student’s ability to attend school. (3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Indonesia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Indonesia’s legal framework to adequately protect child domestic workers.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 69 of the Manpower Act; Law on the Ratification of ILO C. 138 (53; 54)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Article 2 of Ministerial Decree No. 235 (55; 54)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Annex F of Ministerial Decree No. 235: Jobs that Jeopardize the Health, Safety, or Morals of Children (55)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 1–6 and 17 of the Law on the Eradication of the Criminal Act of Trafficking in Persons; Article 83 of the Law on Child Protection (54; 56; 57)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 83 of the Law on Child Protection; Articles 1–6 and 17 of the Law on the Eradication of the Criminal Act of Trafficking in Persons (56; 57)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 81–82 of the Law on Child Protection; Article 297 of the Penal Code; Section 3 of the Law on the Ratification of the Rights of the Child Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography; Articles 4–12 and 37 of Law on Anti-Pornography (27; 54; 57; 58; 59; 60; 61)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 74 of the Manpower Act; Articles 67, 78, and 89 of the Law on Child Protection (54; 57)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 28 of Law No. 34/2004 on the Indonesian National Armed Forces (62)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 28 of Law No. 34/2004 on the Indonesian National Armed Forces (62)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 3(d) of Law No. 9/2012 on Ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict (63)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 48 of the Law on Child Protection; Articles 6 and 34 of the Act on the National Education System (57; 64)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 34 of the Act on the National Education System (64)

In October 2017, the government ratified the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) Convention Against Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children. This complements national legislation and enhances human trafficking protections by criminalizing human trafficking related offenses, and empowering law enforcement agencies in Indonesia to seize and foreclose assets of human trafficking suspects and to collaborate with law enforcement agencies in other ASEAN countries. (47)

The government has yet to pass the draft Domestic Workers Protection Bill, which outlines the circumstances under which children ages 15 through 17 can perform non-hazardous domestic work, including requiring the parent's permission to execute the employment contract and prohibiting work at night; (65; 66; 67; 68; 69; 70) While the government issued Ministerial Regulation No. 2/2015, which raised the minimum age of domestic workers to 18, criminal penalties are not imposed because the regulation is not law. The regulation allows designated neighborhood chiefs to supervise the working conditions of domestic workers in private residences. (71; 69; 72)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Manpower (MOM) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Manpower (MOM) Directorate General of Labor Development and Supervision and Directorate of Norms Supervision of Women and Child Workers	Provide information to employers on child labor laws and regulations, and work with law enforcement officials to prosecute child labor violators. (59; 73) Refer children found during inspections to the local Women's Empowerment and Family Planning Body or to the Integrated Service Center for Empowering Women and Children for appropriate social services. (3) In the case of the Directorate of Norms Supervision of Women and Child Workers, receive complaints of child labor by telephone, fax, or email. (3)
National Police, Including Women and Children's Service Unit	Conduct inspections and raids and make arrests in response to crimes, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (74; 41)
Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection	Coordinate the provision of social services to children, including those involved in child labor. In cooperation with Ministry of Communications, operate a children's helpline in 20 provinces to receive complaints on child protection. (3)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Indonesia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operation of the MOM that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$1,700,000 (75)	$2,100,000 (3)

Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (75)	Yes (3)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (75)	Yes (3)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (75)	Yes (3)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (75)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (75)	Yes (3)

In 2017, MOM inspectors rescued 18,401 children from street work or garbage scavenging in 7 provinces and 46 regencies, and worked with the Ministry of Education and Culture, Ministry of Religious Affairs, and the Ministry of Social Affairs to encourage the parents of these children to enroll them in school. (3; 71) Inspectors have the authority to conduct unannounced inspections in the formal sector; however, they are prohibited from inspecting private farms and homes where the vast majority of child labor occurs. (6; 76; 3) Despite this prohibition, the Ministry of Women's Empowerment and Child Protection will respond to reports of child labor in the informal sector. (77)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Indonesia's workforce, which includes approximately 126 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in less developed economies, Indonesia would employ about 8,407 labor inspectors. (78; 79; 80; 3; 81) Research suggests that the number of inspections conducted by each inspector was insufficient during the reporting period because of an insufficient number of inspectors, coordination challenges, transfer of the labor inspection system from the national government to the provincial government, and lack of sufficient resources—such as office facilities and fuel for transportation—to carry out inspections. (3)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The MOM employed an additional 94 inspectors during the reporting period; however only 30 new inspectors received training on laws related to the worst forms of child labor. The MOM provided refresher training for 900 existing labor inspectors. (14) Due to an insufficient number of inspectors, the MOM continued to employ community-based monitors and neighborhood chiefs to report incidences of domestic child labor. (3)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Indonesia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (75)	N/A (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (3)
Number of Investigations	120 (75)	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (75)	Yes (3)

In 2017, the Indonesian Commission on Child Protection recorded 514 cases involving children in pornography and cybercrime. The Indonesian National Police arrested five administrators of an online child pornography group and cooperated with Interpol and the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation to apprehend more of the group's members. (3; 82; 45; 77) In addition, the National Anti-Trafficking Taskforce investigated 91 cases of child trafficking, and the Indonesian National Police conducted training on human trafficking of both adults and children for 200 law enforcement personnel, including police investigators, prosecutors, and judges. (3; 77) While criminal law enforcement personnel received training on human trafficking laws that covered children, research suggests that training on current child labor-specific regulations was inadequate. (3)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including funding for child labor committees.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Provincial-Level and District-Level Regional Action Committees	Coordinate and monitor policy and program efforts and develop action plans to eliminate the worst forms of child labor at the local level. (83) Indonesia has provincial-level task forces in all 34 provinces and 192 district-level committees. (84)
National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons	Coordinate anti-trafficking efforts across 21 ministries and government agencies, including efforts to combat child trafficking. (85) Chaired by the Coordinating Ministry of Human Development and Culture, with task force meetings organized by the Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection. (84) Provide vocational training and scholarships to school-aged children to reduce susceptibility to trafficking. (86)
Provincial and District Task Forces for the Prevention and Handling of Human Trafficking	Coordinate prevention and anti-trafficking efforts at the local level. (86) Commonly chaired by the local Integrated Service Center for Women and Children or the local Office of Social Affairs. Operates in all 34 provinces and 191 out of 438 districts. (47)

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Sub-Task Force on the Prevention of Child Participation in Trafficking in Persons	Organize regular coordination meetings, provide technical trainings on human trafficking for government officials, and produce publications on the prevention of trafficking in persons. (69) Chaired by the Ministry of Education and Culture Director for Early Childhood, Nonformal, and Informal Education. (85)
Indonesian Child Protection Commission	Monitor the implementation of the Child Protection Law and child protection policies and provides recommendations on the framework of child protection to the President of Indonesia. (87; 57)

The National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons notes that some Provincial and District Task Forces lack sufficient funding and fail to incorporate its recommendations into their plans of action to adequately guide efforts to eliminate the trafficking of women and children. (86; 27) These recommendations include empowering community activists to organize public awareness campaigns and conduct technical trainings to educate communities in provinces that are vulnerable to human trafficking; integrating and aligning human trafficking programs with other government programs to improve government efforts to combat human trafficking and avoid duplication; supporting cross-sectoral offices to establish the Internet for Children Program; and supporting the Ministry of Social Affairs and Ministry of Health's agreement on rehabilitation programs for human trafficking victims. (69)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan (NAP) for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2002–2022)	Provides a policy framework for the elimination of child labor. (74; 88; 89; 90) Specific activities include improving data collection on the worst forms of child labor, increasing awareness-raising and advocacy efforts, and formulating regulations and policies to prohibit the worst forms of child labor. (91) In 2017, the MOM and other government agencies worked with provincial and district governments to provide assistance to local governments in implementing regulations and legislation that align with the Roadmap Toward a Child Labor-Free Indonesia. (3)
National Action Plan on Preventing Trafficking in Persons (2015–2019)	Guides the work of the National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons. Aims to improve health and social rehabilitation services and repatriation and social reintegration services for human trafficking victims, update anti-human trafficking regulations, and strengthen the investigation of human trafficking cases and the prosecution of perpetrators. Enhances coordination among task force members and between national and international stakeholders. (92)
Roadmap Toward a Child Labor-Free Indonesia in 2022 (2014–2022)	Supports implementation of the National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. Aims to mainstream the elimination of the worst forms of child labor into relevant national policies; strengthen coordination between stakeholders at the national, provincial, and district levels; and enhance the capacity of stakeholders to eradicate child labor. (85; 93) Key feature is the establishment of Child-Labor-Free Industrial Zones, which has removed 98,564 child laborers from work between 2008 and 2017. (3) In 2017, removed 18,401 children engaged in child labor. (69)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including education-related fees for children in school.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects aim to build the capacity of the government, develop strategic policies to address the elimination of child labor and forced labor, improve the evidence base on child labor and forced labor through data collection and research, strengthen legal protections and social services delivery for child domestic workers, and build capacity of domestic worker organizations to address child domestic work. PROMOTE: Decent Work for Domestic Workers to End Child Domestic Labor (2012–2017), $5 million project implemented by ILO-IPEC; Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues, implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries; and Building a Generation of Safe and Healthy Workers: Safe and Healthy Youth, implemented by the ILO with Indonesia as one of the countries. (94; 95; 96) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

Program	Description
Child Trafficking Services†	MOSA and other government agency program that provides social rehabilitation and shelter services for child victims of trafficking. (97; 98)
West Java and Bandung Municipality Street Children Program†	West Java provincial government and municipality of Bandung programs to assist street children. (88)
Cash Transfer Programs†	Government programs that aim to provide conditional cash transfers to help with education and health expenses to vulnerable groups, including street children, abandoned children and infants, children facing criminal charges, children with disabilities, the poorest families, and child laborers who dropped out of school. Smart Indonesia Program; Unconditional Cash Transfer Program ( Bantuan Langsung Semetara Masyarakat ); Child Social Welfare Program ( Program Kesejahteraan Sosial Anak ); Family Welfare Card ( Kartu Keluarga Sejahtera ); Family Hope Program ( Program Keluarga Harapan ); and Social Protection Cards ( Kartu Perlindungan ). (75; 85; 99; 100; 3)
Block Grants for Schools ( Bantuan Operasional Sekolah )†	Government block grant program that compensates schools for the loss of income from waiving school fees for poor and vulnerable children in primary, junior secondary, and senior high schools. (101; 3)
Minimum Service Standards of Basic Education Program	Aims to improve access to quality public education by limiting the distance of primary and junior secondary schools from children's households, by specifying minimum teacher-student ratios, and identifying minimum teacher education qualifications. (102)
Community Learning Centers†	Government program that aims to provide education for the children of palm oil workers. (47) In 2017, established 5 additional centers along the Indonesian and Malaysian border in Sabah and Sarawak, for a total of 255 centers. (47; 69)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (3; 99)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Indonesia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Pass the Domestic Workers Protection Bill that would protect child domestic workers ages 15 through 17.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice to provide adequate coverage of the workforce and provide sufficient funds for labor inspections.	2010 – 2017
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors on laws and enforcement of laws related to child labor and/or hazardous child labor.	2017
	Publish criminal enforcement information, including the number of investigations conducted, the number of violations found, the number of prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions for crimes relating to the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that all criminal law enforcement personnel receive training on child labor regulations.	2017
Coordination	Sufficiently fund provincial and district task forces and require them to incorporate the recommendations of the National Task Force to Combat Trafficking in Persons into their plans of action on the elimination of trafficking of women and children.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Publish data on child laborers ages 5 through 14.	2016 – 2017
	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education, including by removing school-related fees.	2016 – 2017
	Conduct research to determine the types of activities carried out by children working in construction and street work to inform policies and programs.	2014 – 2017

Iraq

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Iraq made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Iraq is receiving this assessment because it continued practices that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor, specifically the recruitment of child soldiers.

In 2017, armed groups engaged in combat against ISIS, including units of the Popular Mobilization Forces (PMF), which were affiliated with the Iraqi security services, recruited and used children. The government supported the reopening of 100 schools in west Mosul, serving 75,000 students, and provided additional educational opportunities for Syrian refugee children, as a result of which the number of out-of-school Syrian children dropped by over 50,000.

Moreover, the government adopted a new policy to address child labor, including through educational and social services, and re-opened a shelter for victims of human trafficking. Despite these efforts, children in Iraq engage in other worst forms of child labor, including forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Labor law enforcement suffers from an insufficient number of labor inspectors and a lack of funding for inspections, authority to assess penalties, and labor inspector training. The government also continues to lack programs that focus on assisting children involved in the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Iraq engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Iraq.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	5.3 (454,330)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	75.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (6)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4, 2011. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming (8; 9; 1)
	Herding livestock (8; 9)

The UN reported that Popular Mobilization Forces (PMF) units recruited and used children in militia activities and manning checkpoints or providing support at checkpoints. (1; 2) A 2016 law had formalized the status of the Popular Mobilization Committee (PMC), an umbrella organization for the PMF, within the Iraqi state structure. In early 2018, the Prime Minister issued an order further incorporating the PMC into the Iraqi defense forces. (30) Despite the formal incorporation of the PMF into the security services, the government struggled to assert control over all PMF units. (31) Research did not find evidence that the Iraqi Army and the Iraqi Police used children in armed conflict. (32)

ISIS recruited children, including girls, and used them in combat operations, for example as suicide bombers and human shields. (1; 2) ISIS also continued to use children in its propaganda materials online. (2) Armed groups, including Sunni tribal forces, Yezidi Resistance Forces, Yezidi Women’s Protection Units (YPJ), and the Kurdistan Workers’ Party (PKK), which were outside the Iraqi Government’s control and were engaged in combat against ISIS, also recruited and used children. (1; 2) In Kirkuk, a militia group also provided a voluntary, 3-month training for 100 Shia Turkmen boys ages 15 and older on how to participate in combat. (31)

ISIS fighters subjected girls, primarily from the Yezidi community but also from other ethnic and religious groups, to sexual slavery, forced marriages, or forced domestic work in Iraq, Syria, and Turkey. (33; 34; 35; 3; 4; 5; 31) Throughout the country, some girls were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation through temporary marriages. (3) This practice involves a dowry paid to the girl’s family and an agreement to dissolve the marriage after a predetermined length of time. (36) ISIS sold boys who they considered too young or too weak to engage in armed conflict into forced domestic work. (26; 27) Limited evidence points to trafficking of girls from Iran into the Iraqi Kurdistan Region for commercial sexual exploitation. Some officials of the Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) were involved in the trafficking of Syrian refugee girls for commercial sexual exploitation. (37; 3) Child laborers were also exposed to sexual violence and abuse. (13)

Children faced numerous barriers to accessing education, including attacks on schools and specific targeting of teachers and school personnel. Other barriers included the lack of schools nearby, the use of schools as shelters by internally displaced persons (IDPs) and as detention centers by ISIS, costs of transportation and school supplies, lack of sufficient educational facilities, and IDPs’ and refugees’ lack of identification documents. (13; 25; 38; 39; 1) Many children, especially girls, dropped out of school in Mosul, Iraq’s second-largest city, when ISIS occupied it in 2014. ISIS closed schools and used the school curriculum to indoctrinate and recruit child soldiers, by normalizing violence. (18; 40; 41; 42) Despite the reopening of many schools, approximately 1.2 million children throughout Iraq remained out of school as of October 2017. (43) While estimates vary, at least 10,000 Syrian refugee children were out of formal and informal education in 2017. (44; 45) For these refugees, the majority of whom live in the Kurdistan Region, access to education was limited because of security concerns, school-related costs such as transportation and uniforms, and language issues, because most classes in the Kurdistan Region are taught in Kurdish rather than Arabic. (46)

As of December 2017, more than 2.2 million people were internally displaced, including 1.3 million children, and approximately 3.2 million people had recently returned to newly accessible areas, many of whom found their homes and schools damaged or destroyed. (47)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Iraq has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Iraq's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

	Kurdistan Region	Yes		Article 10 of the Kurdistan Regional Government Ministry of Education Law (56)

‡ Age calculated based on available information

In Iraq, Article 1 of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking requires force or coercion to be present as an element of the crime of child trafficking, which is inconsistent with international standards, including Article 3 of the Palermo Protocol. (51) The Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament must endorse laws passed by the Government of Iraq after 1991 for such laws to enter into force in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region, which comprises the provinces of Dohuk, Erbil, and Sulaimaniya. (58; 31) The Iraqi Kurdistan Parliament has not endorsed the Iraqi Law to Combat Human Trafficking, and the only law in effect in the Kurdistan region prohibiting trafficking, the 1987 Labor Law, mentions child trafficking but does not prohibit the necessary elements of a child trafficking crime. (31; 49)

Moreover, in Iraq, the provisions of the 2015 Labor Law protecting children from hazardous work do not apply to children ages 15 to 17 working in family businesses under the authority of family members. (48)

Under the Iraqi Education Law and under the Law on Compulsory Education, children are required to attend primary school for 6 years, which is typically up to age 12. (54; 55; 59) This standard makes children ages 12 to 15 particularly vulnerable to child labor, because they are not required to be in school, yet they are not legally permitted to work.

In 2016, the Council of Ministers directed the Ministry of Justice to draft an amendment to the Education Law that would extend compulsory education through secondary school. (60) In the same year, the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA) and the KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs discussed a draft child protection law that includes provisions on child labor. (14) Neither of the two drafts was adopted into law in 2017. (1)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of MOLSA that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs (MOLSA)	Enforce child labor laws and regulations through its Child Labor Unit. Conduct research on child labor through its Childhood Welfare Authority. (20) Receive complaints of child labor cases. (14)
Kurdistan Regional Government (KRG) Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs	Enforce child labor laws and regulations in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region. KRG Ministry of Interior's police units play a supporting role in the daily activities of the Ministry. (20)
Ministry of Interior	Enforce criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. Collaborate with MOLSA, the Iraqi Industries Federation, and the Confederation of Trade Unions to conduct inspection campaigns. (20) Maintain a hotline for victims of human trafficking that is routed directly to the Ministry's Anti-Trafficking Department. (20)
KRG Ministry of Interior	Investigate cases of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. (14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Iraq took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of MOLSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors, and lack of funding for inspections, authority to assess penalties, and labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017

* The government does not publish this information.

In 2017, research did not find information about the funding of MOLSA. However, in 2016, officials had stated that their funding was limited. (20) In 2015, insufficient transportation and fuel hampered MOLSA's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (20) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Iraq's workforce, which includes over 8.9 million workers. (62) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Iraq would employ about 593 labor inspectors. (63; 64) MOLSA carried out joint inspections with the Ministry of Education and reported a total number of 9,129 inspections. (1)

In 2017, the KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs did not have budgetary allocations for inspections, did not provide child labor training to inspectors, and its 60 labor inspectors did not carry out inspections. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Iraq took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators and prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown (14)	No (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (14)	No (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (14)	No (1)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (14)	Unknown (1)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (14)	0 (1)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (14)	0 (1)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (14)	0 (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (14)	Yes (1)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, neither the Government of Iraq nor the KRG provided training for criminal investigators. (1) KRG officials stated that courts could refer cases of the worst forms of child labor to the KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (14) Research did not uncover other information on criminal law enforcement, including in the Iraqi Kurdistan Region.

Some child victims of human trafficking and forced labor were prosecuted for acts committed while being trafficked and underwent deportation proceedings. (3; 34) In August 2017, the Government of Iraq and KRG officials held about 1,000 children in custody due to suspected family affiliation with ISIS members. (65; 2) Lack of sufficient coordination among judicial authorities and security forces across governorates led to re-arrests of some children previously cleared of charges. (32)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies to effectively process cases of children suspected of having ties with ISIS.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Inter-ministerial Committee on Child Labor	Coordinate overall government efforts to combat child labor, research policies regarding child labor, and design and manage projects. Members included representatives from MOLSA and four other ministries. (20) Research was unable to determine whether the Inter-ministerial Committee on Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
Joint Committee on Street Children	Coordinate the implementation of measures for removing and rehabilitating street children. Members include MOLSA and the Ministry of Interior. (66) Research was unable to determine whether the Joint Committee on Street Children was active during the reporting period.
Central Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons	Oversee implementation of the Law to Combat Human Trafficking and serve as the national coordinating body on trafficking in persons. Led by the Ministry of Interior, also includes representatives from five ministries, the KRG Ministry of Interior, and two other state entities. (14; 20) In 2017, the Committee met five times and its members traveled to recently liberated areas to interview internally displaced persons regarding human trafficking. (32) However, due to lack of sufficient coordination between judicial authorities and security forces, some children who were suspected of affiliation with ISIS, cleared of allegations, and released from custody were sometimes re-arrested for the same allegations. (32)
KRG High Commission on Child Labor	Coordinate interagency policies on child labor. Chaired by the KRG Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. Members include representatives from five other KRG ministries. (14) Research was unable to determine whether the KRG High Commission on Child Labor was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Protection Policy (2017–2022) †	Provides a holistic approach to addressing children’s needs, including ameliorating the child labor situation in the country, through prevention, protection, and rehabilitation programs such as a poverty alleviation initiative, and educational and mental health services. (1; 67) Includes a component to provide rehabilitation and reintegration activities for children previously engaged in armed conflict, as well as children who experienced trauma during the period of ISIS occupation. (31)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including services to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Informal Education†	Government-supported informal education systems, including evening school programs and the fast education mode that encourages children ages 12 to 18 who have dropped out of school to continue their education. (66) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 to implement this program.
Conditional Subsidies Program†	Provides assistance to low-income families for children to stay in school and out of the workforce. (14) This program was not active in 2017 but resumed activities in 2018. (31)
Shelters for Human Trafficking Victims†	MOLSA-operated shelter in Baghdad for human trafficking victims, including children involved in the worst forms of child labor; other facilities are in Basrah, Kirkuk, and Ninewa provinces. (68) The government addressed security concerns, and the Baghdad shelter reopened in August 2017. (1) During the reporting period, the Ministry of Interior referred five children to the shelter, but it is unclear whether the children used it. (32)

In 2017, the government, in cooperation with UNICEF, reopened 100 schools in west Mosul, serving 75,000 students. (43) Likewise, in east Mosul, 437 schools were reopened, resulting in 45,000 children returning to school. (40) The KRG, in cooperation with UNHCR and partners, announced that children successfully enrolled in non-formal education programs would be eligible to be reintegrated into the formal education system. Also, Syrian refugee children enrolling in first grade became eligible to enroll in local schools that used Kurdish as the language of instruction. (69) As a result of these efforts, the number of Syrian refugee children who did not attend formal and non-formal education programs decreased, from 61,000 in 2016 to 10,000 in 2017. (70; 45)

In 2016, the government drafted a plan to rehabilitate and integrate children liberated from ISIS, including child soldiers, back into their communities. In May 2017, the Council of Ministers approved the plan and allocated a budget of approximately $8.4 million for its implementation. (60) Nevertheless, the funds were not disbursed and the program was not launched. (71)

Research found no evidence of specific active programs to demobilize and reintegrate child soldiers or programs to support children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Iraq (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the laws comprehensively prohibit child trafficking in all parts of Iraq, including the Kurdistan Region, and do not require force or coercion for its application, in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that hazardous work protections apply to all children, including children working in family businesses under the authority of family members.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law in Iraq criminally prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2013 – 2017
	Increase the age of compulsory schooling in Iraq to at least age 15, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information on the funding of the Labor Inspectorate and whether unannounced inspections were conducted.	2011 – 2017
	Authorize the Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators receive training courses on child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO technical advice and ensure adequate funding to effectively enforce legal protections against child labor, including its worst forms.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors in the Kurdistan Region receive funding and training on child labor to conduct labor inspections.	2016 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that children under age 18 cannot join armed groups affiliated with the Popular Mobilization Forces to engage in combat.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that criminal investigators carry out investigations to find violations, and that the government prosecutes violators.	2013 – 2017
	Publish information on criminal law enforcement on the worst forms of child labor in the Kurdistan Region.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that child victims of human trafficking are not prosecuted.	2015 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017
	Through enhanced coordination among government agencies, ensure that children previously cleared of charges related to armed conflict are not at risk of re-arrest and re-prosecution.	2017
Social Programs	Ensure that children are discouraged from enlisting in armed groups and receiving military training.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that universal access to education is consistent with international standards, including for refugee and internally displaced children.	2013 – 2017
	Implement programs to address child labor in relevant sectors in Iraq, such as commercial sexual exploitation, and demobilize and reintegrate children engaged in armed groups.	2009 – 2017

71. U.S. Embassy- Baghdad official. E-mail communication to USDOL official. March 29, 2018.

In 2017, Jamaica made moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the National Identification System law that requires all citizens to receive a national identification card, allowing children without birth certificates to have identification documents. The Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit collaborated with the Jamaica Fire Brigade to close establishments suspected of facilitating commercial sexual exploitation of children by finding and enforcing fire code violations. Additionally, the government expanded the Program for Advancement through Health and Education to serve 297,135 participants, increased free weekly school meals from 3 to 5, and offered transportation assistance to students. However, children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, and illicit activities. Although the government has laws prohibiting the use of children in some illicit activities, it does not provide higher penalties for using, procuring, or offering children for the production and distribution of drugs compared to those for using adults. In addition, programs to combat child labor are insufficient to address the country's child labor problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Jamaica engage in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities. (1; 2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Jamaica.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	6.2 (30,111)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	98.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	7.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Jamaica Youth Activity Survey, 2016. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (4; 1)
	Fishing, activities unknown (5; 1)
Services	Garbage scavenging, collecting scrap metal (6; 1)
	Working in gardens, shops, and markets (5; 7; 1; 8)
	Domestic work (6; 9; 1; 2; 10; 11; 8)
	Street work, including peddling goods and services, begging, † and vending (1; 11; 12)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5; 4; 1; 2; 11; 13)
	Forced labor in domestic work (2)
	Use in Illicit activities, including executing financial scams and serving as drugs and guns couriers (6; 14; 1; 15; 11; 8; 13; 16)

Jamaica is a destination and source country for commercial sexual exploitation of children. Jamaican children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor to countries including the United States, the United Kingdom, and Canada. (2)

Jamaica

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sources indicate that children, sometimes at the behest of parents or criminal leaders referred to as “dons,” are forced into commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Children also continue to be recruited by criminal organizations to engage in illicit activities, such as gang violence, guns and drug smuggling, and financial fraud, including lottery scamming. (1; 13; 16) Child domestic workers may be subjected to domestic servitude, and some children are subjected to forced begging. Many children are reported missing in Jamaica; some of these children may be subjected to forced labor. (17)

Although the law mandates free public education and school attendance rates are high, the cost for transportation, food, books, and clothing creates barriers to education for some children. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Jamaica has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Jamaica’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children for the production and distribution of drugs.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation

Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 28 of the Child Care and Protection Act (18)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 13(k) of the Jamaican Charter of Fundamental Rights and Freedoms (27)

* No conscription (21)

In 2017, the government passed the National Identification System legislation that requires all citizens and others ordinarily resident in Jamaica to receive a national identification card. The government stated that the law would mitigate the lack of birth certificates among some children and assist in expediting access social services. (1) In 2017, the government introduced the Occupational Safety and Health bill for debate, but it has yet to be passed. Regulations associated with the bill, after it is passed, will specify light work activities permitted for children ages 13 and 14. (1; 28) The (Suppression of Criminal Organizations) Act 2014, also known as the Anti-Gang Act, prohibited the recruitment of children into criminal organizations, including armed groups, but the law does not specifically prohibit the recruitment of children by groups engaged in armed conflict. (12; 25) Yet still, Jamaican laws do not specifically include higher penalties for perpetrators who use, procure, or offer a child for the production and distribution of drugs. (18; 29)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Enforce and administer child labor laws in the formal sectors of the economy. The Child Labor Unit coordinates and shares information with other agencies to address child labor issues. (30)
Child Protection and Family Services Agency (CPFSA)	Monitor and investigate suspected child labor violations and oversee efforts to address child labor. Housed under the Ministry of Education, Youth, and Information, resulted from the merger of the Child Development Agency and the Office of the Children's Registry. (30; 1; 28) Receive complaints on a hotline for child abuse, including child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Refer suspected cases of child abuse to law enforcement. (30; 1)
Office of the Children's Advocate	Independently investigate reports of child abuse; partner with other agencies, including the CPFSA and police, to promote protection of children and address child labor. (30)
Jamaica Constabulary Force (JCF)	Enforce criminal laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Investigate, through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit, cases of child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (30) Investigate, through the Center for the Investigation of Sexual Offenses and Child Abuse, cases of child and sexual offenses and educate the public about sexual offenses against children. (31; 1)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Prosecute cases involving the worst forms of child labor. Protect and promote human rights for all citizens. (32)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Jamaica took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MLSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017

Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (6)	Yes (1; 28)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (6)	Yes (1; 28)

In 2017, the MLSS and the Child Protection and Family Services Agency (CPFSA) signed a memorandum of understanding under which the MLSS would refer child labor victims to the CPFSA for social services, including Program for Advancement Through Health and Education (PATH) benefits. (28) During the year, the MLSS also reported a lack of resources, primarily office space, transportation, and fuel for vehicles. (1) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Jamaica's workforce, which includes over 1.3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Jamaica would employ about 88 labor inspectors. (33) Child labor is mostly pervasive in the informal sector, but labor inspectors must conform to their legal mandate, resulting in inspections mostly occurring in the formal sector, such as factories, building sites, docks, and ships. (6; 1) The CPFSA, through the National Children's Registry, receives reports through a toll-free line, 1-888-PROTECT (776-8328), of offenses against children, including child labor, child abuse, and human trafficking. (6; 1) The latest data available from the National Children's Registry indicated six reports of child sex trafficking from January to November 2017. (17)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Jamaica took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Jamaica Constabulary Force that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (6)	Yes (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (6)	N/A (1)

During the year, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit rescued three child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and five child victims of forced begging. (1; 34; 28) In addition, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit collaborated with the Jamaica Fire Brigade to close establishments suspected of facilitating commercial sexual exploitation of children by finding and enforcing fire code violations. (1; 35) The National Task Force against Trafficking in Persons created a docudrama to distribute in schools to educate students about child trafficking in Jamaica. (17) The government also provided training to JCF officers on child labor laws, tools to combat child labor, and methods to carry out investigations and prosecutions. The JCF also provided human trafficking training to police officers from neighboring Caribbean countries at the Caribbean Regional Drug Law Enforcement Training Center in Spanish Town, Jamaica. (1; 35) A source indicates that some prosecutors need additional training to properly prosecute violations of the worst forms of child labor and argue against bail to ensure perpetrators return for trial. (34; 17)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
MLSS Program for the Elimination of Child Labor	Coordinate the government’s child labor policies and programs and identify gaps in legislation across ministries. Collaborate with other ministries, such as the Ministry of Education, Youth, and Information (CPFSA), the Ministry of Justice (National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (NATFATIP)), and the Ministry of National Security to address gaps in legislation. (36)
NATFATIP	Facilitate information exchanges between government agencies and external stakeholders and create momentum for counter-trafficking efforts. Led by the Ministry of Justice, includes ministries and agencies across the government and oversees implementation of the country’s National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking. (6) Meets regularly with the JCF, Director of Public Prosecutions, and relevant ministries. (6; 30) In 2017, met weekly on strategies to combat human trafficking; invited the U.S. Government’s participation in two high-level meetings with the Permanent Secretaries for Justice; Foreign Affairs; Labor and Social Security; Health; and Education. (16)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking (2015–2018)	Identify objectives, actions, and responsible agencies to combat trafficking in persons, including commercial sexual exploitation of children and forced child labor, through prevention, protection, and prosecution. In 2017, coordinated interagency efforts on trafficking in persons. (16)

In 2017, the government reported developing a draft education policy to increase access to education for children and youth with special needs. (28) Although the government has yet to update and approve the expired National Plan of Action on Child Labor, sources indicate that it is still in use in relevant ministries. However, child labor prevention and elimination strategies are still not integrated into the Compulsory Education Policy. (6; 37)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†

Program	Description
Program for Advancement through Health and Education (PATH)†	$35 million, Government of Jamaica and World Bank-funded, conditional cash transfer program that helps reduce child labor by requiring participants to attend school at least 85 percent of the academic days in a month. (38; 39; 40) In 2017, project participants increased from 250,000 to 297,135. Achieved primary-level education compliance for 77.8 percent for boys and 81.8 percent for girls; achieved secondary-level compliance for 5 percent for boys and 82.3 percent for girls. (6) The Government continued its transportation allowance to subsidize transportation for 1,824 PATH children. (1)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the government reported launching a pilot school bus system to provide transportation for school children. (28) Current social programs do not fully address the extent of the child labor problem. Sources also indicate a need for data collection to inform policies and social programs on child labor, especially in the agriculture sector. (44; 11)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Jamaica (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that legislation includes higher penalties for the use of children for the production and distribution of drugs.	2009 – 2017
	Determine the specific light work activities and hours permissible for children ages 13 and 14 to facilitate enforcement.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure the Labor Inspectorate has adequate resources, such as office space and vehicles, to conduct inspections.	2017
	Employ enough labor inspectors to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted not only in the formal sector, such as factories, building sites, docks, and ships, but also in the informal sector in urban and rural communities.	2014 – 2017
	Provide sufficient training and resources for front-line police officers and prosecutors to address the worst forms of child labor, such as child trafficking.	2017
Government Policies	Reinstate and approve the National Action Plan on Child Labor.	2016 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Compulsory Education Policy.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure that school costs, such as uniforms, books, and transportation, do not diminish access to free public education.	2017
	Expand programs to assist child laborers who are involved in street work, commercial sexual exploitation, and the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Jordan made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government increased the budget of the Ministry of Labor's Directorate of Labor Affairs and Inspection, which allowed for over 4,000 more labor inspections. In addition, the government continued to provide shelter, educational, and financial services to children engaged in child labor, including in the city of Madaba and in Marka, the Palestinian refugee camp. However, children in Jordan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in street work and other hazardous activities in the service sector. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Insufficient resources hampered the Ministry of Labor's capacity to ensure compliance with child labor laws in the agricultural sector. In addition, Syrian children still face barriers to accessing education due to costs associated with transportation, school fees, and supplies, among other issues.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Jordan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in street work and other hazardous activities in the service sector. (1; 2; 3; 4) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (5; 6; 7) Based on the 2016 National Child Labor Survey, approximately 70,000 children ages 5 to 17 are engaged in child labor, most commonly in agriculture and retail trade. Approximately 80 percent of child laborers are Jordanian and about 15 percent are Syrian. (6) Boys constitute nearly 90 percent of those involved in child labor. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Jordan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	1.0 (33,182)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	1.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (8)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from National Child Labor Survey, 2016. (9)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including weeding, planting, and harvesting tomatoes and olives (5; 6; 1; 10; 11; 12; 13; 7; 14)
Industry	Mining† and quarrying† (6; 1)
	Construction,† including building and painting homes (6; 1; 2; 10; 7; 15; 16)
	Manufacturing (6; 10; 4)
	Carpentry† (1; 2; 15; 16)
	Blacksmithing† (2; 15)
Services	Repairing automobiles† (6; 2; 11; 16)
	Attending donkeys, camels, and horses to transport tourists (17; 18)
	Street work,† including selling items, washing cars, and begging (1; 2; 3; 10; 11; 15; 16; 17)
	Scavenging scrap metal (19; 4)
	Domestic work† (10; 11; 20)
	Food services, including working in restaurants and bakeries (6; 1; 11; 15)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Hotel services† (6; 4)
	Hairdressing (1; 10; 17)
	Working in retail, including cleaning shops (6; 1; 10; 21; 14)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (22; 23)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10; 24; 25; 23; 26)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

While Syrian children are granted access to Jordanian public schools, an estimated 67,000 Syrian refugee children were not enrolled in formal or informal education in academic year 2016–2017. (4) These children face barriers to education, including the costs of transportation, uniforms, and school materials, and they are unprepared for their appropriate grade level due to interruptions in their early years of schooling. (7; 27; 28)

To expand education access for Syrian children, in 2017 Jordan waived a requirement for documentation for school enrollment. The government also continued to address the overcrowding of classrooms by providing double-shifted schools. (29; 30) In 2016, out of approximately 3,700 schools in the country, Jordan had nearly 500 double-shifted schools; 198 of the latter are for refugee children, mainly Syrian. (31; 4) At these double-shifted schools, Jordanian children attend in the morning and Syrian children attend in the afternoon. (22; 32) However, Jordanian and Syrian children attending double-shifted schools are vulnerable to child labor because the school hours are considerably shorter, and fewer school hours leave more time for work. (31; 33)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Jordan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Jordan’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including non-state armed groups’ recruitment of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 73 of the Labor Code (34)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 74 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of Ministerial Order of 2011 (34; 35)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order of 2011 (35)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 3(a)–(b) of the Law on the Prevention of Human Trafficking; Articles 17 and 77 of the Labor Code (34; 36)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 3(a) of the Law on the Prevention of Human Trafficking (36)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 298–299, 306, 310–311, 315, and 319 of the Penal Code; Article 3(b) of the Law on the Prevention of Human Trafficking (36; 37)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 8 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act (38)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 3(a) of the National Service Act (39)
State Voluntary	N/A*
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 7(a.2) and 10(b) of the Education Act (40)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 20 of the Constitution (41)

* No volunteers are accepted to join the armed forces (42)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Directorate of Labor Affairs and Inspection	Enforce labor laws, including those on child labor. Maintain a hotline to receive labor-related complaints, including complaints of child labor. (4) Identify cases of child labor through worksite inspections and refer cases to the relevant services. Register instances of child labor in a National Child Labor Database, which allows ministries to monitor and track children as they are identified and referred to services. (43)
Ministry of Labor, Child Labor Unit	Coordinate government efforts to campaign against child labor, conduct training, and raise awareness about child labor issues. (22) In 2017, the Child Labor Unit broadcast five radio and television interviews to raise awareness on child labor. (4)
Public Security Directorate, Criminal Investigation Unit	Investigate and prosecute violations of the Penal Code, including allegations of the worst forms of child labor. Operate a section to combat human trafficking. (4)
Joint Anti-Trafficking Unit of the Ministry of Labor and Public Security Directorate	Investigate cases of human trafficking and forced labor, refer cases for prosecution, and coordinate with foreign embassies to identify victims of human trafficking and repatriate workers. (44)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Jordan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including inspection planning.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$352,187 (45)	$422,715 (4)

Number of Child Labor Violations Found	1,442 (45)	553 (4)

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (cont)

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	1,210 (31)	Unknown
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown	Unknown
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (45)	Yes (4)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (45)	Yes (4)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (46)	Yes (4)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (45)	Yes (4)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (45)	Yes (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (5)

In 2017, the Ministry of Labor increased its budget and conducted over 4,000 more inspections than the previous year. (45) When a labor inspector identifies a child laborer, the inspector issues a warning and a fine and asks the employer to send the child home while the inspector is still present. (31) A warning requires the employer to sign a pledge declaring that he or she will cease employing children. Without the pledge, the Ministry of Labor can close the business. (22) The information about the child is then shared with the Ministry of Social Development, which contacts the family to identify the appropriate social services needed. If a child labor violation has been identified, the labor inspector conducts unannounced follow-up inspections at the worksite to ensure compliance. (31) During the reporting period, the Ministry issued 381 warnings, and 338 businesses signed pledges declaring that they will cease employing children. (45)

Insufficient regulations and resources and the migratory nature of the agricultural sector hampered the Ministry of Labor's capacity to ensure compliance with child labor laws in the agriculture sector. (4; 47) Based on the 2016 National Child Labor Survey, 43 percent of child laborers ages 5 to 14 work in agriculture. (6) The Ministry of Labor has not issued regulations on labor inspections in agriculture, which limits its oversight in this sector, in addition to ongoing national budget constraints. (31; 47)

Jordanian children identified during labor inspections are referred to the Child Labor Unit of the Ministry of Social Development. (31; 48) In contrast, Syrian refugee children who are identified during labor inspections are separated from their families and taken to the Azraq refugee camp. (31; 49; 50) Save the Children operates a 24-hour reception center in Azraq that receives Syrian refugee children picked up for both labor and other law infractions. If the child has extended family in the camp, Save the Children places the child in the family members' home. (51) Otherwise, the child stays in Save the Children's group housing at the reception center where they are provided with a full range of services while Save the Children negotiates with Jordanian officials to return the child to their family outside the camp, which may take days to months. (51) Consequently, families that live in the Zaatari refugee camp must travel a long distance to Azraq to reunite with their children. (31; 49; 50) Those that live in host communities (i.e., about 80 percent of all Syrian refugees) may fear that by presenting themselves at Azraq, they may also be forced to stay at the Azraq camp and lose some benefits. (49; 50)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Jordan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lack of information about investigations of forced child begging and commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	N/A (51)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (52)
Number of Investigations	1 (53)	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	2 (53)	0 (51)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	0 (47)

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (cont)

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Number of Convictions	Unknown	0 (47)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (22)	Yes (22)

In 2017, the Joint Anti-Trafficking Unit investigated 291 cases, 23 of which were found to be human trafficking cases. The Ministry of Justice prosecuted 94 cases, including cases initiated in prior years. (47) A number of defendants were convicted of human trafficking and 33 defendants were acquitted or convicted of other crimes. (47) However, none of these cases involved child trafficking. (51) Research was unable to determine whether investigations were conducted on cases of forced begging or commercial sexual exploitation of children.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee on Child Labor	Formulate new policies, amend legislation as necessary, and oversee the implementation of child labor policies, including the National Framework to Combat Child Labor. Led by the Ministry of Labor, members include three other ministries, plus international and civil society organizations. (54) Research was unable to determine whether the National Committee on Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
National Committee for the Prevention of Human Trafficking	Coordinate government efforts to combat human trafficking; chaired by the Ministry of Justice. Other members include representatives from 10 state agencies, including the Counter Trafficking Unit in charge of human trafficking investigations. (53) Research was unable to determine whether the National Committee for the Prevention of Human Trafficking was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Framework to Combat Child Labor	Outlines the roles and responsibilities of key government agencies, including the ministries of Education, Labor, and Social Development; NGOs; and other stakeholders involved in identifying and responding to cases of child labor. Based on the Framework, Ministry of Labor inspectors monitor child labor and refer cases to the ministries of Social Development and Education for the provision of services. (55) In 2017, the Framework's child labor monitoring system was upgraded. It will be rolled out in 2018. (4)
Jordan Response Plan for the Syria Crisis (2016–2018)	Integrates a refugee-oriented humanitarian response with a strategic plan for increasing resilience of local communities. The plan has a particular focus on economic strengthening, education, and social protection. (28) In academic year 2016–2017, a total of 125,000 Syrian refugee children were enrolled in formal education and an additional 67,000 in non-formal education. (56)
Plan of Action to Eliminate Child Labor in Tourism in Petra	Employs counselors to respond to children at risk of truancy, raise children's awareness of the hazards of child labor and the significance of education, incorporate child labor prevention strategies into mainstream programs for legally employed children ages 16 and older, and inform students about high-quality employment in the tourism sector. (57) In 2017, meetings between the local authorities and the community took place on implementation strategies. (47)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of services to address child labor in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Ministry of Social Development, Child Labor Unit†	Support children engaged in child labor, return them to school, and provide services to their families; provide vocational training for youth; organize training on child labor for families; and maintain the website of the National Child Labor Database, which serves as the national child labor monitoring system. (58) In 2017, the Unit began three child labor surveys in East Amman, Petra, and Zaatar refugee camps. The Ministry of Social Development drafted a by-law detailing its Child Labor Unit's Standard Operating Procedures on treatment of child laborers and their families, which supplements current child labor enforcement by-laws. (47) The Ministry sent the draft by-law to the Ministry of Labor and the ILO for review. (47)
Child Begging Assistance in Madaba†	Ministry of Social Development's shelter in the city of Madaba provides social services to children engaged in begging. (45) The ministry conducts awareness raising for parents and links this to financial aid that the family receives. (31) In 2017, the Ministry placed children engaged in begging in the shelter and provided them with rehabilitation services and social support for their family members. (4)
Social Support Center in Marka†	ILO- and Ministry of Labor-funded center operated in cooperation with the ILO at Marka, the Palestinian refugee camp. Activities include identifying child laborers, providing services such as non-formal education, and assisting families in finding alternate forms of supplemental income. In 2017, the Center continued to provide services. (4)
National Aid Fund†	Under the Ministry of Social Development, the Fund pays families approximately $63 a month through a conditional cash transfer program to withdraw their child from the labor market and re-enroll them in school. (4) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken under the National Aid Fund during the reporting period.
Non-Formal Education Centers†	Operated by the Ministry of Education and local NGO Questscope, and funded by USAID and UNICEF, these centers throughout the country seek to bring school dropouts, including those engaged in or at risk of child labor, back into the educational system. Children attend classes 3 hours a day in a flexible learning environment, with class sizes of around 20 students and specially trained teachers. (31; 33) Targets children ages 13 and older. Upon completion of the curriculum, students receive a certificate indicating equivalency of a 10th-grade education. (33) A center in Petra provides services to children at risk of child labor in the tourism industry in Petra. (59) In academic year 2016–2017, 19,000 children received non-formal education. (4)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (60)

Although Jordan has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs does not fully address the extent of the problem, including in agriculture, construction, and street vending.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Jordan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information about the number of inspections at worksites and the number of penalties imposed and collected for child labor violations.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that Ministry of Labor inspectors have the resources needed to carry out inspections in the agricultural sector, and ensure that regulations are issued to mandate labor inspections in agriculture, including unannounced inspections, authority to assess appropriate penalties, and follow-up visits to dissuade future use of child labor.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that refugee children identified during labor inspections are referred to social services and are not separated from their families by being taken to Azraq refugee camp.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that investigations are conducted on forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2015 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017
Social Programs	Continue to expand access to education for all children, including providing after-school programs or extending school hours.	2013 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Ensure that Ministry of Social Development's Child Labor Unit provides identified child laborers with appropriate social and educational services.	2017
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, construction, and street vending, and ensure that the National Aid Fund is implemented.	2013 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Kazakhstan made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Education and Science, in cooperation with other government agencies, carried out targeted joint inspection operations in areas where child labor may occur, including 10,748 site visits. Additionally, the Prosecutor General's Office conducted an awareness-raising campaign, which identified approximately 300 victims of child pornography and took steps to shut down the criminal groups involved. Several government agencies provided training to police officers and judges on identification of child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. Lastly, the government carried out child labor awareness-raising campaigns through more than 26,000 events, reaching over 2.3 million children and adults. However, children in Kazakhstan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in cotton harvesting and commercial sexual exploitation. The government lacks programs to address child labor in cotton harvesting, as well as current, comprehensive, and detailed research on child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kazakhstan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in cotton harvesting and commercial sexual exploitation. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kazakhstan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.2 (79,690)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	90.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	3.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		108.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (6)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3, 2006. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including producing vegetables, weeding, collecting worms, and harvesting cotton† (1; 3; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14)
Industry	Construction,† activities unknown (13; 5)
Services	Working in markets and on the streets, including transporting and selling items (12; 13; 15; 16; 17; 5)
	Domestic work (18; 5)
	Working in gas stations (15; 18; 5)
	Car washing (13; 15; 16; 17; 18; 5)
	Working as bus conductors (19; 5)
	Working in restaurants† as waiters (15; 16; 18; 20)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking (2; 4)
	Forced begging as a result of human trafficking (4; 5)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

There is no current and comprehensive research on child labor in Kazakhstan that can provide details about the number of children working in different sectors, the nature of their work, and the hazards involved.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kazakhstan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kazakhstan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 31 of the Labor Code (21)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code; Article 153 of the Criminal Code (21; 22)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code; Decree of the Minister of Health and Social Development No. 944 of 2015 (21; 23)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 7 of the Labor Code; Article 135 of the Criminal Code (21; 22)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 135 of the Criminal Code (22)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 134, 135, and 312 of the Criminal Code (22)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 132, 133, and 135.2(9) of the Criminal Code; Article 26.1(2) of the Labor Code (21; 22)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 31 of the Military Service Act (24)
State Voluntary	Yes	19	Article 38.1(2) of the Military Service Act (24)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 41 of the Law on Children's Rights; Articles 132 and 267 of the Criminal Code (22; 25)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17‡	Article 30 of the Constitution (26)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 8.2 of the Education Act (27)

‡ Age calculated based on available information

According to Articles 26.1(2) and 31 of the Labor Code, protections, such as the minimum age of employment and prohibitions on hazardous work, are not extended to children engaged in non-contractual employment. (21)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Protection	Enforce child labor laws and conduct labor inspections through the Ministry's Committee on Labor, Social Protection and Migration. (5)
Ministry of Education and Science	Receive child labor complaints. (28) An official from the province- or oblast -level Department of Education responds to reports of child labor and determines whether law enforcement should investigate the case. If the case is in agriculture, local officials meet with parents and school officials to reinforce that children should be in school during the academic year. (29) The Ministry's Center for the Adaptation of Minors provides assistance to victims of the worst forms of child labor and makes referrals to appropriate government services or NGOs for further assistance. (5)
Ministry of Internal Affairs	Identify and carry out initial investigation of criminal cases of the worst forms of child labor. (5) Through the Anti-Trafficking Unit of the Criminal Police Department, identify and investigate cases of child trafficking. (28) The Anti-Trafficking Unit employed 42 officers. (5)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Kazakhstan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the appropriate number of inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown* (30)	Unknown* (5)
Number of Labor Inspectors	320 (29)	320 (5)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (31)	Yes (31)

Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Yes (30)	Yes (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (29)	Yes (5)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	7,897† (30)	10,748 (5)
Number Conducted at Worksites	Unknown	10,748 (5)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	60 (30)	7 (5)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	17 (30)	Unknown (5)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	17 (30)	Unknown (5)
Routine Inspections Conducted	No (29)	Yes (5)
Routine Inspections Targeted	N/A	Yes (5)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (32)	Yes (32)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (29)	Yes (5)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (29)	Yes (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (29)	Yes (5)

† Data are from January 1, 2016 to September 30, 2016.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Kazakhstan's workforce, which includes over 8.9 million workers. (33) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitional economies, Kazakhstan would employ about 449 inspectors. (34; 35)

The Ministry of Education and Science, in cooperation with other government agencies, carried out targeted joint inspection operations (raids) in areas in which children were likely to engage in child labor, such as local markets, gas stations, and construction sites. The operations were part of an annual Twelve Days Against Child Labor campaign to detect child labor. (5) The raids resulted in about 10,748 site visits, during which 7 child laborers were identified. (5) Research did not find information on whether penalties were imposed for violations of child labor laws. In addition to these raids, labor inspectors at the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection can respond to complaints of violations so long as they are not anonymous. (5)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, the government's criminal law enforcement agencies appeared to function adequately in addressing child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (30)	Yes (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Yes (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (29)	Yes (5)
Number of Investigations	13 (29)	10 (5)
Number of Violations Found	13 (30)	16 (5)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	10 (30)	9 (5)
Number of Convictions	3 (30)	3 (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (29)	Yes (5)

In 2017, the Ministry of Internal Affairs' Legal Academy in the city of Karaganda held training sessions for 143 police officers on the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation of children. In addition, 174 police officers were trained on victim identification and assistance. (5) The Supreme Court's Judicial Training Institute trained 183 judges on the protection of human trafficking victims and prosecution of perpetrators. (5)

The Prosecutor General's Office carried out an awareness-raising campaign on the prevention of commercial sexual exploitation of children. The campaign identified approximately 300 victims of child pornography in West Kazakhstan Oblast and took steps to shut down the criminal groups involved. (5)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Committee for the Protection of Child Rights	Work to protect children from exploitation. Operate under the Ministry of Education and Science at the oblast -level departments of education. (28) In 2017, the Committee met twice. (5)
National Coordination Council on Child Labor	Implement the Plan of Action on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2016–2017). (36) Chaired by the Minister of Health and Social Development, includes representatives from four government agencies and NGOs. (19) The Council did not meet in 2017. (5)
Interagency Trafficking in Persons Working Group	Coordinate efforts to combat human trafficking and recommend improvements to anti-human-trafficking legislation, prevention strategies, protection of victims, and prosecution of offenders. (37) Chaired by the Ministry of Internal Affairs and the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection on a 2-year rotational basis. Its members include 14 state bodies, two international organizations, and five NGOs. In 2017, the Working Group met once. (5)
Ombudsman for Children Rights	Monitor observance of the rights of children. Receive and respond to complaints about violations of children's rights. In 2017, the Ombudsman's office produced an internal report covering events of 2016. (5)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the non-implementation of the Plan of Action on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Plan of Action on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2016–2017)	Addresses four priority areas: (1) child labor policy and legislation improvement, implementation, and monitoring, including the rights of children of migrants and seasonal workers and their access to education, and developing the list of light work for children ages 14–16; (2) child labor coordination between government agencies, including monitoring access to education for children of migrant and seasonal workers, reporting on implementation of international conventions on the worst forms of child labor, and developing a regional social partnership on the elimination of child labor; (3) prevention of child labor and rehabilitation of child laborers, including identifying and referring children to Centers for Adaptation and monitoring the implementation of ministerial orders on employment opportunities for youth over age 16 from dysfunctional or low-income families; and (4) promotion of public awareness on child labor, including conducting informational campaigns and overseeing the involvement of journalists and media resources. (30) Based on available information, it appears that this policy was not implemented in 2017. (5)
Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking (2015–2017)	Aims to strengthen coordination among government ministries and with foreign governments and international organizations. Emphasizes victim assistance and prevention, specifically to prevent child labor in the production of cotton and construction, to provide access to education for children of stateless and foreign individuals permanently living in Kazakhstan, to monitor and exchange data on the trafficking of children and child pornography, and to enforce criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. (38) In 2017, the Ministry of Interior blocked or removed child pornography websites from the internet. Social program activities were also carried out during the implementation of this policy. (39)

In 2017, the Ombudsman for Children Rights, the Minister of Internal Affairs, the Minister of Healthcare, and the Minister of Labor and Social Protection signed a memorandum of understanding to ensure the safety of children, prevent children from being victims of crimes or from committing crimes, and protect children from child labor. UNICEF and Penal Reform International are expected to assist these agencies in monitoring the implementation of this memorandum. (5)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†‡

Program	Description
Assistance to Trafficking Victims†	Provides medical and legal assistance, pretrial safe houses, security services, housing, food, clothing, and transportation to human trafficking victims. Authorities can help victims or witnesses change residences, find employment, or change their physical appearance. (40) In 2017, seven new shelters were opened for victims of human trafficking, including children. (39)
Awareness-Raising Campaigns†	Raise public awareness on child labor issues. (5) In 2017, the Ministry of Education and Science, in cooperation with other government agencies, carried out child labor awareness-raising campaigns at more than 26,000 events, including seminars, conferences, and competitions. These events and their media coverage reached over 2.3 million children and adults. (5)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (41)

Although the Government of Kazakhstan implemented programs to combat human trafficking and provide assistance to trafficking victims in 2017, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs to assist children engaged in child labor, including in the production of cotton.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kazakhstan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's minimum age provisions and hazardous work prohibitions apply to all children, including those working without an employment contract.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information about the funding of the Labor Inspectorate and the number of penalties for child labor violations and whether penalties were collected.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO technical advice.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that penalties are imposed for child labor cases identified during raids, led by the Ministry of Education and Science.	2017
Government Policies	Implement the Plan of Action on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor.	2017
Social Programs	Conduct research to gather comprehensive data on child labor, including the activities carried out by children working in the construction and services industries, to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2017
	Institute programs to address child labor, particularly in the production of cotton.	2014 – 2017

In 2017, Kenya made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, the government mandated free secondary education for all Kenyans and established additional Child Protection Centers to provide housing, counseling, and reintegration services to rescued child laborers. The government also developed a National Employment Policy that mandates reporting on the number of children withdrawn from child labor and the progress of child labor-free zones. However, children in Kenya engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation. Kenya has yet to ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. In addition, the minimum age law does not protect children working outside the scope of a formal employment contract or in circumstances in which children derive no benefit from their labor. The government has also not committed sufficient resources for child labor enforcement efforts.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kenya engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation. (1; 2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kenya.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	35.6 (3,736,030)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	85.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	23.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		102.0

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Population and Housing Census, 2009. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 5; 21; 22; 23; 24; 20; 25)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking (1; 9)
	Begging, street vending, domestic service, herding livestock, fishing, and work on tobacco farms, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 5; 21; 24; 26; 27; 25)

Kenyan children are victims of human trafficking within and outside the country and exploited to engage in domestic work, agricultural work, fishing, begging, and street vending. Children also are victims of commercial sexual exploitation in tourism sectors, such as Nairobi and Kismu, and on the coast in informal settings. (28; 25) In rural areas, poverty drives some families to engage in trafficking children for domestic work in urban centers. (29) Children are also victims of commercial exploitation in drug production sites (khat), near gold mines, along major highways, and sexually exploited by fishermen on Lake Victoria. (25) During the year, an NGO released data showing 33,929 reported cases of child abuse in the past 10 years, of which 3,123 were child labor cases. (30) Children in Kenya scavenge dumpsites and streets for scrap material, including metal and glass. (5) These children earn about $1 to $2 per day, while often risking injury and exposing themselves to infectious diseases, such as tetanus, by sorting through waste. Evidence suggests that such children are also exposed to mercury due to e-waste recycling and gold mining. (5) Reports also indicate that children ages 10 to 17 mine or harvest sand and work in Busia, Homa Bay, Kilifi, Kitui, Machakos, and Nakuru counties, increasing their likelihood of developing aggravated asthma, lung or heart disease, and cancer. (17; 31; 13) Most children who are engaged in child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, are girls, but boys are also involved. (5; 32; 33)

Kenyan law mandates free education and prohibits schools from charging tuition fees. However, the cost of unofficial school fees, books, and uniforms prevent some children from attending school. (34; 17; 35; 36; 37; 38) The Births and Deaths Registration Act mandates birth registration, but many children living in the country are not registered at birth. As a result, nonregistered children have difficulty accessing services such as education because they must provide a birth certificate before enrolling in school or sitting for exams. (39; 40; 41) Teacher and school shortages further hinder children’s access to education. (1) A source also indicated that sexual abuse by teachers also negatively affects children’s school attendance. (42) In addition, in isolated cases, some school administrators deny pregnant girls admittance to schools. (43; 44; 45)

In 2017, the government, in coordination with UNICEF, published data on child poverty and its potential to increase vulnerability to engage in child labor. (46; 11) The last national child labor survey was conducted in 2000. (4) As a result, data may no longer accurately reflect the current child labor situation in Kenya.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kenya has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

In 2000, Kenya signed but did not ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. Commercial sexual exploitation of children continues to be a serious problem in Kenya.

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kenya's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the gap between the compulsory education age and minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Section 56 of the Employment Act; Section 12 of the Employment (General) Rules; Section 10.4 of the Children Act (47; 48; 37)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 2 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Sections 2 and 10.1 of the Children Act (37; 47)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 12 and the Fourth Schedule of the Employment (General) Rules; Section 10.1 of the Children Act (37; 48)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 30 of the Constitution; Sections 4.1 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Sections 174 and 254–266 of the Penal Code; Article 3 of the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 13 of the Sexual Offences Act; Section 13.1 of the Children Act (37; 47; 49; 50; 51; 52)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 3 of the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 13 of the Sexual Offences Act; Section 13.1 of the Children Act; Section 53.1 of the Employment Act; Sections 174 and 254–263 of the Penal Code (37; 47; 50; 51; 52)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 8–9, 11–12, and 14–16 of the Sexual Offences Act; Sections 2 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Section 15 of the Children Act (37; 47; 52)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 2 and 53.1 of the Employment Act; Section 16 of the Children Act (37; 47)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*		Article 243 (1) of the Kenya Defence Forces Act (53)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Section 10.2 of the Children Act; Article 243 (1) of the Kenya Defence Forces Act (37; 53)
Non-State	Yes	18	Article 3 of the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act (51)
Compulsory Education Age	No	14‡	Sections 28 and 30 of the Basic Education Act (36)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 7.2 of the Children Act; Sections 28–29 and 32 of the Basic Education Act; Article 53(b) of the Constitution (36; 37; 49)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (54)

In 2017, Kenya mandated free secondary education for all Kenyans beginning in 2018. (11) During the year, the Parliament enacted the Children Bill, 2017, that will come into effect when published in the Gazette. The proposed law prohibits child labor, hazardous work for children, the use of children in armed conflict, and the use, procurement, and offering of children for forced labor, slavery, and debt bondage. (55) However, the proposed bill has the same gap as the current law regarding coverage of children working without a formal contract. (55) The current Children Act does not prohibit child labor for children employed outside of the scope of a contractual agreement or in circumstances in which children derive no benefit from their work directly or indirectly. (37; 47) In addition, the Employment Act applies only to workers who perform work under a formal employment agreement, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law, establishing a minimum age for work. (47)

The government has reported that children are required to attend school only until age 14, making children ages 14 and 15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school, yet cannot legally work. (54)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Social Security and Services (MLSSS); National Police Service; and Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Social Security and Services (MLSSS)	Enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor, through county labor officers in Kenya's 47 counties. (5; 56; 57) Through its Child Labor Division, coordinate activities to eliminate child labor. (5) Coordinate services provided to children, ensure that child protection activities are being implemented countrywide, and maintain records on children and the services provided to them. (5)
National Police Service	Enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (5) Includes an Anti-Trafficking Police Unit focused on prevention of commercial sexual exploitation of children, child trafficking, and the use of children in illicit activities. Tourism Police Unit addresses commercial sexual exploitation of children in the tourism industry. (11)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Enforce laws through the prosecution of criminal offenses, including labor-related offenses. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Kenya took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSSS that may hinder adequate labor enforcement, including authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown (11)
Number of Labor Inspectors	87 (2)	84 (11)

‡ Data are from July 1, 2016 to June 30, 2017.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Kenya's workforce, which includes over 19 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Kenya would employ roughly 1,321 labor inspectors. (59; 60; 61) Reports suggest that the MLSSS budget is inadequate and hampers the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (2; 5; 62) Labor inspectors cannot issue fines or penalties, but can send a compliance letter to employers stipulating how long the employer has to correct the violation. (2) The government operates an emergency, toll-free, nationwide child hotline to report child abuse, including child labor, and refers callers to organizations for social protection services. (5; 63; 64) During the reporting period, 792,815 suspected child abuse cases were reported through the hotline, of which 32,671 were child labor related. (11)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Kenya took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the National Police Service and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

* The government does not publish this information.

Reports indicate that women and girls were subjected to gender-based violence, including sexual exploitation, during the 2017 elections and that the government did not properly investigate nor prosecute suspected perpetrators. (65; 66; 67) In 2017, the Government allocated $600,000 to anti-human trafficking efforts, but no allocation was made to address child labor. (11)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Oversee efforts to eliminate child labor. (5) Comprises government agencies, private employers, workers' organizations, and civil society organizations. Chaired by the Permanent Secretary, with coordination duties performed by the MLSSS Child Labor Division. (19) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
National Council for Children's Services	Quarterly coordinate government efforts on child-related issues, including child labor. (5) Operate the National Children Database, which collects comprehensive data on children, including child labor. (5) Led by a presidential appointee, comprises 18 NGOs, private sector representatives, faith-based organizations, and representatives from various ministries. Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
National Labor Board	Advise the Cabinet Secretary of Labor, Social Security and Services on all issues related to labor and employment, including legal and policy issues. (19) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
Counter-Trafficking in Persons Advisory Committee	Coordinate the implementation of policies related to human trafficking and provide prevention and protection services to victims. Mandated by the Counter-Trafficking in Persons Act. (51) Comprises multiple government agencies, private employers, workers' organizations, and civil society organizations. (28) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.
Local, Advisory, and District Child Labor Committees	Coordinate activities to eliminate child labor at the local level. (5) Research could not determine whether the committee met during the year.

In 2017, the National Gender and Equality Commission spearheaded a campaign to end gender-based violence that includes sexual exploitation of girls. (11) Although the government has coordination mechanisms, research could not find information about many of their accomplishments during the year.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Policy on the Elimination of Child Labor (2016)	Proposes strategies to prevent, identify, withdraw, rehabilitate, and reintegrate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms. (68) In fiscal years 2016 and 2017, the government established 12 child labor-free zones against a target of 13. (29)
National Plan of Action Against Sexual Exploitation of Children in Kenya (2013–2017)	Aims to prevent, protect, and reintegrate child victims of commercial sexual exploitation. Emphasizes identifying children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation; raising the awareness of community leaders, parents, and tourism employees on commercial sexual exploitation; and implementing programs to assist victims. (64) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Framework for the National Child Protection System for Kenya (2011)	Describes the laws and policies that protect children from violence and exploitation, and the roles and responsibilities of the government to protect children from exploitative work. (69) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
County Integrated Development Plan	Serves as a guide for a county's development planning processes. Required of all counties in Kenya. (70) For example, the plan addresses child labor on coffee and tea estates in Kiambu County and the issue of street children in Turkana County. (71; 72) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (73)

In the government's Annual Social Protection, Culture and Recreation Sector report, the Department of Labor reported that 1,215 children were withdrawn from child labor and 12 child labor-free zones were established. (29; 58) The National Plan of Action Against Sexual Exploitation of Children in Kenya did not include a corresponding budget. (64) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to be integrated into the UN Development Assistance Framework, Policy for Alternative Provision of Basic Education and Training, Kenya National Social Protection Policy, and the National Education Sector Support Program. (2; 74; 75)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the Government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Projects to Combat Child Labor and Increase Education Access†	Government programs that aim to combat child labor, including its worst forms, such as commercial sexual exploitation of children and child trafficking. Child Protection and Rescue Centers temporarily house child victims and provide counseling and reintegration services for children; Kitui County Child Rescue Center withdraws and rehabilitates child laborers and provides counseling and life skills training. (2) The School Meals Program serves hot lunch to 2 million vulnerable children, resulting in improved school attendance. (1; 5; 76; 77) In 2017, the government allocated $24.3 million to the school feeding program and established additional child protection centers. (11) The Government of Kenya provided safe custody of children in need of special protection. Services provided for children who were abandoned, sexually abused, and rescued from trafficking and requiring rehabilitation. In fiscal years 2016 and 2017, 2,416 children were prevented from entering the labor market or withdrawn from child labor, 400 children were rescued from child labor and provided with referral or reintegration services, and 9,529 children were reintegrated into their families or communities. (11) In 2017, two additional rescue centers were established in Siaya and Kakamega counties, increasing the number of centers to eight. (11)
National Safety Net Program for Results†	Includes $411 million, government-funded, 5-year cash transfer and social safety net program, with support from the World Bank. Benefitted 353,000 households by assisting families of working children, orphans, and vulnerable children to meet their basic needs and pay for school-related costs. Budget allocation of $87 million for 2015–2016. (1; 77) For fiscal 2017 and 2018, the government allocated $93 million for orphans and vulnerable children. (11)
USDOL-Funded Projects to Combat Child Labor and Support Youth Apprenticeships	USDOL-funded projects to combat child labor and support youth apprenticeships. Includes $3 million Better Utilization of Skills for Youth (BUSY) Through Quality Apprenticeships (2016–2020), and $1.4 million Promoting Apprenticeship as a Path for Youth Employment in Kenya Through Global Apprenticeship Network (GAN) National Networks (2016–2018). Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
UN Agency-Implemented Projects	Humanitarian Assistance Program, a UNICEF-implemented program, has provided educational services to 179,895 children and nutritional services to 173,536 children. (78) In 2017, the Ministry of Public Service, Youth, and Gender Affairs collaborated with the UN Population Fund to establish gender-based violence recover centers for victims, including children. (11)

Program	Description
Child Labor Free Supply Chain Certifications	Government program supported by the EU and Cesvi, an NGO. Develops child labor-free supply chain certifications. (5; 79; 11)

† Program is funded by the Government of Kenya.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (1; 80; 81; 82; 83)

Although Kenya has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kenya (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that minimum age laws apply to children working in non-contractual employment.	2011 – 2017
	Raise the compulsory education age to 16 to be equivalent to the minimum age for work.	2013 – 2017
Enforcement	Authorize labor inspectors to assess penalties for child labor violations.	2010 – 2017
	Publish information about the Labor Inspectorate funding and refresher courses provided to labor inspectors on the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure the MLSSS has sufficient financial and human resources to address labor violations.	2017
	Publish information about criminal law enforcement's efforts to investigate, prosecute, and convict perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2017
Coordination	Increase the number of labor inspectors to provide sufficient coverage for the workforce.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information about child labor coordination activities, including meetings during the year, and efforts to address child labor issues.	2016 – 2017
Government Policies	Ensure child labor policies are implemented, and publish information about activities under these policies, such as the National Plan of Action Against Sexual Exploitation of Children in Kenya.	2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the UNDAF, National Education Sector Support Program, Kenya National Social Protection Policy, and Policy for Alternative Provision of Basic Education and Training.	2013 – 2017
	Include a budget in the National Plan of Action Against Sexual Exploitation of Children in Kenya.	2013 – 2017
Social Programs	Update data on child labor by conducting a national child labor survey.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that children can attend primary school, either by ensuring that school is free of fees or by subsidizing or defraying the cost of school fees, books, and uniforms.	2010 – 2017
	Improve access to education by training new teachers, ensure that pregnant girls can remain in school, address sexual abuse in schools by teachers, and increase birth registrations for children.	2010 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, including children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2017

Kiribati

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Kiribati made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government established a mechanism for receiving labor complaints, including child labor complaints. However, although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Kiribati perform dangerous tasks in construction and street vending. Existing laws do not identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children, and the government has not adopted a national policy to combat the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Kiribati perform dangerous tasks in construction and street vending. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kiribati. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		99.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (2) Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cutting toddy palm trees for toddy (1)
	Fishing and harvesting clams (1)
Industry	Construction, portering, and seafaring (1; 4)
Services	Street vending and working in kava bars (1; 4)
	Domestic work (4)

In Kiribati, education is free and compulsory for all children until age 16. However, children face barriers to accessing education due to associated costs and the lack of schools in remote areas. (1; 4; 5)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kiribati has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓

Convention	Ratification
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kiribati's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children and the prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Section 115 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (6)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 117 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (6)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 244 and 249 of the Penal Code; Sections 118(1)(a, c, d) and 122 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code; Section 6(1-3) of the Constitution of Kiribati (6; 7; 8)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Section 43 of the Measures to Combat Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Section 118(1)(b) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (6; 9)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 136 and 141–142 of the Penal Code; Sections 118(1)(f) and 118(1)(g) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (6; 7)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 142 of the Penal Code; Sections 118(1)(h) and 118(1)(i) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (6; 7)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A†
State Voluntary	N/A†
Non-state	Yes	18	Sections 118(1)(e) of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code (6)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 7 of the Education Act (10)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 11 of the Education Act (10)

† No standing military (11)

Kiribati has not identified by national law or regulations the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. Under article 116 of the Employment and Industrial Relations Code, the laws do not specify the activities and hours of work per week that are acceptable for children engaged in light work, or the conditions under which light work can be undertaken. (6) Kiribati's laws prohibiting child trafficking are insufficient because they do not specifically prohibit trafficking children domestically. (6; 9)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Human Resources Development (MLHRD) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Human Resources Development	Enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor. (12)
Kiribati Police Force	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. Investigate cases of human trafficking and sexual exploitation of children through a special Domestic Violence and Sexual Offenses Unit. (13)

Organization/Agency	Role
Child Protection Officer, Ministry of Women, Youth and Social Affairs (MWYSA)	Remove children from harmful situations, including as a result of sexual exploitation and harsh or exploitative labor. (12; 14)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Kiribati took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLHRD that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (15)	$5,360 (16)

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (15)	144 (16)
Number Conducted at Worksites	Unknown (15)	144 (16)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown (15)	0 (16)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	Unknown (15)	0 (16)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown (15)	0 (16)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Unknown (15)	Yes (16)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (15)	No (16)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Unknown (15)	Yes (16)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown (15)	Yes (16)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (12)	Yes (16)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (15)	Yes (16)

In 2017, the MLHRD established a mechanism for labor complaints, including child labor complaints. The MLHRD increased the funding of the Labor Inspectorate to cover transportation costs, awareness promotion, uniforms, and safety equipment. (16) The MLHRD has eight labor inspectors, seven of whom are based in the capital city, Tarawa, and one based on Kiritimati Island.

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Kiribati took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown (15)	Unknown (16)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 8). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor.

Table 8. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Children, Young People, and Families Welfare System Policy	Focuses on strengthening the welfare system, in part, by implementing services to prevent the abuse, violence, neglect, and exploitation of children and young people, including in hazardous labor. During the reporting period, conducted training sessions for welfare officers and outreach programs on counseling and parenting, provided to improve parent, caregiver, and community skills to create an environment that protects children from violence, abuse, and exploitation. (18)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (19; 20)

The government has adopted the Children, Young People, and Families Welfare System Policy; however, research found no evidence of a policy that focuses on combating the worst forms of child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including programs addressing the problem in all sectors.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Safenet †	MWYSA-coordinated program that allows government, churches, and NGOs to provide assistance to victims found in exploitative and violent situations. (12; 16)
Hotlines †	MWYSA and police-supported 24-hour hotline for children to report violations, request information, or obtain access to services. (13; 16) Domestic Violence and Sexual Offenses unit operates two 24-hour phone-line services for reporting exploitation and abuse. (21)

The ILO-supported Pacific Sub-Regional Child Labor and Trafficking Program ended in March 2017. (16; 22) Although the government has implemented Safenet and Hotlines programs to assist children in exploitative and abusive situations, research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children who are working in construction and street vending.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kiribati (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the law specifies the activities and number of hours of work per week that are acceptable for children engaged in light work, as well as the conditions under which children can engage in light work.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law specifically prohibits the trafficking of children domestically.	2015 – 2017
Enforcement	Collect and publish data on the enforcement of criminal laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor, including the number of investigations performed, investigations performed, prosecutions initiated, and convictions completed.	2012 – 2017
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including training new labor inspectors and providing refresher courses.	2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2017
Coordination	Establish a mechanism to coordinate the government's efforts to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 – 2017
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant forms of child labor, such as dangerous work in construction and street vending.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers to education and make education accessible for all children by alleviating school fees and increasing access to schools in remote locations.	2014 – 2017
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017
	Implement social programs to address all relevant forms of child labor, including in construction and street vending.	2017

In 2017, Kosovo made a moderate advancement to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the Administrative Instruction on the List of Indicators for Formal Identification of Victims of Trafficking, including early indicators for child victims. In addition, the government published a report on the results of the National Strategy and Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor, including on the improvement of the child labor knowledge base, and the strengthening of institutions to address child labor. The government also passed the Kosovo Education Strategic Plan, which emphasizes the inclusion of preschool children from the Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian communities. However, children in Kosovo engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and street work. The Labor Inspectorate continues to face financial and human resource constraints that impede its ability to conduct inspections in all relevant sectors. In addition, human trafficking shelters lack sufficient funding to properly accommodate and treat child victims of human trafficking.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Kosovo engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and street work. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7) A Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey (MICS) conducted from 2013 to 2014 determined that 5,398 children in Kosovo were engaged in child labor. (8) A parallel MICS targeting the Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian communities in Kosovo found that 2,168 children from these communities were engaged in child labor. (9) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Kosovo.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	11.7 (324,764)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	95.4
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (10)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2014. (11)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (3; 12; 13)
	Fishing, activities unknown (13)
	Forestry, activities unknown (14; 13)
Industry	Mining, including for coal† (3; 4; 15; 16)
	Construction and manufacturing (13)
Services	Street work,† including vending small items,† transporting goods,† and begging† (1; 3; 4; 12; 15; 16; 17)
	Scavenging at dumpsites† (3; 4; 12)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 4; 6; 18; 19; 20; 7)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3; 4; 5; 6; 18; 13)
	Use in illicit activities (3)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Kosovo is a source and destination country for child trafficking, especially of girls, who are sometimes coerced into forced labor by organized criminal groups. (5; 6; 21) Children from Kosovo and neighboring countries are also subjected to forced begging in Kosovo, with most coming from the Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian minority ethnic groups. (1; 4; 6; 21) Ashkali, Egyptian, and Roma children, especially girls, continue to experience difficulty accessing education. (22; 23; 13; 24) Birth certification is required for attending school in Kosovo. Some Ashkali, Egyptian, and Roma children have challenges obtaining a birth certificate, which makes school enrollment difficult. (25; 26; 27; 13; 24) Children who do not attend school are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Kosovo has ratified no key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	N/A
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A
 UN CRC	N/A
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	N/A
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	N/A
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	N/A

Kosovo is not a UN member country; therefore, the government is not eligible to ratify international conventions concerning child labor. Article 22 of Kosovo’s Constitution, however, incorporates the UN CRC into the national legal framework. (28)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Kosovo’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 7 of the Labor Law (29)

In 2016, the government approved the draft Law on Child Protection, which was submitted to a standing committee for further action. (36; 4) The law would criminalize violence, abuse, exploitation, and neglect of children, including child beggars, and would prohibit the use of children in illicit activities. (5; 36) However, the government has not taken any further actions on this law due to elections during the reporting period. (13)

The government passed the Administrative Instruction on the List of Indicators for Formal Identification of Victims of Trafficking in Human Beings. (7; 33) It lists early indicators of human trafficking in children for social service providers, judicial authorities, and police officers. (33) In January 2018, the draft Juvenile Justice Code, which aims to ensure the best interest of a child facing criminal proceedings, passed a first reading at the Assembly. (37; 38)

The Criminal Code does not specifically prohibit recruitment of children ages 16 and 17 by non-state armed groups. (31)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW) Labor Inspectorate (LI)	Conduct inspections to enforce child labor laws and refer all cases of children involved in hazardous work to the MLSW Regional Centers for Social Work, or Social Work Centers (SWCs). Through regional SWCs address child labor, provide social services, and compile cases into a nationwide database. (3) Through the Department of Social Welfare, remove children engaged in hazardous child labor. (15)
Kosovo Police (KP)	Enforce criminal laws on forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Through the Directorate of Trafficking in Human Beings, enforce laws on child trafficking. (3; 39) Operates under the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA). (4)
Ministry of Justice	Enforce criminal laws on forced child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (39) Appointed a special coordinator for human trafficking and established a new mechanism to monitor human trafficking cases. (7)
Ministry of Education, Science, and Technology	Conduct education inspections on students' balance of school and work hours. (40)

In 2017, the Labor Inspectorate (LI) and Kosovo Police (KP) Anti-Trafficking Unit continued to forward cases to Social Work Centers (SWCs) or trafficking shelters, as needed. (13) However, because both the National Anti-Trafficking Director and the police operate within the Ministry of Internal Affairs (MOIA), efforts are focused solely within the MOIA, with limited inter-ministerial communication. (13)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Kosovo took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSW that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$633,002 (4)	$722,855 (13)
Number of Labor Inspectors	51 (4)	49 (13)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (4)	Yes (13)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	N/A (4)	Yes (13)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A (4)	No (13)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (4)	Yes (13)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	6,716 (4)	6,656 (13)
Number Conducted at Worksites	6,716 (4)	6,656 (13)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (4)	1 (13)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	0 (4)	0 (13)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	0 (4)	0 (13; 41)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (4)	Yes (13)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (27)	Yes (13)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (4)	Yes (13)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (4)	Yes (13)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (4)	Yes (13)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (13)

Labor inspectors have the authority to conduct announced and unannounced inspections in all formal sectors, but they do not have the jurisdiction allowing them to investigate informal sectors. (13) Labor inspectors have the authority to inspect private farms and homes; however, due to a lack of human resource capacity, the SWCs typically conduct these inspections. (13; 41) The LI had an overall strategy for conducting child labor inspections and incorporated identification of child victims of human trafficking in its strategy for 2017–2021. (13; 42; 7; 43)

Labor inspectors receive initial training when hired; however, these trainings do not cover child labor. (13) In 2017, the LI reported that all inspectors received sufficient refresher training on child labor, including on hazardous child labor laws. (13; 41) Inspections were done in the public and private sectors, with a special focus on the construction sector, an industry in which child labor is known to occur. (13)

The LI's mandate allows it to investigate limited contractual employment for children between 15 and 18 years of age. According to sources, due to the LI's staffing shortage, budgetary constraints of the SWC, and poor data-sharing between central and municipal institutions, the number of child labor violations reported in 2017 does not fully represent the amount of actual child labor cases. (13; 41) Although funding was sufficient, according to the LI, the LI reported that the number of existing inspectors did not allow inspections of all sectors, including the informal sector. (13)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Kosovo took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators and prosecutors.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	N/A (27)	Yes (13)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A (13)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (4)	Yes (13)
Number of Investigations	18 (4)	19 (7)
Number of Violations Found	13 (4)	19 (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (4)	Unknown (13)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (4)	Unknown (13)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (13)

The KP includes 55 human trafficking investigators, 4 of which are dedicated to child trafficking. The KP reported that resources and trainings related to child labor were sufficient in 2017. (13) In addition, the Center for Protection of Victims and Prevention of Human Trafficking held a training for 200 teachers on identifying child victims of human trafficking. (41) However, legal training on human trafficking for prosecutors and judges was insufficient, causing inadequate prosecutions and incorrect legal application. (4; 5; 6; 13) In addition, better supervision of human trafficking cases and specialization of prosecutors and judges is needed to reduce case backlog. (13; 7)

The KP does not systematically track whether children involved in child labor are referred to providers of social services as a result of investigations. (27; 39; 13)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Committee for Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor (KKPEPF)	Coordinate government policies to combat child labor, oversee and provide policy guidance for activities to prevent and eliminate child labor. Comprises representatives of government agencies, the KP, trade unions, and an NGO. (15) Chaired by the MLSW. (13)
Child Labor Monitoring System (CLMS)	Address child labor at the municipal level, identify and provide child services, document child labor trends, and evaluate local responses to child labor. (3)
National Agency Against Trafficking in Persons (NAATIP)	Coordinate policy implementation, and monitor and report on actions to combat child trafficking through a National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (NATC). (2; 44; 6) The NATC is the deputy minister of the Interior Ministry. (41) Includes representatives from the government, judiciary, municipal offices, NGOs, and the international community. (4; 41) The NATC met several times with mayors from Northern Kosovo in 2017 to discuss coordination and establish a human trafficking shelter. (7)
Municipal Local Action Committees	Prevent and eliminate child labor and report to the CLMS. Members include representatives from schools, municipal education departments, and the KP. (15; 26)

In late 2013, MLSW began using new software to collect and process data on labor violations, and to make these data available to all ministries and law enforcement bodies. (3) During the reporting period, however, the Child Labor Monitoring System continued to lack quality data analysis and there was unsatisfactory data sharing between municipal authorities and the MLSW. (4; 44; 13)

Although the Committee for Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor was active during the reporting period, it experienced limited coordination on enforcement actions. (13)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy and Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor (2011–2017) †	Aimed to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Kosovo, with a focus on prevention and withdrawal of children from the worst forms of child labor, protection of young workers, and gender concerns. (42) Extended for 2017. (13) During the reporting period, the government published a report with the results of the Action Plan, including improvement of the child labor knowledge base and strengthening of institutions to address child labor. (45)
National Strategy and Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2015–2019)	Aims to prevent and combat human trafficking by raising awareness, identifying victims, and strengthening criminal law enforcement. (46; 47) Policy was active in 2017, including facilitating interagency coordination on human trafficking. (41; 7; 38)
Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian Communities (2016–2020)	Focuses on employment, social issues, healthcare, and housing for the Ashkali and Roma communities. Aims to strengthen rights and full integration into society. (48) A special educational component promotes inclusive education for the children of these communities. (49) Active in 2017. (41)
Kosovo Education Strategic Plan (2017–2021) †	Emphasizes the inclusion of vulnerable minorities in the education system, especially for preschool children of the Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian communities. Establishes regulations at the municipality level to facilitate preschool enrollment and raises awareness on school attendance and enrollment. (50)

Although the government is currently drafting a Strategic Plan on Children’s Rights for 2019–2022, the government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian Communities. (41) In addition, the government did not provide sufficient funds for social services for victims of child labor in the National Strategy and Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor in 2017. (41) Also, very little progress was made in the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian Communities due to budget limitations. (41; 38)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation of all programs.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Hope and Homes for Children †	Government-funded NGO shelter. Accommodates child victims of abuse or human trafficking. Operated in 2017 and sheltered 29 children. (13; 38)
UN Common Development Plan (2016–2020)	Funded and programmed by the UN Kosovo Team. Focuses on international standards and human rights safeguards of migrants and the social protection and educational inclusion of the Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian communities. (51) Active in 2017. (41)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (52; 13; 41)

The Kosovo Shelter Coalition did not operate in 2017. (13; 21) In addition, the Pristina SWC reported needing a shelter for interviewing and providing accommodation to child victims, and the Hope for Homes Children Shelter reported insufficient funding. (13; 7)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Kosovo (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the draft Law on Child Protection is passed to prohibit the use of children in all illicit activities, including using, procuring, and offering children for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase inter-ministerial communication within the MOIA to adequately combat commercial sexual exploitation.	2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors conduct child labor inspections on private farms, in homes, and in the informal sectors.	2017
	Incorporate topics on child labor in trainings for new employees and refresher courses, as well as ensure trainings on new child labor laws for all labor inspectors.	2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors and access to informal sectors to investigate all cases of child labor.	2017
	Ensure that the penalties in the legal framework regulating the crime of human trafficking are correctly applied, including by providing training and supervision to prosecutors and judges on the legal framework for human trafficking cases.	2012 – 2017
	Improve the collection, publication, and interagency sharing of data to appropriate services on the results of investigations related to criminal violations of child labor laws, including the number of related prosecutions initiated, the number of convictions, and the referral of children found in child labor.	2009 – 2017
Coordination	Improve the capacity of the CLMS to better analyze data on child labor and improve data sharing between municipal authorities and the MLSW.	2013 – 2017
	Increase the coordination role of the Committee for Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor.	2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian Communities.	2016 – 2017
	Provide sufficient funding for the National Strategy and Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Child Labor and the Strategy for the Inclusion of Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian Communities so that victims of child labor receive sufficient social services.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017
	Make additional efforts to register Ashkali, Egyptian, and Roma children at birth.	2011 – 2017
	Fully fund and operate shelters that house child victims of trafficking, including creating a shelter for the Pristina SWC for interviewing and accommodating child victims.	2016 – 2017

In 2017, the Kyrgyz Republic made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted a National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons and launched a program that includes limited activities to address child labor. However, children in the Kyrgyz Republic engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. The government's child trafficking laws are not in line with international standards, and research indicates that the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety employed an insufficient number of labor inspectors. The compulsory education age also remained lower than the minimum age for work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Kyrgyz Republic engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (6; 7; 8; 9; 10) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Kyrgyz Republic.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	33.9 (397,407)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	86.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	41.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		105.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (11)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from National Child Labour Survey, 2014. (12)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating cotton, tobacco,† rice, potatoes, sugar beets, and wheat (4; 6; 7; 8; 9; 13; 14; 10; 15)
	Raising cattle and sheep (4; 9; 13; 14; 15)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Hazardous child labor is most prevalent in the oblasts (provinces) of Naryn and Osh. (16) There is limited evidence that some children migrate with their families to work in the cotton fields in Kazakhstan. (24) Some children left behind, after their parents migrate to work in Kazakhstan, Russia, or other areas of the country, do not have access to their birth certificates and guardianship documents that are required for school enrolment. As a result, these children cannot enroll in school and are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (6; 13; 25) Some schools require residence registration, known as propiska, for enrollment, thereby hindering access to education; however, according to the Ministry of Education and Science, residence registration is not mandatory. (3; 4; 7; 21) Moreover, many children from the ethnic Lyuli, a group of approximately 3,500 Central Asian Roma people living in the Kyrgyz Republic, do not attend school and are vulnerable to child labor. (23; 26) Children with disabilities and those living and working on the street also have difficulty accessing education. (4; 19)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Kyrgyz Republic has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Kyrgyz Republic's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including coverage of the law and comprehensive prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 18 of the Labor Code (27)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 294 of the Labor Code; Article 15 of the Code on Children (27; 28)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 294 of the Labor Code; Decree 314; Annex I of Decree 548 (27; 29; 30)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 10 of the Labor Code; Article 15.2 of the Code on Children; Article 1 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking; Article 124 of the Criminal Code (27; 28; 31; 32)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 1 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking; Article 124 of the Criminal Code (31; 32)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 157 of the Criminal Code; Articles 5 and 15 of the Code on Children (28; 31)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 157, 247, 249, and 375 of the Criminal Code; Articles 5 and 15 of the Code on Children (28; 31)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Articles 17.1 and 22.1 of the Law on Military Service (33)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 24.1 of the Law on Military Service (33)
Non-state	Yes	18	Articles 124, 226–2, 229, and 375 of the Criminal Code (31)
Compulsory Education Age	No	15‡	Article 16 of the Law on Education (34)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Law on Education (34)

‡ Age calculated based on available information

According to Article 6 of the Labor Code, protections, such as the minimum age of employment and prohibitions on hazardous work, are not extended to children engaged in non-contractual employment. (27) However, most incidences of child labor occur in employment relationships in which the child has not signed an employment contract with the employer. (6; 9)

The prohibitions against child trafficking are insufficient because they require threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking. (31; 32) The government drafted a revised list of hazardous work for children in 2011, which remained under review. (15; 35)

Children in the Kyrgyz Republic are required to attend school only until grade nine, which is typically when they reach age 14 or 15. (6; 7; 36) This standard makes children ages 14 and 15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to be in school, but they also are not yet legally permitted to work.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety	Monitor work sites and refer child laborers to social services. Coordinate with the Inspectorate for Minors' Affairs in the Ministry of Internal Affairs, the Prosecutor General's Office, and regional State District Administration authorities to enforce child labor laws. (37)
Ministry of Internal Affairs, Inspectorate for Minors' Affairs	Enforce criminal laws related to child labor, including its worst forms; conduct independent inspections and joint raids with the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety to find neglected or abused children; and refer children to social institutions for care. (37)
Prosecutor General's Office	Enforce and apply labor-related laws, including labor inspections and investigations of child labor violations, in coordination with the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety. (37; 38)
Oblast Administration	Enforce child labor laws at the oblast (province) level. (37)
Ministry of Labor and Social Development	Serve as the key government agency for children's issues. Protect children and families in difficult living situations, including child laborers. (23) Coordinate with oblast-level authorities to investigate violations of child labor laws. (39)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in the Kyrgyz Republic took actions to combat child labor. However, gaps exist within the authority of the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2017, the number of labor inspectors was not known. (21) In 2016, however, the State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety employed 23 labor inspectors. (15) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the Kyrgyz Republic's workforce, which includes over 2.8 million workers. (45) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitioning economies, the Kyrgyz Republic should employ about 142 labor inspectors. (19; 46; 47) The State Inspectorate on Ecological and Technical Safety acknowledged that the number of labor inspectors was inadequate to ensure appropriate enforcement of child labor laws. (19)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Kyrgyz Republic took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown (15)	No (21)

‡ Data are from January to September 2017.

In 2017, 97 judges, 77 prosecutors, and 33 police officers attended training sessions on countering human trafficking. (48) The government investigated four cases of human trafficking during the first 9 months of 2017; research was unable to determine whether these cases involved children. (48)

The UN special rapporteur on the sale of children, child sex trafficking, and child pornography documented allegations of law enforcement officials' complicity in human trafficking in a 2013 report; police officers allegedly threatened, extorted, and raped child sex trafficking victims. However, the government has neither investigated these allegations nor reported whether any government employees have been investigated, prosecuted, or convicted for human trafficking. (5)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Coordination Council for Social Protection and Children's Rights	Develop policies to eliminate child labor. (35) Chaired by the Deputy Prime Minister, members include representatives from the Ministry of Labor and Social Development and three other ministries. (49; 50) Met quarterly in 2017. (21)
Coordination Council on Migration	Monitor and combat human trafficking as a key priority. Chaired by the Deputy Prime Minister for Social Issues, members include representatives from the Office of the President, government ministries, international organizations, and NGOs. (51) Met twice in 2017. (48)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Interagency Action Plan on Measures to Prevent the Involvement of Children in the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2016–2018)	Aims to address the worst forms of child labor by identifying children at risk of child labor, including those in difficult living situations; providing social services; conducting awareness-raising campaigns, including seminars for social pedagogues and forums for children and their parents on hazardous work; sharing experiences and best practices with international organizations and NGOs; and creating a manual on child protection for labor inspectors. (15; 52) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
Regulations on the Procedure for the Identification of Children and Families in Difficult Situations	Establishes the process for identifying children in difficult living situations, including those engaged in the worst forms of child labor. Receives complaints, conducts outreach activities, devises an individual action plan, removes the child from the worst forms of child labor, and provides financial and educational services. (44) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2017–2020) †	Improves legal framework on human trafficking; improves dissemination of information on human trafficking risks for migrants and vulnerable populations; raises awareness about protections for victims and criminal penalties for perpetrators; and improves coordination among government agencies, NGOs, and international partners. (53)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (37)

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the National Education Strategy and Roadmap on Out-of-School Children. (36; 54)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation and adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Combating Child Labor in Central Asia –Commitment Becomes Action (PROACT CAR Phase III) (2010–2018)	$4.57 million Government of Germany-funded project implemented by the ILO to mainstream child labor issues into national policies and legislation, build the capacity of stakeholders, and provide direct services to children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labor. (54; 55) In 2017, supported launching the Support of Family and Protection of Children for 2018–2028 program, finalizing the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons, and signing the UN Development Assistance Framework. (56)
Evening Classes for Child Laborers †	Provides evening classes to secondary school students in districts with high numbers of child laborers. (57) In 2017, the Bishkek Mayor’s Office provided funding for the schools in Bishkek. (21)
Social Support for Children and Families in Difficult Living Situations †	Government-funded program to monitor places where children may be working, with a primary focus on bazaars, and to return these children to school. (39) Research did not find information about the number of children assisted in 2017.
Cash Transfer Program †	Cash transfer program for families living in difficult situations, including families with children engaged in child labor. (35) Research did not find information about the number of children assisted in 2017.
Ministry of Education and Science National School Attendance Database †	Ministry of Education and Science project to pilot a national electronic database to track children who do not attend school. Following development and use throughout the country, database information will be shared with the Ministry of Labor and Social Development to assist children engaged in child labor. (7) Will provide information to the Ministry of Internal Affairs on cases of criminal violations of child labor laws. In addition, social pedagogues will work with families to ensure that children attend school. (7) Research did not find information about the number of children assisted in 2017.

In August 2017, the government adopted a program entitled “Support of Family and Protection of Children for 2018–2028,” which includes limited activities to address child labor, including revising Decree 314, the hazardous work list for children; organizing competitive bids for projects, resulting in four new social services centers by 2020 for families and children in difficult living situations; and providing local administrations with income-generating ideas for families in difficult living situations. (59) Funding for this program will be provided through the existing budget for government agencies, plus international donors' funds when available. (59; 60)

Although the Kyrgyz Republic has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking and in agriculture, including cultivating cotton.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Kyrgyz Republic (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's minimum age provisions and hazardous work prohibitions apply to all children, including those working without an employment contract.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that child trafficking laws do not require an element of force or deception and are in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the age for compulsory schooling to 16, the minimum age to work.	2014 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information about the funding of the State Inspectorate; the number of inspectors; the number of labor inspections, including those conducted at worksites; the number of violations and penalties imposed and collected; information about whether inspections are routine or targeted; and the number of criminal violations found.	2011 – 2017
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by permitting and conducting unannounced inspections and by providing child labor training for labor inspectors and criminal investigators.	2014 – 2017
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice and provide inspectors with adequate training and resources to conduct inspections.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies investigate and prosecute violations related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017
Government Policies	Implement the Interagency Action Plan on Measures to Prevent the Involvement of Children in the Worst Forms of Child Labor and the Regulations on the Procedure for the Identification of Children and Families in Difficult Living Situations.	2016 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Education Strategy and the Roadmap on Out-of-School Children.	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure that all children have access to free education, including Lyuli children, children with disabilities, those living and working on the street, and those without birth certificates.	2009 – 2017
	Implement all social programs, including the Social Support for Children and Families in Difficult Living Situations, the Cash Transfer Program, and the Ministry of Education and Science National School Attendance Database.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking and in agriculture, including cultivating cotton.	2014 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Lebanon made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Labor released a Practitioners' Guide on child labor in agriculture to raise awareness among stakeholders and signed an agreement with the Farmers' Union to prevent foreign children, mainly Syrian refugees, under age 16 from working in agriculture. Concurrently, the government helped enroll more than 110,000 children in schools and prevented a possible dropout of more than 18,000 other children, including non-Lebanese children, in the 2016–2017 academic year. However, children in Lebanon engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation. The Ministry of Labor's operations budget was unable to cover equipment, personnel, and transport costs to conduct inspections. The Ministry of Labor does not have the authority to assess penalties. In addition, programs targeting child labor remained insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Lebanon engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Lebanon. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		71.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (6)
Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including picking potatoes, cucumbers, almonds, plums, olives, citrus fruit, beans, figs, and grapes (1; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12)
	Production of tobacco† (13; 14; 15; 16)
	Fishing, activities unknown (3; 16)
Industry	Construction,† including carpentry, tiling, and welding† (11; 14; 17; 18; 16)

	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 3; 22; 31; 33; 5; 34; 35)
	Forced labor in agriculture, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3; 4; 5)
	Forced recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (16; 36; 37)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Child labor has increased, and its conditions have worsened since the influx of Syrian refugees into Lebanon, affecting Lebanese and Syrian children. (38; 39; 16) As of January 2018, just under one million Syrian refugees in Lebanon were registered with UNHCR, and more than half of them were children. (40) Child labor is also prevalent in other refugee communities in Lebanon, including the Palestinian and Iraqi communities. (41; 16)

There are instances of children being subjected to forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (5) In particular, Syrian girls are trafficked into Lebanon for commercial sexual exploitation under the guise of marriage. (18; 5) Some boys are also subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly Kurdish boys from Syria and boys who work. (18; 42) Working on the streets is especially common among refugee children from Syria, including Palestinians from Syria. (24)

Syrian children are also subjected to forced labor in agriculture. (4; 41; 16) Some Syrian refugee children, with their families, are kept in bonded labor in agriculture in the Bekaa Valley to pay for makeshift dwellings provided by landowners. (3; 4; 38; 5) In 2017, the Lebanese army evicted approximately 10,000 Syrian refugees from their informal dwellings in Bekaa, interrupting children’s schooling and making them more vulnerable to child labor. (43; 44; 45)

UNICEF reported that ISIS and Al Nusra recruited and used boys and girls in Lebanon, including in Palestinian refugee camps. (16) Media reported that Hizballah also recruited children to engage in combat in Syria. (36) Children participated in combat, armed patrols, military parades, and logistical support of armed leaders within Lebanon or were trafficked to Syria for the same purposes. (16)

The government waived fees for public primary schools and opened second shifts in about 240 schools. (14) But the public school system in Lebanon lacks the capacity to accommodate the large number of school-age Syrian refugee children. (46) Some schools refuse to enroll students who lack documentation, contradicting the official policy. (16; 47) Whereas UNHCR states that 70 percent of Syrian refugee children were enrolled at school in 2017, other observers estimated that more than 50 percent of Syrian refugee children as well as 35 percent of Palestinian refugee children were out of school. (25; 16; 48) Children in Lebanon, particularly Syrian refugee children, face barriers to accessing education, including the cost of transportation and supplies, use of schools by armed groups or as shelters, fear of passing checkpoints or of violence, lack of private sanitation facilities for girls, discrimination, bullying, corporal punishment, and different curriculum in Lebanon than in their country of origin. (14; 15; 49; 50; 51; 52; 53; 48; 16; 54) Children with disabilities, particularly Syrians, either are denied access to schools or do not receive additional tailored services. (53) In addition, some refugee children from Iraq and Syria do not attend school because many classes are taught in French or English in Lebanese schools, but refugee children do not speak these languages. (50; 54) Children who work in agriculture, including Lebanese children, often do not attend school during harvesting and planting seasons. (55; 56) One local organization observed a direct correlation between school dropout rates and increase in child labor. (25)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Lebanon has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Lebanon's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including prohibition of debt bondage.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 22 of the Labor Code (57)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of Decree No. 8987 (58)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Annex 1 of Decree No. 8987 (58)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 8 of Decree No. 3855; Article 569 of the Penal Code (59; 60)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 586.1 and 586.5 of the Penal Code (59)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 507–510, 523–527, 586.1, and 586.5 of the Penal Code (59)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 586.1, 586.5, and 618 of the Penal Code (59)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 30 of the National Defense Law (61)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 586.1 of the Penal Code; Annex 1 of Decree No. 8987 (58; 59)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 49 of the Education Law (62)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 49 of the Education Law (62)

* No conscription (63)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (41)

Laws related to forced labor are insufficient because there is no legislative provision that provides criminal penalties for the exaction of forced labor, and debt bondage is not criminally prohibited. (59; 64)

Government officials clarified that although Article 610 of the Penal Code criminalizes begging, Article 26 of the Delinquent Juveniles Law, which takes precedence over the Penal Code, stipulates that in cases of begging, the child is considered in danger and entitled to receive protective measures. (59; 65; 66) However, children engaged in begging have been arrested in a limited number of cases. (24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforce child labor laws through desk review and workplace inspections. Act as government focal point for child labor issues and host the National Steering Committee on Child Labor. (16) The Ministry's Child Labor Unit raises public awareness about child labor and the right to education, and receives complaints on child labor violations on its hotline. (67; 41)
Internal Security Forces	Enforce laws regarding the worst forms of child labor through the Anti-Human Trafficking and Morals Protection Bureau. (16)
Ministry of Justice	Prosecute violations of the Penal Code in coordination with the Internal Security Forces. Maintain general data and statistics on criminal violations involving the worst forms of child labor. (16) Refer at-risk children to shelters and protection services. The Ministry has signed agreements with civil society organizations to provide social workers to the Ministry to oversee court proceedings involving juveniles and deliver services to them, including children engaged in begging. (16)
Ministry of Social Affairs	Refer children identified by the Internal Security Forces and the Ministry of Justice to protective institutions, such as health centers. Refer children to shelters through its Higher Council for Childhood. (16)

According to local observers, the Ministry of Labor's hotline is not fully functional and works for a limited number of hours on official workdays. It does not have a system to register incoming calls. (25)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Lebanon took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown	Unknown
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (3)	Yes (16)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (16)

In 2017, the Ministry of Labor did not cover the costs of equipment and transportation for labor inspectors to carry out their duties. (16) Inspections of child labor are generally a result of a complaint, particularly in the formal sector. However, based on available information, child labor is nearly non-existent in the formal sector. (16; 70) The number of labor inspectors is insufficient for the size of Lebanon's workforce, which includes over 2.1 million workers. (71) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Lebanon would employ about 144 inspectors. (72; 73)

The Ministry of Labor signed an agreement with the Farmers' Union so that farmers do not hire Syrian children under age 16 to work in agriculture. In 2017, the Ministry's Child Labor Unit provided training to farmers and General Security officers in the Bekaa Valley. (16)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Lebanon took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A

Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	10 (3)	5 (74; 75)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	5 (3)	Unknown
Number of Convictions	3 (76)	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (16)

In 2017, judges and officials of the Internal Security Forces participated in trainings on human trafficking. The government provided an airline company with training to help cabin crew members recognize indicators of human trafficking among passengers. (74) In addition, staff of the Lebanese Armed Forces participated in training sessions on human trafficking. (77)

The Ministry of Justice stated that a lack of sufficient human resources hindered the government's ability to address child labor. (16) The Ministry of Justice does not have a centralized record system, but it reported prosecuting some cases of forced child begging. (77)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Raise awareness; coordinate efforts among government agencies; establish standard practices; develop, enforce, and recommend changes; and ensure that government agencies comply with the law. Led by the Minister of Labor, includes representatives from six other ministries and other institutions and international organizations. (16) In 2017, the Committee did not meet officially, although its technical subcommittee met twice during the year. (16)
National Steering Committee on Trafficking	Coordinate efforts against human trafficking, including child trafficking. Based at the Ministry of Labor and meets on a monthly basis. (16) In 2017, the Committee met monthly. (77)
UNICEF and UNHCR	Coordinate efforts to address the needs of children affected by the Syrian refugee crisis in Lebanon and maintain interagency standards for child protection. The UN representatives identify crucial concerns, including factors that make children vulnerable to child labor, and make recommendations to the government on the use of resources, including referral services. (16) In 2017, UNICEF held awareness-raising campaigns, carried out Focused Psychosocial Support activities and case management for children engaged in hazardous child labor, provided vocational training for children ages 15 to 17, and worked with agricultural stakeholders to limit working hours for children and improve working conditions. During the reporting period, UNHCR provided cash assistance to families of approximately 320 Syrian children and helped provide educational services to more than 770 children. (16)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2013–2019)	Establishes strategies for addressing the worst forms of child labor, including improving enforcement of child labor laws and expanding access to education. (78; 3) In 2017, the Ministry of Labor, in cooperation with the ILO, released the Guide for Child Labor in Agriculture Practitioners to raise awareness among stakeholders on child labor in agriculture. The ILO held a training on the Guide in September. (79)
Work Plan to Prevent and Respond to the Association of Children with Armed Violence in Lebanon	Provides the framework for the prevention of children involved in armed conflict. (52) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (80)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Tackling Child Labor among Syrian Refugees and Their Host Communities in Jordan and Lebanon (2015–2017)	Government of Denmark–funded, 2-year project, implemented by the ILO to conduct research on the hazards of child labor in certain sectors; build the technical capacity of governments, employers, and workers’ organizations to improve referrals and responses to cases of child labor; and provide training on preventing and removing children from child labor and provide services. (81) In 2017, the ILO supported government agencies to draft a code of conduct and coordination mechanism to help children living and working on the street. The ILO also held a training on that topic for stakeholders, including government officials. (82)
Child Protection Program	Joint program by UNICEF and the Ministry of Social Affairs. Addresses the worst forms of child labor through interventions, including psychological counseling, raising awareness among employers, and working with employers to decrease working hours for children and to improve working conditions. (27) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 in the implementation of this program.
USDOL-Funded Projects for Capacity Building and Research	USDOL projects that aim to build capacity of government law enforcement officials, improve policy implementation, and improve the evidence base on child labor. These projects include the Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (GAP 11), implemented by the ILO, and the Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR) capacity-building project, implemented by the ILO in at least 11 countries. (83; 84) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Reaching All Children through Education (RACE II) (2017–2021)	Donor-funded 5-year project, implemented by the Ministry of Education and Higher Education and partners to ensure quality education opportunities for children ages 3 to 18 regardless of nationality through holistic interventions, including non-formal education. (85) The program supported enrollment of more than 110,000 students in the 2016–2017 academic year as well as retention activities to prevent a possible dropout of more than 18,000 vulnerable children. (16)
National Poverty Alleviation Program†	Funded by the government and foreign donors, this Ministry of Social Affairs program pays school tuition and book costs for 74,000 families living in extreme poverty. (41) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 in the implementation of this program.

The scarcity of shelters for child trafficking victims results in some children being placed in juvenile detention centers. (56) The lack of shelters and resources to effectively handle child labor and trafficking cases puts children at a heightened risk of further exploitation. (32) Although Lebanon has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in forced child labor in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Lebanon (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict, which the government signed in 2002.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that forced labor and debt bondage are criminally prohibited.	2015 – 2017

In 2017, Lesotho made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Ministry of Labor and Employment provided training to labor inspectors on new child labor laws and included a child labor module in its Labor Force Survey. In addition, the government pledged to use research to address child labor in the informal sector during the 2017 IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor. However, children in Lesotho continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in animal herding and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Lesotho's compulsory education age is below the minimum age for work, leaving children in between these ages vulnerable to child labor. The government also lacks sufficient programs to combat child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Lesotho engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in animal herding and commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Lesotho.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	28.1 (124,632)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	80.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	25.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		78.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 2, 2000. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding animals, including cattle † (5; 6)
	Farming, including planting, applying pesticides, and harvesting (7; 8; 5; 9)
Services	Domestic work (10; 11; 5; 6)
	Street work, including vending, and trading (5; 9)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and animal herding, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5; 6)
	Use in illicit activities, including burglary and theft (5; 6)

Lesotho is a source, transit, and destination country for human trafficking. Children in Lesotho are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and forced to work as domestic workers and animal herders, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (6) Children sometimes voluntarily travel to neighboring countries such as South Africa for domestic work, and upon arrival are subsequently detained in prison-like conditions and sexually exploited. (6)

Currently, the government has published no data on the prevalence of child labor, including its worst forms. (5) In 2017, however, the Bureau of Statistics amended the Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey and Labor Force Survey to include a child labor module. The statistics with the child labor module are scheduled for release in 2018. (5)

Lesotho

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Of note, in 2017, the Lesotho Population-based HIV Impact Assessment reported that the HIV rate in adults (ages 15–59) is 25.6 percent, the second-highest HIV rate in adults worldwide. (5; 12) Many children in Lesotho become orphans due to the high rate of HIV among adults. (10; 7; 13; 14; 15) Children, mostly HIV orphans driven by poverty, migrate from rural to urban areas to engage in commercial sexual exploitation. (7; 16) Also, children with disabilities are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor as they encounter difficulties accessing education due to ill-equipped educational facilities and untrained teachers. (17) UNICEF reported a 45 percent rate in birth registrations. NGOs confirmed that the low number of birth registrations results in children becoming stateless. (18; 19) These factors increase the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor, such as human trafficking.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Lesotho has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Lesotho's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 124(1) of the Labour Code; Article 228(1) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (20; 21)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 125(1) of the Labour Code; Article 230(1) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (20; 21)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 230(3) and 231 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (20)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 9(2) of the Constitution; Article 7(1) of the Labour Code; Article 5 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (22; 21; 23)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 5 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (23)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 77 of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act; Articles 10–14 of the Sexual Offenses Act (24; 20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 45(b) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (20)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*		Article 22(o) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (20)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Section 26 of the Lesotho Defence Force Act (25)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 22(o) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (20)
Compulsory Education Age	No	13‡	Article 3 of the Education Act (26)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 3 of the Education Act; Article 22(k) of the Children's Protection and Welfare Act (20; 26)

* No conscription (20)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (26)

Education is compulsory in Lesotho through age 13, which makes children age 14 particularly vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to be in school and have not reached the minimum age for work. (10; 21)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Children's Court that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE)	Enforce minimum age requirements under child labor laws, including for hazardous occupations. Assess compliance with child labor laws as part of general labor inspections. (27; 28)
National Police, Child and Gender Protection Unit (CGPU)	Investigate criminal child labor violations and work in conjunction with MOLE to enforce child labor laws, including those related to hazardous and forced child labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and child trafficking. (27; 29)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Prosecute child labor law offenders. (27)
Children's Court	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (27)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Lesotho took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including insufficient resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017

In 2017, the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) provided legislative recommendations to Parliamentary Counsel on how to amend the Labor Code and the Children's Welfare and Protection Act. The recommendations supported the authorization of the labor inspectorate to conduct inspections in the informal sector. (5) In 2017, MOLE, in collaboration with the Ministry of Social Development and NGOs, educated the public about child labor through 16 awareness-raising campaigns, media sessions, and school visits. (5; 9)

Reports indicate that funding is inadequate for the labor inspectorate to carry out investigations. (10; 30) Moreover, the current mandate for MOLE does not authorize labor inspections in the informal economy. (5)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Lesotho took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the National Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (30)	Yes (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (30)	No (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (30)	No (5)
Number of Investigations	0 (30)	0 (5)
Number of Violations Found	0 (30)	0 (5)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	1 (30)	0 (5)
Number of Convictions	0 (30)	0 (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (30)	Yes (5)

Reports indicate that the National Police Child and Gender Protection Unit receives inadequate or no funding to carry out child labor investigations. (27; 10; 9)

In 2016 the government had established a special permit system with South Africa to allow Basothos to legally work in South Africa as a mechanism to curb human trafficking. In 2017, 94,951 Basothos applied for the permit and 86,501 were approved. (5) The government continued to incorporate human trafficking lessons in the primary school curriculum (Standard 7) and held cross-border awareness campaigns with South African officials on identifying and documenting potential trafficking victims. (32; 9)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the capacity to coordinate efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Program Advisory Committee on Child Labor (PACC)/National Task Team	Implement the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor. Led by MOLE's Child Labor Unit, the team includes representatives from government ministries, trade unions, NGOs, and international organizations. (27; 16) In 2017, PACC did not meet. (5)
Multi-Sectoral Committee on Combating Trafficking in Persons	Spearhead anti-trafficking in persons initiatives and approve legislation and policies to prevent human trafficking. Chaired by the Commissioner of Refugees, includes government ministries, local government members, and representatives from NGOs, international organizations, and faith-based organizations. (33) In 2017, met two times and finalized drafting victim identification and referral guidelines, which currently await the signature of MOLE's Principal Secretary. (5)
District Child Protection Teams	Coordinate child protection matters, including child labor, at the district level. Led by the Ministry of Social Development, include representatives from the government, private sector, NGOs, and community support groups. (27) In 2017, Thava Tseka District Protection Team hosted three public meetings to educate the public about child labor. (5; 9)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation and mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor (APEC) (2013–2017)	Focuses on the development of programs to withdraw, rehabilitate, and protect children from the worst forms of child labor. (34; 35) Research was unable to find information about the implementation of this policy during 2017.

Policy	Description
National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Strategic Framework and Action Plan (2013–2017)	Supports the national and international obligations and commitments regarding human trafficking, in support of the vision to eliminate all forms of trafficking in persons in Lesotho. Provides for victim protection, successful arrests and prosecutions of offenders, and concrete preventive measures. (34) Research was unable to find information about the implementation of this policy during 2017.
National Strategic Plan on Vulnerable Children (2012–2017)	Safeguards the rights of orphans and vulnerable children to an education, promotes access to apprenticeships and vocational and life skills programs for orphans and vulnerable children, and implements child labor prevention programs. (36; 37) Research was unable to find information about the implementation of this policy during 2017.
Lesotho United Nations Development Assistance Framework (2013–2017)	Includes actions to build the capacity of the government, social partners, and civil society to eliminate child labor. Promotes education for children, supports youth employment, and builds the government's capacity to provide social welfare services to vulnerable children. (38) Research was unable to find information about the implementation of this policy during 2017.
Kingdom of Lesotho: Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper—National Strategic Development Plan (2012/2013–2016/2017)	Identifies child protection services (CGPU, social welfare, health, and the justice system) and their capacity to respond adequately to cases of violence, abuse, and exploitation of children, including child labor. Outlines prevention measures. (39) Research was unable to find information about the implementation of this policy during 2017.

Although the government released a draft labor policy that proposed harmonizing existing legislation with international labor standards regarding child labor, the Cabinet has yet to approve the policy. (5) government agencies disseminated information about child labor and human trafficking; however, research found no information that meaningful steps were taken by the government to implement the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor. (40) The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into existing policies such as the Education Sector Strategic Plan. (41)

The government at the 2017 IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor pledged to use evidence-based research to inform policy to address decent work in the informal sector. (42)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to fully address the scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
ILO Decent Work Country Program (2012–2017)	ILO-funded program supported by MOLE that includes objectives on creating youth employment as a poverty-reduction strategy, establishing social protection coverage for citizens, and facilitating social dialog among employers and workers. (7) In 2017, in collaboration with MOLE, conducted a study on the rural economy and held a workshop for government officials about the importance of transitioning from an informal to formal economy. (5)
Orphans and Vulnerable Children (OVC) Scholarships Program†	Government program that pays for tuition, uniforms, supplies, and boarding fees for 21,304 OVCs. (5)

† Program is funded by the Government of Lesotho.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (34)

Lesotho participated in the Regional Inter-Agency Standing Committee (RIASCO) Action Plan for Southern Africa (December 2016 through April 2017), which resulted in 15 schools (3,750 students) receiving access to clean water and toilets through the installation of new systems or the rehabilitation of existing systems. (43)

While Lesotho has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially concerning child labor in cattle herding and commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Lesotho (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish 15 as the age up to which education is compulsory to match the minimum age for full-time work.	2010 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish enforcement data such as the labor inspectorate's funding.	2017
	Provide adequate funding and training for labor inspectors and criminal investigators to address the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure labor inspections are targeted and conducted in all relevant sectors, including the informal sector.	2014 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that the Program Advisory Committee on Child Labor meets regularly to work on child labor issues per its mandate.	2017
Government Policies	Implement the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor and other policies related to child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into existing youth policies, such as the Education Sector Strategic Plan.	2012 – 2017
	Publish information about the implementation of child labor-related policies.	2017
Social Programs	Institute programs that address push factors that promote child labor, including the high HIV rate in adults.	2017
	Increase birth registrations of children to reduce their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor.	2017
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2015 – 2017

Liberia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Liberia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, the government finalized the draft National Action Plan on Child Labor and launched the National Child Welfare and Protection Policy that focuses on the implementation and enforcement of child labor laws. The government also operated a shelter and case management system for vulnerable street children. However, children in Liberia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of rubber, and mining gold and diamonds. The Liberia National Police's Women and Children Protection Section and the National Commission on Child Labor continue to lack sufficient resources to conduct investigations and enforce child labor laws. A key gap in the legal framework is that the compulsory education age is lower than the minimum age for work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Liberia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of rubber, and mining of gold and diamonds. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Liberia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	16.6 (136,340)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	75.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	14.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		59.0

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2014, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Labor Force Survey, 2010. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of rubber, including cutting trees with machetes and using acid (2; 5; 6; 7; 8)
	Production of charcoal (2; 5)
	Farming activities, including production of cocoa, coffee, cassava, and sugarcane (5; 9; 10)
Industry	Mining† diamonds and gold activities, including washing gravel and using mercury and cyanide (6; 9; 11; 12; 8)
	Cutting and crushing stone (2; 6; 9; 11; 13; 7)
	Construction, including carrying heavy loads† (2; 6; 11; 7)
Services	Domestic work (11; 7)
	Street work, including vending, begging, hawking goods, and carrying heavy loads (5; 6; 14; 7; 15; 16)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (11; 17)
	Forced labor in domestic work, street vending, mining, begging, and work on rubber plantations, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 11; 18)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (19; 20; 8)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Liberian children are sometimes victims of human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, forced begging, and forced labor in street vending, alluvial diamond mining, artisanal gold mining, and in the production of rubber. Children are also trafficked from Liberia to Côte d'Ivoire, Guinea, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone. (6; 8) Research found that there is a difference in child labor activities in rural communities, compared to urban communities. (13) Children in rural communities, like Margibi County, engage in rubber tapping and coal burning activities to a greater degree, whereas children in cities and surrounding urban communities, particularly Monrovia and the communities in Montserrado County, crush rocks, work in homes, and sell goods. (13) The government has yet to collect comprehensive data on child labor activities to inform policies and social programs. (7)

Section 9 of the Children's Law mandates free primary education from grades 1–9, but the cost of uniforms, transportation, books, and school supplies limits access to education for some children. For secondary school (grades 10–12) students, reports indicate there is a shortage of teachers and learning materials, and a lack of educational facilities and transportation that limit access to education (7) Moreover, some teachers sexually exploit students in schools by coercing them with the promise of good grades, resulting in children avoiding or dropping out of school. (10; 7; 19). Reports also indicate the ongoing practice of sending boys and girls to initiation “bush schools” for rituals that traditionally were intended to transition a child into adulthood. Boys transition into what is referred to as the Poro society by undergoing rituals such as tattooing and circumcision, among others. (7) The initiation of girls into the Sande society may include female genital mutilation and other rituals. This practice often interferes with official schooling and can lead to girls dropping out of school, early marriage, and teenage pregnancy. (7) Children removed to participate in these initiation ceremonies are vulnerable to child labor because they may not return to formal schools. (7)

Liberian parents are required by law to register their infants within 14 days of birth. (21) Birth registration is technically required for parents to enroll their children in school. However, fewer than 5 percent of births are registered. (22; 23) Children who are not enrolled in school are more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Liberia has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Liberia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the gap between the compulsory education age and minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 74 of the Labor Law (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 7, Section 9.1 of the Children's Law (25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 21.4 of the Decent Work Act (6; 26)

State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 3, Section 22 of the Children's Law (25)
Non-state	Yes		Article 3, Section 22 of the Children's Law (25)
Compulsory Education Age	No	15	Article 3, Section 9 of the Children's Law; Chapter 4 of the Education Reform Act (25; 30)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 3, Section 9 of the Children's Law (25)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (30; 25)

Children in Liberia are required to attend school only up to, but not including, age 15. This standard makes 15-year-old children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor because they are not required to attend school, but they are not legally permitted to work until age 16. (30; 25) Although Section 74 of the Labor Law prohibits employment of children under age 16, the penalty of a fine of $1.18 (100 Liberian dollars) for those who violate the law is not sufficient to deter offenders. (24; 32)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Liberia impeded the enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Conduct worksite inspections and address child labor violations. (6; 9)
Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Protection (MoGCSP)	Assist the MOL with the investigation of child labor cases and act as the lead advisory agency on policy formulation, coordination, and monitoring of child protection policies through its Children Protection and Development Division. Monitor the government's efforts on compliance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the UN Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, UN CRC, and the African Union protocols on women and children. (32; 7)
Liberia National Police (LNP) Women and Children Protection Section (WACPS)	Investigate human trafficking cases involving women and children under the guidance of the LNP. (33)
LNP Anti-Trafficking Unit	Ensure that human trafficking training is integrated into police orientation. Collaborate with the WACPS to investigate human trafficking cases. (23)
Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization	Enforce the Alien and Nationality Law of Liberia and protect the border from illegal entry of migrants. Aid in combating human trafficking by detecting fraudulent immigration documents. (9)
Liberian Transnational Crime Unit	Coordinate responses to international organized criminal activities, including monitoring and prosecuting criminal violations involving arms, human trafficking, and drug trafficking. (7)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Promote and execute the rule of law for public safety, including the prosecution of child labor perpetrators. (34)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Liberia impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

*The government does not publish this information.

The Ministry of Labor's budget for fiscal years 2017 and 2018 is $1.7 million, but the amount of funding dedicated to the labor inspectorate remains unknown. (36) Research was unable to determine the cause for the significant decline in the reported number of inspections during the year. Generally, labor inspections are conducted in the formal sector instead of the informal sector where children are found engaging in child labor. (2) In addition, the lack of funding and logistical support results in the underutilization of the labor inspectorate's complaint mechanism. (7; 33)

Although inspectors cannot assess penalties, they can impose corrective measures such as issuing fines, notices of compliance, and filing a complaint with the hearing board. (7; 33) The lack of penalty assessment authorization and limited funding hamper the inspectorate's enforcement of child labor laws. (2; 7; 37) Moreover, the number of labor inspectors is slightly insufficient for the size of Liberia's workforce, which includes approximately 1.6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Liberia would employ roughly 42 labor inspectors - which would require the hiring of 11 additional inspectors to meet this threshold. (38; 39)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Liberia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Liberia National Police (LNP) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

In 2017, law enforcement agencies conducted investigations to combat child trafficking, but research was unable to determine the overall number of investigations or violations found. (40) During the year, four human traffickers, two Sierra Leoneans and two Liberians, were prosecuted and convicted for trafficking two Sierra Leonean girls. The main perpetrator received a 10-year jail sentence and the others received lesser sentences. (7; 8)

The LNP reported limited funding to carry out its enforcement duties. (6) During the year, LNP officers, Liberia Immigration Service officers, and a Ministry of Justice prosecutor attended the UNODC training in Ghana that focused on ways to strengthen enforcement capacity to address migrant smuggling in Liberia. (7) The LNP's Women and Children Protection Section also reported having limited resources to conduct investigations, including a lack of vehicles, fuel, sufficient training, finances, communications equipment, and investigative equipment. (6; 41) In addition, the data on the Ministry of Justice's prosecuted child endangerment cases are not disaggregated for child labor violations. (2; 6)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including financial support of the National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission on Child Labor (NACOMAL)	Coordinate government and civil society activities concerning child labor. Led by the MOL and comprising representatives from 16 organizations, including international and civil society organizations. (42) May assist in coordinating child labor investigations. (43) Seek to reform national child labor laws and create a national child labor database, which would assist surveys on the extent of child labor issues in Liberia. (42)
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Implement child labor policies. Chaired by the MOL and comprising government officials and workers' organizations. (6) Includes four subcommittees on resource mobilization, advocacy, training and legal development, and monitoring and evaluation. Met quarterly during the reporting period. (44; 45; 33)
Child Protection Network	Coordinate child protection efforts through monthly meetings to discuss child protection issues, including child labor and human trafficking. Chaired by the MoGCSP, comprises the MOL, the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare, the WACPS, civil society organizations, and several NGOs. (11) Also coordinates referrals of child victims of abuse to social services providers, with support from international and national organizations. (9) Met during the reporting period. (46; 33)
Anti-Human Trafficking Task Force	Coordinate anti-human trafficking activities. Chaired by the MOL, comprises the Commissioner of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization; the LNP; and representatives from the MOJ, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Ministry of Internal Affairs. (7)

During 2017, the NACOMAL reported it had a budget for salaries but no budget allocated for program activities; however, staff received child labor training and attended workshops through the CLEAR II project. (7)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for Trafficking in Persons	Outlines the government's anti-human trafficking efforts, including those for child victims. (9) Research found no information about accomplishments during the year.
Direct Assistance and Support to Trafficked Victims Standard Operation Procedures	Establishes roles and responsibilities for coordinating government assistance to human trafficking victims. (23) Provides shelter and care to children who may have been human trafficking victims. (47) Research found no information about accomplishments during the year.
National Social Welfare Policy	Prioritizes the development of action plans and policies that target children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (48) Research found no information about accomplishments during the year.

In 2017, the government finalized the draft National Action Plan on Child Labor that is awaiting endorsement by the Cabinet. Moreover, the Ministry of Gender, Children and Social Protection launched the National Child Welfare and Protection Policy, focused on the child labor laws implementation and enforcement. (7) However, the government did not renew key policies that may have a direct or indirect impact on child labor victims such as the National Strategy for Child Survival or the National Health Policy; policies that should address the issue of rehabilitation and care to child laborers. Child labor elimination and prevention strategies are not included in these policies: Revised National Youth Policy, Education Sector Plan, Rubber Industry Master Plan, and the National Employment Policy. (49; 50; 51; 52; 53; 54; 55; 56)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Anti-Trafficking Awareness Campaign†	Government of Liberia program led by the MOL, uses radio and billboard messages to raise public awareness on human trafficking. (10; 23) Inactive during the year due to lack of funding. (33)
Shelter†	MoGCSP operated shelter for vulnerable street children that includes case management system. (7) Served 97 children in 2017. (33)
USDOL-Funded Projects to Combat Child Labor	Actions to Reduce Child Labor in Areas of Rubber Production (2012–2017): $6.2 million project implemented by Winrock International to combat child labor in the rubber sector. Provided 3,700 households with livelihood services and 10,126 children with education services. Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (2011–2017): $15.9 million project implemented by the ILO that aims to build the capacity of the national government and develop strategic policies to address the elimination of child labor and forced labor in Liberia. County Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR) II (2016–2018): implemented by Winrock International and partners Verité and Lawyers Without Borders to build the capacity of the government to address child labor. (2; 57; 58) Additional information is available on the USDOL website. In March 2017, the ARCH project, in collaboration with the MOL, hosted the National Sustainability Conference to discuss measures to sustain efforts to combat child labor, including integrating child labor prevention strategies into development frameworks, policies, and programs. (59; 60)
U.S. Government-Funded Projects on Education for Adolescent Girls	U.S. Government-funded projects that aim to improve access to education and improve child protection. Includes New Accelerated Quality Education Activity (2016–2019), a $33.9 million USAID-funded project implemented by the Education Development Center; Providing Support for the Education of Girls with Disabilities, implemented by USAID with partnership and support from Liberia's Ministry of Education; Increasing Support for Out-of-School Girls and Youth, implemented by USAID; Advancing Youth Program, implemented by the Education Development Center; McGovern-Dole International Food For Education and Child Nutrition Program; and Girls Leading Our World Camps (2014–2017), implemented by the Peace Corps. (61; 62; 63) Through programs of the USDOS Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs, female high school students participate in short and long-term exchanges to promote education, empowerment, and leadership skills. (47)
Liberia Social Safety Nets Project (2017–2021)*	World Bank-funded $10 million project that aims to establish key national safety net delivery systems and provide support for low-income households. MoGCSP is the Government of Liberia's implementing agency. (64)

* Program was launched during the year.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (65; 66; 67; 68; 69; 70; 71; 72)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the year, the Liberia Institute of Statistics and Geo-Information Services and the Ministry of Labor, with support from USAID and UNDP, conducted a 2017 Labor Force Survey; the survey reportedly includes a child labor component. The results will be analyzed and released in 2018. (7) Although the government funds social programs, they are not sufficient to address child labor, including in domestic work, the production of rubber, and mining gold and diamonds.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Liberia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that penalties for employing children under the minimum age for work are stringent enough to deter violations.	2014 – 2017
	Raise the compulsory education age to be consistent with the minimum age for employment.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties for child labor violations.	2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO technical advice.	2017
	Conduct an adequate number of worksite inspections to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2017
	Publish information about the Labor Inspectorate’s funding, and the number of child labor violations found.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted in the informal sector where children are found working.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the labor inspectorate’s complaint mechanism is adequately supported and operational.	2017
	Ensure adequate funding for child labor enforcement agencies, such as the MOL, the LNP, and the WACPS, and provide necessary training for such officials to enforce child labor laws.	2010 – 2017
	Disaggregate the child endangerment cases prosecuted through the Ministry of Justice to determine the number of child labor violations.	2016 – 2017
	Publish information about the criminal law enforcement’s investigations and violations found related to the worst forms of child labor.	2017
Coordination	Ensure adequate funding for NACOMAL program activities to address child labor.	2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2010 – 2017
	Renew or develop policies that improve youth literacy rates and improve the health care delivery system, such as the National Strategy for Child Survival and the National Health Policy.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information about the activities taken to implement policies that address child labor.	2017
Social Programs	Collect comprehensive data through research to determine the activities carried out by children working in construction to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2017
	Improve access to education by subsidizing the cost of school fees and reduce barriers to education by building additional schools, addressing sexual abuse in schools, and ensuring that children are registered at birth.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure children are not prematurely removed from school to attend “bush schools.”	2017
	Ensure the implementation of Anti-Trafficking Awareness campaigns.	2017
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially in domestic work, the production of rubber, and mining gold and diamonds.	2009 – 2017

In 2017, Macedonia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted the National Strategy and Action Plan to Combat Trafficking and Illegal Migration, which aims to increase efforts to combat forced labor, including forced child begging. The government also helped three new local anti-trafficking commissions in Prilep, Gevgelija, and Veles to design their first ever local action plans on human trafficking. In addition, the government opened a new hotline to register complaints of child labor, street children, and child abuse. However, children in Macedonia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. The law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. In addition, the National Commission for the Protection of the Rights of Children and the National Coordination Body for the Protection of Children from Abuse and Neglect did not carry out activities during the reporting period.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Macedonia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Macedonia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.3 (44,161)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	86.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	19.5
Primary Completion Rate (%)		91.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (9)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4, 2011. (10)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (7)
Services	Street work, including vending small items, cleaning vehicle windshields, scavenging, and begging (2; 3; 4; 5)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 5; 6; 11; 12; 13; 7; 8)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 3; 5; 6; 7; 8)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (1; 11; 14; 15)
	Forced labor as wait staff and dancers in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs (6; 15)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Most children involved in child labor in Macedonia engage in street work, including vending small items, cleaning vehicle windshields, and begging. (3; 4; 6; 7) Some children engage in begging to help support their families, while others are forced to beg. The majority of children involved in street work are of the Roma, Egyptian, and Ashkali ethnicities. (1; 3; 4; 7) Macedonia lacks recent, comprehensive data on the nature and extent of child labor in the country. (7)

The majority of victims of child trafficking in Macedonia are girls, between the ages of 14 to 17, who have been trafficked domestically for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in restaurants, bars, and nightclubs. (1; 11; 14) Girls in eastern and central Macedonia have been identified as being particularly vulnerable to human trafficking. (16) Roma girls, especially, are also trafficked for forced marriages in which they are subject to sexual and labor exploitation. (1; 11; 14; 17; 8; 18)

Afghani, Iraqi, Iranian, Syrian, and other unaccompanied children transiting through the country, either legally or illegally, are vulnerable to trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (13; 8) During the reporting period, 41 migrant children were identified as potential victims of commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor. (8)

The government was unable to fully meet Roma children’s need for teaching in Romani due to a shortage of qualified teachers. (19; 18) Birth certification is sometimes required for attending school in Macedonia, and some Roma children had difficulty accessing education due to a lack of birth registration and identity cards. (12; 20; 7; 18) Classes for children with intellectual disabilities have disproportionately high enrollment rates of Roma children due to discrimination based, in part, on faulty screening procedures for assessing intellectual disabilities. (21; 22) Increased government funding for programs to eliminate barriers to education has increased school attendance rates among Roma children. (21; 23) Barriers remain, however, and increase Roma children’s vulnerability to child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Macedonia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Macedonia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 42 of the Constitution; Section 7 of the Labor Relations Act (24; 25)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 7, 63, and 66–67 of the Labor Relations Act (25)

Non-state	Yes		Articles 122, 322-a, and 404 of the Criminal Code (27)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 4, 5, 47, and 172 of the Law on Primary Education; Article 3 of the Law on Secondary Education (30; 31)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 44 of the Constitution (24)

* No conscription (29)

The law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are self-employed or working outside formal employment relationships. (3; 25)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Policy (MLSP)	Work with the police to seek out street children in need of assistance and track cases of forced child labor through the Department of Social Inclusion. (16; 32) Register complaints about hazardous child labor and investigate children's participation in street work through 30 Centers for Social Work (CSWs) and the Ombudsman's Office, which includes a special unit for the investigation of violations of child rights and refers complaints to the State Labor Inspectorate. (3; 5; 33; 7) When child labor is detected, the child is removed, put under the care of the CSW, and interviewed by a social worker. The child is then either returned to their family or taken to a safe house. (5) CSWs serve to counsel, educate, and assist victims of trafficking in persons. (7)
State Labor Inspectorate (SLI)	Enforce child labor laws and transmit cases of suspected criminal law violations to the Public Prosecutor. Inspectors conduct a minimum of 60 target and compliant-based cases per month. (32; 33)
Ministry of Interior (MOI)	Enforce laws related to hazardous child labor. Investigate cases of child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities through its special police unit for organized crime, corruption, and human trafficking. (33) With MLSP, formed mobile teams in previous years to identify street children and remove them from hazardous situations. Mobile teams increased their activities in mid-2017. (1; 3; 13; 19)
Public Prosecutor's Office	Prosecute criminal law violations, including those involving the worst forms of child labor. (34) Has an Organized Crime and Corruption Unit with four prosecutors dedicated to cases of child abuse and the worst forms of child labor. The Skopje Basic Prosecutor's Office has eight prosecutors for child abuse cases. (15; 35)
Office of the National Referral Mechanism	Refer potential cases of child victims of human trafficking to law enforcement authorities for investigation, and refer potential victims to social services. (16; 35)

When children are found in child labor, they are removed from the worksite and referred to the Centers for Social Work (CSWs). A functional referral mechanism exists, which enables authorities and social services to reciprocally refer children found in child labor. (7) During the reporting period and in early 2018, the MLSP and the Ministry of Interior (MOI) reestablished mobile teams for early detection and identification of vulnerable groups, including victims of trafficking, in Skopje, Bitola, Kumanovo, and Gevgelija. (8)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Macedonia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSP that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including referral mechanisms.

* The government does not publish this information.

Macedonia's State Labor Inspectorate (SLI) is responsible for enforcing all labor laws, including laws on child labor, in all sectors of the formal economy and can assess fines at any point of the inspection. (7) However, the inspectors are distributed disproportionately across the country, which causes uneven business inspections, with some being inspected more than others. While the SLI does not have a specific strategy for conducting inspections, unannounced inspections in all sectors are permitted, including legally-registered private farms. (7) Inspectors can also inspect private homes and farms with a valid warrant. (7)

During the reporting period, all labor inspectors received trainings on labor laws, including on child labor. The MLSP also trained 25 social workers and labor inspectors in trafficking among migrants and 50 labor inspectors were trained on trafficking for labor exploitation. (8) The MLSP reported that resources were adequate in 2017. (7) However, the capacity of all the institutions that enforce child labor remained weak. (7)

As in previous years, inspection results conducted by the MLSP were not shared among offices due to lack of a central database. (33) As a result, inspectors write reports without knowledge of findings in previous inspections. Labor inspection reports were not always shared within the SLI and between the SLI and the MLSP. (33; 7)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Macedonia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In Macedonia, legal requirements mandate that public prosecutors receive a 30-month training on criminal deeds, including child labor. (9) Police investigators receive trainings yearly and when new legislation is passed. In 2017, investigators received training on child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, recruitment and use of children as child soldiers, and use of children in illicit activities. (7) In addition, 718 police officers received training on human trafficking within migrant situations, and 265 police officers received training on unaccompanied minors and potential foreign victims of human trafficking. (8)

In 2017, criminal investigators reported sufficient resources to adequately perform their investigations. (7) However, the Prosecutor's Office remains underfunded. Sources reported that for the first half of 2017, border agents were unable to properly identify victims of human trafficking and proper coordination was lacking. (19; 8) Nevertheless, coordination improved as of June, when the government appointed a new National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Coordinator. (19)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among government ministries and committees.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission for the Protection of the Rights of Children	Coordinate efforts to protect children's rights, including by preventing and eliminating child labor and by providing social services. (33; 7) Led by the MLSP. (5) Continued to work on the establishment of a task force that will include border police. (19)
National Coordination Body for Protection of Children from Abuse and Neglect	Oversee implementation of the National Action Plan for Prevention and Countering Abuse and Neglect of Children. Comprises representatives from civil society, WHO, and UNICEF country offices. (38; 7) Re-elected new members in 2017. (7)
National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (National Trafficking in Persons Commission)	Coordinate the work of all institutions involved in combating human trafficking. Led by the National Anti-Trafficking in Persons Coordinator with 14 representatives from 9 governmental institutions. (33; 7) Includes the Sub-Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Children, which serves as an advisory body to the National Trafficking in Persons Commission on all forms of child trafficking. (1; 33; 39) Led by the MLSP. (5) Held four meetings in 2017. (8)

In 2017, intergovernmental coordination efforts related to child protection were put on hold due to political conflicts and government crisis. (7) Disagreements between the MLSP and the Deputy Minister, who was from a different political party, made it difficult for all of the coordinating bodies overseen by the MLSP to meet during the first half of 2017. (7) The National Trafficking in Persons Commission was reportedly underfunded and played a limited role in coordinating efforts among NGOs and local committees. (19) However, immediately after the government's adoption of the 2017–2020 National Strategy and National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration in March 2017, the National Trafficking in Persons Commission helped local committees draft their first action plans, with a special focus on trafficking in persons for labor exploitation. (19)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementing a new national child labor action plan.

Macedonia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (2017–2020)†	Focuses on preventing human trafficking by reducing the vulnerability of at-risk populations, improves victim identification, and increases efforts to combat human trafficking for forced labor, including forced child begging. (7; 40; 8)
National Strategy for the Fight Against Poverty and Social Exclusion (2010–2020)	Addresses social protection, social inclusion, health, education, and employment of children. (33) Aims to increase birth registration for Roma and other minorities, expand patrol services to identify and support street children, and improve the provision of social services for children involved in street work and begging. Implemented by the MLSP. (33; 41) The strategy was active in 2017 and the government adopted annual operational plans. (7)
National Action Plan for Education (2016–2020)	Aims to expand inclusive education and improve education for the Roma community. Seeks to increase the number of Roma students in preschools and elementary schools and decrease the number of Roma students in primary schools for children with special needs. (42) Active in 2017 and undertook activities, such as awarding scholarships to Roma students and hired 100 tutors to help Roma students in primary school. (19; 23)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

During the reporting period, the government adopted the National Strategy and National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration (2017–2020), but did not provide sufficient funding for its implementation. (8)

In addition, the Action Plan for Children on the Streets (2013–2015), the National Action Plan for Prevention and Countering Abuse and Neglect of Children (2013–2015), and the National Action Plan on the Rights of the Child (2012–2015) aimed to eliminate child labor and protect children. However, they all expired in 2015 and no new plans have been adopted to directly address child labor during the reporting period. (7)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding and adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
MLSP Day Centers, Shelter, and Social Worker Trainings†	Operates two day centers that can accommodate 60 children and partially funds two other centers, operated by NGOs, that can accommodate 80 children. (5; 43; 7) Supports a street children transit center. (43) In 2017, provided services to 17 children at the day centers. (7) Runs an ongoing program to instruct foster families on how to accommodate child trafficking victims. (5) Provides counseling, education, and assistance with registration documents to street children and child human trafficking victims at 30 CSW facilities. (14; 33)
Hotlines*	NGO Open Gate/La Strada operates a human trafficking hotline with seven operators. (36) NGO Megjashi runs an SOS hotline to report cases of child labor and abuse. (36) In 2017, two complaint lines† were opened, one by NGO Megjashi and another by the MLSP, which receives child labor, street children, human trafficking, and child abuse complaints. (7)
Center for Victims of Human Trafficking and Transit Center for Foreign Victims of Trafficking†	The MLSP operates the Center for Victims of Human Trafficking shelter, that provides housing, basic services, and reintegration services to victims. (1; 44; 7) The MOI supports the Transit Center for Foreign Victims of Trafficking, operated by NGOs. (44; 7) In 2017, one minor girl was referred to the Center. (19)
UNICEF Projects	UNICEF projects partner with the government and NGOs to provide child protection, detection and referral of child victims of violence, and educational integration of vulnerable children, including Roma and migrant children. (5; 45; 46) These projects include the Program for the Protection of Children Against Violence (2016–2020) and the UNICEF Country Program (2016–2020). (5; 45; 46)
Inclusion of Roma Children in Preschool Education†	MLSP project implemented in cooperation with the Roma Education Fund and 19 government units. Part of the 2014–2020 Roma Strategy. (19; 47) Aims to support the integration of Roma children by increasing the number of Roma children in preschool. (5; 7) MLSP, MOI, and Ministry of Justice are all part of the project work plan. (36)
Educational Seminars for Roma Students and Teachers	Ministry of Education, social workers, and NGOs provided educational seminars in 2017 to several local Roma NGOs, students, and teachers. Children in the seminars were instructed on the risks associated with forced marriages of minors. (7)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Macedonia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (7; 8)

The quality of services offered by the programs likely would improve if donors provided additional funding. (7) In addition, programs funded by donors typically were not continued by the government after funding expired. (1; 5; 13) A source reported that funding decreased for victim assistance in shelters, and the only shelter for human trafficking victims was not fully functional during the reporting period. (8) Also, day centers have not reduced the number of children on the streets, especially among Roma ethnicity, or child begging, suggesting that existing programs were insufficient in combating child labor. (5; 13; 36; 7; 23)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Macedonia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that labor law protections apply to all children, including self-employed children and children working outside formal employment relationships.	2015 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement, including SLI's funding amount.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspections are conducted throughout the country to promote compliance with child labor laws in all geographical regions.	2017
	Strengthen the capacity of institutions so that labor inspectors can conduct thorough child labor inspections.	2017
	Provide labor inspectors with an electronic system to record and share data on inspections, including the number of inspections, the number of violations found, and the number of citations issued by the SLI and the MLSP, and the entity receiving the citation, and publish the information.	2009 – 2017
	Provide sufficient funding to the Prosecutor's Office.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure law enforcement agencies proactively identify child trafficking victims and border agents coordinate to properly identify victims of human trafficking.	2015 – 2017
Coordination	Increase funding for the National Commission for Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration and ensure that it coordinates with NGOs.	2017
Government Policies	Provide sufficient funding to implement the National Action Plan against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migration.	2014 – 2017
	Create and implement a National Action Plan on Child Labor.	2017
Social Programs	Conduct research to determine the activities carried out by children engaged in child labor, including those in street work and those subjected to commercial sexual exploitation.	2013 – 2017
	Reduce barriers to education by increasing the number of teachers who can provide education in the Romani language and eliminate placing children in schools for children with intellectual disabilities on the basis of ethnicity. Make additional efforts to register Roma children at birth.	2014 – 2017
	Increase funding dedicated to combating child trafficking, and ensure that child trafficking victims receive assistance that addresses their specific needs, including shelters.	2015 – 2017

In 2017, Madagascar made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government created the National Gendarmerie Child Protective Services to investigate criminal cases related to the worst forms of child labor in rural areas and adopted a decree providing the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking with more autonomy to facilitate allocation of resources. In addition, the National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor implemented awareness-raising campaigns on child labor in the regions of Atsinanana and Atsimo. The government also continued to participate in a number of programs targeting the worst forms of child labor, including a new cash transfer program that will benefit 3,500 households in the south of Madagascar. However, children in Madagascar engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and mining. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of vanilla. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, research could not determine if penalties were applied for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, limited resources for the systematic enforcement of child labor laws impede government efforts to protect children from the worst forms of child labor and social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Madagascar engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and mining. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, including in the production of vanilla. (6; 7; 8; 9; 10) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Madagascar.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.1 (1,206,992)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	69.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	15.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		67.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (11)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from the National Survey of Child Labor (Enquête Nationale sur le Travail des Enfants), 2007. (12)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of vanilla, cloves, coconut, rice, and peanuts. (8; 13; 14; 15; 16; 7; 10; 17)
	Fishing and deep-sea diving, including for lobster, and shrimp (8; 18; 19)
	Herding cattle (17; 20)
Industry	Mining† gold, sapphires, crystal, quartz, and tourmaline, and transporting† blocks and stones at mining sites (21; 22; 23; 24; 25; 5)
	Quarrying† and crushing stone† and making gravel (7; 21; 26; 17; 22)
Services	Street work, including begging, washing cars, market vending, transporting goods by rickshaw, and scavenging garbage (8; 21; 17; 20; 19; 27)
	Working in bars,† including as waitresses, maids, and masseuses (1; 2; 20; 28; 19; 3)
	Domestic work† (8; 2; 21; 17; 19; 15)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8; 1; 2; 29; 21; 30; 3)
Forms of Child Labor ‡	Use in illicit activities such as selling drugs and vandalism (31; 27)
	Forced labor in mining, quarrying, begging, and domestic work (8; 2; 21; 22; 19; 3)

Children in Madagascar, predominantly girls, are lured by peers, family members, and pimps to engage in commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in tourist locations and mining areas. (19; 2; 3; 25) Children as young as age 10 are also involved in mining gold, stones, and sapphires in the regions of Analamanga, Anosy, Ilakaka, and Vakinankaratra. Children in the mining sector suffer from respiratory problems and diseases such as diarrhea and malaria, and are also at risk of injury from collapsing mines. (8; 21; 17; 22; 23; 19; 25; 5) In addition, children working in the production of vanilla in Madagascar are exposed to toxic substances and extreme temperatures, and transport heavy loads and work for long hours. (6; 7; 9; 16; 32; 15)

Although the Constitution guarantees free compulsory education, access to education is impeded due to a lack of school infrastructure and qualified teachers, limited transportation services in rural areas with long distances to schools, the cost of school fees and supplies, and reported school violence, which leaves children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (17; 33; 34; 19; 18; 35; 15) In addition, Madagascar was hit by Cyclone Enawo in March 2017 and experienced a pneumonic and bubonic plague outbreak in October 2017. Both humanitarian emergencies led to the closure of at least 3,600 schools, affecting attendance for an estimated 495,000 children, which, coupled with the suspension of other social services, increased children’s vulnerability to human trafficking and labor exploitation. (36; 37)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Madagascar has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 100 of the Labor Code (38)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 101 of the Labor Code; Article 10 of Decree 2007-563 (38; 39)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 101 of the Labor Code; Articles 10, 12, and 16–22 of Decree 2007-563 (38; 39)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 4 of the Labor Code; Articles 1, 8, and 18 of Law 2014-040; Article 15 of Decree 2007-563; Articles 333 and 335 of Law 2007-038 (38; 39; 40; 41)

Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 13 of Decree 2007-563; Article 335 of Law 2007-038; Article 1 of Law 2014-040 (39; 40; 41)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 11 and 14 of Decree 2007-563 (39)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 11 of Ordinance No. 78-002 (42)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 15 of Decree 2007-563 (39)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16‡	Article 24 of the Constitution; Article 39 of Law 2008-011 (34; 43)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 24 of the Constitution (34)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (43)

Malagasy law prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children; however, these prohibitions do not cover deep-sea diving and fishing, areas in which there is evidence that Malagasy children work in dangerous conditions. However, the government adopted a decree after the reporting period that expands the list of occupations or activities prohibited for children under age 18 to include underwater work. (45; 46)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Civil Services and Labor Division for the Prevention, Abolition, and Monitoring of Child Labor (PACTE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Civil Services and Labor Division for the Prevention, Abolition, and Monitoring of Child Labor (PACTE)	Enforce child labor laws and coordinate, train, and evaluate all activities toward the elimination of child labor. (33; 47; 18)
Ministry of Justice	Enforce laws pertaining to violence against children, including human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (47; 3) Work with Department-level courts to prosecute child labor cases. (19; 48)
National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade	Investigate criminal cases involving minors, including issues pertaining to human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, mainly in urban areas. Housed under the Ministry of Public Security. (8; 19; 47; 3)
National Gendarmerie Child Protective Services*	Investigate criminal cases involving children, including those related to the worst forms of child labor, mainly in rural areas. Housed under the Ministry of National Defense. (19; 47; 49; 31)
Ministry of Population, Social Protection and the Promotion of Women	Develop and implement programs to protect vulnerable children, including victims of the worst forms of child labor. (19) In collaboration with UNICEF, manage 780 child protection networks to protect children from abuse and exploitation in all 22 regions of Madagascar. (50; 51; 3; 19)

* Agency responsible for child labor enforcement was created during the reporting period.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Madagascar took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of PACTE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with penalty assessment authorization.

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (26; 53)	Yes (19; 47)

In 2017, the government employed 130 labor inspectors, including 11 child-labor dedicated inspectors, which are disseminated in 18 regional offices to enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor. (19; 47) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Madagascar's workforce, which includes more than 13.4 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Madagascar should employ about 335 labor inspectors. (54; 55; 56) In addition, half of the employed labor inspectors work in the capital, hampering the government's capacity to enforce child labor laws in rural areas, especially in the agricultural sector. (8; 18; 19; 47; 4) During the reporting period, the Labor Inspectorate, with assistance from the ILO, disseminated a manual to improve enforcement of labor laws, including those related to child labor, in the informal sector, which employs more than 40 percent of the workforce. (19; 45; 57)

In 2017, PACTE received a budget of $66,000 to cover its operating expenses, including those associated with coordinating the National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE). (45) Government officials have indicated that this amount was insufficient to carry out its mandate during the reporting period. In addition, reports indicate that PACTE lacked trained staff, equipment, and funding to manage existing child labor databases and conduct adequate child labor inspections. (8; 19; 47) During the reporting period, PACTE continued to train civil society organizations in the regions of Amoron'i Mania, Matsiatra Ambony, and Vakinankaratra to identify and report cases of child labor. (19)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Madagascar took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial and human resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (cont)

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Number of Investigations	Unknown (58)	778 (59)
Number of Violations Found	41 (60)	78 (59)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (26)	Unknown (19)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (26)	Unknown (19)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (26; 53)	Yes (26; 53)

In 2017, the National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade (PMPM) had its headquarters in Antananarivo and 15 regional units across Madagascar, employing 136 agents. (45) During the reporting period, the PMPM investigated an estimated 773 complaints of crimes against children, such as rape and violence. Of these cases, 52 were for exploitative domestic work and 19 for child trafficking. (19; 59) Some of these cases were reported through the national child protection hotline. (50; 19; 31) It is unclear, however, how many prosecutions were initiated from these complaints and whether these cases led to convictions. (19)

In 2017, the newly created National Gendarmerie Child Protective Services (SPEM) investigated two child trafficking cases, two cases related to commercial sexual exploitation, and one for forced begging. The SPEM referred all cases for prosecution. (31; 59) On March 2017, the Ministry of Justice, the PMPM, and the SPEM launched a case management system, with support from UNICEF, to improve coordination and tracking of criminal cases committed against children, including related to the worst forms of child labor. (48) In addition, the Ministry of Justice, with support from international donors, provided training on anti-trafficking legislation to law enforcement actors, including the PMPM and the SPEM, as well as civil society organizations based in Nosy Be, Ambositra, Mahajanga, Fianarantsoa, Antsiranana, Sambava, and Antananarivo. (48; 59) Despite these efforts, reports indicate a lack of trained staff, equipment, and transportation to adequately conduct criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. (8; 61; 62; 19)

In 2017 the overall budget allocation for the Ministry of Population, Social Protection and the Promotion of Women increased to 0.6 percent of the national budget from the previous year. (31) During the reporting period, the Ministry worked with child protection networks in five targeted regions (Diana, Atsimo Andrefana, Boeny, Atsinanana, and Analamanga) to provide legal, social, and medical care to 7,418 child victims of violence and exploitation. (63; 59) In addition, each of these five child protection networks implemented their 3-year action plans to improve reintegration and enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor. (19)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with funding.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee on the Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE)	Coordinate programs, advise on child labor legislation and regulations, and implement the National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor. Led by the Ministry of Civil Services and Labor. (64; 65; 19; 4) In 2017, implemented awareness-raising campaigns on child labor in the regions of Atsinanana and Atsimo. (19)
Regional Child Labor Committees (CRLTE)	Coordinate, monitor, and evaluate all regional activities relating to the elimination of child labor. Comprises 10 regional committees that identify activities to promote the elimination of child labor and compile, analyze, and report child labor data to PACTE. (64; 66; 47) In 2017, the committees in the regions of Vakinankaratra and Amoron'i Mania organized workshops to raise awareness of child labor. (59)
National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking	Coordinate anti-human trafficking efforts in Madagascar and take responsibility for implementing the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons. Chaired by the Office of the Prime Minister, includes representatives from the ministries of Civil Services and Labor, Justice, and Population and Social Affairs. (40; 67; 4; 3) In 2017, the Bureau met to implement the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons. In addition, the government adopted a decree that provides more autonomy to the Bureau to facilitate allocation of resources. (19; 45)
National Child Protection Committee	Guide and coordinate national child protection policy and programs. Chaired by the Minister of Population and Social Affairs, comprises a steering committee and a technical commission of specialists. (1; 68; 47) In 2017, conducted a study to assess violence and exploitation of children in Madagascar, released in June 2018. (19; 69)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the CNLTE, the Regional Child Labor Committees, and the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking lacked sufficient funding to effectively operate and coordinate efforts to address child labor. (33; 48; 35; 15; 31)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with funding and implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2004–2019)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, conducting awareness-raising campaigns, mobilizing funds for social programs, and updating databases on child labor. Led by the CNLTE. (8; 22; 53; 64) In 2017, conducted workshops with civil society to improve child protection systems in the regions of Atsinanana and Atsimo-Andrefana, and implemented a nationwide media campaign to raise awareness of child labor. (45)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2015–2019)	Seeks to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, effectively implement human trafficking laws, and provide protection and care for victims. Overseen by the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking. (2; 67; 70; 19) In 2017, provided training on anti-trafficking legislation, enforcement techniques, and victim identification to law enforcement agencies and civil society groups. (19; 48) However, reports indicated that the government did not provide sufficient funding to implement the plan in 2017. (19)
Code of Conduct for the Protection of Children in the Tourism Industry	Aims to prevent commercial sexual exploitation of children in the tourism industry. Implemented by the Ministry of Tourism and supported by the ILO and UNICEF. (71; 72; 73; 74) As of 2017, more than 1,000 tourism companies in 12 regions have signed the code of conduct, and eight regional action plans have been developed to implement the code. (19; 75; 59)
National Social Protection Policy	Aims to protect children from abuse, violence, and exploitation and promotes improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children. Led by the Ministry of Population, Social Protection and the Promotion of Women and supported by international donors. (76; 77; 78; 4) In 2017, the government adopted a law that establishes a common fund to leverage public and private funding for social protection programs, including cash transfer programs to increase education for children from vulnerable households. (79; 80)
National Development Plan (2015–2019)	Aims to promote sustainable development and social equality. Overseen by the Ministry of Economy and Planning and supported by the ILO's Decent Work Country Program. (81; 82; 4) Includes a budget of $83,000 to specifically combat commercial sexual exploitation of children and child labor in domestic work, mining, quarrying, and other hazardous sectors. (2; 33; 81; 82; 83)
Education Sector Plan (2018–2022)†	Aims to expand access to education and improve the quality of education. Overseen by the Ministry of Education. (47; 19; 10; 84)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (82; 85)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with the adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Project Supporting Sustainable and Child Labor Free Vanilla-Growing Communities in Sava (2016–2020)	USDOL-funded $4 million project implemented by the ILO that aims to reduce child labor in the vanilla-producing areas of the Sava Region. (86; 4; 87) In 2017, convened key stakeholders from national- and local-level government and the vanilla industry to identify areas in which to improve implementation of the Code of Conduct of Vanilla Producers. (86; 19; 10) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
UNICEF Country Program (2015–2019)	$197,815 UNICEF-funded program that supports the government's efforts to improve education, health, nutrition, and protection for children in Madagascar. (88) In 2017, worked with the Ministry of Population, Social Protection and the Promotion of Women to provide services to 1,500 vulnerable households with children who have been victims of exploitation, including 1,476 child labor victims, and with the Ministry of Education to expand access to education in areas affected by Cyclone Enawo and the pneumonic and bubonic plague outbreaks. (89; 19; 59) Also, implements a program to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children in the regions of Diana, Nosy Be, Atsimo-Andrefana, Toliara, and Mangily. (90)

Program	Description
Social Support and Reintegration Centers†	Government program that provides social and reintegration services for victims of child labor. Includes the Manjary Soa Center and the Vonjy Centers in Antananarivo, Toamasina, and two newly opened centers in Nosy Be and Mahajanga.* (91; 19; 3) In 2017, the Manjary Soa Center hosted 37 children withdrawn from exploitative child labor. (19; 59)
Public Investment Program for Social Action†	$34,700 Ministry of Civil Services and Labor program that supports school attendance and training for street children. In 2017, provided 35 children with educational and vocational services. (21; 53; 47)
Cash Transfer Program (2017–2019)*†	$35 million Ministry of Population, Social Protection and the Promotion of Women program, supported by the World Bank and UNICEF, that aims to provide cash assistance for families with school-age children, conditioned on children’s school attendance. Aims to benefit 3,500 households in the south of Madagascar. (19; 92; 93)
Education for All Programs (2015–2019)	Government of Norway- and World Bank-funded projects that aim to improve the quality of and access to primary education, and provide school feeding programs in the southern regions of Androy, Anosy, and Atsimo-Andrefana. Led by the Ministry of Education. (53; 94; 95) In 2017, built 230 schools and supported the development of the new Education Sector Plan. (96)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Madagascar.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (97; 98; 99; 90)

Research found that basic health and social services available to victims of the worst forms of child labor are not adequate to meet current needs. (8; 19; 47; 15; 3) Although Madagascar has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to address the extent of the problem, particularly in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and mining. (8; 21; 53; 35)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Madagascar (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that the number of labor inspectors conforms to the ILO’s technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, which is approximately 335 labor inspectors for Madagascar.	2015 – 2017
	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017
	Ensure that labor and criminal law enforcement officials receive adequate funding and training to enforce child labor laws adequately, including in rural areas.	2009 – 2017
	Publish enforcement information related to child labor, including on the number of labor inspections conducted, violations found, penalties imposed, as well as the criminal law enforcement prosecutions initiated and convictions.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that existing databases function to gather enforcement data on child labor, including by providing adequate funding.	2009 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that the CNLTE, the CRLTE, and the National Bureau to Combat Human Trafficking receive adequate funding to effectively operate and coordinate to fulfill their missions.	2014 – 2017
Government Policies	Ensure that appropriate funding exists to effectively implement the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including those in rural communities, by removing fees for supplies and school-related costs, increasing school infrastructure and transportation services, hiring sufficiently qualified teachers, and ensuring children’s safety in schools.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that social protection systems have adequate funding and staff to provide appropriate services to victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2017
	Expand the scope of programs to address child labor in agriculture and the worst forms of child labor in agriculture, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and mining.	2014 – 2017

In 2017, Malawi made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government published the results of the National Child Labor Survey and continued to implement the Trafficking in Persons Act of 2015 by training officials on the law and launching the National Plan of Action against Trafficking in Persons. However, children in Malawi continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in the harvesting of tobacco and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. The government has not finalized or fully implemented key legislation or policies to protect children from child labor, including the Child Labor Policy and the Child Protection Policy. In addition, gaps continue to exist in labor law enforcement related to child labor, including financial resource allocation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Malawi engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in the harvesting of tobacco and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as the result of human trafficking. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Malawi.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	43.2 (1,965,690)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	89.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	45.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		76.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2014, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (2)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children’s Work Project’s analysis of statistics from National Child Labour Survey, 2015. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of tea and sugar (4)
	Planting and harvesting tobacco, clearing land, building tobacco-drying sheds, cutting and bundling, weeding, and plucking raw tobacco† (5; 6; 7; 8; 9; 10; 1)
	Herding livestock (11)
Industry	Quarrying,† mining,† collecting sand, and brickmaking† (11; 12; 13)
	Construction,† activities unknown (12)
	Domestic work in third-party homes (12)
Services	Ganyu (a form of casual labor) (14; 15)
	Begging† (16)
	Vending and wholesaling (12; 17)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5; 12; 16; 18; 1)
	Herding goats and cattle; farming (predominantly tobacco); fishing; brickmaking; domestic work; and work in small businesses such as rest houses and bars, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (19; 13; 20; 21; 22; 23)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor †	Forced begging (13; 20)
	Use in crimes (13; 14; 20)

Children in Malawi are engaged in hazardous work in the production of tobacco. (8; 12; 20; 24) Children who handle tobacco risk illness from nicotine absorption, including green tobacco sickness. (8) They are also exposed to pesticides and chemicals. (6) Some children work alongside family members who are tenants on tobacco farms. (1) In the tenancy system, tenants’ pay is based on the quantity and quality of tobacco sold to farm owners after the harvest season. Tenants must also pay off loans incurred during the growing season and, because they are unable to repay these debts, entire families are placed in debt bondage. (25; 26; 27; 1)

Most human trafficking of children for labor in Malawi is internal. (13; 20) Boys in particular are trafficked from southern Malawi to work on tobacco farms in Malawi’s northern and central regions; they are also forced to work as cattle herders and in the brickmaking industry. (13; 20; 28) Children also are trafficked from Malawi to other countries, including Mozambique, South Africa, Tanzania, and Zambia. (23; 28; 29) Children who are trafficked may be charged for their clothing, food, housing, and transport. They may also be forced to work in debt bondage because of these charges and be unable to return home or support themselves. (20; 30)

Girls from rural areas are sometimes provided clothing and lodging from brothel owners. After they have left home, they are coerced to engage in commercial sexual exploitation to pay off their debts. (13; 20; 28) Girls who work in rest houses or bars are often coerced to engage in commercial sexual exploitation in exchange for room and board. (31; 1)

Although primary education is free, considerable barriers to education exist, including families’ inability to pay required school-related fees and expenses, such as books and uniforms. (23; 32; 1) Reports also indicate that children are often victims of sexual assault, with evidence of incidents occurring at schools, which impedes their access to education. (33; 34; 6)

Children with family members with HIV/AIDS may assume responsibility as heads of their households and need to work to support their families. These children, especially those who are orphaned, are at increased risk of entering into the worst forms of child labor. (35; 36)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Malawi has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Malawi’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the minimum age to work and the prohibition of military recruitment by non-state actors.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Section 21 of the Employment Act (37)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 22 of the Employment Act; Section 23 of the Constitution (37; 38)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Sections 1–9, and Paragraph 6, Sections 1–6 of the Employment (Prohibition of Hazardous Work for Children) Order (39)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 4 of the Employment Act; Section 27 of the Constitution; Sections 140–147 and 257–269 of the Penal Code; Sections 79 and 82 of the Child Care, Protection and Justice Act; Section 15 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (37; 38; 40; 41; 42)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 140–147 and 257–269 of the Penal Code; Section 79 of the Child Care, Protection and Justice Act; Section 15 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (40; 41; 42)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 137–138, 140, 142, 147, and 155 of the Penal Code; Sections 23 and 84 of the Child Care, Protection and Justice Act; Sections 15 and 20 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (40; 41; 42)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 23 of the Child Care, Protection and Justice Act (40)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Section 19 of the Defense Force Act (43)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18	Article 13 of the Education Act (32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 13 of the Education Act (32)

* No conscription (43)

Section 21 of the Employment Act sets the minimum age for employment at age 14 in agricultural, industrial, or non-industrial work. (37) The minimum age is not extended to workers in third-party homes, such as in domestic work, or non-commercial agriculture in which children are known to work. (37) In addition, Malawi lacks a legal framework for the tenancy system used in tobacco production, leaving children vulnerable to the worst form of child labor, including debt bondage, since families encounter debt bondage because of the tenancy system. (25; 26; 27; 44; 1) Although non-state armed groups are not known to recruit children for military activities in the country, Malawi law does not meet international standards because it does not explicitly prohibit this practice.

The government amended the Constitution, which raised the age of adulthood from 16 to 18, bringing the definition of a child in line with the UN CRC. (1; 45)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Perform inspections and investigate all labor complaints, including those related to child labor. (12) The Child Labor Unit monitors and implements child labor law compliance through child labor monitoring visits. (46)
District Labor Offices	Enforce child labor laws at the district level. (12)
Malawi Police Service	Investigate suspected cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (47) Analyze and operationalize systems to track trafficking trends. (48)

Ministry of Justice and Constitutional Affairs	Prosecute criminal offenders. (50)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Malawi took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspectors	141 (5)	122 (1)

Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (5)	Yes (1)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (1)	Unknown
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (5)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (1)

While the government provided training to 24 new labor inspectors, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Malawi's workforce, which includes over 7 million workers. (52) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed country economies, Malawi would employ roughly 175 labor inspectors. Enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections. (1)

The government supports a child protection helpline operated by an NGO that identifies cases of child sexual and labor exploitation. (20) Research did not find information on the number of calls related specifically to child labor.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Malawi took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lack of information.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (48)	Yes (52)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (1)

While comprehensive data on training criminal investigators is not available, in 2017, 50 police officers, prosecutors, and magistrates were trained on the Trafficking in Persons Act of 2015. (1) The Act also called for the creation of an anti-trafficking fund, which the government established in December 2017 with funding of $68,000. The fund is designed to finance training of enforcement and protection officers and provide support and care to victims. (1; 42; 53)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Provide policy guidance to support the elimination of child labor and implementation of the National Action Plan on Child Labor. Chaired by the Ministry of Agriculture, includes representatives from government ministries, trade unions, employers, development partners, and civil society organizations. (16; 54; 36) Research was unable to determine whether the National Steering Committee on Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
National Technical Working Group on Child Labor and Protection	Oversee child protection issues. Chaired by the MOG, includes representatives from the government, international organizations, development partners, and NGOs. (12; 16; 20) Research was unable to determine whether the National Technical Working Group was active during the reporting period.
District Child Protection Committees	Coordinate all child protection activities at the district level and improve local coordination on child protection issues. (16; 20) Research was unable to determine whether the District Child Protection Committees were active during the reporting period.
National Coordination Committee against Trafficking in Persons	Mandated by the Trafficking in Persons Act of 2015. (5) Coordinates and oversees investigations and prosecutions, training, victim care, and trafficking data collection. The Committee met once in 2017. (53)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Protection Strategic Plan	Outlines the responsibilities of the MOL, Malawi Police Service, and the MOG in coordinating efforts to combat child labor. (16; 55)
National Action Plan for Vulnerable Children (2015–2019)	Provides a framework for the development of district implementation plans for assisting vulnerable children, including those vulnerable to child labor; coordinated by the MOG. (56; 57)
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2022)	Outlines the objectives to counter trafficking in persons: strengthen prevention; provide support and protection for victims; strengthen detection, investigation, and prosecution of offenses; encourage partnership and coordination; and conduct research, monitoring, and evaluation. (58; 59)
UN Development Assistance Framework (2012–2018)	Recognizes child labor as a common constraint to the creation of decent and productive employment. Proposes strategies to address child labor, including enforcement of existing labor laws and enactment of pending legislation and policies. (60; 61; 1)

Malawi

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the government published the results of the National Child Labour Survey. (62) For the reporting period, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the key policies above. The National Action Plan for Child Labor for Malawi expired in 2016 and has not been renewed. The draft National Child Labor Policy, which would provide the government, civil society, and other partners with a framework to implement child labor prevention programs and activities, is still undergoing national review that includes circulation among ministries. (5; 12; 16; 56; 1) The government has not finalized or started implementing the Child Protection Policy, which outlines the government's child protection strategy. (16; 56) The government has not integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies into either the National Youth Policy or the National Education Sector Plan. (63; 64)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development (MAP)	USDOL-funded research project implemented by the ILO in 10 countries to increase the knowledge base around child labor by collecting new data, analyzing existing data, and building capacity of governments to conduct research in this area. (65) In 2017, the MAP project held a dissemination seminar for the National Child Labor Survey and began consultations on a policy appraisal to understand and monitor child labor and decent youth employment. (65) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Achieving Reduction of Child Labor in Support of Education II (ARISE) (2015–2018)	$2 million Japan Tobacco International (JTI)-funded, 3-year project that provides strategies to promote economic empowerment, raise awareness of child labor, and provide education support. (66; 67) During 2017, the Lilongwe University of Agriculture and Natural Resources (LUANAR) developed the curriculum and training modules, which will be rolled out in 2018 (68). Also in 2017, 200 adolescents ages 14–17 who were removed from child labor graduated from the ARISE model farm school. (69)
Child Labor Monitoring System†	MOL system in pilot districts that identifies working children. Collects data on school attendance and other data points. (16)
National Social Cash Transfer Program†	MOG program that supports low-income families in high-risk districts to enable children to stay in school. As of September 2017, 430,000 children participated in the program. (52) Research has shown a decrease in child labor rates because of participation in this program. (70; 71; 72)
Complimentary Basic Education Program†	$1.1 million government-funded project that promotes school enrollment for children who are removed from child labor. To date, an estimated 11,000 children have graduated from this program. (56)
Malawi Social Action Fund IV (2014–2019)	$70 million, World Bank-funded, 5-year project that provides loans for community development and social support programs, including work opportunities, skill-building, and cash transfers. (16; 56) Key activities established two integrated and functional safety net delivery systems; reached 985,635 regular participants and 225,000 emergency response participants under the public works program; trained 24,208 people in livelihood and skills development activities; and formed and strengthened 5,241 Community Savings and Investment Promotion and other livelihood groups. (52)
Orphans and Vulnerable Children Intervention†	$4.9 million, USAID funded, President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief-funded program that, in partnership with MOG, provides education, child protection services, birth registration, and shelter and care through the establishment of Community Based Care Centers to vulnerable children from birth to age 17. (73)
Girls Empowerment Programs	USAID-funded and Save the Children-implemented projects that focus on reducing structural and cultural barriers to girls' access to education. These projects include Let Girls Learn (2016–2021) and Girls' Empowerment through Education and Health Activity (2014–2018) in Balaka and Machinga districts. (5; 73)
Birth Registration Program†	EU- and UNICEF-funded program that ensures nearly all health facilities in Lilongwe register children at birth and supports government electronic storage of birth data collected at the district level. The government's National Registration Bureau initiated hospital birth registrations in Zomba and Mulanje districts. (20) The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention supported birth registration in Blantyre, Chitipa, and Ntcheu districts. (16) UNICEF supported birth registration in Lilongwe. (56)
National Registration and ID Program†	$50 million government and UNDP co-funded program that aims to register all Malawians. (51) Nine million people over the age of 16 and 4.5 million under the age of 15 were registered. (53)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (12; 29; 74)

For the reporting period, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement a number of the key programs above. Although Malawi has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem in all relevant sectors, including agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.

VI. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Malawi (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all forms of children's work, including work conducted by children in private homes (domestic service) and on non-commercial farms, receive legal protection, including a minimum age for work that complies with international standards.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure legal protection for children working in the tenancy system.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information about the Labor Inspectorate's funding and information about training for labor inspectors and ensure that labor inspectors receive training on new laws related to child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on the number of labor inspections conducted, including at worksites, the number of child labor violations that were found, and the number of penalties that were imposed and collected.	2016 – 2017
	Publish information about whether routine inspections are conducted, if routine inspections are targeted, and whether unannounced inspections are conducted.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2017
	Increase resources to the Labor Inspectorate to conduct regular child labor inspections.	2009 – 2017
	Disaggregate data on child labor from child protection hotline calls and publish the information.	2014 – 2017
	Publish information on training for criminal law investigators and the number of investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2013 – 2017
Government Policies	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement key policies related to child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Renew the National Action Plan on Child Labour for Malawi.	2017
	Finalize and implement the National Child Labor and Child Protection policies.	2009 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Education Sector Plan and National Youth Policy.	2011 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure that additional educational costs, exposure to sexual violence, and the impact of HIV/AIDS do not serve as barriers to education.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that activities are undertaken to implement key programs related to child labor.	2017
	Increase the scope of existing social programs to reach more children at risk of the worst forms of child labor, and develop specific programs to target children in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.	2011 – 2017

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Maldives made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the Labor Relations Authority of the Ministry of Economic Development hired additional labor inspectors and the Maldives Police Service launched a case management system for victims of human trafficking, including children. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Maldives engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of trafficking. The government has not determined specific hazardous occupations or activities that are prohibited for children, and the law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation of children. Moreover, the government does not have a coordinating mechanism or policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Maldives engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of trafficking. (1; 2; 3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Maldives.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	3.9 (2,364)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	79.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		95.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey, 2009. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work (1; 3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 3)
	Use in the trafficking of drugs (6)
	Forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 3)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

No current data are available on child labor in Maldives, and a national survey on child labor has not been conducted. Some girls from Bangladesh and Maldives are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation to Malé, the capital of Maldives, but evidence of the problem is limited. (3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Maldives has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor (cont)

	Convention	Ratification
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Maldives' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including determining the types of hazardous work prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 6 of the Employment Act (7)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 7 of the Employment Act (7)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 3 of the Employment Act; Sections 12–16 of the Prevention of Human Trafficking Act (7; 8)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 12–15 of the Prevention of Human Trafficking Act (8)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Sections 17–19 of the Special Provisions Act to Deal with Child Sex Abuse Offenders (9)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 133(c)(1) of the Drugs Act (10)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children (2)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 36(b) of the Constitution of the Republic of Maldives; Article 5(b) of the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children (2; 11)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 36(b) of the Constitution of the Republic of Maldives; Article 5(b) of the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children (2; 11)

* No conscription (12)

The law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, as procuring children for prostitution is not criminally prohibited. The law also does not criminally prohibit using, procuring, and offering children for pornographic performances. (9) In addition, the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups is not prohibited.

Research did not uncover a public version of the 2014 amendment to the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children for review.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Labor Relations Authority (LRA) of the Ministry of Economic Development (MED) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Relations Authority (LRA), Ministry of Economic Development (MED)	Enforce the child labor provisions of the Employment Act. Make recommendations to MED on penalties, such as fines. (2)
Family and Child Protection Department, Maldives Police Service (MPS)	Investigate complaints of child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Refer cases to the Prosecutor General's Office for prosecution and the Ministry of Gender and Family to provide victim services. (2) Employs eight officers in Malé to investigate child labor cases, including child commercial sexual exploitation and child pornography cases. (2)
Family Child Protection Services, Ministry of Gender and Family	Receive referrals of children who have been exploited, including in child commercial sexual exploitation, and provide care for such victims. (2)
Anti-Human Trafficking Units, MPS	Investigate human trafficking-related offenses and enforce laws prohibiting trafficking in persons. Employs five officers to investigate human trafficking cases. (2)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Maldives took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the LRA of the MED that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of referral mechanisms.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017

The LRA lacks the resources necessary to enforce child labor laws. Inspectors have not received training on the identification and remediation of child labor. (2; 13) In addition, although the Inspectorate is authorized to assess penalties, no fines were issued in practice. (6; 7)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Maldives took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Family and Child Protection Department of the Maldives Police Service (MPS) that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lack of training for new criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (2)	No (6)

Investigators have insufficient funding and resources, such as office facilities and transportation. (6; 14) During the reporting period, the MPS, in partnership with IOM Maldives and the USDOS, launched the first case management system dedicated to victims of human trafficking, including children. The system also includes a website through which the public can report suspected trafficking cases to the MPS. (6) However, police and other officials have inadequate training on procedures for identifying human trafficking victims and providing referrals to protective services, including for children. (3) In addition, the MPS lacked the capacity to pursue child trafficking investigations. (15)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Anti-Human Trafficking National Steering Committee	Coordinate anti-human trafficking activities and implement the country's National Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan under MED leadership and 11 participating government agencies. (8; 14) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.

Although the government has established a coordination mechanism on human trafficking, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address all child labor, including its worst forms.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Anti-Human Trafficking Action Plan (2015–2019)	Sets out the government's goals to combat human trafficking, including establishing institutions, coordinating activities, raising awareness, and building capacity. (16) The government continued its efforts under the Action Plan during the reporting period. (6)

During the reporting period, the government continued to enforce the Anti-Human Trafficking National Action Plan. The Ministry of Gender and Family drafted a 2-year National Action Plan on Violence Against Children aimed at protecting children from all forms of abuse. This Action Plan has yet to be finalized and adopted by the Government of Maldives. (6) Research found no evidence of a policy to address child labor specifically.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including addressing the categorical worst forms of child labor.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Family and Child Service Centers†	Nineteen Ministry of Gender and Family-operated centers, which provide psychosocial support for child victims of abuse and exploitation. Four of the 19 centers provide temporary shelter for victims. (6)
National Victim Support Hotline (Number 1696)†	MED-operated hotline dedicated to receiving reports of human trafficking and child labor. Supported by the MPS and Maldives Immigration. (17) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this program during the reporting period.
Child Helpline (Number 1412)†	Ministry of Gender and Family-operated helpline established with the support of the MPS and UNICEF to receive reports of child abuse cases. (6)

† Program is funded by the Government of Maldives.

Existing social programs do not specifically address the commercial sexual exploitation of children, use of children for drug trafficking, or forced labor in domestic work. Family and Child Services centers and shelters lack adequate financial and human resources, and staff are inadequately trained to deal with cases involving abused and exploited children. (2; 6)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Maldives (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit all forms of commercial sexual exploitation of children, including procuring children for prostitution and procuring, offering, and using children for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Make publicly available the 2014 amendment to the Law on the Protection of the Rights of Children.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Collect and publish information on labor law enforcement, including the Labor Inspectorate funding and number of targeted inspections, as well as the number of violations found and prosecutions initiated involving criminal law enforcement of the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the Labor Inspectorate receives training that specifically focuses on child labor issues, including training for new employees.	2009 – 2017
	Strengthen the inspection system by conducting unannounced inspections.	2017
	Ensure that the Labor Inspectorate receives adequate resources to enforce child labor laws.	2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor authorities and social services.	2016 – 2017
	Provide sufficient funding and training to the police and prosecutors, and ensure that investigators have the resources necessary to enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2017
Coordination	Establish a coordination mechanism to combat child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Publish information about the activities undertaken by the Anti-Human Trafficking National Steering Committee.	2017
Government Policies	Adopt a policy to address the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Conduct a national child labor survey and publish the results.	2014 – 2017
	Conduct and publish research on the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and trafficking of children.	2009 – 2017
	Publish information about the implementation of the National Victim Support Hotline.	2017
	Implement and provide sufficient resources for programs that address the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, the use of children for drug trafficking, and forced labor in domestic work.	2009 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Mali made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government increased the minimum age for work to 15 in compliance with international standards and expanded the list of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children. The Police's Brigade for the Protection of Morals and Children, in collaboration with Interpol, conducted an operation that rescued 40 child victims of forced begging and prosecuted 9 individuals associated with this crime. In addition, under the National Policy for Promotion and Protection of Children, the government conducted activities to increase birth registration and provided social services for children withdrawn from armed conflict. It also participated in a number of programs targeting the worst forms of child labor, including a program that built eight sites in northern Mali to provide reintegration services to former combatants, including children. However, children in Mali engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and in armed conflict. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in the production of cotton and rice. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, the law does not explicitly prohibit using, procuring, or offering children for illicit activities and research could not determine if penalties were applied for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, resource constraints severely limited the government's ability to fully implement the National Plan to Combat Child Labor and existing social programs are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem, particularly in artisanal gold mining, hereditary slavery, and debt bondage.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mali engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and in armed conflict. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in the production of cotton and rice. (7; 8; 1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mali.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	25.1 (1,216,300)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	46.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		51.0

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating,† harvesting,† ginning,† transporting,† and applying chemical fertilizers,† particularly in the production of rice and cotton (7; 8; 11; 12; 1)
	Raising livestock,† including oxen and small ruminants (8; 13; 12; 14)
	Fishing† (8; 13)

	Street work, including as market vendors, † beggars, † and in the transportation sector (8; 24; 23; 1)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Forced labor in artisanal mining, domestic work, street work, production of salt, and farming, including in the production of rice, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (25; 2)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (26; 1; 27; 28; 2)
	Forced recruitment by armed rebel and extremist Islamic militia groups for use in armed conflict (3; 1; 20; 29; 2; 4)
	Hereditary slavery (23; 25; 30; 5; 2)
	Forced begging by Koranic teachers, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (17; 1; 2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children, especially of the Bellah community (also known as black Tuaregs), are subject to hereditary slavery in northern Mali. (23; 25; 30; 5; 2) Some children are born into slavery, while others are born free, but remain in a dependent status through which they are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. Child slaves perform agricultural or domestic labor and are often sexually abused. (31; 2) In addition, children, particularly those of Songhai ethnicity, work in debt bondage in the northern salt mines of Taoudenni. (32; 2)

Children involved in artisanal gold mining in western and southern Mali are exposed to toxic substances and extreme temperatures, transport heavy loads, and work for long hours. (15; 16; 17; 18; 1; 19; 20; 21) Some boys placed in the care of Koranic teachers for education are forced by their teachers to beg on the street or to work in fields, after which they must then surrender the money they have earned to their teachers. (32; 17; 1; 2)

Intermittent fighting and violence in central and northern Mali continued throughout 2017, resulting in the killing and displacement of children. (3; 33; 20; 29; 2; 4) Although the incidence of child soldiers decreased during the reporting period, children continued to be forcibly recruited and trained by non-state armed groups, including the Coordination of Azawad Movements (CMA), the National Movement for the Liberation of Azawad (MNLA), the High Council for the Unity of Azawad (HCUA), the Arab Movement of Azawad (MAA), and Tuareg Imghad and Allies Self-Defense Group (GATIA), all signatories of the 2015 Peace Accord. (33; 3; 34; 4) Research found limited evidence of ties between the government and GATIA, a non-state armed group led by a Malian general, including the provision of in-kind support to GATIA. (35; 36; 2; 20; 33) The UN verified that GATIA recruited at least nine children during the reporting period. (3; 37)

Although the Constitution guarantees free and compulsory education, many children, especially girls, do not attend school because parents are expected to pay fees for registration, uniforms, books, and materials costs, which are prohibitive for many impoverished families. (32; 23; 38; 39; 1) Many children in Mali are not registered at birth. Unable to present their birth certificate, unregistered children may have difficulty accessing services, including education. (32; 35; 40; 1) In addition, evidence suggests that incidences of physical, psychological, and sexual abuse, including corporal punishment, prevent some children from remaining in school. (32; 23; 41) During the reporting period, numerous attacks on schools in northern Mali resulted in lootings, destruction of learning materials and infrastructure, and military occupancy. (1; 3; 20; 42; 43; 4) Many teachers and students remained displaced and some teachers in insecure areas felt that it was unsafe to return to school. (1; 34; 20) The lack of access to education may increase the risk of children’s involvement in the worst forms of child labor. (43)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mali has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mali's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including recruitment by non-state armed groups and the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article L.187 of the Law 2017-021 modifying the Labor Code (44)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Hazardous Occupations List; Article 1 of the 2017-4388 Amendment to Hazardous Occupations List; Article D.189.14 of the Labor Code (45; 46; 47)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Occupations List; Article 1 of the 2017-4388 Amendment to Hazardous Occupations List; Article 189 of the Labor Code (45; 46; 47)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article L.6 of the Law 2017-021 modifying the Labor Code; Article 1 of the Trafficking in Persons Law (48; 44)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 244 of the Penal Code; Article 7 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Article 63 of the Child Protection Code (48; 49; 50)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 228 of the Penal Code; Article 1 and 7 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Article 57 of the Child Protection Code (48; 49; 50)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 193 of the Penal Code (49)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Child Protection Code; Articles 31.23 and 31.31 of the Penal Code; Article 5 of the Military General Statute (49; 50; 51)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Child Protection Code; Articles 31.23 and 31.31 of the Penal Code; Article 5 of the Military General Statute (49; 50; 52; 51)
Non-state	No	15	Articles 31.23, 31.31, and 32 of the Penal Code (49)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Articles 26 and 34 of the Law of Education (53)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 18 of the Constitution (54)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (49)

In June 2017, the government amended the Labor Code to increase the minimum age for work from 14 to 15 in compliance with international standards. (1; 44) In addition, the government amended the hazardous occupation list to expand the number of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children, including raising and herding livestock, fishing, domestic work, and market vending. (1; 47)

The Labor Code allows children between the ages of 12 and 14 to perform domestic or light seasonal work, as long as it does not impede school attendance and it does not exceed 4.5 hours of work per day. (45) However, the law does not specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken. (55; 44) In addition, Malian law does not criminalize hereditary slavery and neither prohibits using, procuring, or offering a child for the production and trafficking of drugs as established by international standards. (26; 50; 5)

The Child Protection Code provides protection for children under age 18, while the Penal Code establishes criminal penalties for several of the worst forms of child labor. (49; 50) For example, Articles 50 and 58 of the Child Protection Code identify begging as a form of economic exploitation of children, while Article 183 of the Penal Code specifies punishments for engaging a child in begging. (17) However, the Penal Code does not provide penalties for some of the prohibitions enumerated in the Child Protection Code. (49; 50) Specifically, Article 17 of the Child Protection Code prohibits children under age 18 from participating in armed conflicts or joining the armed forces, yet Articles 31.23 and 31.31 of the Penal Code provide criminal penalties only for those recruiting and enlisting children under age 15. (49; 50; 52)

The Inter-Ministerial Circular references Article 28 of the Penal Code, which states that crimes committed out of self-defense or under a force that could not be resisted should not be penalized as prescribed by the Penal Code. Although the Inter-Ministerial Circular states that Article 28 of the Penal Code is applicable to children involved in armed conflict, it does not define the age range of the children it covers. (49; 56) Considering the non-existence of criminal penalties in the Child Protection Code and the lack of criminal penalties in the Penal Code for those who recruit and enlist children ages 15 and older, the absence of a defined age range in this Inter-Ministerial Circular may leave children ages 15 to 17 unprotected. (56; 49; 49)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor's National Directorate of Labor	Enforce labor laws and investigate Labor Code infractions, including those regarding child labor. (57; 32; 58)
Ministry of Justice	Initiate and coordinate with courts the implementation of laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (57; 2)
Ministry of Internal Security's Police Brigade for the Protection of Morals and Children	Investigate crimes against children, including human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (2; 1)
Ministry for the Promotion of Women, Children, and the Family (MPFEF)	Develop and implement programs to protect vulnerable children and monitor alleged violations of child labor laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. (57; 38; 58)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Mali took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with financial and human resource allocation.

‡ Data are from January 1, 2017 to June 30, 2017.

In 2017, the National Directorate of Labor employed 70 full-time labor inspectors and 39 full-time labor controllers, of which 3 inspectors and 10 controllers are dedicated to child labor. (1) Despite increasing the number of inspectors by 9 in 2017, the number of labor inspectors remains likely insufficient for the size of Mali's workforce, which includes more than 6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Mali should employ about 157 inspectors. (11; 59; 60; 61). One labor inspector in each region is designated as the point of contact for the National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE) to facilitate regional coordination. (1) During the reporting period, the government conducted targeted inspections in high-risk child labor sectors, including in artisanal mining and agriculture. (1) However, despite these efforts and the government's move toward decentralization, funds are rarely allocated to inspectorate regional offices. (1) In addition, reports indicate that a lack of trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding hampered the Labor Inspectorate's ability to conduct adequate child labor inspections and legal proceedings, especially in remote areas of northern Mali. (32; 55; 1; 62)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mali took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with financial and human resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2017, the Ministry of Security's Morals Brigade employed 25 staff, including 8 investigators and 17 officers. The Government of Mali reported that the number of criminal law enforcement agents is inadequate given the prevalence of the worst forms of child labor in the country. (57; 1) Although the total number of investigations conducted throughout the country during the reporting period is unknown, the Morals Brigade investigated 1 case of child trafficking and 10 cases of commercial sexual exploitation. (1) In November 2017, the Morals Brigade, in collaboration with Interpol, conducted an operation in the greater Bamako area that rescued 40 child victims of forced begging and prosecuted 9 individuals associated with this crime. (63; 1; 33) In addition, the Ministry of Justice distributed 200 copies of the Trafficking in Persons Law to judges and police officers, and translated the law into 13 local languages to facilitate a number of trainings for criminal law enforcement agents. (2; 33)

Despite these efforts, there is a lack of trained staff, equipment, transportation, and funding to adequately conduct criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, particularly in remote areas. (1; 2) Reports indicate that because of political instability, which hinders labor and criminal law enforcement efforts in northern Mali, the prevalence of hereditary slavery, forced labor, and trafficking in persons has worsened since the conflict began in 2012. (32; 1; 33; 2)

An informal referral mechanism exists among NGOs, UN bodies, the police, and the government to allow withdrawal from armed conflict and provide social services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. (57; 2) During the reporting period, the government collaborated with local organizations to withdraw and provide reintegration services to 53 child victims of human trafficking, including children from Algeria, Côte d'Ivoire, Gabon, Libya, and Mali. (33) In addition, the Malian military transferred 26 children associated with armed groups to the Ministry for the Promotion of Women, Children, and the Family (MPFEF), which provided medical and psychosocial support, and reunified 21 children with their families. (1; 3) Despite these efforts, reports indicate that resources and facilities available to social services agencies are inadequate. (57; 32)

During the reporting period, the government held three children, ages 16 and 17, in adult detention centers due to their suspected involvement with armed groups. These children were not transferred to social services as required by the Inter-Ministerial Circular and the UN-signed Protocol. (56; 3; 2) In addition, research found no indication that the government either investigated or prosecuted individuals alleged to have illegally recruited and used child soldiers.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with coordination between key bodies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Unit to Fight Against Child Labor (CNLTE)	Coordinate Mali's efforts to eliminate child labor, especially its worst forms. Chaired by the Ministry of Labor and includes representatives from other government ministries, civil society, and worker and employer organizations. (26; 64; 65; 1) In 2017, received a budget of $53,957 to conduct activities, including providing assistance to Malian lawmakers to adopt the legal amendment that increased the minimum age for work to 15 and revised the Hazardous Occupations List. (1)
National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices	Coordinate government efforts to combat human trafficking. Chaired by the Ministry of Justice and includes various government agencies and civil society groups. (66; 67; 1; 2) In 2017, received its first ever budget of $381,000 to conduct training on human trafficking, fund victim services, and purchase transportation equipment. (33)
Inter-Ministerial Committee to Prevent Grave Violations Against Children	Conduct awareness-raising campaigns to prevent the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict and implement reintegration programs for former child soldiers. (68; 1) Conduct joint missions with international partners to determine the presence of children in armed conflict. (57; 68) Led by the MPFEF. In 2017, met to implement activities under the Inter-Ministerial Circular and the Protocol on the Release and Transfer of Children, including training child protection actors in northern Mali on best practices for referrals of former child soldiers. (1)
Artisanal Gold Mining Summit Committee	Comprises gold mining associations and local government officials that monitor the recommendations from a 2014 summit on artisanal mining, including the ban on child labor in artisanal gold mines. (69; 70) In 2017, facilitated efforts that contributed to the ratification of the UN Minamata Convention on Mercury, which mandates signatory parties to reduce the use of mercury for gold processing in artisanal mines and take specific measures to protect children from mercury exposure. (1; 71)

Reports indicate that there is confusion with regard to roles and a lack of coordination between the CNLTE and the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices. (66; 33; 2) In addition, despite the increased allocation of resources in 2017, the CNLTE indicated that budget constraints continue to hamper its effectiveness as a whole. (1)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with funding and implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Plan to Combat Child Labor (PANETEM) (2011–2020)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, training relevant government officials, and mobilizing funds for social programs to withdraw children from child labor. Overseen by the CNLTE. (8; 55; 70) In 2017, worked with Malian lawmakers to adopt the legal amendment that increased the minimum age for work to 15 and revise the Hazardous Occupations List. (57; 55; 72)
Roadmap to Combat Child Labor in Agriculture (2015–2020)	Seeks to enhance the legal framework and build the capacity of the government to prevent child labor in agriculture. Led by the Ministry of Agriculture and supported by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the UN. (73; 74; 75; 76) In 2017, worked to update the existing hazardous list and developed a training module for agricultural extension services to identify and combat child labor. (75; 77)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices (2015–2017)	Aims to enhance the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, adequately implement the laws, and provide effective protection and care for victims. Led by the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices. (78; 2) In 2017, organized training sessions for law enforcement agencies on human trafficking. (33)
National Policy for Promotion and Protection of Children (2015–2019)	Aims to protect children from abuse, violence, and exploitation and promotes improved access to education and livelihood services for vulnerable children, especially those affected by armed conflict. (79; 1) Overseen by the MPFEF. In 2017, conducted activities to increase birth registration and provided social services for children withdrawn from armed conflict. (1)
Inter-Ministerial Circular and the Protocol on the Release and Transfer of Children Associated with Armed Groups and Armed Forces	Provides a framework that highlights the responsibility of the government to prevent children’s involvement in armed conflict, and protect and reintegrate those children who become involved. (56; 68; 80; 1) In 2017, trained child protection actors in northern Mali on best practices for referrals of former child soldiers. (1)
National Strategic Education Sector Plan (PRODEC II) (2017–2026)	Sets out a comprehensive map to improve the quality of and access to basic and secondary education, especially in conflict-affected areas of northern Mali. Led by the Ministry of Education and supported by international donors. (57; 55; 81) In 2017, secured additional funding and technical assistance from international donors to ensure effective implementation of the plan. (82)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (83; 1; 3)

The First Lady of Mali, along with other leading figures, made a declaration in Abidjan, Côte d’Ivoire, on child protection, including child trafficking, exploitation, child labor, and all other forms of violence against children. (84; 85) The government indicated that efforts to implement the National Plan to Combat Child Labor have been slow due to insufficient allocation of resources. (1)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However gaps exist in these social programs, including with the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (2011–2017)	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries to support the priorities of the Roadmap for Achieving the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor by 2016 established by the Hague Global Child Labor Conference in 2010. (86) During 2017, conducted a study on the effectiveness of the School Speed Program on reducing child labor and supported activities under the Roadmap to Combat Child Labor in Agriculture. (75) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
South-South Cooperation for the promotion of decent work in cotton-producing countries (2015–2019)	$6.8 million Government of Brazil-funded project that aims to improve working conditions in the cotton sector, including by combating child labor. (87; 77) In 2017, facilitated exchange programs with Brazilian grower associations to combat child labor in the cotton sector. (77)

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2016–2018)	Identifies two objectives of decent work: (1) to create jobs and guarantee rights at work for vulnerable populations, and (2) extend social protection and promote social dialogue. (70) Includes activities that support the implementation of PANETEM. Overseen by the Ministry of Labor and supported by the ILO. (70) In June 2017, organized a workshop on leveraging global supply chains for sustainable development and decent work for government officials, employers' organizations, and workers' organizations.
USAID Country Program (2016–2020)	$600 million USAID-funded program that supports the government's efforts to improve education, food security, and health; and to provide humanitarian assistance in crisis areas. In 2017, provided quality basic and secondary education to vulnerable communities in northern Mali, including by re-opening schools, training teachers, and providing school kits for students. (88; 1)
UNICEF Country Program (2014–2017)	UNICEF-funded program that supports the government's efforts to improve education, birth registration rates, social inclusion, and strengthen child protection programs, including for children in conflict-affected areas of northern Mali. (89) In 2017, provided reintegration services to 2,436 children at risk of exploitation, including those formerly associated with armed groups, and education services to 157,873 children in crisis-affected areas. (89; 90; 43; 1)
National Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Program	$25 million UN Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA)-implemented program that aims to provide reintegration services to former combatants in Mali, including children. (91; 1; 34) In 2017, built eight sites in Tombouctou, Gao, Kidal, and Menaka that will provide reintegration services to former combatants, including children, in Mali. (1)
Combating Descent-Based Slavery Program	USDOS-funded program implemented by the American Bar Association to combat hereditary slavery and forced child labor in Mali. In 2017, trained paralegals on laws related to slavery and child labor and best practices on victim referrals to social and economic services. (6; 92)
Global Action Against Trafficking in Persons and the Smuggling of Migrants (GLO ACT)*	$13 million EU-funded global project implemented by the UNODC, UNICEF, and the IOM to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. In 2017, conducted training for justice enforcement officials on best practices to identify human trafficking victims and prosecute crimes related to human trafficking. (93; 94)

Although Mali participates in some programs to reduce the worst forms of child labor, these programs are insufficient to fully address the scope of the problem, especially in artisanal gold mining, slavery, or debt bondage. (1) In addition, Mali does not fund or participate in programs to address child labor in domestic work, fishing, forced begging, and commercial sexual exploitation. During the IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor that took place in Argentina in November 2017, the Government of Mali pledged to establish and expand social programs to combat child labor in artisanal gold mining, hazardous agriculture, and the use of children in armed conflict. (99)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mali (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Criminally prohibit the use, procurement, or offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the Labor Code specifies the conditions under which light work may be undertaken to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit hereditary slavery.	2017
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under 18 into non-state armed groups and in any armed conflict, and ensure that the specific ages of children protected by the Inter-Ministerial Circular on the Prevention, Protection, and Reintegration of Children in Armed Conflict comply with international standards.	2013 – 2017
	Enact laws to provide penalties for violations of the worst forms of child labor, including the use of children under age 18 in armed conflict.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish complete information on the type of labor inspections, violations, and penalties related to child labor, and the number of criminal law investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the resources, training, and number of labor inspectors in accordance with ILO's technical advice, and the number of criminal investigators and regional offices responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2012 – 2017
	Take measures to adequately enforce laws related to child labor, particularly in northern Mali, and increase efforts to ensure that perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor, including the use of child soldiers, and hereditary slavery are prosecuted in accordance with the law.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that government social services have sufficient resources and facilities to provide the necessary care for victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Implement the provisions of the Inter-Ministerial Circular and the UN-signed Protocol, which require that children in detention for their association with armed groups be transferred to social services or to UN child protection actors for appropriate reintegration and social protection services.	2013 – 2017
Coordination	Streamline coordination across government agencies, including by ensuring effective coordination among the CNLTE, the National Coordinating Committee for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Associated Practices, and other relevant agencies.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that the CNLTE has sufficient resources to coordinate efforts to address child labor.	2012 – 2017
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Plan to Combat Child Labor is implemented, including by allocating sufficient financial and human resources.	2012 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including girls and those living in conflict-affected areas, by removing supply and school-related fees, increasing school infrastructure, teacher availability, the provision of school supplies, and taking measures to ensure the safety of children and teachers in schools.	2010 – 2017
	Increase birth registration rates to ensure that children have access to social services, including education.	2010 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to fully address child labor, especially in artisanal gold mining, slavery, and debt bondage.	2014 – 2017
	Institute new programs to address child labor in domestic work, fishing, forced begging, commercial sexual exploitation, slavery, and debt bondage.	2009 – 2017

In 2017, Mauritania made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, the Government of Mauritania drafted a new General Child Protection Code that will expand the number of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children and increase the penalties to deter violators of child labor laws. The government also continued to fund and participate in multiple programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including by expanding a cash transfer program to assist 38,000 vulnerable households and participating in a new program that aims to improve enforcement of child labor laws. Despite these initiatives, Mauritania is receiving this assessment because it implemented a new practice and continued to implement a policy that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, criminal law enforcement authorities did not make adequate efforts to combat slavery and its vestiges. Specifically, the government did not adequately prosecute or secure convictions in slavery cases, and reports continue to indicate that some government actors, including police and judicial authorities, are unwilling to pursue such cases. In addition, since 2011, the Government of Mauritania has required proof of marriage and biological parents' citizenship for children to obtain a birth certificate. As a result, children born out of wedlock and many Haratine and sub-Saharan ethnic minority children, including those of slave descent, have been prevented from being registered at birth. Because birth certificates are required for enrollment in secondary school in Mauritania, children as young as age 12 cannot access education, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Mauritania engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in indentured and hereditary slavery, and in agriculture. The government did not make adequate efforts to enforce some laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including on hereditary slavery and forced begging, and to raise awareness of laws that prohibit slavery. Financial resource constraints severely limited the relevant government agencies' ability to fully implement its policies and social programs to combat the worst forms of child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mauritania engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in indentured and hereditary slavery. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, particularly in herding cattle and goats. (7; 1; 8; 9) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mauritania.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	12.5 (131,552)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	53.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	8.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		59.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (10)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4 (MICS 4), 2011. (11)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding and caring for cattle, camels, goats, and sheep (7; 1; 8; 9; 12; 13; 6)
	Fishing, catching shrimp and fish (1; 8; 9; 12; 13)
Industry	Crushing gravel (14; 13)
Services	Domestic work† (7; 1; 8; 9; 15; 16)
	Working as car mechanics, painters, and carpenters (1; 8; 9; 12)
	Garbage scavenging (1; 9; 12)
	Street work, including vending, shoe shinning, begging,† and in the transportation sector (1; 8; 9; 12; 13)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging as a result of criminal gang recruitment and coercion by Koranic teachers (1; 8; 16; 17; 2)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9; 15; 2)
	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (9; 12; 2)
	Indentured and hereditary slavery (1; 15; 18; 19; 3; 4; 20; 5; 6)
	Forced labor in domestic work and as camel jockeys, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8; 21; 12; 5; 2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Mauritania, especially from the Haratine ethnic minority, continue to be exploited as slaves and endure slave-like practices, particularly in rural and remote areas of the country. Some children are born into slavery, while others born free but remain in a dependent status and are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. (9; 18; 22; 23; 18; 20; 5; 2; 8) Child slaves herd animals, such as cattle and goats; perform domestic labor; and are often sexually exploited. (14; 15; 2; 5; 24)

In Mauritania, it is a traditional practice to send children to Koranic teachers to receive an education. However, some Koranic teachers (marabouts) force their students (talibés) to beg on the streets for long hours and to surrender the money they have earned. (7; 8; 9; 17; 2)

Since 2011, the Government of Mauritania has required proof of marriage and biological parents’ citizenship to obtain a birth certificate. (25; 26) As a result, children born out of wedlock and many Haratine and sub-Saharan ethnic minority children, including from families of slave descent, have been prevented from being registered at birth. Because birth certificates are required to enroll in secondary school in Mauritania, many children as young as age 12 could not access education, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (9; 17; 22; 23; 27; 12; 28; 6; 26) In addition, the lack of school infrastructure and limited availability of teachers, especially in rural areas, impede access to education, which may increase children’s vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor. (18; 29; 30; 31) Children from families of slave descent, especially from the Haratine ethnic minority, also face barriers to accessing education due to ethnic discrimination. (7; 32; 22; 20; 6)

In 2017, Mauritania hosted approximately 50,000 Malian refugees. (33) Refugee children may have difficulty accessing education, which makes them particularly vulnerable to engaging in the worst forms of child labor, including being recruited by non-state armed groups. (34; 12; 2; 28; 33)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mauritania has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mauritania's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation

* No conscription (42)

In December 2017, the government drafted a new General Child Protection Code, a step to bringing Mauritanian law into compliance with the UN CRC and international labor standards. (45; 12) The draft Code aims to set the minimum age for work at 16 and prohibit employment of children under age 18 in hazardous activities, including work that exposes children to physical, psychological, or sexual abuse; work with dangerous machinery, equipment, and tools; and work in unhealthy environments, which may expose children to hazardous substances or temperatures. The draft Code will increase the penalties associated with violations of child labor laws up to $4,200, and criminalize commercial sexual exploitation of children. (46; 12; 45) However, the Code was not adopted during the reporting period. (47; 48)

The Labor Code allows children between ages 12 and 14 to perform light work, as long as it does not impede their school attendance, exceed 2 hours of work per day, and is authorized by the Ministry of Labor. (35) However, the Labor Code does not specify the activities in which light work may be permitted. (49) In addition, the country has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (14; 32; 49)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor's Directorate of Labor and Inspection	Enforce labor laws and investigate Labor Code infractions, including violations related to minimum wage and hazardous work. (32; 16; 50)
Ministry of the Interior's Special Brigade for Minors	Investigate crimes against children, including human trafficking, and monitor religious schools ( mahadras ) to ensure that children are not forced to beg on behalf of their teachers. Mainly operates in Nouakchott. (9; 32; 16; 51; 52)
Ministry of Social Affairs, Childhood, and the Family (MASEF) Office of Childhood	Develop and implement programs to protect vulnerable children and monitor alleged violations of child labor laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Manage the Centers for the Protection and Social Integration of Children. (9; 16; 50) In 2017, the MASEF received an operating budget of $582,000. (12)
Ministry of Justice's Directorate of the Judiciary for the Protection of Children	Coordinate child protection issues and oversee the Special Brigade for Minors and tribunals that sentence child offenders. (14; 16; 51)
National Commission for Human Rights (CNDH)	Advocate for the eradication of slavery, receive human rights complaints, and conduct investigations on human rights violations, including the worst forms of child labor. Independent ombudsman body. (9; 16; 53; 50; 32)
Commissariat on Human Rights and Humanitarian Action (CDHAH)	Coordinate the development and implementation of government policies related to human rights, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. Carry out awareness-raising campaigns to combat slavery and human trafficking. Semi-autonomous body, under the supervision of the Office of the Prime Minister. (50; 54; 32)
National Agency to Fight Against the Vestiges of Slavery, Integration, and Fight Against Poverty ( Tadamoun )	Develop and implement programs to tackle poverty, promote the integration of refugees, and rehabilitate former slaves. (55; 56; 18; 50; 57) File complaints on behalf of citizens who accuse their employers of practicing slavery, and bring cases of alleged slavery to the authorities for investigation. (53; 4; 2; 58)
Anti-Slavery Courts	Prosecute crimes related to slavery and provide free legal assistance to victims, including children. The three regional courts located in Nema, Nouakchott, and Nouadhibou were created under the Roadmap and Action Plan for the Eradication of the Vestiges of Slavery. (59; 2; 60; 61)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Mauritania took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

In 2017, the Ministry of Labor employed 86 full-time labor inspectors and 20 full-time labor controllers, who enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor, in 13 regional offices. However, reports indicate that the Ministry of Labor lacked equipment, training, transportation, and funding to conduct child labor inspections, especially in remote locations and in the informal sector, which employs more than 40 percent of the workforce. (16; 31; 66; 12; 67; 50; 52; 68; 48) In addition, the penalties established for violating child labor laws are insufficient and do not generally deter violations. (14; 32)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mauritania took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigating and prosecuting criminal cases related to hereditary slavery and forced child begging.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017

Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (64)	Yes (12)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (63)	Yes (12)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (69)	Yes (12)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (14)	Unknown (12)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (14)	Unknown (12)

During the reporting period, the Special Brigade for Minors employed 30 officers and received training on laws related to the worst forms of child labor, including trafficking in persons. (52; 12) In November 2017, the Mauritanian police, in collaboration with Interpol, conducted an operation in Nouakchott that rescued 42 child victims of forced begging and arrested the Koranic teachers (marabouts) associated with this crime. (70; 71; 72) Despite this effort, the Prosecutor of the District Court of Nouakchott West did not press charges against the marabouts for this crime, and instead entered into an agreement to return the children to their marabouts with the condition of ensuring their health and safety and keeping the children from begging in the streets. However, evidence suggests that these children are reportedly once again begging on the streets despite the signed agreement between the marabouts and the prosecutor. (70)

Efforts made by criminal law enforcement authorities to combat the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary slavery, remained inadequate given the magnitude of the problem. (2) In 2017, the Special Brigade for Minors investigated 406 cases of child exploitation, 274 of which were referred to the Ministry of Justice for trial. However, research could not determine how many of these cases involved child labor, led to convictions, or whether the victims were removed from their exploitative situations and provided with social services. (52) In addition, although the police identified more than 600 cases of child slavery and forced begging in 2016, it is unclear whether the government investigated these cases or assisted victims. (2) As of the end of the reporting period, there were a total of 58 slavery cases in the Mauritanian judicial system, some of which were submitted by civil society in 2016. (2; 73) The Ministry of Justice transferred 13 of these cases to the Anti-Slavery Courts; however, the status of the 45 remaining cases is unknown. (73; 74)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT—EFFORTS MADE BUT REGRESSION IN PRACTICE AND CONTINUED POLICY THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In March 2018, the Anti-Slavery Court of Nouadhibou secured two separate convictions for slavery crimes, including child slavery. In one case, two offenders were sentenced to 20 years imprisonment and ordered to pay restitution of about $14,500 to the victims; however, neither of the offenders has been imprisoned—one died prior to the conviction date and the other fled prosecution prior to the trial and was tried in absentia. (47) In the second case, one individual was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment and ordered to pay restitution to the victims of about $7,000; however, the offender, alleging health concerns, was granted a compassionate provisional release from imprisonment on June 2018. (75; 76; 47; 77) In addition, during the reporting period, the Ministry of Justice issued three decrees establishing procedural protocols to improve and expedite the investigative and prosecutorial efforts on criminal cases related to hereditary slavery. (78; 79)

Research could not determine whether the National Agency to Fight Against the Vestiges of Slavery, Integration, and Fight Against Poverty (Tadamoun) submitted new complaints of slavery on behalf of victims during 2017, although it remained a civil party to 13 slavery cases. (80; 74; 81) According to the 2015 anti-slavery law, other than Tadamoun, the only other entities that can file criminal cases on behalf of former slaves are legally registered human rights associations that have been operating for 5 years. The government continued to prevent the registration of some anti-slavery organizations and associations that work for the promotion and protection of human rights of the Haratine ethnic minority and former slave groups that would have been able to submit complaints once their five year wait had passed. (82; 83; 84). Additionally, two laws adopted by the National Assembly and pending signature of the President have drawn widespread concern in the international community. If enacted, the anti-discrimination law and the law on apostasy-related crimes may be used to retaliate against anti-slavery organizations and restrict their ability to function, negatively affecting their ability to file criminal cases or advocate for the end of slavery (85; 86; 87; 88; 82; 83; 89)

Although the government has released 11 of the 13 members of the Initiative for the Resurgence of the Abolitionist Movement (IRA) who were arrested in June 2016 for their alleged participation in a Nouakchott riot and membership in the unregistered organization, 2 remain in prison. Some of the freed IRA members claimed that they were tortured while they were in police custody. (2; 84) The government's continued imprisonment of the remaining two IRA members may limit its ability to address this issue comprehensively. (66; 5; 90)

In a 2017 decision, the African Union's Committee of Experts on the Rights and Welfare of the Child stated that the government failed to enforce its prohibition on slavery and slavery-like practices for the two cases of child slavery that were submitted to the Court for review in 2015. (6) Evidence suggests that some police, prosecutors, and judges do not investigate cases of slavery once complaints are received, and additionally that the government has prosecuted cases for lesser offenses to avoid bringing a slavery case to trial, in part due to misunderstanding of the 2015 Anti-Slavery Law or allegations of corruption. (2; 69) Enforcement authorities, including the Anti-Slavery Courts, lack personnel, funding, and training to adequately coordinate and enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (59; 66; 12; 2; 5; 61; 91; 6)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor. (Table 8)

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Inter-ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights	Coordinate and monitor government efforts to promote human rights in Mauritania, including those related to the UN CRC. Led by the Office of the Prime Minister and includes representatives from the Tadamoun , the CNDH, and other ministries. (92; 50; 4; 93) In 2017, collaborated with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to start the process to evaluate the implementation of the Roadmap and Action Plan for the Eradication of the Vestiges of Slavery. (50; 3; 94)

Research suggests that the lack of inclusion of relevant civil society groups, including worker and employer organizations, hampers the effectiveness of the Inter-ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights' ability to carry out efforts to promote human rights, including combating slavery and its vestiges. (50; 3; 59)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation of key policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor (PANETE-RIM) (2015–2020)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by strengthening child labor laws, training relevant government officials, implementing awareness-raising campaigns, and mobilizing funds for social programs to withdraw children from child labor. Overseen by the Ministry of Labor. (1; 8; 12; 50) In 2017, with the assistance of the ILO, organized workshops and awareness-raising campaigns to build the capacity of relevant government and non-governmental actors to combat child labor. (95; 96; 12)
Roadmap and Action Plan for the Eradication of the Vestiges of Slavery (2014–2017)	Aimed to combat slavery and its vestiges by revising slavery laws and policies, strengthening enforcement bodies, conducting awareness-raising campaigns, and implementing programs that provide former slaves with access to education and livelihood opportunities. Overseen by the Inter-ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights. (29; 93; 97; 3; 4) In 2017, organized workshops to start the process of developing a monitoring and evaluation framework to assess the effectiveness of the Roadmap and identify new areas for intervention. (94)
United Nations Development Assistance Framework (2012–2017)	Promoted improved access to education for vulnerable children and aimed to build the capacity of the government to address child labor. Overseen by the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Development. (31; 98) In 2017, started the planning process to adopt a new 4-year framework. (98)
Strategy for Accelerated Growth and Sustainable Development (2017–2030)†	Aims to reduce poverty, promote sustainable development, and increase access to fundamental social services. Overseen by the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Development. (99; 100) Integrates strategies to increase birth registration and access to compulsory education, strengthen social protection systems for children, and support efforts to combat slavery, including its vestiges. (99)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The First Lady of Mauritania, along with other leading figures, made a declaration in Abidjan, Côte d'Ivoire, on child protection, including child trafficking, exploitation, child labor, and all other forms of violence against children. (101; 102)

Although the government drafted a new National Child Protection Strategy in 2017, it was not approved by the end of the reporting period. (103) In addition, the government did not officially adopt the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons that was drafted in 2015. (104; 2; 94) Reports indicate that efforts to implement most of the key policies related to child labor, particularly the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor, have been slowed due to insufficient allocation of resources. (9; 29; 66; 12; 62)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (2015–2019)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at combating the forced labor of adults and children under the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting the Recommendation to C. 29 on Forced Labor. (105; 106) In 2017, conducted workshops with government officials and journalists to raise awareness of forced labor and slavery-like practices. (94) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Technical Support on Social Dialogue and Labor Administration (2017–2018)*	$328,000 ILO-funded project to build the capacity of the Ministry of Labor to improve enforcement of labor laws, including those related to child labor. In 2017, conducted a workshop on combating child labor for law enforcement agencies in Nouadhibou, Kiffa, and Rosso, and launched a website to raise awareness of child labor in Mauritania. (107)
Cash Transfer Tekavoul (2015–2020)	$29 million Tadamoun program, supported by the World Bank, that provides cash assistance to families with school-age children, conditioned on children's school attendance. (108) In 2017, expanded the program to new geographic areas that will benefit 38,000 households. (18; 109; 58)

Program	Description
Program to Eradicate the Effects of Slavery†	Government program that supports the reintegration and rehabilitation of former slaves. In 2017, built schools and implemented income-generating activities for at-risk youth from slave descent. (58; 2)
Centers for the Protection and Social Integration of Children†	MASEF-operated program that provides food, shelter, education, and vocational training to vulnerable children, many of whom are talibés . Operates in Aleg, Kaedi, Kiffa, Nouadhibou, Rosso, and Nouakchott. (9; 16; 31) In 2017, the government provided a budget of $100,000 to manage the centers, which allowed them to provide services to 305 children. (9; 16; 31; 2; 80)
Access to Justice and Human Rights Program	USDOS- and USAID-funded program implemented by the American Bar Association to promote the social and political rights of marginalized groups, including former and current child victims of slavery. In 2017, trained community-based paralegals on how to help undocumented individuals obtain identity documents, including birth certificates. (110; 111; 80)
Countering Trafficking in Persons (2015–2017)	$425,000 Government of Germany-funded, 2-year project implemented by IOM to raise awareness of human trafficking among vulnerable communities and build the capacity of government actors to enforce laws related to trafficking in persons. In 2017, conducted awareness-raising activities on child trafficking. (112; 113)
Decent Work for Migrant Youth in the Fishing Sector (2017–2019)*	$17 million ILO- and Government of Germany-funded, 2-year project that aims to promote decent work among migrant youth working in the artisanal fishing sector in Mauritania. Aims to reach at least 9,000 recipients by the second year of the project and conduct an analysis of child labor in the fishing sector. (114; 115)
UNICEF Country Program (2012–2017)	$13.3 million UNICEF-funded program that supported the government's efforts to improve education, birth registration rates, social inclusion, and protection for children, including refugees. In 2017, provided access to education for 5,800 children and reached 1,000 children living in the Mberra refugee camp. (14; 116; 117)
Basic Education Sector Support Project (2014–2017)	$12.4 million World Bank-funded project that aimed to increase access to quality basic and secondary education, particularly for girls. In 2017, built and furnished 13 middle schools in remote areas and conducted awareness-raising campaigns to promote girls' education in six regional departments. (118; 119)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mauritania.

Although Mauritania has social programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially in agriculture, herding, and domestic work, and for children in hereditary and indentured slavery. (14; 63; 50) Moreover, some government officials do not acknowledge that slavery continues to exist. (23; 66; 3; 5; 50) In addition, the lack of recent data on slavery limits the government's ability to develop effective social programs to comprehensively address this issue. Existing social programs for former slaves and awareness of the national laws on slavery are insufficient. (7; 23; 4; 3)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mauritania (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law's provisions on light work are specific enough to prevent children from being involved in child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Increase the personnel, training, and resources for labor and criminal law enforcement agencies, including the Anti-Slavery Courts, to adequately enforce child labor laws, especially in remote areas and in the informal sector.	2010 – 2017
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by initiating routine and targeted inspections, rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received.	2014 – 2017
	Increase efforts to ensure that cases of the worst forms of child labor, including forced begging and hereditary slavery, are investigated and prosecuted in accordance with the law.	2016 – 2017
	Publish information on the number of labor inspections, child labor law violations, and penalties assessed, and the number of criminal investigations, violations found, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Legally recognize civil society organizations that work to protect the human rights of the Haratine ethnic minority and former slave groups, in particular those that assist victims of slavery in filing cases, register births, and ensure access to education, and ensure that pending legislation is not used to impair their ability to function.	2017
	Ensure that Tadamoun pursues its mandate to submit complaints of slavery on behalf of victims.	2017
	Hold government officials accountable for alleged corruption and mishandling of legal cases related to crimes on the worst forms of child labor, including on forced begging and slavery offenses.	2017
	Take steps to ensure the safety of anti-slavery activists, as well as their rights of freedom of expression and peaceful assembly.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that penalties are high enough to deter violators of child labor laws.	2015 – 2017
Coordination	Establish a coordinating mechanism to combat child labor.	2017
	Ensure that relevant civil society organizations are included in the Inter-ministerial Technical Committee on Human Rights.	2017
Government Policies	Ensure that key policies related to child labor, particularly the PANETE-RIM, receive sufficient funds for effective implementation.	2016 – 2017
	Approve the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons.	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including those from families of slave descent and refugees, by increasing school infrastructure and teacher availability, especially in rural areas.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that all children are able to obtain birth certificates to increase their access to secondary education and reduce their vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Expand the scope of programs to address child labor, including in agriculture, herding, and domestic work, and the worst forms of child labor, including hereditary and indentured slavery.	2009 – 2017
	Implement a continuous awareness-raising program for government officials on the laws related to slavery and the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2017
	Conduct research and collect data on slavery to develop effective policies and programs that identify and protect children who are at risk.	2010 – 2017
	Increase funding for social programs that provide services to former slaves.	2015 – 2017

In 2017, Mauritius made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government established a mechanism to coordinate child labor efforts, obtained its first prosecution for child trafficking under the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act, and established a hotline to report cases of child labor. The government also established a mutual assistance agreement to improve services provided to victims of the worst forms of child labor; moved the national exam to graduate primary education from the sixth grade to the ninth grade to increase enrollment, and continued to fund programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. However, children in Mauritius engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. The government lacks a national policy to address all relevant worst forms of child labor, and social programs to combat child labor are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

Agalega Islands, Cargados Carajos Shoals, and Rodrigues are not shown.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mauritius engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1; 3; 4; 6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mauritius. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		101.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (7)
Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Producing and harvesting vegetables (1; 3; 4)
	Feeding livestock (6)
	Fishing, including diving, and casting nets and traps (9; 4)
Industry	Working in factories and masonry (10)
Services	Domestic work (1; 4)
	Working in apparel shops and restaurants (4)
	Street work, including vending, begging, and carrying goods in public markets (1; 3; 4; 11; 12)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 3; 4; 5)
	Use in illicit activities, including selling drugs (4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Some children in Mauritius are lured into commercial sexual exploitation by their peers or family members, or through false offers of other employment. (10; 5; 1) Mauritius has never conducted a national child labor survey, and therefore information on the prevalence of child labor in the country is limited. (4)

Mauritius

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Evidence suggests that incidents of physical and psychological abuse, including corporal punishment of students by teachers, prevent some children from attending school, which increases their risk of engaging in the worst forms of child labor. Because of discrimination, children with disabilities face serious barriers in accessing education. (1; 2; 13; 14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mauritius has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mauritius' legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including with the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Sections 6 and 12 of the Employment Rights Act (15)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 12 of the Employment Rights Act (15)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 8 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (16)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 6 of the Constitution; Article 2 of the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act (17; 18)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 11 of the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act; Article 13A of the Child Protection Act (18; 19)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 14 of the Child Protection Act; Article 253 of the Criminal Code (19; 20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 30.1b-e, 38a, 41.1f, and 41.2 of the Dangerous Drugs Act (21)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	N/A†
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 37.2 of the Education Act (22)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 35 of the Education Act (22)

* No conscription (23)

† No standing military (23)

During the reporting period, the government continued to draft a comprehensive bill aiming to harmonize the existing legal framework related to children's rights and strengthen legal provisions for child protection. (24; 4; 11)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations, Employment, and Training (MOLIRE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations, Employment, and Training (MOLIRE)	Enforce all labor laws, including those related to child labor. (25; 4)
Office of the Ombudsperson for Children	Investigate any suspected or reported case of child labor or violation of a child's rights. Propose laws and policies to advance children's rights. (2; 26; 27; 4)
Police Brigade for the Protection of Minors (Minors' Brigade)	Investigate crimes related to the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (2; 24; 4) Maintain a database of all trafficking incidents involving children and refer all cases of commercial sexual exploitation to the Child Development Unit. (28)
Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions	Undertake criminal proceedings on laws related to the worst forms of child labor, in coordination with the Minors' Brigade and the judicial courts. (29; 30)
Ministry of Gender Equality, Child Development and Family Welfare's (MOGE) Child Development Unit	Enforce legislation related to children and implement policies and social programs related to child development. Provide social services to victims of the worst forms of child labor, including human trafficking. (31; 32; 4; 33)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Mauritius took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of MOLIRE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$1.2 million (34)	$1.5 million (4)
Number of Labor Inspectors	85 (35)	95 (4)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mauritius took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with insufficient resource allocation.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (34)	Yes (4)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (34)	N/A (4)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (34)	Yes (4)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (34)	4 (37)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (34)	4 (37)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (34)	6 (38)
Number of Convictions	0 (34)	3 (37)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (34; 10)	Yes (4)

In 2017, the Minors' Brigade maintained a staff of 54 agents who are distributed in five geographic police divisions. (39) During 2017, the first prosecution for child trafficking under the Combating Trafficking in Persons Act took place and was transferred to the court system, with a final resolution in March 2018 that resulted in a conviction with a 3-year imprisonment sentence. (38) Research indicates that the police were investigating 11 human trafficking cases by the end of the reporting period, although it is unknown how many of these cases involved children. (29) Research revealed that criminal law enforcement agencies lacked staff, transportation, and other resources to properly enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (25; 40) In addition, reports indicate that coordination between the police and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions has been limited, mainly due to a lack of training and insufficient case tracking, which hinders efforts to investigate and prosecute child trafficking cases. The government participated in a conference on human trafficking in November 2017 to address such gaps. (29; 38)

During 2017, MOGE's Child Development Unit established a mutual assistance agreement to improve the referral process with the Minors' Brigade to improve services to victims of the worst forms of child labor. (4; 38)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with coordination among key mechanisms.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Coordinating Committee on Child Labor*	Elaborate policies, approve programs, and coordinate, monitor, and evaluate efforts to combat child labor in Mauritius. Chaired by the MOLIRE, comprises representatives from the Ministry of Education, the Minors' Brigade, the Office of the Ombudsperson for Children, and local and international organizations. (4; 41)
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Human Trafficking	Coordinate anti-trafficking efforts in Mauritius. Chaired by the Attorney General's Office comprises representatives from the MOLIRE, the MOGE, and other ministries. (35; 42; 5) In 2017, organized a workshop for government officials and civil society groups on the legal framework to combat human trafficking. (43)
National Child Protection Committee (NCPC)	Coordinate and implement activities on children's rights, including efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. Chaired by the MOGE, and also known as the High Powered and Working Together Committee. (31; 4; 33)
National Children's Council (NCC)	Under the auspices of the MOGE, coordinate child protection efforts in Mauritius as an independent, para-governmental entity. (2; 25; 4) In 2017, organized awareness-raising campaigns on child protection and human trafficking. (4; 29)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

In 2017, a lack of coordination among key mechanisms hindered the government's efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor. (4; 5) In addition, the National Child Protection Committee was inactive during the reporting period. (4)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with the coverage of all the worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Safety Online Action Plan	Aims to prevent online sexual exploitation of children by strengthening the legal framework and developing awareness-raising programs. Implemented by the Ministry of Information and Communication Technology, in conjunction with the MOGE, the Minors' Brigade, and the Office of the Ombudsperson for Children. (2; 44; 45) In 2017, organized workshops to raise awareness on social media and commercial sexual exploitation. (4)
Education and Human Resources Strategy Plan (2008–2020)	Aims to improve equity of access to primary, secondary, and technical and vocational education, and to provide social services for youth. Overseen by the Ministry of Education. (46; 47) In 2017, took a step to increase school enrollment and decrease truancy by changing the timing of the national examination for primary education completion from the sixth grade to the ninth grade. (4)
Government Development Program—Achieving Meaningful Change (2015–2019)	Aims to increase access to social protection services for vulnerable populations, including children, and emphasizes a zero tolerance policy for the use of children in drug trafficking. (48; 49; 50) In 2017, established a partnership with the World Bank to provide funding for the implementation of the policy. (51)

Research found no evidence of policies to combat other worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation. In addition, the government did not adopt the National Plan to Combat Human Trafficking that was drafted in 2016. (32; 42; 4; 52; 39)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Awareness-Raising Programs on Commercial Sexual Exploitation and Human Trafficking†	Educate the public on preventing commercial sexual exploitation of children and human trafficking. (5) In 2017, the police conducted awareness programs for 1,646 students in 96 primary and secondary schools. (4)
Community Child Protection Program†	Support child protection activities nationwide. In 2017, created School Child Protection Clubs in 22 schools throughout the country to raise awareness about child exploitation. (33; 4)
Drop-in Centers, Shelters, and Institutional Care†	Provide rehabilitation services to victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. Monitored by the Child Development Unit. (2; 24; 29; 33) In 2017, provided reintegration services to over 500 child victims. (4)
IOM Country Program	IOM program to build capacity of relevant government agencies to protect children from exploitation and human trafficking. (32; 53)
Education Assistance Programs†	Increase access to quality primary education for vulnerable children, including the Eradication of Absolute Poverty Program to provide educational support to 7,500 households in 229 geographic pockets of poverty and in the Education Priority Zones to provide equal opportunities to primary school children throughout the country. (2; 47)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mauritius.

Although the government has established an oversight body to improve the effectiveness of institutional care facilities and shelters, evidence suggests that there continues to be a lack of appropriate standards of care, inadequate service provision, and overcrowding in some centers that house orphans, child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, and victims of other types of abuses. (34; 27; 54; 29; 5; 38)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mauritius (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by authorizing inspectors to assess penalties.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the amount of training, human resources, and funding for agencies responsible for enforcing criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2017
	Improve coordination between the police and the Director of Public Prosecutions to ensure that violations are adequately and prosecuted.	2017
Coordination	Streamline coordination between key mechanisms to combat the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that the National Child Protection Committee is active and fulfills its mission.	2017
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses the worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation.	2014 – 2017
	Adopt the draft National Plan to Combat Human Trafficking.	2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the prevalence of child labor in Mauritius to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that all children, including those with disabilities, can attend school without fear of physical or psychological abuse.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that victims of commercial sexual exploitation have access to comprehensive and quality social services.	2010 – 2017

Moldova

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Moldova made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed Law No. 137, which allows child victims of forced labor to receive financial compensation for damages caused to them. An investigative and prosecution unit within the Specialized Prosecution Office for Organized Crime and Special Cases was established, which includes formally designated trafficking in persons prosecutors. The government also expanded and increased funding for social services for children, including reopening the National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons shelter. However, children in Moldova engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Funding for the State Labor Inspectorate was not sufficient, and the inspectorate can conduct unannounced inspections only in very limited circumstances. Furthermore, the judicial system failed to ensure that perpetrators of crimes related to the worst forms of child labor were properly convicted and sentenced according to the law.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Moldova engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Moldova.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	24.3 (102,105)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	92.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	29.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		90.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (6)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Labour Force Survey-Child Labour Survey, 2009. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Agriculture,† including growing crops and raising farm animals (1; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13)
	Forestry, including transporting heavy loads (13)
	Fishing, including feeding fish (13)
Industry	Construction,† including carrying heavy loads and welding† (1; 14; 8; 9; 13)
	Working in the garment sector (13)
	Baking,† including confectionary and food preservation (13)
Services	Street work, including begging (8; 15; 16; 5)
	Domestic work (8; 15; 13)
	Working in wholesale, retail, restaurants, and transportation (14; 8; 9; 12; 13)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (17; 1; 3; 4; 8; 18; 13; 5)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Lack of information limits an assessment of the types of work that children perform and the sectors in which they work, including for the secessionist region of Transnistria. (1; 3; 8; 18; 13)

Both boys and girls are recruited for commercial sexual exploitation. (3; 4; 13; 5; 19) Traffickers recruited children as young as age 10 for prostitution and other forms of commercial sexual exploitation. (5) Moldova is also a destination for child sex tourism. (3; 4; 8; 9; 18; 13; 19) Sex tourists continue to target orphanages by bribing orphanage administration officials to obtain unsupervised access to children. (2)

Child trafficking, particularly of children suffering from familial neglect, continues to be a concern in Moldova. (3; 10; 20; 21; 13) The number of children left behind by migrant parents is increasing and these children may be particularly vulnerable to child labor and human trafficking, especially those who are in orphanages or boarding schools. (3; 15; 22; 23; 5; 24) Vulnerable children from Transnistria were at an increased risk of being trafficked through Ukraine’s Odessa region. (3; 25)

Although the Education Code provides for free and compulsory education until age 18, sometimes parents are asked to pay informal fees for supplies and gifts to teachers. (8; 26; 16) Children, especially Roma, who lack identity documents, may face increased vulnerability to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including forced begging. (15; 26; 27; 5; 19) Access to education by some Roma children may be challenging due to textbook costs, the lack of identity documents, and discrimination by school officials and other non-Roma students. (3; 15; 23; 28; 29; 19)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Moldova has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 46 of the Labor Code (30)

Non-state	Yes		Article 26 of the Law on the Rights of the Child; Article 206(d) of the Criminal Code (34; 36)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 13 and 152 of the Education Code of 2014 (40)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 35 of the Constitution; Article 9 of the Education Code of 2014 (33; 40)

Starting in 2018, under Law No. 137, child victims of forced labor will begin to receive financial compensation granted from the government for the damage caused to them. (13; 41)

Although Article 13 of the Education Code of 2010 states that education is compulsory until age 18, this provision did not enter into force until 2018. (9; 42; 40)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection's State Labor Inspectorate (SLI)	Enforce all labor laws, including child labor laws. (13) Manage the National Referral System to Protect and Assist Victims and Potential Victims of Trafficking in Human Beings (NRS), which has been implemented in all of Moldova's regions; each regional coordinator works directly with law enforcement, NGOs, and schools, and leads victim rehabilitation efforts. (3) Build the capacity of multidisciplinary teams at the local level, which includes community social assistants, police officers, and NGO workers to improve victim identification and referral for crisis intervention and rehabilitation. (43) Through the National Coordination Unit and Child Labor Monitoring Unit (CLMU), coordinate activities related to the protection of victims and those vulnerable to human trafficking. In 2017, the CLMU had one inspector. (13; 42)
National Public Health Agency	Enforce all laws related to occupational safety and health, including hazardous work of children. (13)
Center for Combating Trafficking in Persons (CCTIP)	Lead criminal investigations and arrest perpetrators, including for the trafficking of children for both labor and sexual exploitation. Subdivision of the Ministry of the Interior with 11 criminal investigators. (8; 13)
Security and Intelligence Service	Enforce criminal laws against child trafficking and sexual exploitation through cooperation and information exchange with CCTIP, the Border Police, the National Corruption Center, and the Customs Service. Part of the CCTIP. (8; 44)

Organization/Agency	Role
Prosecutor General's Office (PGO) for Organized Crime and Special Cases (PCCOCS) and Anti-Trafficking Bureau	Conduct and oversee criminal investigations on the worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children, and prosecute cases. (13) In 2017, employed 11 prosecutors. (13; 45) In 2017, the PGO also launched an anti-trafficking Green Line Telephone, which encourages citizens to report trafficking in persons. (5) Monitor and analyze trafficking in persons cases in the Anti-trafficking Bureau within the PGO. (5) Includes an investigative and prosecution unit within the national-level Specialized Prosecution Office for Organized Crime and Special Cases (PCCOCS). Established in December 2017 and includes formally designated trafficking in persons prosecutors. (5) Focus on child pornography through a specialized unit of three officers at the Center for Combating Cyber Crime. (8; 46; 42) USDOS has donated specialized equipment to this center and supported the participation of two representatives at an INTERPOL meeting on criminal investigations of cybercrimes involving children. (3; 47; 46) In 2017, employed five prosecutors. (13)
People's Advocate (Ombudsman)	Specialize in child protection issues, including child labor, and defend children's constitutional rights. Public authorities, officials, and institutions are required to cooperate with the Ombudsman. (8)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Enforce criminal laws against child trafficking and sexual exploitation. (44; 13) Draft, consult, and propose all processes related to criminal legislation for the government's approval before they enter into force. (48)
Ministry of Information Technology	Assist in identifying victims of human trafficking and provide foreign victims with residence permits and identity cards. (3)

As a result of the government's restructuring in 2017, the Ministry of Labor, Social Protection, and Family merged with the Ministry of Health to become the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection. Likewise, the Ministry of Education merged with the Ministry of Culture and Ministry of Youth and Sports to become the Ministry of Education, Culture, and Research. (13) Due to this restructuring, the authority to enforce occupational and safety (OSH) regulations was removed from the State Labor Inspection (SLI) and given to other agencies. (13; 42) In addition, the Child Labor Monitoring Unit (CLMU) structure has not been clearly defined, and its bureaucratic role has changed from coordinating child labor monitoring with the SLI to merely requesting a report of child labor from other agencies. (42)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Moldova took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The SLI inspects enterprises, institutions, and organizations, regardless of their type or legal form. (13; 50) SLI can inspect private farms but not homes. (13) There are 87 labor inspectors who are separated into those who specialize in labor law and those who inspect OSH. (13) The labor inspector's strategy for conducting labor inspections is found in various regulations. (51; 52; 50) Law No. 140 and Law No. 131 outline the primary responsibilities of the SLI, including how and when labor inspections occur. (52; 50; 46) There are limitations on the conditions under which the SLI may conduct unannounced inspections, including that they cannot be carried out on the basis of unverified information and information received from anonymous sources. (53; 50) About 20 percent of all labor inspections were unannounced. In addition, the government's existing mechanism for filing and responding to child labor complaints is generally regarded as inadequate. (13)

During the reporting period, labor inspector managers received trainings at the National Commission for Collective Bargaining on unreported labor. (46) Labor inspectors received trainings on trafficking in persons. (13) In addition, inspectors received trainings on OSH but did not execute OSH inspections from April to December 2017 due to government reforms. (42) This may have affected the number of child labor violations found in hazardous occupations in agriculture, a sector in which there is evidence that child labor occurs in Moldova. (42) The SLI also led public awareness campaigns and attended meetings with local public authorities on unreported labor and wages. (13)

Although the SLI reported that supplies and equipment for labor inspections were inadequate and trade unions reported that there was an insufficient number of child labor inspections conducted, the SLI removed two minors from labor situations as a result of labor inspections in 2017. (13) Both government and NGO sources reported that the confirmed child labor violations did not reflect the full scope of the problem in Moldova due to changes in the government's ability to conduct inspections undergoing ongoing state reforms. (13; 46)

Although protections related to the minimum age for work and hazardous work also apply to employment in the informal sector, children working in the informal sector are unprotected due to law enforcement practices. (8; 46)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Moldova took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning and financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016†	2017‡
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (25)	N/A (13)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	No (8)	Yes (13)

Number of Investigations	23† (8)	34‡ (13)
Number of Violations Found	23† (8)	34‡ (13)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	7† (8)	34‡ (13)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (8)	20‡ (13)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8; 49)	Yes (13)

† Data are from January 2016 to October 2016.

‡ Data are from January 1, 2017 to December 1, 2017.

Criminal investigators attended four trainings during the reporting period on topics such as investigation techniques related to human trafficking, best practices in combating commercial sexual exploitation, and victim centered approaches involving minors. (5) However, the number of trainings and trainees remains inadequate in identifying potential victims, according to NGOs. (13; 46) In addition, even though the overall government anti-human trafficking budget increased, CCTIP lacks sufficient vehicles and the Office for Organized Crime and Special Cases lacks resources, such as computers. (5; 13)

A source indicated that the government's law enforcement personnel, particularly police officers who conduct foot patrols, lacked training in proper investigative techniques for child trafficking cases. (3; 46) In addition, CCTIP has not established child interview rooms in all of Moldova's regions. Authorities also did not possess sufficient ability to identify potential victims, especially children left without parental supervision, and the National Referral Mechanism fails to properly identify victims of human trafficking. (5)

Local NGOs reported that weaknesses in the judicial system continue to hinder the government's ability to enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (3; 25; 54; 55; 46) In addition, following the changes to the Prosecutor General's Office in 2016 and 2017, while the number of prosecutors dedicated to human trafficking increased from the previous year, they are in charge of investigating cases under the criminal justice process, and they cannot bring human trafficking cases to court. (5; 45) Instead, they must rely on a different group of prosecutors if an organized crime element is present or have territorial prosecutors, who have less human trafficking experience, take the case. (5)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination efforts of the National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor (NSC)	Coordinate work on child labor issues at the national level among representatives from workers' organizations, NGOs, academia, and government agencies (13).
National Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons (NCCTIP)	Coordinate efforts to prevent and combat child trafficking and child sexual exploitation. Members include the Ministry of Health, Labor, and Social Protection and other government ministries. (8; 25; 13) Through the Permanent Secretariat, monitor implementation of legal provisions on combating human trafficking as developed by the NCCTIP. (8; 13) Draft provisions on human trafficking, participate in anti-trafficking campaigns, and develop national action plans. (3) Held meetings in 2017. (5; 45) In 2018, it will include the Bureau for Migration and Asylum and the Public Service Agency. (13)
National Commission for Consultation and Collective Bargaining	Autonomous public body created to resolve issues related to labor, social, and economic issues. (13) Comprised 18 members. The Commission was active in 2017 and met several times. (13)
National Council for the Protection of Child Rights	Coordinate national efforts to combat child exploitation. (8) Chaired by the Deputy Prime Minister. Has a working group to discuss existing gaps in the current birth registration process and develop recommendations. (56; 57) It met once in 2017. (13; 58)

The National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor did not meet in 2017. (13)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including a national action plan to address all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Implementation of the Moldova-EU Association Agenda (2017–2019)	Commits Moldova to reform certain sectors to align with EU policies. Includes the elimination of child labor as a medium-term policy. (13; 59; 60) In 2017, additional data was added about vulnerable children. (46; 42; 60)
National Plan for Preventing and Combating Trafficking in Human Beings (2014–2017)	Aimed to improve anti-human trafficking efforts and reduce children's vulnerability to child labor and sexual exploitation by improving data collection, referral mechanisms, public awareness, and training for government officials. (61) The Set of Measures for Priority Actions in the Field of Prevention and Control Trafficking in Human Beings (Roadmap)† outlines anti-human trafficking actions for 2017. (42)
Child Protection Strategy (2014–2020)	Includes the goals of preventing and combating violence, neglect, and the exploitation of children. (62; 63) The strategy was active in 2017 and implemented activities and actions according to the strategy. (13; 42)

Policy	Description
Moldova Action Program (2016–2018)	Promotes the rights and protection of children, including preventing and combating violence, neglect, and exploitation. (64) Aims to increase the welfare, safety, and quality of life of citizens. (64) In 2017, government policies incorporated the program. (46)
Action Plan to Support the Roma People (2016–2020)	Aims to promote social inclusion of Roma. Includes the goals of education, social protection, and combating discrimination. (65) Funding received from the government, private partnerships, and the EU. (65; 66)
Action Plan on the Promotion of Internet Safety for Children and Teenagers (2017–2020)†	Encourages a safer digital environment for children and teenagers by reducing illegal content on the Internet and educating children about its dangers. (67) Yearly reports on implementing the Action Plan are to be submitted to the government. (67)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The government had a National Action Plan on the Prevention and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, but it expired in 2015. Research found no evidence of a policy to cover all worst forms of child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
ILO Projects	Decent Work Country Program (2016–2020) aims to strengthen available statistics on child labor and improve the labor inspectorate, with a focus on construction and agriculture. (68) In 2017, it undertook labor-related actions, such as in employment and trade unions. (46) Promoting Decent Work for Roma Youth in Moldova (2016–2017) focused on policies to address Roma youth labor market integration for 15- to 29-year-olds. (69) In 2017, it assisted Roma with labor market inclusion for Roma youth and conducted a baseline study on social and market inclusion. (46)
UNICEF-Government of Moldova Country Program (2013–2017)†	UNICEF and government program to improve the social inclusion of vulnerable children. Focused on migrant, Roma, and child victims of sexual exploitation and abuse. (70; 62) Program was active in 2017. (13)
Center for Protection and Assistance for Victims of Human Trafficking	Child victims of human trafficking are offered legal and social support, accommodation, psychological assistance, and family reunification services. (13) Assisted 21 children in 2017. (5)
Shelters for Victims of Human Trafficking†	Government-funded shelters for children from Moldova and Transnistria. (25) Offer accommodations, rehabilitation, and reintegration services. (54) Continued to operate in 2017 and NCCTIP reopened a shelter. (5; 45)
Child Helpline	Implemented by La Strada. (13) Provided psychological counseling and information to parents and children experiencing violence, neglect, or exploitation. In 2017, the Helpline received 6,382 calls and counselled 4,241 children. (13)
Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	Government allocated $640,000 in financial support for 86,000 vulnerable families with minor children in 2017. (13)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (8; 47; 71; 72; 73; 8; 5)

During the reporting period, the government expanded and increased funding for social services for families and children, and continued funding the Social Assistance Program, which provides social assistance and help during the winter. (13; 74) However, existing social programs do not meet the current level of need, particularly for child victims of trafficking in persons requiring long-term care and children working in agriculture. (25; 46)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Moldova (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Authorize the State Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2016 – 2017
	Strengthen the labor inspection system by eliminating limitations on unannounced inspections and conducting unannounced inspections.	2017
	Increase funding for the State Labor Inspectorate to ensure that it provides inspectors with the financial resources necessary to inspect child labor.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that the government mechanism for filing and responding to child labor complaints functions properly and strengthen the National Referral System to protect children from commercial sexual exploitation.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that training and funding are sufficient for CCTIP criminal investigators.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that investigators, including police officers who conduct foot patrols and CCTIP, receive training on laws and investigative techniques related to the worst forms of child labor, especially for children left behind without parental care.	2016 – 2017
	Strengthen the judicial system to ensure that penalties imposed against perpetrators of crimes related to the worst forms of child labor are convicted and sentenced according to law.	2014 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that the National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor meets and carries out their mandate.	2013 – 2017
Government Policies	Create and implement a National Action Plan on Child Labor.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including for the secessionist region of Transnistria.	2013 – 2017
	Institute targeted support programs that eliminate discrimination and violence against Roma children and promote equal access to education, and remove informal educational fees.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that administration officials in orphanages, who commit crimes, are punished according to the law.	2017
	Ensure sufficient support for child trafficking victims and children working in agriculture.	2015 – 2017

In 2017, Mongolia made minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Despite new initiatives to address child labor, Mongolia is receiving this assessment because the government did not permit the Labor Inspectorate to conduct unannounced inspections, which impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. The government amended the Criminal Code to prohibit and provide penalties for child trafficking. The Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency also organized trainings on child labor in 19 of Mongolia's 21 provinces for more than 1,200 government officials. In addition, the government adopted the National Action Plan on Combating Trafficking in Persons, which strengthens efforts to combat child trafficking. However, children in Mongolia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining and horse jockeying. Labor inspectors lack adequate training on laws related to child labor, and the number of labor inspectors in the General Agency for Specialized Inspection is insufficient.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mongolia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining and horse jockeying. (1; 2; 3; 4) Furthermore, 9 out of 10 children exploited in situations of hazardous work are boys. (2; 5) According to Mongolia's National Child Labor Survey, children's employment is more prevalent in rural areas than in urban areas. (2; 6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mongolia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5-14	13.2 (60,246)
Attending School (%)	5-14	96.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7-14	14.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		93.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Animal husbandry,† including herding† (2; 9; 4; 3)
Industry	Construction,† including carrying and loading bricks, cement, and steel framework, mixing construction solutions such as lime or cement,† binding steel framework, and cleaning at the construction site† (2; 10; 4; 3) Mining† coal,† gold, and fluorspar (2; 11; 4; 12; 3)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Mongolian children are generally trafficked internally for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation in saunas, bars, hotels, karaoke clubs, and massage parlors. (4; 22; 3) Children also work as horse jockeys and face a number of health and safety hazards, including exposure to extremely cold temperatures, risk of brain and bone injuries, and fatal falls. (14; 15; 1; 23) Participation in pre-training and horse racing during the November 1-May 1 racing season may also negatively impact children's school attendance, particularly when children as young as age 7 can participate in horse racing. (14; 15)

During the reporting period, the Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency (FCYDA) collected data on exploitative child labor in Mongolia. The agency identified 99 children engaged in various forms of child labor in Ulaanbaatar, and registered 10,453 children in a nationwide database for child horse jockeys. (4)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mongolia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mongolia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	16	Article 109 of the Law on Labor (24)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 141 of the Law on Labor; List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors (25; 24)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		List of Jobs and Occupations Prohibited to Minors; Law on the National Naadam Holiday (25; 26)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Articles 12.3, 13.1, 16.4, 16.10 of the Criminal Code; Article 7 of the Law on Labor; Article 7 of the Law on the Rights of the Child (5; 24; 27; 28)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Law on Combating Trafficking in Persons; Article 13.1 of the Criminal Code (5; 29; 28)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 12.3, 13.1, 16.8–16.10 of the Criminal Code; Combating Pornography and Prostitution Act (30; 5; 28)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 16.1–16.4 and 16.8–16.10 of the Criminal Code (5; 28)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 12 of the Law on Military (31; 32)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 12 of the Law on Military (31; 32)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 46 of the Law on Education (33)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Constitution of Mongolia; Articles 6.1-6.3 of the Law on Education (34; 35)

In 2017, the government amended its Criminal Code to prohibit and criminalize child trafficking. (22; 4; 28) However, Mongolia's legal framework is lacking several international standards to protect children. (28; 5; 29) The minimum age for work does not apply to children in the informal sector or those that are self-employed (24). During the reporting period, the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection changed the prohibition on working and training as a horse jockey from being prohibited between November 1 and May 1 to only being prohibited during the winter season. This change leaves children unprotected from work as horse jockeys during more months of the year. (25; 36; 4; 23; 37; 16)

Laws related to forced labor are not sufficient, as neither forced labor nor debt bondage is specifically criminalized. (28; 5; 24; 27) Laws relating to the commercial sexual exploitation of children do not meet international standards because they do not create criminal penalties for the use of children engaged in prostitution. (30; 28; 5) Additionally, the laws prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities are not sufficient as they do not criminally prohibit the use, procurement, or offering of a child for the production and trafficking of drugs. (28; 5)

Mongolia's laws related to military service are not sufficient, as they do not prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18. (32)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the General Agency for Specialized Inspection (GASI) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
General Agency for Specialized Inspection (GASI)	Enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor. Conduct inspections at registered businesses. (18) As an independent agency, reports to the Deputy Prime Minister. (17)
Family, Child, and Youth Development Agency (FCYDA)	Implement programs directed toward families and children for the Ministry of Labor and Social Protection and other government agencies. Perform secretarial duties for the National Committee on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (17) Manage the national Child Helpline, the government-run shelter for children, and child protection services. (4; 32)
National Police Agency (NPA)	Maintain primary responsibility for investigating criminal cases. Provide protection to victims and witnesses throughout the judicial process. Report to the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. (17)
Organized Crime Division	Operate under the NPA, receive referrals, and open formal criminal investigations into human trafficking and sexual exploitation cases. (20) Work with the Prosecutor's Office to decide whether to take a case to court and initiate subsequent prosecution. (17; 38)
Metropolitan Police Department	Operate under the NPA and oversee police operations in Ulaanbaatar's nine district police offices. (17) Enforce labor laws and identify children in hazardous labor. (18)
Division for the Prevention of Domestic Violence and Crimes Against Children	Operate under the Metropolitan Police Department to protect unattended children on the streets. Identify and refer children to their parents or to Child Care and Protection Centers. (39)
General Authority for Citizenship and Migration	Register Mongolian citizens who enter and exit the country. Track children who leave Mongolia and do not return, as well as pregnant Mongolian women who leave Mongolia to give birth and return without their child. (20) Follow up with law enforcement as necessary. (20)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Mongolia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of GASI that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including inspection planning. (17; 32)

NGO and government officials reported that the enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the legal requirement that GASI give employers 48 hours advance notification before conducting an inspection, which provides employers enough time to conceal violations. (4)

During the reporting period, GASI employed 63 labor inspectors. (4) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mongolia's workforce, which includes about 1.2 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Mongolia would employ 83 labor inspectors – which would require the hiring of 20 additional inspectors to meet this threshold. (40; 41)

In 2017, the FCYDA organized training on child labor in 19 of Mongolia's 21 provinces for 1,245 government officials, including GASI labor inspectors. In addition, FCYDA conducted joint trainings with GASI, the National Emergency Management Agency, and medical providers in 11 provinces with small-scale mining sites. (4)

Child labor and child rights violations can be reported to the FCYDA through a nationwide, toll-free Child Helpline commonly known as "108," which is staffed with 22 dedicated employees, as well as a social worker and response team who are available 24 hours a day; complaints can be accessed through its database by the police. (42; 4; 43) During the reporting period, the FCYDA assumed responsibility for the Child Helpline, the government-run shelter for children, and child protection services. (4)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mongolia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2017, law enforcement agencies did not conduct training on child labor laws; however, law enforcement officials and cadets attended training on human trafficking organized by the IOM, The Asia Foundation, the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs, and the National Police Agency. (22)

Despite these capacity-building efforts, police officers reported a general lack of knowledge and training on how to apply criminal trafficking laws to cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children. Authorities use provisions of the Criminal Code, which carry less stringent penalties when boys are the victims of human trafficking due to the misconception among government officials that only girls can be victims of human trafficking. (21) As a result, many cases that could have been prosecuted under the human trafficking article of the Criminal Code were instead prosecuted under related articles of the Criminal Code that carry lighter penalties. (18; 44)

The National Police Agency's investigators use an 11-question risk assessment checklist to help them accurately identify human trafficking victims. Investigators refer victims who meet more than five of the criteria to short- or long-term care facilities. (4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Anti-Trafficking Sub-Council	Coordinate government efforts to combat human trafficking and monitor implementation of anti-trafficking legislation. Function as part of the Council on Crime Prevention under the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. (20; 18) Currently has 15 members representing 12 different organizations, including two NGOs. (20)

In 2017, the Coordinating Council to Implement the National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor was dismissed, and its responsibilities were incorporated into the National Program on Child Development and Protection. (4)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Program on Child Development and Protection (2017 – 2021)†	Incorporated the National Program for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor and National Action Plan. (4) Coordinates child labor and child protection issues through the Ministries of Labor and Social Protection; Education, Culture, Science and Sports; and Health. (4) In 2017, established an interagency permanent working group to institute programs to address child labor in certain sectors, including herding. (4; 16; 32)
National Action Plan on Combating Trafficking in Persons (2017 – 2021)†	Aims to strengthen efforts to prevent and combat different types of human trafficking, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children and improve protective services for victims. (4; 22)
State Policy on Herders	Describes the acceptable minimum conditions and criteria for employing children in herding. (45) Activities include projects to improve housing and access to information for herders, and ensure that children engaged in herding receive an education. Each year, the government allocates 1 percent of its budget to implement the policy. (46)
National Development Strategy	Calls for improvements in education, health, social welfare, and labor policies through 2020. Priorities include the education, safety, and health of vulnerable children. (47)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the State Policy on Herders or the National Development Strategy during the reporting period. (16)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor, which cover the main sectors where child labor has been identified in the country (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL-funded projects that aim to promote the safety and health of young workers on the job, build the capacity of the national government and legislation, conduct research and collect data, strengthen legal protections and social services delivery for child domestic workers, and increase the public's awareness of children engaged in hazardous work and its negative consequences through posters and television. These projects include the Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (GAP), implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries, including Mongolia. Additional information is available on the USDOL website. (48; 49)
Children's Money Program†	General Agency for Social Welfare and Service, General Agency for State Registration, and Human Development Fund program that distributes approximately $8 per month to children under age 18 whose families meet certain economic criteria. (4; 32)
School Lunch Program†	Government program that subsidizes meals to encourage low-income children to attend school, particularly at the secondary level. (18)

† Program is funded by the Government of Mongolia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (17)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mongolia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws clearly and comprehensively prohibit using, procuring, and offering of all children under age 18 for prostitution, the production of pornography, and pornographic performances.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring or offering of children under age 18 in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that all forms of forced labor are criminally prohibited.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that laws adequately prohibit children from horseracing at all times of the year.	2017
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors and investigators responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor, including its worst forms, in order to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2014 – 2017
	Publish information on the number of labor inspections conducted, the Labor Inspectorate funding, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected.	2015 – 2017
	Publish criminal law enforcement data, including the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions achieved.	2017
	Ensure that investigators receive training on new laws and refresher courses related to the worst forms of child labor.	2017
	Strengthen the inspection system by permitting the General Agency for Specialized Inspections to conduct unannounced inspections and provide adequate funding.	2013 – 2017
Policies	Ensure that violations of child labor laws are investigated and charged according to appropriate law articles, and that offenders are promptly prosecuted.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the State Policy on Herders and the National Development Strategy are implemented.	2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Montenegro made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the reporting period, the government trained labor inspectors on forced child labor, and the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe and the Ministry of Interior organized seminars for police officers on labor trafficking, including for child victims. In addition, the Ministry of Interior's Office for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons, in cooperation with UNICEF, launched standard operating procedures for the treatment of unaccompanied children, particularly for the identification of trafficking victims among this population. However, children in Montenegro engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Victim identification remained an area requiring improvement in order for the government to combat human trafficking effectively. Research found no evidence of programs to systematically address child labor in street work, forced begging, or commercial sexual exploitation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Montenegro engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Montenegro.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	18.3 (77,591)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	91.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	19.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		90.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (9)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2013. (10)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street work, including vending small goods and begging (3; 11; 12; 13; 6)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking (4; 5; 7; 8)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3; 5; 13; 7)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (5; 14; 15)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Montenegro is a source, destination, and transit country for children trafficked for forced labor, including forced begging, especially among Roma children. (3; 5; 11; 13; 7; 8) Some Roma girls from Montenegro are sold into servile marriages in Montenegro and Kosovo, where they are also forced into domestic servitude. (5; 14; 15; 16) Children, especially girls, are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation, internally and transnationally within the region and to Western Europe. (4; 5; 13; 17; 8)

Some Roma, Ashkali, and Egyptian children experience challenges in attaining birth registration, which sometimes makes school enrollment difficult, increasing their vulnerability to engage in child labor. (11; 12; 13; 17; 18; 19) The higher rate of unregistered children is mostly due to registration costs, parents' lack of awareness of the importance of registration, and parents' lack of identification documents. (19; 20) In addition, some children with disabilities, especially in rural areas, experience difficulty accessing education and have limited government social services available. (21; 22)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Montenegro has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 16 of the Labor Law (23)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Labor Law (23)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 104 and 106 of the Labor Law; Articles 7–8 of the Regulations on Measures of Protection in the Workplace (23; 24)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 444 of the Criminal Code; Articles 28 and 63 of the Constitution (25; 26)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 444–446 of the Criminal Code (26)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 209–211 of the Criminal Code (26)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 300–301 of the Criminal Code (26)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*		Articles 162–163 of the Law on the Armed Forces (27)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Articles 162–163 of the Law on the Armed Forces (27)
Non-state	Yes		Article 444 of the Criminal Code (26)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 4 of the Law on Primary Education (28)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 75 of the Constitution (25)

* No conscription (27)

The Code of Rules for Occupational Safety prescribes workplace protections and prohibits specific hazardous activities for children, including workplaces that would expose them to physical, biological, or chemical hazards. (3; 24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate	Lead and monitor the enforcement of labor laws, including those that protect working children and working conditions throughout the country. (3; 20; 29; 30; 7) Part of the Inspectorate General. (31)
Police Directorate within the Ministry of Interior	Investigate and enforce criminal laws on forced labor and human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation. (1; 29; 7) Coordinate law enforcement actions, including identification of victims of human trafficking. (1; 7) Prevent and investigate child begging by removing child beggars from the streets through the Beggar Task Force. (8)
Supreme State Prosecutor	Collect data on the number of police investigations, convictions, and court rulings, and submit them to the Office of the National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (Human Trafficking Office). (1; 7)
Ministry of Justice	Enforce the Criminal Code by prosecuting crimes against children, including human trafficking, child begging, and child abuse. (30)
Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare (MLSW)	Protect children and families by providing social, child, and family protection in its Social Welfare Centers. Identify potential victims of human trafficking. (1; 7)
Ombudsman's Deputy for the Rights of the Child	Monitor the situation of children, using strategies such as visiting schools and institutions, holding focus groups, maintaining e-mail hotlines, and writing blogs for children. (29; 7)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Montenegro took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSW that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial and human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$537,558 (31)	$579,532 (32)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (33)	Yes (7)

‡ Data are from January 2017 to November 2017.

The Labor Inspectorate has 14 offices that proactively plan labor inspections, with an increase in inspections during the summer tourist seasons in specific sectors, such as trade and catering. (3; 20; 33; 7) Children found during inspections can be sent to Social Welfare Centers (SWCs) and accommodated in a government-financed, NGO-run shelter for human trafficking victims. (33; 7) There are 24 labor inspectors that cover employment relations and 8 that cover health safety issues at work. All inspectors monitor the enforcement of child labor. (33; 7) The government maintains a database on children involved in begging but does not collect or publish data on the worst forms of child labor. (29; 35)

During the reporting period, 12 labor inspectors received training on forced child labor from the Ministry of Interior's Office for the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons (OFTIP). (7; 8; 32; 31) While the Labor Inspectorate deemed funding adequate for 2017, they stated that their offices were in poor condition and the number of inspectors was insufficient; however, the Labor Inspectorate plans to hire additional employees. (7; 31)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Montenegro took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	N/A (34)	Yes (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (33)	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (14)	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	73 (33)	78‡ (7)
Number of Violations Found	34 (33)	53‡ (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (33)	2‡ (7; 31)
Number of Convictions	0 (33)	0‡ (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (33)	Yes (7)

‡ Data are from January 2017 to November 2017.

A three-member police unit investigates human trafficking and advises local police. Police investigate children working on the street, and those who are found begging or require social assistance can be accommodated in a public institution called "Ljubovic" for up to 30 days while parents are located. (3; 33; 7) When parents are not available, children are referred to local SWCs. (36)

In 2017, four police officers received training on human trafficking, including on the worst forms of child labor. (7) The Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe and the OFTIP organized training seminars for 44 police officers on human trafficking for labor exploitation, including child victims. In addition, students of the police academy received trainings. (7) However, continuous victim identification training is needed for the police, judiciary, and prosecutors. (8) In addition, while two people were prosecuted for the sexual exploitation of a minor, gaps remain in prosecutions, including increasing the number of convictions. (5; 31)

In 2017, 65 child beggars were sent to SWCs. (7) Also during the reporting period, police continued to operate the Beggar Task Force, which is focused on removing child beggars from the streets. (8) However, the Ombudsman for Human Rights has criticized the police and the SWCs for insufficiently and inconsistently tracking information on children found begging in Montenegro. (14; 32) Children were often treated as delinquents rather than victims, the SWCs provided services to only a minority of Montenegrin children found begging, and there was a lack of specialized societal reintegration services for them. (29; 32)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Office of the National Anti-Trafficking Coordinator (Human Trafficking Office)	Coordinate efforts, projects, and legislation against trafficking in persons and the worst forms of child labor among relevant government institutions and international organizations. (7) Collect and maintain data on investigations and court rulings. A task force monitors and promotes activities related to combating human trafficking, and assesses progress of objectives established in action plans. (7) Includes government representatives, NGOs, and international organizations. (7) Active in 2017. (7)

Montenegro

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Council for the Rights of the Child	Implement and monitor the National Plan for Children 2013–2017 and the government’s commitments pursuant to the UN CRC, and initiate adoption of legislation to promote and protect the rights of children. Chaired by the MLSW and has 12 other members. (2; 34; 37; 7) It met twice in 2017. (7)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action for Children (2013–2017)	Defined and protected children and children’s rights. (29; 34) Outlined a strategy to fulfill UN CRC obligations. Goals included preventing hazardous and exploitative child labor and child trafficking, increasing birth registration, ensuring inclusive education, and improving social services for street children. (37) Monitored and reported yearly progress. (6)
Strategy for the Social Inclusion of Roma and Egyptians (2016–2020)	Aims to create social inclusion of Roma and Egyptians by increasing school attendance and birth registration, and preventing child begging and human trafficking. Implemented by the Ministry for Minority and Human Rights. (38)
Guidelines for the Treatment of Unaccompanied Minors	Provides accommodation, protection, and rehabilitation for minors and other vulnerable groups. Implemented by the MLSW. (39; 40)
National Strategy for Combating Human Trafficking (2012–2018)	Outlines objectives for combating human trafficking by raising public awareness, strengthening the capacity for victim identification and service provision, improving interagency coordination, and raising the efficiency of prosecutions. (21; 41) The strategy and yearly action plan are evaluated and adopted through reports prepared through government and civil society collaboration. (21) Active in 2017. (31)
Strategy for the Development of Social and Child Protection (2013–2017)	Built an integrated social and child protection system, including monthly social assistance, health care, and a child allowance that is conditional on school attendance. (42; 43)

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Strategy for the Development of Social and Child Protection. (44; 32) Research could not determine whether the National Plan of Action for Children and the Strategy for the Development of Social and Child Protection were active in 2017. (32; 31)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†

Program	Description
Social Welfare and Child Care System Reform: Enhancing Social Inclusion (2013–2017)†	$4.5 million, 4-year project sponsored by the Ministry of Education and the MLSW. Implemented by the government, the UNDP, and UNICEF to strengthen protection for children under the Strategy for the Development of Social and Child Protection, including inclusive education and childcare system reform. (35; 42)
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2021)	Addresses access to social services for children, synchronizes the legal framework with EU and UN standards, implements and monitors policies relevant to children, and applies the principles of the UN CRC. (14)
Development of Standard Operating Procedures for the Treatment of Children Deprived of Parents or Unaccompanied*	Implemented by the Ministry of Interior’s Human Trafficking Office and UNICEF. (8) Goals include standardizing procedures among all relevant institutions for dealing with unaccompanied children and children separated from parents, ensuring compliance with both international and national laws for children. (45) Includes procedures on identifying, accommodating, and integrating the children. (45)
Shelter for Victims of Human Trafficking, Forced Begging, and Forced Marriages†	Run by the NGO Montenegrin Women’s Lobby and the government, and provides accommodations for children who are separated from adults and victims of forced begging and forced marriages. (33) Continued to operate in 2017. (7)

Program	Description
Hotline for Victims of Human Trafficking	SOS Hotline† funded by the Human Trafficking Office and run by the NGO Montenegrin Women's Lobby. Provides advice, connects victims with service providers, and raises public awareness. (1; 21) Received 476 calls in 2017. (8)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Montenegro.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (8)

Research could not determine whether the Social Welfare and Child Care System Reform program was active in 2017. (31)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Montenegro (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Consistently track and publish information about children involved in the worst forms of child labor.	2017
	Improve the condition of facilities used for labor law enforcement.	2017
	Provide continuous victims identification training to police, judiciary, and prosecutors.	2017
	Increase the number of convictions and prosecutions of perpetrators involved in commercial sexual exploitation.	2017
	Ensure that all children removed from begging are treated as victims and are provided with social services to prevent reentry into street work.	2012 – 2017

In 2017, Morocco made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed two decrees in support of the recent Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers, which limits the employment of children between the ages of 16 and 18 for domestic work. The government also provided training to labor law enforcement officials on child labor issues, issued 11 fines for child labor violations, and removed children from hazardous work. In addition, the government operated child protection centers and continued to fund the Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program, providing direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria. However, some children in Morocco engage in the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. The low number of labor inspectors may hinder adequate labor law enforcement. In addition, the scope of government programs that target child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, laws related to the minimum age for work and the use of children for illicit activities do not meet international standards. In addition, the low number of labor inspectors may hinder enforcement efforts and programs to address child labor are insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Morocco engage in the worst forms of child labor, including forced domestic work. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8; 9; 10) Government statistics from 2017 showed 30,545 children ages 7 to 15 working; however, the government has not yet made the full data set, including microdata, available, leaving the nature and causes of children's involvement in specific forms of child labor unknown. (11; 12) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Morocco.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	4.5 (150,178)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	82.9
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	0.7
Primary Completion Rate (%)		94.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (13)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Enquête sur la Population et la Santé Familiale, 2003–2004. (14)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Planting and harvesting argan, grain, olives, vegetables, and fruits (1)
	Herding goats, cattle, and sheep and raising them for the production of fertilizer, and cattle for the production of milk and butter (1; 2)
	Fishing (4; 15; 16)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (5; 6; 7; 8; 9; 10; 20)
	Forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4; 5; 6; 7; 22; 24)
	Begging as a result of human trafficking (5; 6; 7)
	Illegal sand extraction (25)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Morocco is a source, destination, and transit country for children subjected to forced labor and sex trafficking. (8; 9; 10; 20; 26)

According to local union observations, rural Moroccan girls, some as young as age 6, are recruited for domestic work in private urban homes, as are girls from Cameroon, Côte d’Ivoire, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Nigeria, and Senegal. Some of these girls are subjected to physical and verbal abuse, excessive working hours without regular periods of rest or days off, and no access to educational opportunities. (7; 10; 27)

Children face various barriers to accessing education, including distance from schools, inadequate transportation, prohibitive costs associated with attending school, and the lack of security and inclusiveness to accommodate students of diverse backgrounds and abilities. These barriers to education increase vulnerability to child labor, especially in rural areas. (1; 4; 7; 28; 29; 30; 31; 32) Children with disabilities face additional barriers to education. (7; 33; 21) Some migrant children, particularly unaccompanied children from sub-Saharan Africa, and rural children, face additional barriers to accessing education, such as lack of knowledge of the language of instruction. Furthermore, because birth certificates are required to attend school past the fifth grade, many unregistered children remain out of school and vulnerable to child labor. (19; 34; 35; 36)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Morocco has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Morocco’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms child labor, including prohibiting use of children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation

* No conscription (43)

Following the passage of the Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers in 2016, Morocco passed two decrees in 2017 related to the 2016 law that provide protections for child domestic workers. The two decrees together prohibit specific activities in the employment of domestic workers ages 16–18 and provide a work contract model for domestic workers. (44; 45; 46; 47; 48; 49; 50) However, following the passage of the law in 2016, regulations to inform agencies on implementing the law were still not in place. (30)

The Labor Code does not apply to self-employed children, those who work in the traditional artisan or handicraft sectors for businesses with fewer than five employees, or those who work on private farms or in residences. These children are vulnerable to exploitation, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (6; 37; 51; 52; 12) The types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not fully cover sectors in which child labor is known to occur or sectors in which work conditions may harm children's health, safety, and morals. (38) Moroccan law does not provide increased penalties or a separate crime for using, procuring, and offering of children for both the production and trafficking of drugs. (36; 30)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI)	Enforce child labor laws and oversee programs on child labor through its child labor task force. (4; 6; 36) Provide occupational health and safety services, administer social security, and organize labor inspections and employment services through nationwide satellite offices. (4) Renamed from the Ministry of Employment and Social Affairs, yet maintains the same functions. (46)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforce prohibitions on prostitution and other exploitative crimes involving minors, as established in the Penal Code. (6; 53)
General Prosecutor	Prosecute criminal offenses against children and process cases involving women and children, and conducted within the court system through the Child Labor Units, formerly under the Ministry of Justice and Liberties, but made independent during the reporting period. (46)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Morocco took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MOLVI that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

‡ Data are from January 1, 2017 to September 30, 2017. (46)

During the first 9 months of 2017, labor inspectors issued 23 formal notices and 11 fines in the course of 350 child labor inspections. They removed 54 children under age 15 from work, and 111 children ages 15–17 from hazardous work. (46) The sectors most frequently inspected included trade, agriculture, and metal and wood work, with 22 inspectors dedicated to agriculture, and 23 engineers and 18 physicians in charge of health and safety labor inspections. The government also has 54 dedicated child labor inspectors distributed across the country. (36; 54; 46) In early 2017, labor inspectors in the Marrakech-Tensift region participated in three training sessions on the mapping of tasks and analysis of occupational risks; 26 inspectors also received specific training from the IOM in trafficking in persons and labor exploitation. (46)

Inadequate resources, including an insufficient number of inspectors, hamper the Labor Inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (6; 30; 56; 57) Although Morocco employs 304 labor inspectors, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Morocco's workforce, which includes more than 12 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Morocco should employ about 800 inspectors. (56; 58; 59) The official procedures involved in processing child labor violations require the participation of several agencies for each case, which places considerable administrative burdens on labor inspectors. (2) Government officials, local stakeholders, and the ILO Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations report that the penalties against companies that employ children in hazardous work, set forth in the Labor Code, are inadequate deterrents. (56)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Morocco took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including publication of criminal law enforcement data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators

Number of Investigations	7 (36)	Unknown (46)
Number of Violations Found	3 (36)	Unknown (46)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	7 (36; 46)	3 (46)
Number of Convictions	3 (36)	Unknown (46)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (30)	Yes (46)

Criminal authorities refer victims to appropriate social services through coordination with the MOLVI's 54 dedicated child labor inspectors, other government entities, and civil society actors. (30)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Technical Committee Under the Special Ministerial Commission for Children for the Protection and Improvement of Childhood	Ensure inter-sectoral coordination and monitoring for implementing international conventions on children's issues through a committee of 25 government bodies, chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco. Establish strategies and mechanisms to implement national policies and plans for child protection and coordinate the management of efforts at the local and regional levels. (36)
MOLVI	Coordinate policies and efforts to combat child labor. Through its Office for the Fight Against Child Labor provide guidance and limited funding to NGOs working against child labor. (2; 4; 60; 46)
Ministry of Solidarity, Women, Family, and Social Development (MSWFSD)	Ensure continuity of child protection and child labor elimination efforts and expand children's access to education. (53; 61) Aims to implement the Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children. (5; 6) Support 142 Child Reception Centers that provide services to child victims of violence. (36)
Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation	Coordinate efforts to reduce migrant vulnerability to child labor through its Delegate Ministry in Charge of Moroccans Living Abroad and Migration Affairs. Promote migrant children's access to public education facilities and other social services and assistance. (4; 55; 46)
Ministry of National Education, Vocational Training, Higher Education, and Scientific Research	Provide education and job training to former child workers, including former child domestic workers and migrant youth. (36; 46)

In 2017, the Ministry of Employment and Social Affairs was renamed the MOLVI. (46) The Ministry in Charge of Moroccans Living Abroad and Migration Affairs became a Delegate Ministry under the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation. (46) The Ministry of National Educational and Vocational Training was renamed the Ministry of National Education, Vocational Training, Higher Education, and Scientific Research. (46)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of strategies for eliminating and preventing child labor in the National Migration Strategy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
MSWFSD's Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children in Morocco (PPIPEM)	Promotes an interdisciplinary approach to respond to child exploitation and other issues. (4; 5; 6) In 2017, conducted an informational workshop on program activities and training on social standards for implementing partners; developed terms of reference for technical support to promote good parenting; and developed terms of reference to raise awareness of the 2016 Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers, specifically the implications for domestic workers between ages 16 and 18. (54; 62; 46)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Migration Strategy. (2; 4; 63; 64; 65)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in Morocco aim to reduce child labor by increasing access to education, providing livelihood and other social services, and improving the evidence base on child labor and forced labor through data collection and research. These projects include Promise Pathways: Reducing Child Labor Through Viable Paths in Education and Decent Work (2014–2017), a $5 million project implemented by Creative Associates International; Wad3éyati (My Situation: Promoting Gender Equality in the Workplace), a $1.25 million project implemented by Management Systems International; and Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues, implemented in approximately 40 countries by the ILO. (4; 54; 66; 67) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	MSWFS program that provides direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria. Aims to increase school enrollment and reduce dropout rates, particularly in rural areas, with 832,500 recipients in 2015–2016 and 509,475 recipients in 2016–2017. (4; 53; 55; 68; 12) The cash transfer program enabled a significant improvement in school participation and a modest improvement in test scores. (69; 70)
Entraide Nationale†	Aims to prevent child labor by improving school retention rates, particularly for girls in rural areas. Provides social services and manages education and literacy programs in MSWFS's social protection centers in Dar al Atfal , Dar Talib , and Dar Taliba . Offers two education, training, and integration programs for vulnerable children: Education and Training Centers and Apprenticeship Training Programs. (30; 54) Entraide Nationale manages 22 Child Protection Centers, providing the following services: preventive intervention; personal, social, and educational support; prevention of situations of vulnerability; emergency response; and violence prevention and early intervention. In 2017, recruited 140 child protection advisors for the centers and provided five capacity-building training sessions. (54; 46)
Government-Funded Shelters†	Government-operated shelters. Child Protection Centers operated by the Ministry of Youth and Sport to provide social and educational services to minors referred by the courts and for victims of abuse, child laborers, and street children; and under the National Observatory for Children's Rights, operates 96 Child Reception Centers staffed by nurses and social workers at major hospitals to provide medical services to victims of violence and child trafficking. (56; 71) In 2017, continued activities at shelters focusing on improved coordination and services to victims. (12)
After-School Program for a Second Chance (E2C)†	Provides students with afterschool educational assistance as part of non-formal education program. During the 2016–2017 school year, enrolled 61,889 students and provided an education integration component for 460 migrant children. (5; 46)
USAID-Funded Projects to Address Child Labor	USAID projects in Morocco aim to increase the social and economic inclusion of at-risk youth (ages 10–24) living in the marginalized neighborhoods of Tangier and Tetouan. Includes Favorable Opportunities to Reinforce Self-Advancement for Today's Youth (FORSATY) (2012–2017), a $12.77 million project implemented by Search for Common Ground. (56)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (2; 4; 5; 6; 56; 54; 46)

Although the government has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including for children engaged in forced domestic work. (4; 30; 72; 46)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Morocco (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws prohibit children from being used, procured, or offered for the production and trafficking of illicit drugs.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children who are self-employed, work for artisan and handicraft businesses with fewer than five employees, or work on private farms or in residences.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under 18 that may be undertaken in conditions that harm children's health, safety, and morals are comprehensive.	2016 – 2017
	Implement regulations related to the Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers.	2017
Enforcement	Publish information on the funding of the Labor Inspectorate, the number of inspections conducted at worksites, and the number of child labor penalties imposed and collected.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor to meet the ILO technical advice, and ensure adequate Labor Inspectorate resources.	2012 – 2017
	Streamline child labor enforcement procedures among government agencies.	2013 – 2017
	Publish information on the initial training for new criminal law enforcement investigators.	2012 – 2017
	Increase penalties for employers who use children in hazardous work.	2012 – 2017
	Publish information on the number of investigations, violations found, and convictions pertaining to child labor.	2017
Government Policies	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017
	Continue integration of strategies for eliminating and preventing child labor into National Migration Strategy policy.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Take measures to ensure children's safety in schools; remove barriers to education, especially for children with disabilities, rural children, and migrant children; and increase birth registration rates.	2013 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem, including in forced domestic work.	2013 – 2017
	Collect and publish microdata on the extent and nature of child labor so that it can be used to inform policies and programs.	2016 – 2017

Mozambique

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Mozambique made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted a list of hazardous activities that are prohibited for children and approved a National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor. However, children in Mozambique engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of tobacco. The law establishes 15 as the minimum age for work, but education is compulsory only until age 13, leaving children ages 13 and 14 vulnerable to child labor. Law enforcement officials also do not receive the appropriate training and resources to conduct inspections and prosecute cases of child labor. In addition, existing programs are inadequate to address child labor in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Mozambique engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work. (1; 2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of tobacco. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mozambique.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.5 (1,526,560)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	69.5
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		48.4

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of cashews, coconuts, cotton, sesame, sugarcane, tea, tobacco, and tomatoes (5; 6; 7; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 1)
	Fishing, including preparing nets (7; 9; 1)
	Forestry, activities unknown (7; 1)
	Herding livestock, including cattle (9; 1)
Industry	Mining,† including gold and gemstones† (9; 12; 14; 15; 16; 17; 18; 19; 20; 1)
	Construction, † including crushing stone† and making bricks† (9; 17)
Services	Domestic work, including caring for babies and other children† (5; 6; 9; 11; 14; 21; 19; 20; 1)
	Street work, including car washing, street vending, and garbage scavenging† (7; 9; 10; 11; 12; 21; 20; 22; 23; 1)
	Selling alcoholic beverages in markets† (11; 22)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9; 12; 17; 24; 2; 25; 1)
	Forced labor in agriculture, domestic work, mining, and vending, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9; 10; 14; 15; 2)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking, stealing, and assisting poachers in the illegal poaching industry (9; 11; 1)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Mozambican children, lured from rural areas with promises of work and educational opportunities, are subjected to forced domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation in urban areas in Mozambique and South Africa. (10; 14; 2) Research indicates that Mozambican children are also trafficked to South Africa for forced labor in agriculture, street vending, and commercial sexual exploitation. (10; 2)

Although tuition for primary education is free, families must provide supplies and uniforms. (26) Moreover, there are not enough schools, and many students, particularly in rural areas, face difficulties traveling long distances to get to school. (27; 28; 29) In addition, physical and sexual abuse is common in schools. Research found that some teachers demand sex from female students. (30; 26)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Mozambique has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Mozambique's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Article 26 of the Labor Law; Article 4 of the Regulations on Domestic Work (31; 32)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 23 of the Labor Law (32)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes	18	Hazardous Work List (33)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 5 and 10–11 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Articles 196 and 198 of the Penal Code (34; 35)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 5 and 10–11 of the Trafficking in Persons Law (34)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 5 and 10–11 of the Trafficking in Persons Law; Articles 226–227 of the Penal Code (34; 35)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 33 and 40 of the Law on Drugs (36)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 2 of the Law on Military Service (37)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 23 of the Law on Military Service (37)
Non-state	Yes		Articles 5 and 10 of the Trafficking in Persons Law (34)
Compulsory Education Age	No	13‡	Article 41 of the Law of Basic Child Protection (38)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 41 of the Law of Basic Child Protection (38)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (38; 39)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In October 2017, the government approved a list of dangerous work prohibited for children. (33)

The Regulations on Domestic Work allow children ages 12 to 15 to conduct domestic work with the permission of their legal guardian. (31) The Labor Law also states that children ages 12 to 15 may work under certain conditions defined by the Council of Ministers. (32) The minimum age of 12 for light work is not in compliance with international standards; the law does not determine the activities in which light work may be permitted, prescribe the number of hours per week for light work, or specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken. (39) In addition, the Labor Law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working outside of formal employment relationships. (32; 39; 40)

The gap between the end of compulsory education and the minimum age for work leaves children ages 13 and 14 vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms, because they are not in school, but they also may not legally work. (39)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security	Enforce child labor laws and regulations. (41) Labor Inspectorate works with the National Police Force to enforce criminal law. (7) Monitors implementation of the National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (42)
Ministry of Industry and Trade's General Inspectorate of Economic Activities	Enforce child labor laws and regulations. (43) In 2017, the Inspectorate for Economic Activities fined clubs in Manica province for allowing girls under age 18 to enter the clubs and engage in commercial sexual exploitation. (44)
National Police Force	Enforce all criminal laws, including those related to the worst forms of child labor. The criminal investigation branch has a seven-person unit devoted to anti-human trafficking and violence against women and children; investigates cases and refers them to the Attorney General's Office. (7)
Attorney General's Office	Coordinate the government's efforts against human trafficking and receive cases from the criminal investigation branch of the National Police Force for prosecution. (7; 45)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Mozambique took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (43)	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspectors	Unknown	Unknown
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (43)	Yes (18)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (46)	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A	Yes (47)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (18)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (43)	Unknown
Number Conducted at Worksites	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown	Unknown
Routine Inspections Conducted	Unknown	Yes (18)

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (cont)

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown	Unknown
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (43)	Yes (18)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown	Unknown
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (43)	Yes (18)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (43)	Yes (18)

Reports indicate that the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Mozambique's workforce, which includes approximately 13 million workers. (2; 18; 48) According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Mozambique would employ about 325 labor inspectors. (49) Furthermore, inadequate training and financial resources hamper the Labor Inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (2)

Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security officials can refer victims of child labor to either the police or social workers from the Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action (MGCAS) for family assessments and potential placement of the children in foster homes. (50)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Mozambique took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (18)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (51)	Unknown
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (43)	Yes (18)

Research found that law enforcement officials responsible for investigating and prosecuting criminal child labor cases are poorly trained. (9) Case investigations are of very low quality and lack appropriate evidence for prosecution. (7)

Criminal law enforcement officials work with the MGCAS and the National Reference Group for the Protection of Children and Combating Trafficking in Persons to coordinate referrals of children to social service providers. (18)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the efficacy of coordination efforts on child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Reference Group for the Protection of Children and Combating Trafficking in Persons	Coordinate efforts to combat all forms of human trafficking. Led by the Attorney General's Office. (52) Provincial-level groups coordinate regional efforts to combat human trafficking. (2) Research was unable to determine accomplishments during the year.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission on Children's Rights	Oversee and report on children's rights in Mozambique to the African Charter and other international bodies. Perform consultations and deliberations on national action plans and legislation. Led by the Ministry of Gender, Children, and Social Action (MGCAS). (50) Research was unable to determine accomplishments during the year.
The Ministry of Interior's Women and Children Victim Assistance Units (GAMC)	Provide services to children who have been victims of crimes, including human trafficking. Operates countrywide through facilities in more than 215 police stations. (53; 2) Research was unable to determine accomplishments during the year.
MGCAS	Provide support and reintegration services to victims of human trafficking. (45) Research was unable to determine accomplishments during the year.

Research found there is no coordination mechanism dedicated solely to address child labor, outside of the scope of human trafficking.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2017–2022)†	Aims to map 70 percent of the worst forms of child labor occurring by province and activity by 2019, and to withdraw 20,000 children from the worst forms of child labor and enroll them in the Basic Social Subsidy program. (42)
National Action Plan for Children II (2013–2019)	Establishes four priority areas: child survival; child development; child participation; and child protection, which aims to reduce child labor. (54)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (55)

In 2017, the government drafted a National Action Plan on Trafficking in Persons. (47)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (GAP)	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries to support the priorities of the Roadmap for Achieving the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor by 2016 established by the Hague Global Child Labor Conference in 2010. (56) In 2017, completed a draft report on the analysis of national child labor data from the Integrated Household Survey; however, the government has not yet published the study's findings. Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Trafficking in Persons Project (2014–2017)	$750,000 USDOS-funded, 3 year project implemented by the IOM to support the establishment and institutionalization of services for victims of human trafficking. (57)
Basic Social Subsidy Program†	Government- and donor-funded program that provides cash transfers to children heads of households until age 18. (7; 58)
Programs For Street Children†	Government and civil society operate 176 shelter centers that provide education, occupational training activities, health, and psychosocial care for street children. (58; 59)
Victims of Violence Centers†	Government-funded program implemented by the GAMC that provides temporary shelter, food, limited counseling, and monitoring for victims of crime following reintegration. Includes 22 centers located throughout the country. (45; 2)
Speak Child-116	NGO-funded program that works with the government to run a hotline to receive complaints of child abuse, including those related to child labor and sexual exploitation. (40) Research found that the hotline lacks adequate equipment and human resources and has not received sufficient support from the government to respond to complaints. (60; 18)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (61; 62)

Research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs to assist children engaged in domestic work. The scope of existing programs is also insufficient to fully address the extent of the child labor problem.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Mozambique (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children are protected under the law, including children working outside of formal employment relationships.	2015 – 2017
	Raise the minimum age for light work to age 13 to comply with international standards. Establish the activities, number of hours per week, and conditions under which light work may be undertaken.	2015 – 2017
	Raise the age of compulsory education to be consistent with the minimum age for employment.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Make law enforcement information publicly available, including the Labor Inspectorate's funding, the number and training of labor inspectors, the number and type of labor inspections conducted, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of child labor penalties imposed and collected, as well as the training of investigators responsible for enforcing laws related to the worst forms of child labor and the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions achieved.	2009 – 2017
	Allocate sufficient resources for law enforcement agencies, including by increasing the number of labor inspectors to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2009 – 2017
	Provide labor inspectors with adequate training on child labor and provide adequate training to criminal law enforcement officials to ensure that violators are prosecuted.	2009 – 2017
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure coordination mechanisms related to child labor are active during the year.	2017
Social Programs	Take measures to ensure that all children have access to education by providing supplies and establishing an adequate number of schools. Take preventative steps to protect children from physical and sexual abuse in schools.	2010 – 2017
	Make the results of the child labor study publicly available and use the findings to inform policies and programs.	2015 – 2017
	Increase support for the Speak Child-116 hotline to ensure that child labor complaints are investigated.	2016 – 2017
	Institute programs to address child labor in domestic work and expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2010 – 2017

In 2017, Namibia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government ratified the Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention and issued a notice instructing the Wages Commission to investigate and report on the conditions of employment for child domestic workers. The government also launched an online platform to receive reports of child pornography and remove child pornographic material from the Internet. However, children in Namibia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in cattle herding. Hazardous work prohibitions for children in the agriculture sector are not comprehensive. In addition, social programs do not address child labor in agriculture.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Namibia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in cattle herding. (1; 2; 3; 4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Namibia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		86.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2013, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2016. (5) Data were unavailable from Understanding Children’s Work Project’s analysis, 2018. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Tending and herding livestock, including cattle, sheep, and goats (1; 7; 8; 9)
Services	Domestic work (8; 10; 11; 12)
	Working in bars ( shebeens ) (8; 13)
	Street work, including selling candies, fruits, handicrafts, and cell phone air time vouchers (14; 9; 3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (15; 3)
	Forced labor in agriculture, cattle herding, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8; 16; 15; 3)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children are trafficked within Namibia for forced labor in agriculture, cattle herding, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation. San children are particularly vulnerable to forced labor on farms or in homes. (15; 3) Some Angolan children are trafficked into Namibia for forced labor in cattle herding. (4; 3) The government has not collected and published data on child labor, including its worst forms, to inform policies and social programs.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Namibia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Namibia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of a comprehensive hazardous work list for children's work in the agriculture sector.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Chapter 2, Article 3(2) of the Labor Act (17)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 15(2) of the Constitution; Chapter 2, Article 3(4) of the Labor Act (17; 18)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Chapter 2, Articles 3(3)(d) and 4 of the Labor Act; Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (17; 19)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 9 of the Constitution; Chapter 2, Article 4 of the Labor Act; Section 15 of the Prevention of Organized Crime Act; Articles 202 and 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (17; 18; 19; 20)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 15 of the Prevention of Organized Crime Act; Sections 202 and 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (19; 20)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 2 of the Combating of Immoral Practices Act Amendment Act; Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (19; 21)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 234 of the Child Care and Protection Act (19)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Section 17 of the General Regulations relating to Namibian Defence Force (Defence Act of 2010) (22)
Non-state	Yes	18	Section 234(1)(b) of the Child Care and Protection Act (19)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 53 of the Education Act (23)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 38 of the Education Act (23)

* No conscription (24)

In December 2017, the government passed the Education Amendment Act, which amended the Education Act to provide that tuition, books, materials and examination fees are provided free of charge through the completion of secondary education. In 2018, the government also passed the Combatting of Trafficking in Persons Act, but it has not yet taken effect. (25; 26) During the reporting period, the government ratified the Protocol of 2014 to the Forced Labor Convention, becoming the 21st country to do so. (27) In February 2017, the Minister of Labor issued a notice mandating the Wages Commission to investigate the conditions of employment of domestic workers throughout Namibia, including to investigate and make recommendations on a minimum wage for child domestic workers, measures that would ensure they have access to education and training, and the types of domestic work that are likely to harm children. (28)

Although there are hazardous work prohibitions for children, these prohibitions do not specifically include hazardous work in livestock herding. In addition, research has shown that livestock herding activities can expose children to unsafe environments such as extreme temperatures. (29) The Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations and Employment Creation (MLIREC) reported that in 2013 it drafted additional hazardous work prohibitions, but these still await final approval. (14; 30; 31)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MLIREC that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Industrial Relations and Employment Creation (MLIREC)	Enforce child labor laws and investigate allegations of violations, including forced labor, and cases involving human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Work with the Ministry of Safety and Security (MSS); Ministry of Gender, Equality, and Child Welfare (MGECW); Namibia Central Intelligence Service; and Ministry of Education on child labor matters. (1; 10) Lead these ministries in joint inspection teams. (1; 10)
MSS	Enforce criminal laws and conduct site visits with labor inspectors. (1; 10) Handle enforcement through the Namibian Police. (10)
MGECW	Collaborate with the Namibian Police's Gender Based Violence Protection Units (GBVPU) on cases involving human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (10; 32) Remove children from child labor situations during inspections, and transfer them to a regional GBVPU to receive assistance from MGECW social workers. (32)
Joint Child Labor Inspection Committee	Coordinate activities to enforce child labor laws. Committee includes MLIREC, MSS, and MGECW. (1) Refer children identified during labor inspections to MGECW social workers or to an MGECW shelter for care. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Namibia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MLIREC that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including its lack of authority to assess penalties for violations.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$4,950,000† (33)	$2,384,000 (34)

† Data are from January 1, 2016, to December 31, 2016.

Namibia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The Ministry of Gender, Equality, and Child Welfare's (MGECW) shelters to house victims of the worst forms of child labor are not operational. (34) Research also indicates that the MLIREC primarily conducts inspections in the formal agricultural sector and in urban areas, leaving self-employed children and children working in remote rural areas unprotected. (8) Sources also reported that although inspectors have the legal authority to inspect private farms, they often encounter difficulties accessing the farms due to locked gates. (8; 35)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Namibia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the Ministry of Safety and Security and the Namibian Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation and prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown* (33)	Unknown* (34)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown* (33)	Unknown* (34)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown* (33)	Yes (34)
Number of Investigations	Unknown* (33)	Unknown* (34)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown* (33)	Unknown* (34)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown* (33)	Unknown* (34)
Number of Convictions	Unknown* (30)	Unknown* (34)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (33)	Yes (34)

* The government does not publish this information.

The Namibian Police operate a toll-free hotline to report crimes, including child trafficking. An NGO operates another hotline for victims of gender-based violence and child exploitation to access information about available resources and get referrals to relevant government social services providers. (33) Research could not find information about the number of complaints concerning child labor, including its worst forms, received through the Namibian Police toll-free hotline.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Inter-Ministerial Committee on Child Labor	Coordinate government policies and efforts to combat child labor. Comprises officials from the MLIREC, the Ministry of Education (MOE), the MGECW, the MSS, and the Office of the Ombudsman. (31) Met in 2017 to discuss roles and responsibilities of participating agencies. (4) Reported reviving its purpose in November but did not report conducting actions during the year. (34)
GBVPU	Provide victim protection services to children rescued from the worst forms of child labor. Comprises 15 units that arrange lodging, medical, and psychosocial care for victims. (30) Consist of personnel from the MLIREC, Ministry of Home Affairs and Immigration, Namibian Police, MGECW, and MOE. (10) Research was unable to determine whether services were provided to victims of child labor during the year.
Child Care and Protection Forums	Organize forums to address child protection issues and coordinate services in the country. Participants include 14 regional councils, MGECW social workers, government agencies, NGOs, community leaders, churches, and other local-level stakeholders. (10) Met several times during the year. (36)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the continuing lack of a child labor policy.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2010–2017)	Outlined strategies to promote decent work in Namibia. Prioritized employment promotion, enhanced social protections, and strengthened social dialogue and tripartism. Outcomes included the reduction of forced labor and child labor cases. (37)
National Development Plan V (2017/2018–2021/2022)	Includes goals for addressing child trafficking and protection concerns. (38)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (39)

Namibia currently has no child labor policy, but the MGECW worked to finalize a National Agenda for Children, slated for implementation in 2018. (34). In addition, the National Plan of Action on Gender Based Violence was not renewed in 2017. Despite this, the government continued 16 days of the international awareness campaign against gender-based violence. (36) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies are not integrated into the National Agenda for Children, the National Protection Referral Network, or the Education for All National Plan of Action. (40; 41; 42) Research was unable to determine whether the government undertook activities to implement the Decent Country Work Program and the National Development Plan V during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (2011–2017)	USDOL-funded program implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries to support the priorities of the Roadmap for Achieving the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor by 2016, a project established by The Hague Global Child Labor Conference in 2010. Aims to build government capacity and develop strategic policies to eliminate child labor and strengthen legal protections and social services for child domestic workers. (43) The program drafted a National Action Plan on Child Labor and Domestic Work in 2016, but the government has yet to adopt it. (43) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Combatting Human Trafficking Initiative (2016–2019)	USDOS-funded 3-year project implemented by the IOM, in collaboration with the Namibian government, to combat trafficking in persons. (44) Under this initiative, passed the Combatting of Trafficking in Persons Act. (36)
Namibian School Feeding Program †	Government program that provides mid-morning meals to school children. (45) Serves 330,000 pre-primary and primary school students in 1,400 schools in all 14 regions. (36)
National Youth Service †	Government program that offers training in civic education, national voluntary service, and job skills to unemployed youth, some of whom have never attended school. (45) According to the national budget estimates for fiscal years 2018 and 2019, allocated N$74.4 million (~USD $6 million) for 2017–2018, down 34 percent from N$112 million (~USD $9 million) for the previous year. According to NGOs, includes skills building programs for youth. (36)
Shelters and victim services †	Six government-established shelters for women and children assist victims of sexual assault, gender-based violence, and the worst forms of child labor. (10) Did not operate in 2017 due to lack of funding. (34) The Government, however, provided an N$26,000 (USD $2,000) per month subsidy to an NGO that provided shelter services and social workers to gender-based violence and human trafficking victims. (46; 34)

In 2017, the MGECW, in partnership with UNICEF and Childline, launched a reporting portal to receive anonymous reports of images and videos depicting child sexual abuse. The portal also aids in removing pornographic images of children from the internet. (47; 48) In 2017, the UK-based Internet Watch Foundation reported they found no pornographic materials involving Namibian children. (36) The government also launched an e-birth notification system to register children at birth. (49)

Although the Government of Namibia provided assistance to vulnerable children and services to some victims of child labor, research found no evidence of programs specifically addressing children working in agriculture or domestic work.

VI. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Namibia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive.	2014 – 2017
Enforcement	Authorize the Inspectorate to assess child labor penalties.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure labor inspectors can access all types of businesses to fulfill their inspection mandates.	2017
	Ensure inspections occur in all sectors to provide minimum age law protections to all children, including those who are self-employed and children working in the informal sector.	2016 – 2017
	Publish information about refresher trainings, the number of criminal investigations conducted, number of violations found, number of prosecutions initiated, and number of convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2017
Government Policies	Establish a National Child Labor Policy.	2017
	Renew key policies such as the National Plan of Action on Gender Based Violence.	2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2013 – 2017
	Publish information about the implementation of the Decent Country Work Program and the National Development Plan V.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Adopt and implement the National Action Plan on Child Labor and Domestic Work.	2017
	Conduct research on the prevalence of child labor to inform the development of policies and social programs.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure shelters are operational to care for to victims of child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Institute programs to address child labor in agriculture and domestic work.	2009 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Nepal made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the Labor Act, which prohibits forced labor and sets penalties for forced labor violations. The government also began implementing a child labor monitoring system in Panauti Municipality and implemented the first nationally representative survey examining forced labor among adult and child workers. However, children in Nepal engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of bricks. The Department of Labor's budget, the number of labor inspectors, and available resources and training are all insufficient for adequately enforcing labor laws, including those related to child labor. Children age 17 are also excluded from the protections of the country's hazardous work list, leaving them vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the government lacks a policy that addresses all relevant forms of child labor, including hazardous child labor, forced child labor, and the use of children in illicit activities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nepal engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in the production of bricks. (1; 2; 3). Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nepal.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	37.2
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	91.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	39.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		112.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Labor Force Survey, 2014. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including harvesting caterpillar fungus ( yarsagumba ) (6; 7; 8)
	Herding and feeding livestock (6; 9; 10)
Industry	Producing bricks (11; 6; 10; 12; 13; 14; 15; 16; 1; 17)
	Quarrying, collecting, and breaking stones, and quarrying and collecting sand (6; 8; 7)
	Construction,† activities unknown (8; 10; 18; 19)
	Weaving carpet† (6; 10; 20; 21; 22)
	Producing embellished textiles ( zari )† and embroidery (6; 7; 10; 23; 19)
	Producing metal crafts (7; 8; 10; 3)
Services	Domestic work (6; 10; 24; 25; 26; 27)
	Working in transportation,† portering, and collecting recyclable waste (6; 8; 10; 18)
	Working in hotels,† restaurants,† and tea shops (6; 8; 18)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (6; 2)
	Forced labor in embellishing textiles ( zari ), weaving carpets, and domestic work (21; 26; 2; 3; 19)
	Forced labor in agriculture, producing bricks, quarrying, and breaking stones (2; 7; 14; 28; 29; 3)
	Use in illicit activities, including the cultivation and trafficking of drugs (8; 3)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation both within and outside Nepal, including to India, the Middle East, Asia, and Sub-Saharan Africa. (6; 30; 31; 32; 2; 19) Many children in Nepal are engaged in the production of bricks, which exposes them to hazardous working conditions, including carrying heaving loads, using dangerous machinery, and working in extreme heat. (1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nepal has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nepal's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including with the lack of a minimum age for hazardous work that is consistent with international standards.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Section 3(1) of the Child Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act (33)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the government passed the Labor Act, which prohibits the employment of persons in forced labor. The Act sets penalties for forced labor offenders of up to two years of imprisonment or a fine of up to five hundred thousand rupees (approximately $4,500) or both. (36; 3; 19)

The minimum age for hazardous work is not consistent with international standards as it does not prohibit 17 year old children from engaging in hazardous work. (33; 43) The types of hazardous work prohibited for children also do not include brick-making, a sector in which there is evidence that work involves carrying heavy loads and exposure to hazardous substances. (11; 33)

Laws related to child trafficking are insufficient because they do not clearly criminalize recruitment, harboring or receipt, or transportation in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. (44) The legal framework also does not explicitly prohibit the use of a child in the production of child pornography. (37) In addition, the legal framework prohibiting the use of children in illicit activities is insufficient as it does not prohibit the use of children in the production of drugs or extend to children who are 17 years of age. (37)

While the Constitution prohibits the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups, there is no specific legislation penalizing this practice. (39; 45; 41) Children in Nepal are required to attend school only up to age 13. (39; 42) This standard makes children age 13 vulnerable to child labor as they are not required to attend school but are not legally permitted to work.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Nepal impeded the enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor, Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security (MLESS)	Enforce labor laws, including those involving child labor. Investigate and hold hearings in 10 District Labor Offices. (46) In March 2018, the Ministry of Labor and Employment was re-named as the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security. (47)
Nepal Police Women and Children Service Directorate	Investigate crimes involving women and children, including human trafficking. Conduct work through the Nepal Police Women and Children Service Centers in all 77 districts. (48) The Nepal Police handle complaints received about child labor in districts without a District Labor Office. (46)
Ministry of Land Reform and Management	Enforce laws that prohibit bonded labor in agriculture. (3)
Child Protection Officers and Investigators, Department of Women and Children	Investigate and manage cases involving violations of children's rights through 22 child protection officers and 53 child protection inspectors. (49; 50)
Monitoring Action Committees, Ministry of Women, Children, and Senior Citizens (MWCS)	Investigate reports of commercial sexual exploitation at the district level, including the exploitation of children in the adult entertainment sector. (51)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Nepal impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

* The government does not publish this data.

The Gorkha earthquake in 2015 impacted the government's ability to conduct labor inspections among other activities and resulted in a lower number of inspections conducted from July 2015 to July 2016. (3) Department of Labor officials noted that they lacked the resources to collect and publish data on child labor law violations. They also noted that the budget was insufficient and had been decreased from the previous year. (8; 3) In addition, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the country's workforce, which includes over 15.6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in developing economies, Nepal would employ roughly 390 inspectors. (53; 54; 55) Although labor inspectors periodically receive training on child labor laws and inspection, this training does not necessarily adhere to any formal schedule. (46) In addition, the government and NGOs agreed that the fines and employer-paid compensation outlined in the Child Labor Act were not adequate as deterrents to child labor violations. (49; 3)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nepal took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with the enforcement of laws that prohibit bonded labor in agriculture.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017

* The government does not publish this data.

The government reported 89 victims of child trafficking from July 2016 to July 2017 and at least one current pending case of a child labor law violation. (3; 41) The government does not have the capacity to enforce laws prohibiting crimes related to the worst forms of child labor and does not maintain a centralized database of cases involving the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (56; 8)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Labor Relations, Child Labor Prevention, and Information Section	Coordinate policy-making on child labor inspection guidelines and monitor implementation of guidelines. (52; 57) Consists of a senior factory inspector, two labor officers, and a senior assistant in MLESS. Confers with MWCSC, Central Child Welfare Board, Department of Labor, and district labor offices. (52)
National Network Against Child Labor	Coordinate the referral of children who are found in child labor to social services. (58) Consists of District Labor Officers, District Women and Children Officers, officers from the Nepal Police Women and Children Service Centers, Chief District Officers, NGOs, and thousands of youth clubs. (48) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
National Coordination Committee on Human Trafficking	Coordinate the implementation of anti-human trafficking laws, policies, and programs at the central, district, and local levels of government. Led by MWCSC and consists of government officials and representatives of NGOs. (48; 51) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
National Human Rights Commission	Monitor and receive complaints on child rights violations. (50) Report on the status of human trafficking victims and coordinate with civil society organizations through the Office of the Special Rapporteur on Trafficking. (48; 50) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
Central Child Welfare Board, MWCSC	Coordinate with MOLESP and civil society to formulate and implement child protection and child labor-related policies. (50; 46) Receive and document complaints via national hotline, in coordination with NGOs. Maintain Central Emergency Fund intended for use in humanitarian support for children. (59)
District Child Welfare Boards	Report on child welfare activities, monitor child care homes, mobilize resources for children at risk, receive and respond to child protection cases, and establish mechanisms to refer children to social services. Consists of social workers, medical practitioners, and government officials. (50; 60)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Nepal has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with the lack of a policy designed to address other worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
School Sector Development Plan (2016/17–2022/23)	Aims to expand access to education and provide alternative schooling and non-formal education to vulnerable populations, including children who are out of school and at risk of entering the worst forms of child labor. Overseen by the Ministry of Education, Science and Technology. (3) In 2017, the government increased interventions in the five most disadvantaged districts in Nepal to provide education for out of school children. (47)
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2011–2022)	Promotes and protects the rights of human trafficking victims and survivors, and outlines policies for providing justice and punishing perpetrators. (61) In 2017, MWCSC completed a mid-term review of the plan, highlighting the need to revise the plan to better address forced labor and align with broader government efforts and structures. (41)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (3)

In 2017, Nepal made a pledge at the IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor held in Argentina to take initiatives on adopting the National Master Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor, amending the Child Labor (Prohibition and Regulation) Act, and conducting research on child labor and forced labor. (62) Although the government has a policy to address human trafficking, it does not have a policy to address other worst forms of child labor. In 2017, the National Planning Commission approved the National Master Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor and forwarded it the Cabinet, where it remains waiting for endorsement. (63; 3)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the Government of Nepal funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs including with barriers to education.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Green Flag Movement (2014–2017) †	ILO-funded, municipal government campaign to eliminate child labor. Includes child labor monitoring and awareness-raising activities. (64) In 2017, ILO provided assistance to six municipalities to assist in promotion of the Green Flag Movement. (65)
Child Helpline – 1098 †	MWCSC- and Child Workers in Nepal-funded helpline operated by the Nepal Telecommunications Authority. (49) Responds to calls about missing children, child abuse, child labor, child trafficking, and child sexual abuse in 13 districts and municipalities in Nepal, as well as in Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. (66; 49; 46) In 2017, the helpline remained active and received 1,857 calls, including 160 related to child labor. (3; 67)
Country-Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor II (CLEAR II) (2014–2018)	USDOL-funded capacity-building project implemented by Winrock International and partners Verité and Lawyers Without Borders in at least eight countries to build the local and national capacity of the government to address child labor. (63) During the reporting period, the program partnered with the government to train labor inspectors, prosecutors, and government personnel on child labor cases, and began implementing a Child Labor Monitoring System in the Panauti Municipality. (63) Additional Information is available on the USDOL website.
From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project) (2015–2019)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by the ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at combating forced labor of adults and children under the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting Recommendation to ILO C. 29 on Forced Labor. Includes Mauritania, Nepal, and Peru as priority countries. (68) During the reporting period, the project supported the implementation of the first nationally representative survey examining forced labor among adult and child workers. (68) Additional Information is available on the USDOL website.
Decent Work Country Program, Nepal (2013–2017)	ILO, MLESS, Federation of Nepalese Chambers of Commerce and Industry, and Nepal Trade Union Congress-implemented program. (69) Provide technical and financial assistance to implement the provisions of ratified conventions on child labor, strengthen MLESS's child labor monitoring and reporting systems for prevention and early detection, support the mapping of community service providers, and assist the government in revising a hazardous child labor list. (69) In 2017, project assisted the government in the passage of the recent Labor Act among other activities. (65)
Combating Trafficking in Persons (CTIP) Project (2010–2017)	$9.1 million, USAID-funded project to reduce human trafficking and protect the rights of victims. Strengthen protection services for survivors of human trafficking, build the capacity of the judiciary and law enforcement agencies to enforce legal measures and increase prosecutions, and prevent human trafficking by building awareness among groups that are vulnerable to human trafficking for purposes of labor and sexual exploitation. (8; 49; 70) In 2017, undertook efforts to address a range of areas from assistance in the launching of the fifth national trafficking in persons report to judicial outreach programs and the digitization of court cases. (3)
Support for Schools †	MLESS program that supports schools for children ages 5–16 who are at risk of working in the worst forms of child labor. Provides scholarships to cover associated schooling costs for children outside the Kathmandu Valley to attend a local public school, and works with local NGOs to verify that children are attending class. (8) In 2017, MLESS provided support to five schools in the Kathmandu area for children at risk of child labor. (56)
Hamro Samman (Our Respect)* (2017–2022)	USAID-funded project, implemented by Winrock International, to strengthen national and local efforts to combat trafficking in persons, improve civil society advocacy and engagement, and increase private sector partnerships to empower survivors. (3) During the reporting period, the project continued to work with the government to establish formal agreements to enable implementation of the project. (71; 72)
UNICEF Nepal Country Program (2013–2017)	UNICEF-funded program that supports the government's efforts to ensure children's access to education, health care, nutrition, sanitation, hygiene, safe water, and protection among other services. (73; 74) In 2017, an evaluation was undertaken to identify the lessons learned in order to apply those to the 2018-2022 UNICEF Country Program. (73)

Some children, particularly girls, face barriers to accessing education due to lack of sanitation facilities, geographic distance, and costs associated with schooling. (75; 3) Children with disabilities face additional barriers to accessing education. (76; 3)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nepal (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that laws are in line with ILO C. 182 by raising the minimum age for entry into hazardous work to 18.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive and include sectors where there is evidence of child labor, including brickmaking.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the legal framework comprehensively criminally prohibits the trafficking of children in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law explicitly criminalizes the use of children in the production of child pornography.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use of children through age 17 in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Provide sufficient resources for the collection, storage, and publication of data on labor and criminal law enforcement actions including the number of violations, prosecutions, and convictions related to child labor, in addition to a centralized database to track and monitor cases of the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the Department of Labor's budget is sufficient to adequately enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors trained and responsible for providing enforcement of child labor laws.	2010 – 2017
	Increase penalties to ensure sufficient deterrence of child labor law violations.	2015 – 2017
	Provide additional resources to criminal law enforcement agencies so that they are able to enforce laws prohibiting crimes related to the worst forms of child labor.	2011 – 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating routine inspections rather than performing inspections solely based on complaints received.	2017
Coordination	Publish information on activities undertaken by coordinating bodies.	2017
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation of children, forced labor of children, and use of children in illicit activities.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Eliminate barriers to education, especially for children with disabilities, including the lack of sanitation facilities at schools, long distances to schools, and fees associated with schooling.	2013 – 2017

In 2017, Nicaragua made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate child labor. The government found child labor infractions and removed children from worksites. It initiated prosecutions of cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children and sentenced two individuals for child pornography charges. However, children in Nicaragua engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. National policies to eliminate child labor and protect children have not been fully implemented, and the government lacks a specific and consistent mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor. In addition, the government does not dedicate adequate resources to labor enforcement on child labor and does not publish complete criminal law enforcement data on child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nicaragua engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1; 2; 3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nicaragua.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	47.7 (342,076)
Attending School (%)	10 to 14	88.3
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	40.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		85.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2010, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Encuesta Continua de Hogares (ECH) Survey, 2012. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting coffee, bananas, tobacco,† and sugarcane (1; 6; 7; 8; 9; 3)
	Raising livestock (10; 11)
	Collecting shellfish† (10; 12)
Industry	Construction,† including transporting materials (10; 11)
	Quarrying† of pumice and limestone, and mining† of gold (10; 3; 13)
	Production of gravel (crushed stones)† (14; 15; 16; 17)
Services	Domestic work (10; 6)
	Work in transportation† and as couriers† (10)
	Street work, including vending,† washing car windshields, and performing at stoplights† (18; 19; 20; 21; 10; 3)
	Garbage scavenging† (20; 22)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and use in the production of pornography (2; 23; 10)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (24; 25)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (25)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In Nicaragua, children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, particularly in Granada, Managua, the Caribbean autonomous regions, and San Juan del Sur. (23; 26) Children in Nicaragua who lack identification documents, sometimes due to a lack of birth registration, may not have access to social services and are at an increased risk of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. (11) An estimated 15 percent of children born in Nicaragua lack birth certificates. (27) Although the government’s birth registration campaign is advancing, it does not reach all children, especially in remote areas. (28; 29; 30)

Education is free and compulsory in Nicaragua; however, costs associated with school supplies and transportation make it difficult for some children, particularly those from poor backgrounds and rural areas, to attend school. (31; 32; 33) Some sources indicate that investment in secondary schools has lagged behind investment in primary schools and that secondary school attendance remains low, increasing the risk that older children engage in exploitative work. (1; 34; 33)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nicaragua has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nicaragua’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 131 of the Labor Code; Article 73 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 84 of the Constitution (35; 36; 37; 38)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 130 and 133 of the Labor Code; Article 1 of Ministerial Agreement No. JCHG-08-06-10; Articles 2 and 74 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (35; 36; 37; 39)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 1–7 of Ministerial Agreement No. JCHG-08-06-10; Article 133 of the Labor Code (35; 39)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 40 of the Constitution; Articles 61–63 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 182–183, and 315 of the Penal Code (38; 40; 41)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 61–63 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 182–183 and 315 of the Penal Code (40; 41)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 61 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 175–183 of the Penal Code; Articles 5 and 26 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (37; 40; 41)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 61 of the Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 358–359 and 362 of the Penal Code; Article 71 of Law 285 (Reform to the Narcotics Law); Article 79 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (37; 40; 41; 42)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*		Article 96 of the Constitution (38)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Annex 1 of the Code on the Organization, Jurisdiction, and Social Welfare of the Military (43)
Non-state	Yes		Article 509 of the Penal Code; Article 95 of the Constitution (38; 40)
Compulsory Education Age	No	12‡	Article 121 of the Constitution; Articles 19 and 23 of the Education Law; Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (37; 38; 44)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 121 of the Constitution; Articles 8, 19, and 23 of the Education Law; Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (37; 38; 44)

* No conscription (38)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (37; 38; 44)

Nicaraguan law is not clear regarding the age up to which education is compulsory. Article 121 of the Constitution states that primary school education is compulsory, but it does not specify an age. (38) Under Articles 19 and 23 of the Education Law, education is compulsory only through the sixth grade, which it specifies is up to age 12 and the end of primary school. (44) Article 43 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code states that both primary and secondary school education are compulsory, suggesting up to age 17, but it does not specifically state an age. (37) The lack of clarity regarding the age up to which education is compulsory and the potential gap between the compulsory education age and the minimum age for work may leave children vulnerable to child labor, including its worst forms. (1)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MITRAB) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRAB)	Enforce labor laws and set child labor policy priorities. Conduct labor inspections through its General Labor Inspectorate, and conduct child labor inspections through its Child Labor Inspections Unit. (45) Conduct training on child labor issues and inspections. Maintain a mailbox in each of Nicaragua's 17 departments to receive complaints of child labor violations. (45)
Nicaraguan National Police (NNP)	Address cases of child labor and human trafficking through the Police Intelligence Unit, which detects crimes, and the Special Crimes Unit, which investigates crimes. Maintain a hotline for reporting violations of children's rights. (45; 46)
Ministry of Governance	Coordinate participation between MITRAB and the NNP in labor inspections in which employers resist inspection. (45)
Prosecutor General's Office	Prosecute cases of child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. Contains 2 national-level and 35 department-level prosecutors who prosecute these and other crimes. (45)
Human Rights Attorney for Children	Assist in the enforcement of laws related to child labor and hazardous child labor. (45)
Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN)	Maintain a hotline for receiving reports on human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation. Assist in providing officials with training on child labor violations. (47)

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (49)	Yes (10)

* The government does not publish this information.

‡ Data are from January 2017 to October 2017.

Insufficient resources hinder MITRAB's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (51; 10) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nicaragua's workforce, which includes approximately 3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nicaragua would employ about 203 inspectors. (52; 53; 54) In Nicaragua, many work in the informal sector and in rural areas; 97 labor inspectors is inadequate to cover the country's vulnerabilities to and magnitude of labor violations. (10)

Between January and October 2017, MITRAB conducted 13,617 labor inspections, of which 1,544 were specific to child labor. (10) The government reported finding 395 child labor infractions from these inspections. As a result, MITRAB removed 18 children from worksites. (10) NGOs found this number low compared to the severity of the problem. (10) Government officials and NGOs have reported that child labor inspections throughout the country, particularly in agricultural areas, are limited due to personnel constraints as well as insufficient transportation and other resources. (46)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nicaragua took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including a lack of publicly available enforcement data to inform monitoring and investigations of the worst forms of child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Number of Convictions	2 (49)	2 (10)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (47; 49)	Yes (10)

* The government does not publish this information. (10)

Research did not find the number of criminal investigators employed by the Nicaraguan National Police or Prosecutor General's Office during the reporting period. Other key enforcement information was similarly not published. (10) NGOs have reported that criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor do not adequately address the scope of the problem. (55) NGOs have also indicated that criminal law enforcement agencies lack sufficient financial resources to adequately carry out criminal investigations. (55; 56)

The Prosecutor General's Office initiated 12 prosecutions in 2017 on counts of sexual exploitation, pornography, and prostitution of minors. Two individuals were sentenced in 2017 for child pornography charges. (10) The first individual was sentenced to 6 years for possession of child pornography, and the second individual was sentenced to 1 year for selling child pornography. According to NGOs, these numbers are low compared to the prevalence of the crime. (10)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including financial resources.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Social Welfare System (SNBS)	Coordinate efforts on child labor and ensure that government institutions protect the rights of children and provide social services to them as part of its mandate to assist the Nicaraguan population. Comprises various government ministries, including MITRAB, MIFAN, the Ministry of Education (MINED), the Ministry of Health (MINSAs), and the Ministry of Governance. (51)
National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons (CNCTP)	Coordinate efforts to address human trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Led by the Ministry of Governance and comprises law enforcement agencies, the Supreme Court of Justice, and NGOs. (26)
Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood (MIFAN)	Maintain a guide for the provision of assistance to victims of commercial sexual exploitation and coordinate among agencies responsible for their care, as a part of the SNBS. (46)

NGOs reported that the National Welfare System (SNBS) does not have a specific and consistent coordinating mechanism due to limited coordination among constituent ministries and a lack of financial resources dedicated to combating child labor. (17; 46) In addition, coordination between the SNBS and NGOs that address child labor is limited. (47) Research did not find that the SNBS published information in 2017 on its child labor coordination efforts or how it monitored the implementation of national child labor policies. (50)

During the reporting period, NGOs working on human trafficking issues reported that the National Coalition Against Trafficking in Persons (CNCTP) did not meet with NGOs, despite being required to do so by law. (25; 26) Reports also indicated that the CNCTP did not appoint its Executive Secretariat, which is mandated by the Law Against Trafficking in Persons. (55; 25; 17) Although the Ministry of the Family, Adolescence, and Childhood maintains a guide for providing assistance to child victims of commercial sexual exploitation, reports indicated that the government had no formal procedures for the identification of human trafficking victims among high-risk populations, including children who are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation. (2; 57; 58)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

The government prevented independent monitoring of human rights issues, including child labor. (17) In November 2017, the government declared that Commissioner Esmeralda Arosemena, a rapporteur on the rights of children for the Inter-American Commission for Human Rights, was unwelcome in the country after being informed of her intended visit to participate in a civil society-led event on child labor. (10; 59)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation of the Roadmap for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor and the Coffee Harvest Plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Roadmap for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Sets the goal of eliminating the worst forms of child labor by 2016 and all forms of child labor by 2020. (1)
Good Government Plan	Sets development goals for government ministries, including MITRAB, MINED, and MINSa. Prioritizes human trafficking investigations; aims to protect children from commercial sexual exploitation; and commits to training teachers, creating 1,000 primary school teaching positions, and increasing access to education, including for indigenous and Afro-descendant children. (60)
Coffee Harvest Plan	Aims to assist children whose parents work in the coffee harvest in the Jinotega Department by improving their educational opportunities. Developed by the government in collaboration with the private sector and NGOs. (1)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (61)

There is no comprehensive action plan for the implementation of the Roadmap. (3) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the Coffee Harvest Plan or the Good Government Plan. In 2016, the CNCTP began drafting a new national action plan to combat human trafficking, but research was unable to determine whether the action plan was established or implemented in 2017. (55)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the scope of their operations.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Love Program ( Programa Amor )†	MIFAN program that supports vulnerable or impoverished children, including children involved in child labor, such as street work. Provides educational assistance for children and vocational training for parents. (45) Overseen by Nicaragua's Vice President in coordination with MINED, MINSa, MITRAB, and the Ministry of Governance. Includes children from birth to age 6 through the Love Program for the Smallest Ones. (45)
Educational Bridges ( Puentes Educativos )†	MITRAB and MINED public-private partnership that provides education to children of coffee workers to prevent child labor during coffee harvests. (62)
Integral School Meal Program ( Merienda Escolar )†	MIFAN and WFP initiative that provides children and adolescents with meals at school to address poverty and improve attendance. (46; 47) In 2017, the government reported that 1.2 million students nationwide benefitted from this program. (17)
National School Supply Program ( Paquete Escolar )†	MINED program that distributes packages of school supplies to preschool, primary, and secondary school children in the poorest districts to increase attendance and completion rates. (47) In 2017, the government reported that 625,772 students received book bags with school supplies, as well as a pair of school shoes, through the National School Supply Program. (17)
Birth Registration Campaign†	Government initiative, in coordination with Save the Children and UNICEF, to advance birth registration campaigns. (10; 28)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (49; 63; 64)

The scope of current social programs is not sufficient to assist children who are trafficked or engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation. (45) The government coordinates with NGOs to provide human trafficking victims with medical, educational, legal, and psychological assistance in NGO-run shelters. (26) NGOs indicate that the regions most affected by human trafficking lack adequate care facilities, and that children who are victims of trafficking in these areas are referred to NGO shelters in Managua. (58) The government does not report funding levels for or specific activities undertaken by the Love Program, and sources report that the program is underfunded. (45; 46; 51) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken to implement the Love Program, Educational Bridges, and the Birth Registration Campaign in 2017.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nicaragua (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law is consistent and provides a compulsory education age that is not less than the minimum age for work.	2014 – 2017
Enforcement	Dedicate more human and financial resources to the enforcement of child labor laws, particularly in agriculture, by increasing the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2009 – 2017
	Publish information on the refresher courses provided as training to labor inspectors.	2017
	Impose penalties and collect fines for child labor violations, and make this information publicly available.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on the number of children referred between labor authorities and social services.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on the number and training of criminal investigators employed to investigate the worst forms of child labor, and ensure that they have adequate resources to conduct their investigations.	2014 – 2017
	Publish complete information on the number of criminal investigations and violations related to the worst forms of child labor, and ensure that criminal law enforcement efforts are adequate to address the scope of the problem.	2014 – 2017
Coordination	Clarify the roles of SNBS ministries in addressing child labor; increase their collaboration and resources to ensure that the government has a specific and consistent mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor, including with NGOs; and publicly report on their efforts.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the CNCTP meets regularly to coordinate government activities on human trafficking issues, and ensure that it establishes its Executive Secretariat as mandated by the Law Against Trafficking in Persons.	2015 – 2017
	Enhance coordination and information sharing among actors involved in child labor issues and in efforts to identify and refer victims of child trafficking.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that independent monitors can report on human rights issues, including child labor.	2017
Government Policies	Finalize and implement a concrete action plan to achieve the objective of eliminating child labor by 2020.	2009 – 2017
	Publish information on efforts undertaken to implement the Coffee Harvest Plan and the Good Government Plan.	2017
	Make information publicly available on national plans that address human trafficking and publicly report on their implementation.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Expand birth registration programs, particularly in remote areas, to ensure that children have access to basic services.	2009 – 2017
	Develop strategies and devote resources to improve attendance of children in secondary school.	2009 – 2017
	Expand programs to address the worst forms of child labor in more sectors in which exploitative child labor exists, such as commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2017
	Dedicate greater resources to expand services that assist child trafficking victims.	2010 – 2017
	Assess the effectiveness of the Love Program in reducing the worst forms of child labor and publish its results to inform future efforts.	2010 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Niger made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government of Niger adopted a decree that increased the minimum age for hazardous work to 18 and expanded the number of hazardous occupations prohibited for children. The government also adopted the Plan for Social and Economic Development that includes activities to improve access to education for vulnerable populations, especially migrant children, and combat child street work and forced child begging. In addition, the government continued to participate in a number of programs targeting the worst forms of child labor, including a new program that aims to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. However, children in Niger engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and mining. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Existing child labor laws and regulations do not apply to children in unpaid or non-contractual work, and gaps in enforcement have left children unprotected from the worst forms of child labor. In addition, social programs to combat child labor in Niger are insufficient to adequately address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Niger engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in hereditary slavery and mining. (1; 2; 3; 4). Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (5; 6; 7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Niger.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	42.9 (2,516,191)
Attending School (%)	7 to 14	48.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	22.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		71.6

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey (DHS), 2012. (9)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of rice, fruits, nuts, and vegetables (5; 6; 3)
	Herding and caring for livestock, including cattle (6; 3; 7)
	Fishing (6)
Industry	Quarrying † and mining † for trona, salt, gypsum, natron, and gold (1; 2; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14)
	Mechanical repair, † welding, † and metal work † (15)
	Working in construction, † tanneries, † and slaughterhouses † (13; 16; 7)
Services	Street work, including as market vendors, beggars, ‡ and scavenging garbage (2; 16; 7)
	Domestic work (2; 3; 10; 7)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3; 4; 17; 18)
	Forced recruitment by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (4; 19; 7)
	Hereditary and caste-based slavery, including for cattle herding, agricultural work, domestic work, and sexual exploitation (3; 4; 17; 20; 21)
	Forced begging for Koranic teachers (2; 3; 4; 17; 21)
	Forced labor in domestic work and mining, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10; 22; 4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Niger, especially boys and girls from the Arab, Djerma, Peulh, Tuareg, and Toubou ethnic minorities, continue to be exploited as slaves and endure slave-like practices, particularly in distant western and northern regions and along the border with Nigeria. Some children are born into slavery, while others are born free, but remain in a dependent status and are forced to work with their parents for their former masters in exchange for food, money, and lodging. (23; 4; 3) A particular form of slavery in Niger is the wahaya practice, in which men buy girls born into slavery, typically between ages 9 and 11, as “fifth wives.” Child slaves, including those involved in the practice of wahaya, are forced to work long hours as cattle herders, agricultural workers, or domestic workers, and are often sexually exploited. (3; 10; 24; 20; 7; 4; 17; 18) As with those involved in hereditary slavery, the children of wahaya wives are considered slaves as well and are passed from one owner to another as gifts or as part of dowries. (13; 25; 4; 17)

In Niger, it is also a traditional practice to send boys (talibés) to Koranic teachers (marabouts) to receive religious education. Some of these boys, however, are forced by their teachers to perform manual labor or to beg on the streets and surrender the money they earn. (2; 3; 4; 17; 21)

During the year, Boko Haram attacked numerous villages in the Diffa region along Niger’s border with Nigeria, which caused an influx of Nigerian refugees and Nigerien internally displaced persons and strained the government’s resources for addressing child labor. Evidence suggests that Boko Haram forcibly recruited Nigerien children for use in armed conflict in the Diffa region. (26; 19; 7) In addition, refugee and internally displaced children may have difficulty accessing education, which makes them particularly vulnerable to engaging in the worst forms of child labor, including recruitment by non-state armed groups. (23; 10; 25; 19)

Although the Constitution of Niger provides for free education, in practice, this provision is not enforced effectively because many children, especially girls, do not attend school. (23; 27; 7; 25) The lack of school infrastructure, school materials, and limited availability of teachers, especially in rural areas, impeded access to education, which may increase the vulnerability of children to the worst forms of child labor. (3; 28; 29; 25; 18)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Niger has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Niger’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including with the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Article 106 of the Labor Code (30)

Non-state	Yes	18	Article 107 of the Labor Code (28; 30)
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 23 of the Constitution (27)

* No conscription (35)

In August 2017, the government adopted a decree regulating certain provisions of the Labor Code, including those related to child labor. (36; 31) The Decree increases the minimum age for hazardous work to 18 as required by international standards and it also expands the number of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children, including work with dangerous machinery equipment and tools and work in unhealthy environments that may expose children to hazardous substances or temperatures. (31)

The Labor Code does not apply to self-employed workers, which does not conform with international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (23; 28)

Although Article 2 of the Law on the Orientation of the Educational System in Niger guarantees education for all children ages 4 to 18, there is no law that establishes a compulsory education age. (37)

Article 178 of the Penal Code provides penalties for vagrancy, which is defined by Article 177 as a person without a home, an occupation, or means of subsistence. This Article may compel children who live on the streets to engage in the worst forms of child labor. (32; 38)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Employment, Labor and, Social Security (MELSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment, Labor and, Social Security (MELSS)	Enforce labor laws and investigate Labor Code infractions, including those on child labor. In addition, conduct awareness-raising programs to combat child labor. (3; 39; 23; 15)

Organization/Agency	Role
National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (ANLTP/TIM)	Implement policies and programs developed by the National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons (CNCLTP); conduct awareness campaigns about human trafficking; provide training and education to reduce the risk of human trafficking; and maintain a hotline to receive complaints of human trafficking. (40; 41; 42; 4)
Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection	Work with law enforcement officials to provide vulnerable children with social and reintegration services, including education and counseling, in 34 centers across the country. (3; 14)
National Civil Police Force Morals and Minors Brigade	Investigate criminal cases involving minors, including issues pertaining to human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and hereditary slavery. Housed under the Ministry of Interior and Public Security. (14; 17; 43)
Ministry of Justice's District and Magistrate Courts	Enforce criminal laws related to child labor through 10 district courts and 30 magistrate courts. (23; 15; 14)
Regional and Vigilance Committees	Prevent child trafficking by alerting law enforcement of activities linked to human trafficking, directing victims of human trafficking to law enforcement, and working closely with the Minister of Interior to raise awareness of child labor. Vigilance committees, which exist in 30 localities, report suspected cases of illegal transport of minors to the police. (44; 45)
National Human Rights Commission (CNDH)	Receive complaints and conduct investigations of human rights violations, including hereditary slavery. (23; 3)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Niger took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MELSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	$20,000 (7)
Number of Labor Inspectors	73 (46)	47 (7)

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (15)	163 (7)
Number Conducted at Worksites	Unknown (15)	163 (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown (15)	Unknown (7)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	Unknown (15)	Unknown (7)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown (15)	Unknown (7)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (15)	Yes (7)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (15)	Yes (7)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (15)	Yes (7)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (15)	Yes (7)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (15)	Yes (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (7)

During the reporting period, the number of labor inspectors decreased from 73 in 2016 to 47 in 2017, mainly due to better wages offered in the private sector. MELSS was unable to replace the inspectors that departed because the government instituted a hiring freeze during the reporting period. (47) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Niger's workforce, which includes approximately 6.5 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Niger should employ about 163 labor inspectors. (48; 49; 50) Reports indicate the government lacks equipment, transportation, and funding to conduct child labor inspections and legal proceedings, especially in remote locations and in the informal sector, which employs over 40 percent of the workforce. (23; 7; 51)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Niger took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including prosecution planning and allocating financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (15)	N/A (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (15)	Yes (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (15)	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (15)	Unknown (7)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (15)	Unknown (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (15)	Unknown (7)
Number of Convictions	0 (15)	Unknown (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (7)

During 2017, the National Agency to Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (ANLTP/TIM) provided training to 60 judges and police investigators, including from the Morals and Minors Brigade, on laws and the enforcement of laws relating to the worst forms of child labor, including on child trafficking. (15; 41; 4; 21) In addition, the ANLTP/TIM partnered with an international organization to open the first shelter for human trafficking victims, including children, in Zinder, along the border with Nigeria. (41; 21)

During the reporting period, the government investigated 22 cases related to trafficking in persons; however, it is unclear how many of these cases involved children. In November 2017, the Nigerien Civil Police Force, in collaboration with Interpol, conducted a regional operation that rescued eight child victims of human trafficking; however, the number of prosecutions or convictions, if any, that resulted from this operation is unknown. (52; 21) In addition, the number of calls received by the ANLTP/TIM's hotline that involve child trafficking is unknown. (21) Evidence does not show that criminal law enforcement authorities made meaningful efforts to address the use of children for forced mining, forced begging, or traditional forms of caste-based servitude and hereditary slavery. (2; 41; 53; 25; 4) Reports indicate that inadequate resources, including insufficient personnel, funding, and training, hamper enforcement authorities' capacity to coordinate and enforce laws related to child labor. (4; 7; 53; 21)

An informal referral mechanism between NGOs, the police, and government social services is in place, but the resources and facilities available to social services agencies remain inadequate. (15; 4; 21) While the exact number of children removed from the worst forms of child labor is unavailable, removal of children from child labor occurs only in extreme exploitative cases, such as child trafficking or forced labor, according to the MELSS. (54)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with funding.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinate programs, advise on child labor legislation and regulations, and review proposals for action plans for the ILO-IPEC country program. Chaired by the MELSS. (55; 39; 14; 18)
National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons and Illegal Migrant Transport (CNCLTP/TIM)	Coordinate efforts to combat human trafficking, and develop and implement policies and programs related to human trafficking. (33; 42; 4; 18) Includes representatives from the MELSS and civil society organizations. (55; 40) During 2017, the CNCLTP/TIM supported the ANLTP/TIM to conduct training for law enforcement agencies and raise awareness on laws related to combatting trafficking in persons and illicit migrant smuggling and developed a procedures manual for government social services providers and civil society to identify and assist victims of trafficking. (41; 18)

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee to Combat Child Labor in Agriculture	Coordinate policies and programs to combat child labor in agriculture. (56) Chaired by the Ministry of Agriculture, includes representatives from the MELSS and the Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection, as well as non-governmental stakeholders. (57) In 2017, worked to implement a $247,000 project to reduce child labor in agriculture and worked with local producers to combat hazardous child labor in agriculture. (58; 59)

Reports indicate that budget constraints hampered the effectiveness of the National Commission to Coordinate Efforts to Combat Trafficking in Persons (CNCLTP). (4; 41; 21) In addition, evidence did not find whether the National Steering Committee on Child Labor was active or received any funding during the reporting period. (15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with implementation of these policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2014–2018)	Includes goals of enhancing the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, adequately implementing the laws, and providing effective protection and care for victims, including children. Led by the ANLTP/TIM. (45; 60; 42; 18) In 2017, implemented awareness-raising campaigns in Agadez as part of National Day for Mobilization Against Trafficking in Persons and organized training in Niamey for law enforcement agencies and civil society on human trafficking. (61; 45; 21) In addition, the ANLTP/TIM released a survey on societal perceptions and attitudes toward human trafficking in Niger to inform enforcement and policy efforts. (18; 62; 21)
Plan for Social and Economic Development (2017–2021) †	Aims to promote sustainable development and social equality. Overseen by the Ministry of Planning. (18; 63) Includes activities to improve access to education for vulnerable populations, especially migrant children, and to combat street work and forced begging by children. (63)
National Social Protection Strategy	Aims to improve the quality of, and access to, basic education and health services; includes strategies to combat child labor. Overseen by the Ministry for the Promotion of Women and Child Protection. (64; 17)
UNDAF (2014–2018)	Promotes improved access to education for vulnerable children and aims to build government capacity to address child labor. Falls under the direction of the Ministry of Planning and receives support from international donors. (65; 66)
Education and Training Sectorial Program (PSEF) (2014–2024)	Sets out a comprehensive map to improve the quality of, and access to, basic and higher education. Led by the Ministry of Education. (67; 28; 18) In 2017, the government indicated that the PSEF has increased the primary completion rate in Niger from 49.1 percent in 2012 to 78.4 percent. (68)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (18)

In 2017, the First Lady of Niger, along with other leading figures, made a declaration in Abidjan, Côte d'Ivoire on child protection, including child trafficking, exploitation, child labor, and all other forms of violence against children. (69; 70) Despite this, the Government of Niger has not adopted the draft National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, which was drafted in 2015 and aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Niger by 2025. (71; 18) In addition, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the UNDAF during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However gaps exist in these social programs, including with the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (2015–2019)*	USDOL-funded global project implemented by the ILO to support global and national efforts aimed at combating forced labor of adults and children under the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting Recommendation to C.29 on Forced Labor. (71; 72) In 2017, named Niger to the project to help implement the Protocol, particularly as it relates to hereditary forms of slavery. Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Global Action Against Trafficking in Persons and the Smuggling of Migrants (GLO ACT)*	$11 million EU-funded global project implemented by UNODC, UNICEF, and the IOM to combat human trafficking and migrant smuggling. In 2017, conducted training for justice enforcement officials on child trafficking. (73; 74)
Centers for Education, Legal, and Preventive Services (SEJUP)†	Government program, in collaboration with UNICEF, aims to provide food, shelter, education, and vocational training to street children, many of whom are victims of child labor. In 2017, operated 34 centers nationwide. (2; 3; 75)
Project to Reduce Child Labor in Agriculture (2016–2018)	$247,000 FAO-funded program, implemented by the Ministry of Agriculture, that aims to combat child labor in the agriculture sector, with a focus in the regions of Niamey, Tillabery, Dosso, and Tahoua. In 2017, worked with local producers to combat hazardous child labor in agriculture. (58; 76; 59)
Project to Prevent and Protect Children from Commercial Sexual Exploitation (2015–2017)	$470,000 Government of Luxembourg-funded, 2 year project to combat commercial sexual exploitation of children in the regions of Niamey, Tillabery, and Dosso. Over 3 years, provided reintegration services to 2,000 children and raised awareness of 18,000 people on commercial sexual exploitation of children. (77; 78)
UNICEF Country Program (2014–2017)	UNICEF-funded program that supports the government’s efforts to improve children’s education, birth registration rates, and social inclusion, and to strengthen child protection programs, including for children of refugees in the Diffa region. In 2017, provided protection and reintegration services to 10,561 at-risk children. (79; 18; 80)
World Bank Country Program	Aims to increase access to quality basic and secondary education, improve school infrastructure, and strengthen safety nets for vulnerable populations. In 2017, completed construction of 440 classrooms in primary schools, provided education grants to 700 girls in secondary schools, and delivered cash transfers to 40,542 project participant households. (81; 82)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Niger.

Although Niger has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the problem, especially in agriculture, herding, mining, and caste-based servitude. Niger also lacks a specific program to assist children exploited by religious instructors. (15; 83; 53; 4; 71; 21)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Niger (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish a compulsory education age equal to or higher than the minimum age of employment.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law’s minimum age provisions and protections apply to self-employed children and those in unpaid or non-contractual work.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that street children are not compelled to engage in child labor by means of penalizing vagrancy.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Ensure the Labor Inspectorate has authority to determine and assess penalties.	2016 – 2017
	Increase the resources and number of labor inspectors and criminal investigators responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor to provide adequate coverage of the workforce.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure inspections and enforcement efforts take place in the informal sector and remote locations, in which most child labor occurs.	2014 – 2017
	Increase efforts to ensure that perpetrators of the traditional forms of caste-based servitude, hereditary slavery, and forced mining and begging are prosecuted according to the law.	2010 – 2017
	Publish complete information on violations, and penalties related to child labor, as well as the number of criminal law investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2012 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure government social services providers have sufficient resources and facilities to provide the necessary care to all children withdrawn from hazardous labor.	2015 – 2017
	Disaggregate complaints made to the ANLTP/TIM's hotline by number of children trafficked.	2013 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that key coordinating mechanisms, such as the CNCLTP and the National Steering Committee on Child Labor, are active and receive adequate funding to fulfill their missions.	2011 – 2017
Government Policies	Adopt and implement the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the UNDAF is implemented.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including girls, refugees, internally displaced children, and children in rural communities by increasing school infrastructure, teacher availability, and school supplies.	2013 – 2017
	Expand the scope of programs to address the worst forms of child labor, including in agriculture, herding, mining, and caste-based servitude.	2009 – 2017
	Implement a program to target children exploited by religious instructors.	2011 – 2017

Nigeria

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Nigeria made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Edo State established a Task Force to combat human trafficking and the Borno State government signed as a witness to an Action Plan between the United Nations and the non-governmental Civilian Joint Task Force (CJTF) which aims to end the recruitment and use of children by the CJTF. Labor inspectors conducted 4,694 child labor inspections, found 606 violations, and the National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters convicted 10 perpetrators for crimes related to the worst forms of child labor. However, despite these efforts, children continue to be engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite and gravel, commercial sexual exploitation, and armed conflict. The legal framework has inconsistencies regarding child labor, and the minimum age for work is below international standards. There are not enough labor inspectors to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce. In addition, social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Nigeria engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in quarrying granite and gravel, commercial sexual exploitation, and armed conflict. (1; 2; 3; 4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Nigeria.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	31.1 (13,924,739)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	76.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	26.8
Primary Completion Rate (%)		73.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2010, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (5)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4, 2011. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of manioc/cassava, cocoa, rice, and tobacco (2; 7; 8; 9)
	Fishing, activities unknown (10)
	Herding livestock (11)
Industry	Mining and quarrying granite and gravel (1; 2; 7; 12)
	Artisanal gold mining and processing (2; 7; 13; 14; 15)
	Harvesting sand (7)
	Construction, including making bricks and carrying construction materials (2)
Services	Domestic work (1; 2; 16; 17)
	Collecting money on public buses, and automotive repair (1; 17; 18; 11)
	Street work, including vending, begging, and scavenging (1; 2; 16; 17; 18; 19; 20)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor†	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (17; 21; 22; 3)
	Forced begging, domestic work, street vending, textile manufacturing, mining and quarrying gravel and granite, and labor in agriculture, including in cocoa, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (23; 24; 3; 25; 26)
	Use in illicit activities for armed groups, sometimes as a result of forced recruitment, including participating in extortion, armed robbery, and drug trafficking (9; 17; 18)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict and in non-conflict support roles (3; 4; 27; 28)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In northern Nigeria, many families send children from rural to urban areas to live with Islamic teachers, known as mallams, and receive a Koranic education. These children, known as almajiri, may receive lessons, but teachers often force them to beg on the streets and surrender the money they collect. (29; 30; 31) Furthermore, these children are highly vulnerable to recruitment by Boko Haram. (31)

Benin City, the capital of Edo state, is a major human trafficking hub in Africa. (32; 33) Girls from Nigeria are sent to North Africa and Europe for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (33; 34; 35; 36; 37; 38) Children from West African countries experience forced labor in Nigeria, including in granite mines, begging, agriculture, and domestic work. (3; 23; 39; 40)

Boko Haram forcibly recruited and used child soldiers during the reporting period. (4; 3) Reports indicate that children were recruited to participate in combat operations and act as spies, messengers, porters, body guards, and cooks. (27; 41) Children were also forced to act as suicide bombers. (4) The terrorist group also subjected girls to forced labor and sexual servitude. (3; 41) The Civilian Joint Task Force (CJTF), a non-state self-defense militia involved in fighting Boko Haram, continued to recruit and use children to conduct security searches, gather intelligence, man checkpoints, and apprehend suspected insurgents. (27; 28) The CJTF also reportedly used some children recovered from Boko Haram to lead CJTF and army personnel to Boko Haram camps, putting these children at serious risk for retaliation and denying them victim care. Although the Government of Nigeria has officially prohibited the recruitment and use of child soldiers, research found that the Nigerian military conducted joint patrols with the CJTF, which used children during the reporting period. (42; 27; 28) As reported by the Secretary-General of the United Nations, as of May 2016, Nigerian military personnel were using four boys between ages 14 and 16 years old in support roles. At the close of 2017, it was unknown whether these children had been released. (43)

In 2017, more than 1.7 million people were internally displaced in northeast Nigeria, of which nearly 500,000 were children under age 18. (44) Some girls, particularly unaccompanied minors, were subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in IDP camps and military barracks, often by members of the Nigerian military, the CJTF, and other camp security personnel in exchange for food. (3; 45; 46; 47; 48) Research was not able to determine the scale of this problem in 2017.

Although free and compulsory education is federally mandated by the Education Act, little enforcement of compulsory education laws occurs at the state level. (49) School fees are often charged, and the cost of materials can be prohibitive for families. (49; 50) Access to education is further hindered by a lack of teachers and inadequate sanitation facilities, particularly for girls. (49) Many families favored the enrollment of boys over girls in elementary and secondary school. (51; 52) Furthermore, government armed forces have previously occupied schools in their campaign against Boko Haram and the Islamic State-West Africa. (43; 27)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Nigeria has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Nigeria's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	12	Section 59(1) of the Labour Act; Sections 28 and 29 of the Child's Right Act (53; 54)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 59(6) of the Labour Act; Sections 28, 29, and 277 of the Child's Right Act (53; 54)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Sections 59-61 of the Labour Act; Section 28 of the Child's Right Act; Section 23 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act (53; 54; 55)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 13, 22, 24, and 25 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 28 and 30 of the Child's Right Act (54; 55)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 13 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Section 30 of the Child's Right Act (54; 55)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 13-17 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 30 and 32 of the Child's Right Act; Section 23 of the Cybercrimes Act (54; 55; 56)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 19 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act; Sections 25-26, and 30 of the Child's Right Act (54; 55)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Section 28 of the Armed Forces Act; Section 34 of the Child's Right Act (54; 57)
Non-state	No		Section 19 of the Trafficking in Persons (Prohibition) Enforcement and Administration Act (55)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Sections 2 and 15 of the Education Act; Section 15 of the Child's Right Act (54; 58)
Free Public Education	Yes		Sections 2 and 3 of the Education Act; Section 15 of the Child's Right Act (54; 58)

* No conscription (57)

The Federal Child's Right Act (CRA) codifies the rights of children in Nigeria and must be domesticated by each state to become law in its territory. (9; 54) To date, 23 states and the federal capital territory have domesticated the CRA; of the remaining 13 states, 12 are in northern Nigeria. (16; 59)

The laws in Nigeria regarding minimum age for employment are inconsistent. The CRA supersedes all legislation related to children yet states that the provisions on young people in the Labour Act still apply to children. (54) Although the CRA restricts children under age 18 from any work except light work for family members, it still applies Section 59 of the Labour Act, which is in force in all 36 states, that sets the minimum employment age at 12. (53; 54; 60) The Labour Act also permits children of any age to do light work alongside a family member in agriculture and domestic work. (53; 61) Furthermore, the minimum age protections in the Labour Act do not apply to children who are self-employed or working in the informal economy. (53; 61)

Although the Labour Act forbids the employment of youth under age 18 in work that is dangerous to their health, safety, or morals, it does not establish types of hazardous activity that are prohibited to children under 18. (53) The National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor developed a report in 2013 that identified hazardous child labor in Nigeria; however, the government has not yet determined by law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (2; 61)

Although the CRA criminalizes using, procuring, and offering a child in the production and trafficking of drugs, the 13 states that have not yet ratified the CRA have no legislation in place to criminalize this activity. (54; 52)

Children are not excluded from the Terrorism Prevention Act's penalty of life imprisonment for assisting in acts of terrorism. (63)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspectorate, Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE)	Deploy labor inspectors across 36 state labor offices and the federal capital territory to enforce federal child labor laws. (9; 64)
National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters (NAPTIP)	Enforce laws against human trafficking and exploitative labor. (9) Coordinate with the Ministry of Women's Affairs and Social Development and state governments to provide child victims with social services and reunite trafficked children with their families. (9)
Nigeria Police	Enforce all laws prohibiting forced child labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Collaborate with NAPTIP on human trafficking enforcement. (9)
Nigeria Immigration Service	Collaborate with NAPTIP to enforce laws against child trafficking. (9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took action to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

There are 42 inspectors dedicated to child labor in the federal capital territory; however, research did not find mechanisms to enforce existing protections for children who perform street work. (67; 66) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Nigeria's workforce, which includes approximately 60 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Nigeria would employ about 4,005 labor inspectors. (68; 69; 66) Enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections. (70; 10)

In 2017, inspectors conducted 4,694 child labor specific inspections and removed 275 children from child labor; 211 children were provided with vocational training, 100 children were enrolled in primary and secondary schools, and 20 children were reunited with their parents. (66) The Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) refers cases of children that are gravely in danger to the National Agency for the Prohibition of Trafficking in Persons and Other Related Matters (NAPTIP). (29)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Nigeria took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (71)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (72)	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (72)	Yes (71)
Number of Investigations	89 (73)	25† (74)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	3 (66)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	10† (74)
Number of Convictions	10 (73)	10† (74)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (75)	Yes (3)

† Data are from January 2017 to September 2017.

In 2017, NAPTIP conducted 25 investigations of the worst forms of child labor in domestic work. (74) NAPTIP initiated 10 prosecutions, 6 for the commercial sexual exploitation of children and 4 for child domestic work. It achieved 10 convictions, 9 regarding the commercial sexual exploitation of children and 1 regarding child domestic work. (74) Despite efforts to investigate, prosecute, and convict those who used children in the worst forms of child labor, the scope of these efforts is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

In February 2017, the government signed standard operating procedures to refer children associated with armed groups to social protection services. (43) NAPTIP coordinates with the Ministry of Women's Affairs and Social Development and state governments to provide social services to child trafficking victims through the National Referral Mechanism. (9) During the reporting period, NAPTIP rescued 298 children from the worst forms of child labor; 237 children from domestic work, and 61 boys from begging. (74) In February 2017, the government evacuated 41 girls from Mali who were trafficked for labor and sexual exploitation. (76) Criminal law enforcement authorities continued to detain children for their or their parent's alleged association with Boko Haram. (27; 46) Although the government released some of the children and referred them to social service providers, many children remained in detention facilities for prolonged periods. (41)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinate efforts to combat child labor. Led by MOLE, comprises representatives from seven governmental agencies, faith-based organizations, NGOs, ILO, and UNICEF. (9; 77)
Inter-Ministerial Taskforce on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinate child labor issues related to human trafficking. Chaired by NAPTIP. (9)
State Steering Committees on Child Labor	Guide state-level implementation of the National Policy and National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor. (77) Established in Akwa Ibom, Delta, Lagos, Ogun, and Oyo states. (78)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Policy on Child Labor	Aims to eliminate child labor in Nigeria by 2020. (79)
National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor in Nigeria (2013–2017)	Provides the roadmap for implementation of the National Policy on Child Labor in Nigeria. (77) In 2017, the ILO supported MOLE to develop a reporting template and implementation guidelines for the Plan. (11)
NAPTIP Strategic Plan (2012–2017)	Provides a framework for mobilizing NAPTIP and all stakeholders involved in combating human trafficking within Nigeria and internationally. (80) In 2017, the government began drafting a new national action plan. (3)
National Action Plan for Preventing and Countering Violent Extremism †	Designed to end the recruitment and use of children by the Borno CJTF. Also aims to promote the protection of children's rights, ensure suspects under age 18 are treated in accordance with international law, and provides for disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration for children previously associated with the CJTF. (81; 82; 83)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (84)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program II (2015–2018)	ILO-implemented project in coordination with the government that aims to combat child labor, including its worst forms. Aims to build government capacity to conduct child labor surveys and establish community-based child labor monitoring systems. (51)
UNICEF country program (2014–2017)	Donor-funded program in coordination with the government that worked to ensure children associated with armed groups, including those in detention facilities, received reintegration services. (85; 86; 87)
NAPTIP Shelters for Human Trafficking Victims †	Government-funded program that operates ten shelters in Nigeria, with a total capacity of 315 victims. Shelters provide legal, medical, and psychological services, as well as vocational training and business management skills. (3)
Measurement, Awareness-Raising, and Policy Engagement Project on Child Labor and Forced Labor (MAP16)*	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO to conduct research and develop new survey methodologies, improve awareness, and strengthen policies and government capacity to combat child labor and forced labor in 10 countries. For additional information, please see our website.
National Social Investment Program	World Bank-funded program implemented by the government that aims to provide youth with skills and vocational training, provide primary school students with daily meals, and offer monthly cash transfers to extremely poor households on the condition that their children are enrolled in school. (88) Launched in December 2016, the program is initially targeting 1 million households in eight of Nigeria's 36 states. (89)
Safe Schools Initiative	Donor-funded program implemented by the government and international organizations that aims to provide remedial education and pilot 10 safe education facilities in northeast Nigeria in Adamawa, Borno, and Yobe states. (90; 91)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (92)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research found no evidence of programs to specifically address children engaged in agriculture, quarrying, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and illicit activities. Although Nigeria has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs, including those that target child soldiers, is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Nigeria (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Increase the minimum age for regular work to at least 14, in accordance with international standards; ensure that national legislation on minimum age for work is consistent and that all children, including those who are self-employed, are protected; and ensure that provisions related to light work conform to international standards.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the types of work determined to be hazardous for children are prohibited by law or regulation for all children under age 18.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that using, procuring, and offering a child for the production and trafficking of drugs are criminally prohibited in all states.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Amend the Terrorism Prevention Act to prohibit the punishment of children for their association with armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information on the training of labor inspectors.	2009 – 2017
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice. Ensure that labor inspectors receive sufficient resources to enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that a mechanism exists for enforcing existing protections for children who perform street work.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that the elements of the Nigerian military do not use children, including in coordination with the CJTF, and that the CJTF does not use children.	2016 – 2017
	Vigorously investigate, prosecute, and convict those who use children in the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict and commercial sexual exploitation.	2017
	Cease the practice of detaining children associated with armed groups for prolonged periods and refer these children to social service providers.	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure an adequate number of trained teachers and provide sufficient educational infrastructure for children, particularly girls, to access schools. Remove all armed groups and forces from schools and compounds.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that all states adopt programs to offer free education and expand existing programs that provide funds to vulnerable children, especially girls, to cover school fees and the cost of materials.	2014 – 2017
	Establish and expand programs that prevent and remove children from child labor in agriculture, quarrying, armed conflict, commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and illicit activities.	2009 – 2017

In 2017, Oman made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking created a referral mechanism for the victims of human trafficking and exploitation; launched the first public awareness campaign on human trafficking and labor practices susceptible to abuse; and held several trainings on human trafficking and victim protection for 429 participants, including judges and assistant prosecutors. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Oman engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Labor inspectors lacked the authority to assess penalties for labor violations, and the government lacks a reciprocal referral mechanism between the Labor Inspectorate and social services.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Oman engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Oman. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		104

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (2)

Source for all other data: Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1; 4; 5)
	Fishing, activities unknown (1; 4; 5; 6)
Services	Selling food items in kiosks, including fish † and grilled meat † (4; 5)
	Begging ‡ (1; 7)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation (1; 8)

The Ministry of Social Development released the country's major national study on child labor in 2016. Although a public copy of this study is unavailable, reports indicate that an estimated 330 children, mostly boys, were working, primarily on farms or in subsistence fishing. (1; 4; 5) The majority of these children were ages 16 or 17, with 24 percent between ages 10 and 15. (5)

Limited evidence suggests that children with disabilities may face barriers to accessing education, since some school buses are not wheelchair accessible and there is a lack of resources to provide equal educational services to intellectually disabled students. School enrollment fees may at times be a barrier to education for the children of migrant workers. (8; 9)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Oman has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 46 of the Child Law (10)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Manpower that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Manpower	Monitor and enforce child labor laws, conduct labor inspections, and share information with the Royal Oman Police on labor and criminal law violations when penalties are pursued. (1)
Ministry of Social Development	Enforce the Child Law, including by receiving complaints and referring cases to the Royal Oman Police and the Office of Public Prosecutor. (1)
Royal Oman Police	Monitor and enforce the Child Law, including its provisions related to child labor; refer cases to the Office of Public Prosecutor. (1)
Office of Public Prosecutor	Prosecute human trafficking and sexual exploitation cases in court with assistance from the Royal Oman Police. (1; 17)

Organization/Agency	Role
Child Protection Committee	Protect children from exploitation, receive complaints and reports of child labor, and investigate reported cases to determine whether children are engaged in prohibited activities or whether working has negative effects on their health or education. (1; 4)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Oman took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Manpower that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Oman took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including investigations into commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Royal Oman Police initiated 9 new investigations of human trafficking, and 12 individuals were convicted of human trafficking. (20) However, none of these cases involved child victims. (9) Research found no evidence of criminal investigations into commercial sexual exploitation of children.

The National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking provided support for 8 training sessions for 429 participants, including prosecutors and judges, on topics of human trafficking, victim protection, and capacity building for the enforcement of the law to combat human trafficking. Likewise, the Office of the Public Prosecutor supported a training on human trafficking prosecution for 51 participants. (20) The Ministry of Justice added three courses on human trafficking to its curriculum on human trafficking and held a training for judges and assistant prosecutors. (20) During the reporting period, the National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking created a referral mechanism for the victims of human trafficking and exploitation. The Ministry of Manpower, the Ministry of Social Development, and the Royal Oman Police cooperate and share information about cases of human trafficking to provide services to victims and refer cases to the police. (16; 19)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the omission of the Ministry of Manpower from the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC	Led by the Ministry of Social Development to oversee implementation of the UN CRC, including its provisions related to child labor and its worst forms. There are subcommittees in all 11 governorates. (1) Other members include three other state agencies. The Ministry of Manpower is not represented. (1) Research was unable to determine whether the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC was active during the reporting period.
National Committee for Combating Human Trafficking	Oversees the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking. Includes the Royal Oman Police and 10 other state agencies. (1) In October 2017, the Committee launched Ehsan , the first public awareness campaign on human trafficking and labor practices susceptible to abuse, accompanied by a 90-minute television program. The campaign also included a hotline and informational pamphlets in victims' native languages, along with billboards displayed prominently throughout Oman. (20) The Committee also drafted the 2018–2020 National Action Plan in October 2017, which was approved and adopted in March 2018. (20)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking	Establishes roles and responsibilities of governmental organizations involved in combating child trafficking and describes procedures for applying the Law to Combat Human Trafficking. (17) In November 2017, the Council of Ministers authorized the establishment of a Rapid Action Taskforce to combat human trafficking. (20)

Although the Government of Oman had adopted the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking, research found no evidence of a policy to address all forms of child labor, including in farming and fishing.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including implementation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Social Security Cash Transfer Program†	Provides assistance to children in low-income families, including educational services. (4) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 in the implementation of this program.
Programs of the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking†	Implements awareness-raising activities on human trafficking in schools and among the general population, and provides social services for trafficking victims. (17) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 in the implementation of this program.

† Program is funded by the Government of Oman.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Oman (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Collect and publish data on Labor Inspectorate funding, initial training for new labor inspectors, the number of inspections conducted at worksites, and whether targeted inspections were conducted.	2013 – 2017
	Authorize the Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor law enforcement and social services.	2014 – 2017
	Publish data on the types of training for criminal investigators.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that possible cases of commercial sexual exploitation of children are investigated.	2017
Coordination	Ensure that the National Committee on Implementing the UN CRC is able to carry out its intended mandate and that the Ministry of Manpower participates in the Committee.	2016 – 2017
Government Policies	Develop a national policy to address all worst forms of child labor.	2013 – 2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs, including the Ministry of Social Development's 2016 study.	2017
	Ensure that all children have equal access to education, including the children of migrant workers and children with disabilities.	2011 – 2017
	Implement the Social Security Cash Transfer and the National Plan for Combating Human Trafficking programs.	2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Pakistan made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Sindh Province passed the Prohibition of Employment of Children, which establishes age 15 as the minimum age for employment and age 19 as the minimum age for employment in hazardous work. Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province also passed the Free Compulsory Primary and Secondary Education Act, making education free and compulsory for children ages 5 to 16. In addition, four provinces allocated funds to conduct child labor surveys, using the ILO-UNICEF Statistical Information and Monitoring Program on Child Labor methodology. However, children in Pakistan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and in bonded labor in brick kilns. Balochistan Province has not established a minimum age for work or hazardous work in compliance with international standards. In addition, provincial governments do not have the resources necessary to adequately enforce laws prohibiting child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Pakistan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work and in bonded labor in brick kilns. (1; 2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Pakistan. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
		All Pakistan	Punjab Province	Sindh Province
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable	12.4	31.5
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable	77.1	60.6
Combining work and school (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable	8.2	11.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including harvesting cotton, wheat, dates, sugarcane, and potatoes (5; 6; 7; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14)

	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (48; 55; 56)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (12; 57; 48; 55)
	Forced recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (58; 59; 60)
	Use in illicit activities, including trafficking and producing drugs (17; 59)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

A national child labor survey has not been conducted since 1996, and the lack of recent data hampers the ability of the federal and provincial governments to accurately assess the scope and prevalence of child labor. (12) Many child domestic workers are working under conditions of forced labor, including debt bondage, sexual assault, and extreme physical abuse. (1; 41; 42) Some children work with their families as bonded laborers in the production of bricks. (12; 61; 55)

Non-state militant groups forced children to engage in suicide attacks. (58; 59; 60) There are reports that religious schools are used for recruitment of children for armed groups. (62) Additionally, the Taliban recruited and forced children to attend madrassas, or religious schools, in Afghanistan and Pakistan, where they received religious and military training. Some families received cash payments in exchange for sending their children to the Taliban-run schools. (63)

Many children face barriers to accessing education due to high rates of teacher absenteeism, inadequate facilities, lack of transportation, and corporal punishment, which may deter children from attending school. (17; 64; 65) Moreover, armed groups and extremist groups regularly attack and threaten students, teachers, and schools, disrupting children’s access to education. (62; 66) Some schools in Balochistan refused to enroll refugee children. (59)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Pakistan has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Pakistan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including with regard to minimum age for work and hazardous work.

	Balochistan	Yes		Section 2(f) of the Balochistan Compulsory Education Act (94)

* No conscription (90)

The 18th Amendment to the Pakistan Constitution devolves all child welfare and labor issues from the federal government to the four provincial governments. Until each province repeals or adopts a replacement law, federal child labor laws are in force. (95) According to the Constitution, both federal and provincial governments can pass legislation on criminal law. (96)

In 2017, Sindh Province enacted the Sindh Prohibition of Employment of Children, which establishes 15 as the minimum age for employment and 19 as the minimum age for employment in hazardous work. (78) During the period, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province enacted the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Free Compulsory Primary and Secondary Education Act, making education free and compulsory for children ages 5 to 16. (97) The Punjab provincial assembly also passed the Punjab Destitute and Neglected Children (Amendment) Act, which increases the penalty for using children for begging and prohibits the use of children to sell goods with the intention of begging. (98)

In addition, in 2018, the federal government enacted the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act, which brings the law into compliance with international standards by exempting children from the requirement that force, fraud, or coercion must be proven in order to constitute trafficking and by including all trafficking for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. (99) The federal government also enacted the Islamabad Capital Territory Child Protection System Act in 2018. The Act provides minimum ages for work and hazardous work, provides a hazardous work list, and criminally prohibits worst forms of child labor in the Islamabad Capital Territory. (100; 59)

However, Pakistan's federal and provincial laws are not completely in compliance with international standards on child labor. The federal government's minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because they do not extend to informal employment. (79) Balochistan Province has not established a minimum age for employment or for hazardous work, although in October 2017, the provincial government drafted a Prohibition of Employment of Children Bill to ban the employment of children in 37 hazardous employment industries. (79; 59). In addition, hazardous work prohibitions for the federal government and the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, Punjab, and Sindh Provinces do not cover brickmaking and domestic work, in which there is evidence that children are exposed to environmental health hazards in brickmaking and physical abuse in domestic work. (72; 73; 78; 79; 10; 43) Additionally, Sindh Province's laws setting the minimum age for work do not extend to informal work because they apply only to factories that employ 10 or more employees, shops, and establishments. (76; 77)

In addition, federal law does not prohibit the use of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. (81) Although the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Protection and Welfare Act prohibits the use of a child for the production of pornography, the law does not prohibit procuring and offering a child for the production of pornography. Moreover, it does not prohibit using and procuring a child for prostitution or pornographic performances. (87)

Federal and provincial laws, with the exception of the Punjab Provincial law, do not prohibit the use of children in drug production and drug trafficking. (72; 87) The federal and provincial governments, with the exception of Punjab Province, have not enacted laws that prohibit the recruitment and use of children by non-state groups for armed conflict. (17)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Provincial Labor Inspectors that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Provincial Labor Inspectors	Inspect industrial areas and markets to identify child labor violations, enforce provincial labor laws, and pursue legal action against employers. (17)
Provincial and Regional Police	Enforce violations of federal and provincial laws, including the Pakistan Penal Code and the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act, concerning the worst forms of child labor. Refer children taken into custody to Child Protection Officers. (17)
District Vigilance Committees	Implement the Bonded Labor System (Abolition) Act and assist in rehabilitating bonded laborers. Report to the District Magistrate. (17; 80)
Anti-Trafficking Unit of the Federal Investigation Agency	Enforce transnational trafficking-related laws, particularly the Prevention and Control of Human Trafficking Ordinance. Cooperate with other governments on trafficking cases, operate a hotline for victims, and publish information on anti-trafficking efforts on its Web site. (17)
Child Protection Units	Take into custody at-risk children, including those rescued from exploitative labor situations. Present cases of children taken into custody to the Child Protection Court or the appropriate authority. Established in Punjab, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, and Sindh Provinces. (17; 87; 89; 101; 102; 103)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Provincial Labor Inspectors that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with regard to human resource allocation.

* The government does not publish this information.

Following the devolution of federal powers to provincial governments, the provinces are responsible for enforcing labor laws, including those involving child labor law violations. (17) Limited labor inspection data are available for the provincial governments.

Pakistan

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The number of labor inspectors is insufficient for the size of Pakistan's workforce, which includes approximately 64 million workers. In order to comply with the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Pakistan should employ about 1,628 labor inspectors. (107; 108; 109) Provincial agencies that support law enforcement are also severely under-resourced. For example, labor inspectors receive insufficient resources, which hamper the Labor Inspectorate's ability to inspect workplaces. (110; 111; 59)

In 2017, research could not uncover labor inspection information for Sindh and Balochistan provinces. (59) However, data from previous years showed that labor inspections varied across provincial governments. In previous reporting periods, inspections were conducted regularly in Punjab, but in Sindh, inspectors stopped conducting unannounced inspections due to complaints of harassment, filed against inspectors by employers. (17; 110) In 2016, sources indicate that 39 labor inspectors in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa conducted 45,367 inspections. Each inspector therefore conducted an average of 1,163 inspections during this period. (104) This is a high number of inspections conducted by each inspector, and it is unknown whether this high number affects the quality of inspections. Across the provinces, fines and penalties were assessed infrequently and were insufficient to deter employers from using child labor. (95; 112)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Pakistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with regard to resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

* The government does not publish this information.

Although some District Vigilance Committees on bonded labor have been established in Pakistan, many of the committees are inactive or ineffective. (114)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Ministry of Overseas Pakistanis and Human Resource Development, Child Labor Focal Point	Coordinate government efforts to eliminate child labor at the federal and provincial levels. Responsible for developing a national strategy to eliminate child labor and works with provincial governments to adopt legislation and conduct child labor surveys. (115)
Provincial Child Labor Units	Coordinate and initiate interventions against child labor at the provincial level. (105)
Provincial and Federal Tripartite Consultative Committees	Advise on the enforcement of labor laws, including child labor laws and monitor the functioning of labor departments at the provincial level. Monitor the implementation of provinces' proposed interventions on child and forced labor at the federal level. (105)

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Interagency Task Force	Coordinate the anti-human trafficking efforts of the Ministry of the Interior, intelligence and law enforcement agencies, the Ministry of Law and Justice, and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Support 27 Federal Investigation Agency anti-trafficking units that work with provincial and district police officers to monitor and combat internal and transnational human trafficking. (116; 55) Maintain an Integrated Border Management System. (117)
Punjab Child Protection and Welfare Bureau	Coordinate the protection of destitute and neglected children by appointing child protection officers, supervising child protection units, and establishing child protection institutions and child protection courts. (89)
Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Child Protection and Welfare Commission	Coordinate efforts to enhance the safety, welfare, and well-being of children, including by running programs for the prevention of exploitative child labor practices. (87) Led by the province's Social Welfare, Special Education and Women Empowerment Department. (118)
Sindh Child Protection Authority	Coordinate efforts to ensure the rights of children in need of special protection, including child laborers, by establishing child protection units and appointing child protection officers. (102) Headed by the provincial minister; members include two parliamentarians, lawyers, social activists, and representatives from departments that deal with children's issues. (119)

In 2017, the National Assembly passed the National Commission on the Rights of the Child Act, which mandates the federal government to establish a commission on the care and protection of children. The Commission's responsibilities will include coordinating with provincial child rights commissions, examining legislation and policies on child rights, and inquiring into child rights violations. (120; 121) Research was unable to determine whether existing coordinating bodies were active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with regard to mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Provincial Plans of Action to Combat Child Labor	Detail how each province plans to revise child labor legislation, including by strengthening the capacity of labor inspectors, generating awareness of child labor, improving reporting, and computerizing labor inspection data. (122) Research did not discover what steps were taken in 2017 to implement these plans.
Sindh and Punjab Provincial Plans of Action to Combat Bonded Labor	Detail how the Sindh and Punjab provinces plan to revise their bonded labor laws. Include plans to strengthen the capacity of labor inspectors, generate awareness of bonded labor, improve reporting, and computerize labor inspection data. (123) Research did not discover what steps were taken in 2017 to implement these plans.
Federally Administered Tribal Areas (FATA) Child Protection Policy	Describes how FATA will promote and create a protective environment for all children. Includes actions to be taken toward the prevention and elimination of child labor. (124) Research did not discover what steps were taken in 2017 to implement this policy.
Punjab Labor Policy	Seeks to improve working conditions, eradicate child and bonded labor, and establish social safety for workers and their families. Includes the goal of ending all child labor in brick kilns, in addition to the construction of schools, hospitals, and residences for workers. (125) Research did not discover what steps were taken in 2017 to implement this policy.

‡ The government has other policies which may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (126; 127; 127; 128; 129; 130; 131; 132)

The provincial governments' education policies have not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (126; 127; 127; 128; 129; 130; 131)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with regard to adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Bait-ul-Mal programs†	Government-funded programs that aim to remove children from child labor, including its worst forms, and to increase vulnerable children's access to education. Programs include the National Centers for Rehabilitation of Child Labor and the Child Support Program. (133; 134) In 2017, $2.75 million was disbursed to fund the 159 National Centers for Rehabilitation of Child Labor and $251,000 was disbursed to the Child Support Program. (135)
Sabaoon Rehabilitation Center†	Pakistan Army center that rehabilitates children who were recruited and ideologically influenced by terrorist organizations and militant groups. Reintegrates youth into society by providing psychological treatment, education, and vocational training. (116; 136) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 in the implementation of this program.
Elimination of Child Labor and Bonded Labor Project (Integrated Project for Promotion of 'Decent Work for Vulnerable Workers' in Punjab Province)†	Punjab Government-funded programs that aims to provide education to vulnerable children, rehabilitate bonded laborers working in brick kilns, promote integration and coordination of government responses, strengthen legislation, increase the capacity of law enforcement and service providers, and increase the knowledge base on these issues. (137; 61; 138) As of May 2017, the program provided cash assistance to families of 88,000 child laborers to support children to attend school rather than working in brick kilns. (139)
ILO-Funded Projects	ILO projects in Pakistan that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms. Current projects include $216,000 project Sustaining GSP+ status by strengthened national capacities to improve ILS compliance and reporting (2015-2018), and $465,000 project Elimination of child labor and promotion of Decent Work in the Stora Enso value chain in Pakistan (2015-2018). (140) The ILO supported drafting the discussion paper on 'Understanding Children Work in Pakistan,' and a Diagnostic Study on Decent Work Deficits in the Rural Economy; working on the pending amendments to the Child Labor Law of the Punjab Province; conducting child labor surveys in three provinces; setting up a permanent Child Labor Unit in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Province; organizing a national labor law symposium; assessing Decent Work deficits, with a focus on child labor; and raising awareness on child labor in biomass and waste paper supply chains. (140)

In 2017, all four provinces allocated funds to conduct child labor surveys, using the ILO-UNICEF Statistical Information and Monitoring Program on Child Labor (SIMPOC) methodology. The Punjab Government began conducting the survey, and the Sindh Government began the planning process. (59)

The social programs of the federal and provincial governments are insufficient to address the prevalence and scope of Pakistan's child labor problem. Existing programs also do not provide enough protection and rehabilitation services for bonded child laborers and victims of human trafficking. (55) Government initiatives are needed specifically to target child domestic workers and child labor in the informal sector. (111) Furthermore, additional social programs are necessary to raise awareness and provide assistance to children used by non-state militant groups to engage in armed conflict. (141)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Pakistan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work in Balochistan Province.	2009 – 2017
	Establish a minimum age of 18 for hazardous work in the federal government and Balochistan Province.	2009 – 2017
	Create comprehensive prohibitions against additional specific hazardous activities, such as brickmaking and domestic work.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the federal government's and Sindh Province's minimum age laws extend to all sectors and informal employment, regardless of the number of employees.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminalizes the use of children in all forms of commercial sexual exploitation, including for prostitution, child pornography, and pornographic performances.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2011 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment and use of children under 18 by non-state groups for armed conflict.	2015 – 2017
Enforcement	Collect and publish enforcement data for child labor law violations.	2010 – 2017
	Hire a sufficient number of labor inspectors for the size of the workforce to enforce child labor laws.	2016 – 2017
	Provide the funding necessary to adequately hire, train, and equip inspectors and investigators to enforce laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor.	2010 – 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate in Sindh Province by initiating targeted inspections.	2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor authorities and social services in all provinces.	2017
	Allow labor inspectors in all provinces to conduct inspections without notice and assess penalties.	2011 – 2017
	Determine whether the inspection ratio for each labor inspector in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa is appropriate to ensure the quality and scope of inspections.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that fines and penalties are sufficient to deter employers from violating child labor laws.	2014 – 2017
	Publish information about criminal law investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions in all provinces.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that bonded labor vigilance committees are established and active throughout Pakistan.	2013 – 2017
Coordination	Publish information on the activities undertaken by coordinating bodies.	2017
Government Policies	Publish information on the implementation of existing child labor policies.	2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the education policies of the provincial governments.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Conduct child labor surveys at the federal and provincial levels.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that all children have access to free and compulsory education, as required by law.	2011 – 2017
	Implement existing programs and increase the size and scope of government programs to reach children working in the worst forms of child labor, including domestic workers, bonded child laborers, and victims of human trafficking.	2009 – 2017
	Implement programs to raise awareness of and provide assistance to children used by non-state militant groups to engage in armed conflict.	2011 – 2017

In 2017, Panama made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government strengthened and clarified penalties for child labor within the Labor Code and provided training to criminal law enforcement personnel on investigating and sanctioning the commercial sexual exploitation of children. The National Commission for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Exploitation approved funding to assist at-risk children and to conduct a study on children engaged in illicit activities.

The Ministry of Labor also launched a child labor monitoring information system to strengthen interagency coordination on child labor cases and established agreements with the municipal councils of Chame and Colón to design and implement child labor elimination strategies. In addition, the government funded new education, meal, and recreation services for children as an alternative to participating in the coffee harvest in Chiriquí. However, children in Panama engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, Panamanian law allows minors under age 16 to engage in hazardous work within training establishments. Moreover, inadequate resources, including an insufficient number of inspectors, hamper the Labor Inspectorate's capacity to enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Panama engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Panama.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	4.7 (32,858)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.9
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		96.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2014, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (9)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Encuesta de Trabajo Infantil (ETI), 2014. (10)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Some children in Panama are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, mainly in tourist areas in Panama City and in beach communities. (5; 6) According to the results of Panama’s 2016 survey on child labor, the highest prevalence of child labor is in rural areas and autonomous indigenous areas, or comarcas. The comarca Ngäbe Buglé and the provinces of Panama and Bocas del Toro had the highest number of children engaged in child labor. (1) Panamanian children from rural areas and children from indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities face barriers to accessing education, including long distances to schools, poor roads, and limited transportation, particularly in the comarcas. (4; 43; 44; 45; 8) Children of indigenous descent often travel significant distances to reach school and experience frequent interruptions of their education due to family migration to work in agriculture. (5; 44; 45)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Panama has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Panama’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including with regard to hazardous work and light work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 70 of the Constitution; Articles 508–509 and 716 of the Family Code; Articles 117, 119, and 123 of the Labor Code (46; 47; 48)

Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 34 and 41 of the Law on Education; Article 95 of the Constitution (46; 53; 54)

† No standing military (46; 55)

In 2017, the Government of Panama modified Article 125 of the Labor Code, which previously established a fine range of $50 to $700 for child labor violations. The modified article sets the fine at $700 and clarifies that this penalty can be applied for each child laborer. (48; 56) Although the Constitution, Family Code, and Labor Code set the minimum age for employment at age 14, the Family Code and Labor Code specify exceptions for domestic and agricultural work. (46; 47; 48) Article 716 of the Family Code permits children ages 12 to 14 to perform domestic and agricultural work as regulated by the Labor Code. (47) Article 119 of the Labor Code allows children ages 12 to 15 to perform light work in agriculture, if the work is outside regular school hours, and Article 123 allows children over the age of 12 to perform light domestic work. The Labor Code, however, does not define the kinds of tasks children may perform as light work or the total number of hours they may work. (48) Although Panama has a list of hazardous occupations prohibited to children under 18, it exempts children age 14 and older if performed in a training facility, in violation of international standards. (51)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MITRADEL)	Enforce child labor laws through two directorates with direct authority over child labor matters: the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers (DIRETIPPAT), and the Labor Inspection Directorate. (37) The Labor Inspection Directorate enforces the Labor Code in areas where children may be working, particularly in the formal sector. DIRETIPPAT is responsible for overseeing the enforcement of laws related to working children in the formal and informal sectors, plans and executes public policies, and carries out education programs on child labor for employers, parents, and children. (37; 57; 58; 59) Refer cases of children found in exploitative work to the Child and Adolescent Courts, or to the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF). (37)
Attorney General's Office	Investigate and prosecute crimes of sexual exploitation. Investigations initiated by the Judicial Investigative Directorate, cases passed to the prosecutors. (60)
SENNIAF	Conduct inspections to identify children and adolescents engaged in child labor, particularly in the informal sector. (3) Monitor and coordinate a network of government services to address needs of vulnerable populations. (31; 37) Run shelters for victims of human trafficking, including minors. (61)
Childhood and Adolescence Police	Conduct inspections to identify children and adolescents engaged in child labor, particularly in the informal sector. (3) Support SENNI AF inspections in areas with high rates of child labor. (31)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Panama took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MITRADEL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with regard to human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the year, labor inspectors received training on agricultural labor inspections and occupational safety and health. (62) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Panama's workforce, which includes more than 1.6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Panama would employ roughly 109 labor inspectors. (63; 64; 65) Furthermore, the total number of labor inspections suggests that each labor inspector conducted roughly 211 labor inspections; this is a high number and it is unknown whether this affects the quality of labor inspections. MITRADEL has noted that the budget for the Directorate Against Child Labor and for the Protection of Adolescent Workers (DIRETIPPAT) was insufficient to meet its commitments for coordination, implementation, and monitoring. (44; 66; 67) Civil society groups have stated that labor inspections in Panama focus primarily on the formal sector, leaving children in the informal sector vulnerable. (6; 68) Moreover, unannounced labor inspections are not conducted in agricultural areas outside of Panama City. (5)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, the government's criminal law enforcement agencies appeared to function adequately in addressing child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (4)	Yes (8)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (4)	Yes (8)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (4)	Yes (8)
Number of Investigations	781 (69)	920 (69)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	4 (69)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	4 (8)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	4 (8)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (8)

In 2017, 60 officers from the Childhood and Adolescence Police, personnel from the National Secretariat for Childhood, Adolescence, and Family (SENNIAF), and other government agencies, received training on investigating and sanctioning the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Criminal law enforcement agencies investigated 920 reports of commercial sexual exploitation of children during the year and prosecuted and sanctioned 4 violations. (8; 69)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with regard to the coordination between agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor and the Protection of Adolescent Workers (CETIPPAT)	Coordinate various efforts to combat child labor. Led by the First Lady of Panama and includes MITRADEL, the ministries of Education, Health, and Agriculture, and representatives from civil society and organizations of workers and employers. (70) Conduct a National Child Labor Survey every 2 years. (5) Met several times in 2017 on implementing plans to address child labor. (8)
Subcommittee to Combat Child Labor	Incorporate Panamanian Institute for Sports and the Ministry of Education in efforts to address child labor and its causes. Subcommittee of the CETIPPAT. (6; 44; 59; 71)
Provincial Coordination Mechanisms	Identify and report cases of child labor at the local level and coordinate with CETIPPAT at the national level. Established in Bocas del Toro, Colón, and Darién with plans for expansion to achieve national coverage. (8)
National Commission for the Prevention of Crimes of Sexual Exploitation (CONAPREDES)	Coordinate, advise, and implement public policies for the prevention and eradication of sexual exploitation through specific actions, projects, and programs; study related trends and prevalence. (70) Members include the Attorney General as well as the Ministries of Labor, Education, Social Development, and Health. Refer cases of sexual exploitation to the Attorney General's Office. (36; 70) In 2017, approved funding for three new projects to assist at risk children and prevent the commercial sexual exploitation of children, and to conduct a study with the University of Panama analyzing data on children engaged in illicit activities. (8)

MITRADEL has noted the need for increased coordination on efforts to address child labor, including within the Ministry, and with social service agencies and referral mechanisms. (44) During the reporting period, MITRADEL launched a new child labor monitoring information system to strengthen interagency referral and follow-up services for child labor cases. (72)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with regard to mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap Towards the Elimination of Child Labor (2016–2019)	Aims to eliminate all forms of child labor in Panama by 2020 by strengthening anti-poverty, health, and educational programs and policies. (73; 74; 75)
National Action Plan for the Prevention and Elimination of Sexual Commercial Exploitation of Children and Adolescents	Aims to prevent and eliminate the sexual commercial exploitation of children and adolescents, including by providing services to victims, strengthening CONAPREDES, and raising awareness. Implemented by CONAPREDES, with support from the Public Ministry. (36; 37; 70; 76)
National Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2012–2022)	Aims to combat human trafficking through prevention, victim assistance, and international cooperation. Includes provisions to protect child victims of human trafficking. (77; 69)
Districts Free of Child Labor	Aims to establish cooperation agreements between MITRADEL and municipal councils to design and implement child labor eradication strategies. (8) MITRADEL adopted this new approach in October 2017 and announced it at the IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor, held in Buenos Aires, Argentina in November. In December, the municipal councils of Chame and Colón were the first two councils to sign agreements with MITRADEL. (8; 78)

The Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama aims to strengthen dialogue on labor migration between the two countries, with an emphasis on indigenous Panamanian migrant workers, to ensure social protection of migrant workers and their families. The policy includes a bilateral technical committee to promote joint action to combat human trafficking, exchange information, and develop cooperative strategies and projects. (79) Although potentially a useful policy tool to combat child labor, child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with regard to reaching the most vulnerable populations.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Direct Government Action Program for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor†	MITRADEL program implemented through the Institute for Training and Utilization of Human Resources that provides a network of social and economic services to child workers and children at risk of child labor. Services include provision of food and scholarships, support for sports activities, and social monitoring. (6; 80) In 2017, approximately 1,500 children received scholarships for schooling. (69)
Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor†	SENNIAF program that identifies children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, removes them from exploitative situations, and connects them to a network of social and economic services offered by the government. (31; 36)
National Child Labor Survey†	Committee for the Eradication of Child Labor and the Protection of Adolescent Workers survey conducted every two years by the National Institute of Statistics and Census with funding from SENNIAF and MITRADEL. (5) Most recently conducted in 2016 and published in 2017. (1)
National Council of Private Businesses (CoNEP) Corporate Social Responsibility Program	Joint effort created by MITRADEL and the National Council of Private Businesses that involves a partnership with businesses across Panama to sign the Voluntary Agreement of Corporate Social Responsibility to prevent and eradicate child labor. (81; 82)
MITRADEL and Fundación Telefónica Cooperative Agreement (2014–2016)	MITRADEL public-private partnership with Telefónica Móviles Panamá S.A. to prevent and eliminate child labor by improving access to education and providing trainings to teachers and private employers. (6; 83)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness-raising. These projects include Educafuturo: Combating Child Labor, a $8.1 million, 5-year project implemented in Ecuador and Panama by Partners of the Americas; Building Effective Policies Against Child Labor, a $4.3 million, 5-year project implemented in Ecuador and Panama by the ILO; CLEAR II, implemented by Winrock International and partners Verité and Lawyers Without Borders in seven countries; and Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues, implemented in approximately 40 countries by the ILO. For additional information about USDOL's work, please visit our website. (84; 85; 86; 87; 88)
Prevention and Care for Child and Adolescent Victims of Sexual Violence†	SENNIAF program that identifies children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, removes them from exploitative situations, and provides them with social services. Conducts training workshops nationwide for professionals providing direct care to child and adolescent victims of sexual violence. (89)
Network of Opportunities†	Ministry of Social Development program that provides conditional cash transfers to families in extreme poverty, conditioned on their children's participation in health and education services and the acquisition of a birth certificate. Offers training to project participants to improve income-generating opportunities. (36; 90)

† Program is funded by the Government of Panama.

In 2017, the Office of the First Lady funded education, meal, and recreation services to provide child laborers in the coffee-producing region of Renacimiento, Chiriquí as an alternative to participating in the coffee harvest. (8) Although Panama has expanded programs that reach children in rural areas and from indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, the scope of these programs is insufficient, and these children remain vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (41; 43; 62)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Panama (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Establish regulations that define the number of hours and types of activities that children between the ages of 12 and 14 can undertake as light work to ensure that they are not exposed to hazardous labor.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law protects children from hazardous work by establishing a minimum age of 18 for all children or by ensuring that children receive adequate training in the type of work being done and that the health, safety, and morals of the children are protected in accordance with international standards if children age 16 or 17 are allowed to perform hazardous work.	2013 – 2017
Enforcement	Allocate sufficient funding for DIRETIPPAT to meet its commitments for coordination, implementation, and monitoring related to child labor.	2014 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice and to address child labor in the informal sector and agricultural areas outside of Panama City.	2014 – 2017
	Determine whether the inspection ratio for each labor inspector is appropriate to ensure the quality and scope of inspections.	2017
	Strengthen the inspection system by conducting unannounced inspections in agricultural areas outside of Panama City.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on the number of penalties collected for child labor violations.	2017
Coordination	Increase coordination on efforts to address child labor, including within MITRADEL, and with social service agencies and referral mechanisms.	2016 - 2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Coordination Agreement on Labor Migration between the Ministries of Labor of Costa Rica and Panama.	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, including children from rural areas and indigenous and Afro-Panamanian communities, by expanding existing programs, including for school transportation.	2014 – 2017

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Papua New Guinea made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor. However, children in Papua New Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. Laws do not specifically define the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children. Inadequate resources hamper the Labor Inspectorate’s capacity to enforce child labor laws. In addition, Papua New Guinea lacks a compulsory age for education, and some children face challenges accessing school, which increases the risk of children’s involvement in the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Papua New Guinea engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2) Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Papua New Guinea. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		77.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2012, UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4) Data were unavailable from Understanding Children’s Work Project’s analysis, 2018. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working on tea, coffee, and palm oil plantations (6)
Industry	Mining (3)
Services	Domestic work (1; 6)
	Street work, including scavenging for recyclables and begging (7; 3)
	Work in markets, including unloading and carrying heavy bags of food (8; 2)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including working in bars, nightclubs, and brothels, and use in the production of pornography, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2)
	Forced domestic work (1; 2)
	Illicit activities (3; 9)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In Papua New Guinea, children are exploited in commercial sex. (1; 10) Some children from rural areas are sent to live with relatives or “host” families in cities, where they may be forced to perform domestic work to pay off family debts. (1; 3; 2)

Research found the threat of gender-based violence prevents many girls from attending school. (11) Although the government has established a free education policy, in practice many schools charge fees for books, uniforms, and other supplies. (12; 13; 14; 15; 16) These barriers to education make affected children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Papua New Guinea has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Papua New Guinea's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the identification of hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children and the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 103 of the Employment Act (17)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 54 of the Lukautim Pikinini Act (12)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 43 of the Constitution of the Independent State of Papua New Guinea; Section 208 of the Criminal Code (18; 19)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 208 of the Criminal Code (19)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 229J–229O and 229R–229T of the Criminal Code (20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	16	Section 30 of the Defence Act (21)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

* No conscription (22)

Papua New Guinea has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. The Department of Labor and Industrial Relations (DLIR) has been developing a hazardous work list for several years, but it did not submit the list to the cabinet for endorsement during the reporting period. (23; 24; 25; 3)

According to the Employment Act, children ages 11 to 16 may be allowed to work under certain conditions. The minimum age of 11 for light work is not in compliance with international standards, and the law does not specify the types of activities in which light work is permitted nor the number of hours per week that this work may be undertaken. (17; 26) Papua New Guinea also does not have laws that prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. (27) The law does not sufficiently protect children from commercial sexual exploitation, as using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances is not criminally prohibited. (20) In addition, the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups is not prohibited.

Papua New Guinea

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

There is no age up to which education is compulsory in Papua New Guinea, which increases the risk of children's involvement in child labor. Although free education is not mandated by law, there is a policy that sufficiently provides for free basic education. (28; 15; 26)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the DLIR that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Industrial Relations (DLIR)	Implement and enforce child labor laws. (29)
Department of Community Development, Religion and Sports	Enforce the Lukautim Pikinini Act, including provisions on child labor and its worst forms. (29)
Royal Papua New Guinea Constabulary	Enforce laws against commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. (29)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the DLIR that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws, including human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Labor Inspectors	Unknown (24)	43 (3)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (29)	Yes (3)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown (24)	No (3)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number Conducted at Worksites	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (24)	Unknown (3)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (6)	Yes (3)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown (24)	Yes (3)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	No (24)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (24)	No (24)

Labor inspectors sometimes carry out routine inspections in hazardous workplaces or in the manufacturing sector; however, due to limited capacity, labor inspectors generally respond to specific child labor complaints only. (6; 28; 30) Inadequate resources hamper the Labor Inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (3; 31) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Papua New Guinea's workforce, which includes approximately 3.68 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Papua New Guinea should employ about 245 labor inspectors. (32; 33)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Papua New Guinea took actions to combat child labor. (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	No (30)	Unknown (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (34)	Unknown (3)
Number of Investigations	2 (30)	Unknown (3)
Number of Violations Found	4 (30)	Unknown (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	2 (30)	Unknown (3)
Number of Convictions	0 (30)	Unknown (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (34; 35)	Unknown (3)

In 2017, the government did not release labor and criminal statistics related to child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Human Trafficking Committee	Coordinate efforts to combat human trafficking. Chaired by the Department of Justice and the Attorney General, with representatives from more than 15 government agencies, NGOs, and international organizations. (36; 37)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including integrating child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea (2017–2020)†	Promotes government coordination to eliminate the worst forms of child labor through more effective prevention, protection, rehabilitation, and reintegration measures and capacity building. (3; 38)
Papua New Guinea Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan (2015–2020)	Seeks to prevent human trafficking, protect victims, and prosecute offenders. (39)
Universal Basic Education Plan (2010–2019)*	Promotes enrollment of children in school and aims to improve retention rates to ensure children receive 9 years of basic education. (40)
Tuition Fee-Free Policy	Aims to improve access to education by abolishing school fees in grades 1 through 10 and providing subsidies for students in grades 11 and 12. (28; 15; 41)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

* Child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy. (42)

In 2017, the government launched the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea (2017–2020). (43) However, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Urban Youth Employment Project (2011–2018)†	Government- and World Bank-funded project that provides youth with training, temporary jobs, and skills development through apprenticeship projects. (44)
1-Tok Kaunselin Helpim Lain †	Telephone hotline funded by the Government of Papua New Guinea to report child welfare concerns and physical or sexual violence. (45)

† Program is funded by the Government of Papua New Guinea.

Research found no evidence that the government carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, or mining.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Papua New Guinea (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, and the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2017
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2009 – 2017
	Raise the minimum age for light work to 13 to comply with international standards, and ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Establish by law an age up to which education is compulsory that extends to the minimum age for employment.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish comprehensive information on labor law enforcement, including Labor Inspectorate funding, and the training that labor inspectors receive, the number and type of inspections conducted, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of violations for which penalties were imposed and collected.	2014 – 2017
	Strengthen the inspection system by ensuring that inspectors conduct routine or targeted inspections in addition to those that are complaint driven.	2014 – 2017
	Provide inspectors with the resources necessary to enforce labor laws and other laws that protect children from the worst forms of child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor and criminal law enforcement authorities and social services agencies to ensure that victims of child labor receive appropriate support services.	2014 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2017
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors on the worst forms of child labor, including training for new labor inspectors at the beginning of their employment.	2016 – 2017
Coordination	Publish comprehensive information on criminal law enforcement efforts related to child labor, including training for investigators, and the number of investigations conducted, prosecutions initiated, and convictions.	2017
	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor.	2009 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Universal Basic Education Plan.	2013 – 2017
	Publish information about the activities that were undertaken to implement the National Action Plan to Eliminate Child Labor in Papua New Guinea.	2017
Social Programs	Increase access to education by instituting programs to address gender-based violence against girls in schools and fully eliminating school-related fees.	2014 – 2017
	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017
	Institute programs that assist children engaged in the worst forms of child labor in all relevant sectors, especially commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, and mining.	2010 – 2017

In 2017, Paraguay made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government approved a regulation to strengthen enforcement of labor laws and standards, including on child labor, and established a fund with the International Organization for Migration to provide immediate assistance to victims of child labor and human trafficking. The Ministry of Labor, Employment, and Social Security also established a regional office in Villarrica, released labor law enforcement statistics, and law enforcement officials attended training on labor trafficking. In addition, the government increased child and forced labor investigations in the remote Chaco region, where labor exploitation in Paraguay is most prevalent. However, children in Paraguay are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including cattle raising and domestic servitude. Limited funding for law enforcement agencies and social programs hamper the government's ability to fully address the worst forms of child labor, particularly in rural areas.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Paraguay engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in cattle raising and domestic servitude, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8; 9) The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities found that 21 percent of all Paraguayan children were engaged in hazardous work. (2) The 2015 Survey of Activities of Rural Area Children and Adolescents, published in 2016, identified 384,677 children engaged in child labor in agriculture. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Paraguay.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	8.2 (56,492)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.8
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	7.1
Primary Completion Rate (%)		89.1

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Encuesta Permanente de Hogares (EPH), 2016. (11)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of manioc/cassava, corn, beans, peanuts, sesame, sugarcane, tomato, lettuce, melons, sweet potato, peppers, onion, carrots, cabbage, yerba mate (stimulant plant), soy, wheat, stevia, and charcoal (1; 12; 13; 14; 15; 16; 5) Raising poultry, pigs, cattle,† sheep, and goats and producing milk (2; 13; 14) Fishing, including using hooks and harpoons,† preparing bait, and cleaning fish† (1)
Industry	Construction, activities unknown, and production of bricks (2; 12; 14; 5) Limestone quarrying† and gold mining† (2; 12; 14; 5; 17)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work† (2; 18; 14; 19; 4; 7; 8; 20; 6)
	Street work,† including vending, shoe shining, and begging (2; 12; 19; 21; 5; 9)
	Horse jockeying (5)
	Garbage dump scavenging† (2; 3; 22)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Debt bondage in cattle raising, dairy farms, and charcoal factories (12; 5; 23; 24)
	Commercial sexual exploitation and domestic servitude, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (3; 25; 5; 24; 6; 9)
	Use in the production of child pornography (12; 26; 27; 28; 29; 5)
	Use in illicit activities, including smuggling and drug trafficking (3; 12; 30; 5)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Criadazgo, a practice in which middle-class and wealthy families informally employ and house child domestic workers from impoverished families, is pervasive in Paraguay; the 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities estimated that more than 46,000 children were engaged in criadazgo. Many of these children are in situations of domestic servitude, subjected to violence and abuse, and highly vulnerable to sex trafficking. (2; 12; 8; 15; 29; 5; 24; 9) Children are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Ciudad del Este; in the Tri-Border area between Paraguay, Argentina and Brazil; and along commercial shipping routes on the Paraguay River. (24; 5) Children work alongside their parents in debt bondage on cattle ranches, dairy farms, and charcoal factories in the remote Chaco region. (12; 5; 23; 24) Children shine shoes on the street and in the Palace of Justice, the Supreme Court building. (12)

Children from rural and indigenous communities face difficulties accessing and completing their education, including language barriers. (31; 32) The 2011 National Survey of Child and Adolescent Activities indicated that children who speak Guaraní exclusively are more likely to be involved in child labor and have higher rates of school absence compared to other working children; poverty is pervasive in rural Paraguay, where Guaraní is the predominant language. (2; 33) School buses or other forms of public transportation are limited in rural areas, and school infrastructure is often inadequate in rural and indigenous communities. The government has noted that girls from rural areas leave school at an earlier age than boys and estimated that more than 50 percent of children with disabilities could not attend school due to lack of access to public transportation. (12; 5) Such challenges may leave these children more vulnerable to child labor. Approximately 13 percent of children engaged in child labor in agriculture do not attend school and 11.8 percent of working children ages 14 to 17 have not completed primary school. (1; 34)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Paraguay has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Paraguay’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of prohibition of child recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 1 of Law No. 2332; Article 58 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (35; 36)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 54 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 3 of Decree No. 4951; Articles 122 and 125 of the Labor Code; Article 15 of the First Employment Law; Article 5 of Law No. 5407 on Domestic Work (35; 37; 38; 39; 40; 41)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 54 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code; Article 2 of Decree No. 4951; Article 15 of the First Employment Law; Articles 122, 125, and 389 of the Labor Code; Article 5 of Law No. 5407 on Domestic Work (35; 37; 38; 39; 40; 41)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 5-7 of the Comprehensive Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 125, 129, 223, and 320 of the Penal Code; Articles 10 and 54 of the Constitution (42; 43; 44; 45)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 6 and 7 of the Comprehensive Law Against Trafficking in Persons; Articles 125, 129, and 223 of the Penal Code; Article 54 of the Constitution (42; 43; 44; 45)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 135 and 223 of the Penal Code; Article 2.19 of Decree No. 4951; Article 31 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (35; 37; 43; 45)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 1 of Law No. 1657; Article 32 of the Childhood and Adolescence Code (35; 46)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (47; 48)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Articles 3 and 5 of the Obligatory Military Service Law (47; 48)
Non-State	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 2 of Law No. 4088; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264 (49; 50)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 76 of the Constitution; Article 32 of the General Education Law No. 1264 (42; 49)

In January 2017, the government approved a regulation to strengthen enforcement of labor laws and standards, including on child labor. (51)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security (MTESS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment and Social Security (MTESS)	Enforce laws related to child labor, inspect workplaces for child labor, and fine companies found in violation of labor laws. Refer cases involving criminal violation of child labor to the Public Ministry or the National Secretariat for Children and Adolescents (SNNA). (13; 14)
National Police	Maintain a special unit of 33 police officers who handle complaints regarding trafficking in persons, including children, with offices in five cities. (13; 14)
Public Ministry (Prosecutor's Office)	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor by investigating and prosecuting violators and providing support to local prosecutors throughout Paraguay. (14)
SNNA	Maintain a unit dedicated to fighting child trafficking and a hotline to report cases of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Provide social services to victims referred by law enforcement agencies. (13; 14; 30; 23)
Public Defender's Office	Maintain the Specialized Unit to Combat Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation of Children and Adolescents. (52)

Organization/Agency	Role
Attorney General's Office	Investigate and prosecute cases of child labor involving human trafficking through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit. Comprises 3 specialized prosecutors based in Asunción and 35 assistants. (13)
Ministry of Women's Affairs	Provide social services to female victims of human trafficking, half of whom are estimated to be children. House an office staffed with five personnel dedicated to combating trafficking of children. (13; 14; 30)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MTESS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with regard to financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (12)	Yes (5)

In 2017, the MTESS opened a regional office in Villarrica and signed letters of intent with two Fair Trade sugarcane producer associations to promote efforts to address child labor. (53) During the year, labor inspectors received training on agricultural labor inspections, which included field work and pilot exercises. The MTESS also coordinated with the Prosecutor's Office to streamline the labor violation complaint process to avoid duplicative complaints triggering multiple inspections of the same worksite, resulting in fewer labor inspections in 2017 than in 2016. (53; 54)

Although Paraguay has ratified ILO C. 81, its labor inspectors are contractors rather than public officials. Due to the instability of contract employment, the authority and training of these labor inspectors may be called into question. The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Paraguay's workforce, which includes over 3 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Paraguay would employ roughly 229 inspectors. (55; 56; 57) Government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations agree that inadequate funding and the insufficient number of labor inspectors hamper the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws, especially in the informal sector, including in agriculture and domestic work. (5; 9) The inspectorate is particularly limited by the lack of dedicated vehicles or travel funds. (5) An additional constraint to labor law enforcement is the lack of efficient and timely cooperation by judicial authorities in granting workplace inspection search warrants to the Public Ministry and the MTESS when an employer does not permit an inspector to enter a workplace to conduct an inspection. The system is paper-based and orders routinely take more than 3 months to arrive. (12; 13; 14; 15; 58) During the year, the MTESS provided training to labor inspectors to implement the 2016 agreement with judicial and law enforcement authorities, intended to go into effect in 2017, to accelerate the authorization of search warrants. (12; 5)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Paraguay took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with regard to the lack of a referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (12)	Yes (5)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (12)	Yes (5)
Number of Investigations	77 (12)	15 (5)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (54)	15 (54)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (54)	15 (54)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (54)	14 (54)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (12)	No (5)

During the reporting period, the Special Directorate to Fight the Trafficking of Persons and Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children increased child and forced labor investigations conducted in the Chaco region, where the worst forms of child labor, human trafficking, and debt bondage are most prevalent. In addition, 150 prosecutors, investigators, judges, migration officials, and labor inspectors attended training sessions on labor trafficking. (5) However, government agencies, international organizations, NGOs, and labor organizations have observed a need for more specialized prosecutors to support local prosecutors nationwide and increase the Public Ministry's ability to investigate and prosecute cases involving human trafficking. (12; 13; 15; 6) In addition, investigations were limited by insufficient resources, including vehicles, fuel, and logistical support. Overall, Paraguay's criminal law enforcement agencies lack resources, including staff and training, to sufficiently identify, investigate, and prosecute cases of the worst forms of child labor. As a result, the number of convictions of crimes related to the worst forms of child labor is insufficient and existing penalties are inadequate deterrents. (12; 13; 14; 15; 59; 5; 6)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with regard to the coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission to Prevent and Eradicate the Exploitation of Children (CONAETI)	Lead government efforts against child labor and include representatives from the MTESS, the Ministry of Justice and Human Rights, the Ministry of Women's Affairs, the SNNA, and other government agencies, as well as labor union representatives, industry associations, and NGOs. (14; 60) In 2017, celebrated its 15 year anniversary by launching a commemorative postage stamp to raise awareness on child labor and government efforts to address it. (61)
Inter-Institutional Working Group on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking	Coordinate interagency efforts to combat all forms of trafficking in persons, including child trafficking. Headed by the Ministry of Foreign Relations. (14; 20; 60)
Defense Councils for the Rights of Children and Adolescents (CODENIs)	Coordinate efforts to protect children's rights at the municipal level, including by maintaining a registry of adolescent workers and coordinating with vocational training programs for adolescents. (14; 35) In 2017, the CODENI of Paso Yobai piloted new computer and smartphone platforms for the adolescent worker registry. (53) In response to a televised report from May 2017 on children engaged in informal gold mining in Paso Yobai, the CODENI of Paso Yobai and the SNNA held several workshops for families, teachers, and representatives of Paso Yobai's miners association in June 2017 to raise awareness on the risks of child labor in mining. (53)

During the reporting period, the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit of the Attorney General's office coordinated with the SNNA and other government agencies to conduct community outreach on human trafficking in low-income areas. (5) Government agencies responsible for addressing child labor share information and coordinate efforts informally, but coordination between the MTESS and the Ministries of Education and Health remains insufficient to combat the worst forms of child labor. In addition, the CODENIs require additional financial and human resources to fulfill their mission to address child labor. (12; 13; 18; 14; 62)

Paraguay

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor and Protection of Working Adolescents (2016–2020)	Aims to raise awareness and strengthen enforcement of child labor laws. Provides child laborers with access to free quality education and offers livelihood alternatives for their families. (12; 14; 60)
National Strategy to Prevent Forced Labor	Aims to prevent and eradicate forced labor and care for victims. (63)
National Plan for Development (2014–2030)	Aims to reduce social exclusion and poverty, including by preventing and eliminating child labor. (64)
National Plan on Human Rights	Promotes human rights, including the prevention and elimination of child labor and forced labor. (65)
Inter-Institutional Agreement on Government Procurement	Prohibits government procurement of goods or services involving child labor. Established between the SNNA and the National Bureau for Public Contracts. (66)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including coverage and funding to fully address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness-raising. These projects include Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR), implemented by the ILO in 11 countries; Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development, implemented by the ILO in 10 countries; Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues, implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries; and Paraguay Okakuaa (Paraguay Progresses), $6 million project implemented by Partners of the Americas. (67; 68; 69) For additional information about USDOL's work, please visit our website.
Immediate Assistance Fund*	Provides immediate, temporary assistance to victims of child labor and human trafficking. Established by the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit of the Attorney General's office with support from the IOM.
Embrace Program ( Programa Abrazo )†	SNNA program to assist children engaged in exploitative work by providing them and their families with health and education services, food deliveries, and cash transfers conditioned on children's school attendance and withdrawal from work. (58) Works closely with the NGO Fortalecer in the implementation of ILO-IPEC programs and with the Sugarcane Growers' Association, Ministry of Education and Culture, and CONAETI to set up programs tailored to at-risk children who work during the sugarcane harvesting season. (14) In 2017, received $6.7 million in funding and targeted children at risk of child labor in garbage dumps, brick factories, lumber harvesting, and sugarcane. (5)
Combating Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Girls, Boys and Adolescents in Trips and Tourism†	National campaign of the National Secretariat for Tourism and the Association of Female Tourism Executives to raise awareness on protecting children from commercial sexual exploitation. (18)
Promotion of Decent Work in the Cotton Supply Chain (2016-2018)	Government of Brazil-funded project implemented by the ILO to promote decent work in cotton through exchanges on combatting poverty and discrimination, preventing and eradicating child labor and forced labor, formalizing employment, and promoting youth employment and equality. (70; 71)
Well-Being Conditional Cash Transfer Program ( Tekoporã )†	Government-administered program through the Secretariat for Social Action. Provides conditional cash transfers to families in rural communities. (13) Incorporates aspects of the Embrace Program, such as the family monitoring methodology, to ensure participant children do not engage in child labor. (14) In 2017, received $60 million and assisted approximately 335,000 children. (5)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Paraguay.

The 2012 Law Against Trafficking in Persons requires the Ministry of Women's Affairs to provide compensation and financial assistance to victims of sexual and labor trafficking, including minors. However, the government has not allocated funding for the Ministry of Women's Affairs to implement such a program, and most victims did not have access to comprehensive care. (13; 15; 44; 72; 6) Although Paraguay has programs that target child labor, the coverage and funding of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, and programs are limited by the absence of government education and health services in rural areas. Additional programs are needed to reach the large numbers of working children, especially in agriculture, including cattle herding, and domestic work. (13; 15; 5; 6)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Paraguay (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 - 2017
Enforcement	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by permitting inspectors to determine and assess penalties for child labor violations.	2016 - 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by making labor inspectors public officials rather than contractors.	2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice and increase the funding and resources available to the labor inspectorate, including dedicated vehicles and travel funds.	2009 - 2017
	Build enforcement capacity to address child labor in the informal sector, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2014 - 2017
	Implement the agreement to accelerate authorization of workplace inspection search warrants to improve the cooperation mechanisms among judicial authorities and labor enforcement officials.	2013 - 2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services to ensure that victims of the worst forms of child labor receive appropriate services.	2016 - 2017
	Increase efforts to prosecute crimes related to the exploitation of children in the worst forms of child labor, including by hiring and training more specialized prosecutors; providing resources, such as vehicles and fuel, to enable investigations in remote areas, such as the Chaco; developing coordination and referral mechanisms for government agencies to refer relevant cases to the Public Ministry; and increasing penalties for crimes.	2012 - 2017
Coordination	Discontinue the practice of allowing children to shine shoes in government buildings, including the Palace of Justice.	2017
	Strengthen interagency coordinating mechanisms, with particular focus on the communication between the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Health, to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2013 - 2017
Social Programs	Provide additional financial and human resources to the CODENIs to strengthen their ability to address child labor at the municipal level.	2017
	Increase access to education for children vulnerable to child labor, particularly children living in rural and indigenous communities, including in the Chaco, and children with disabilities.	2014 - 2017
	Further expand government programs to assist more families and children affected by child labor, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2010 - 2017

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Peru made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government increased criminal penalties for subjecting children to forced labor and achieved its longest human trafficking sentence to date, in a case involving minors. The National Labor Inspection Superintendency also opened four new inspection offices, hired 160 additional labor inspectors, added approximately $4.9 million to its 2017 budget, and issued a protocol to strengthen child labor inspections and sanctions. Following devastating coastal floods, representatives from multiple government agencies coordinated with regional officials in Piura and other impacted regional cities to provide training and outreach on child labor and human trafficking prevention. In addition, the Government of Peru signed agreements with the United States and Chile to address child labor, reached 83,000 new families with the Together conditional cash transfer program, and expanded in two new cities the Street Educators program, which assists children engaged in street work and begging. However, children in Peru engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Peruvian law allows children ages 12-14 to do light work without specifying the activities in which children may work. In addition, labor law enforcement agencies in Peru lack sufficient inspectors and training to adequately combat child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Peru engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) In the 2015 National Child Labor Survey, the government identified 1,619,200 children, ages 5 to 17, engaged in child labor. Rates of child labor were higher in the sierra and jungle regions than in the coastal region and higher in rural areas than in urban areas. (6) The government estimated that 1,251,400 children, ages 5 to 17, were engaged in hazardous child labor and that 58.4 percent of these children worked in agriculture, fishing, or mining. The government also identified 70,500 children, ages 10 to 17, who experienced indicators of forced labor. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Peru.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	21.8 (1,261,484)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	25.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		102.8

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Transplanting and harvesting rice (9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14; 15; 3)

Services	Street work,† including vending, begging, shoe shining, carrying loads, selling in kiosks and markets, collecting fares on public buses,† and washing cars (21; 6; 16; 22; 23; 24; 3)
	Treating leather and working on shoes (6)
	Repairing motor vehicles† (2)
	Garbage scavenging† (18; 25; 26)
	Domestic work† and cleaning offices and hotels (6; 18)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in mining, including gold mining (2; 3; 4)
	Forced labor in logging timber, street vending, and begging (2; 27; 3; 4)
	Forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (27; 3)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, including in bars, brothels, and mining camps, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 28; 29; 3; 4; 18; 30; 5; 31)
	Growing and processing coca (stimulant plant), sometimes as a result of human trafficking, and transporting drugs (29; 28; 27; 3; 4)
	Counterfeiting U.S. dollars, smuggling gas and gasoline, producing counterfeit light bulbs (16; 32; 33)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (4)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Peru work in informal and small-scale mining, particularly for gold, sometimes in situations of forced labor, and are exposed to hazards, including wall and mine collapses, landslides, explosives accidents, and exposure to mercury and harmful gases. Children are also subjected to commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking near mining areas. (2; 9; 19; 3; 18; 30; 5; 31) Remnants of the Shining Path terrorist group use children in combat, domestic servitude, and drug trafficking. (3; 4)

In 2017, severe flooding damaged over 2,000 schools and prevented an estimated 250,000 children from attending school. (34) During the year, the government distributed education materials in indigenous languages and continued to offer bilingual education programs. However, indigenous and Afro-Peruvian children and children from rural communities experience lower school enrollment and completion rates, with indigenous children especially vulnerable to dropping out of school and engaging in hazardous work in agriculture. (35; 18; 36)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Peru has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Peru’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the lack of prohibition of child recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 51 of the Child and Adolescent Code (37)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 58 of the Child and Adolescent Code (38)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Sections A and B of Supreme Decree No. 003-2010-MIMDES; Article 58 of the Child and Adolescent Code (38; 39)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 2 and 23 of the Constitution; Article 4 of the Child and Adolescent Code; Articles 128, 129, 153, 168, and 182 of the Penal Code (38; 40; 41; 42; 43; 44)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 4 of the Child and Adolescent Code; Articles 153 and 182 of the Penal Code (38; 40; 41; 42)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 4 of the Child and Adolescent Code; Articles 153 and 179–183 of the Penal Code (38; 42; 45)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 128 and 297 of the Penal Code (41; 46; 47)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Articles 2, 6, and 42 of the Military Service Law (48)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17‡	Article 17 of the Constitution; Articles 12 and 36 of the General Education Law; Article 61 of Supreme Decree No. 011-2012-ED (21; 43; 49; 50; 51)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 17 of the Constitution; Article 4 of the General Education Law (43; 49)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (21; 43; 49; 50; 51)

In 2017, the government amended Article 168 of the Penal Code to include increased criminal penalties for subjecting children to forced labor. (41; 44) Although night work is on the hazardous work list, Article 57 of the Child and Adolescent Code allows a judge to authorize children ages 15 and older to engage in night work not exceeding 4 hours a day. The Child and Adolescent Code provides a light work exception for children as young as age 12 to receive work authorization without specifying the activities permitted. (37)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Promotion of Employment (MTPE)	Set national policies and guidelines for labor law enforcement, including for inspections. Responsible for supporting the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL). (52) Maintain an online reporting service to receive complaints of labor law violations. (53)
SUNAFIL	Enforce labor laws in 10 regions. (21; 54) Conduct labor inspections of employers who have more than 10 registered workers. (55) Maintain a special inspection group comprising 15 inspectors who conduct inspections targeting forced labor and child labor violations, and train other inspectors on these topics. (16; 56) Address possible child labor violations during inspections and refer cases of child labor to the Ministry of Women and Vulnerable Populations (MIMP) and the Public Ministry, as appropriate. (57)
Regional Directorates for Labor	Inspect employers with 10 or fewer registered workers and conduct labor inspections in regions without a SUNAFIL office. Function independently of the MTPE. (27; 58)
Ombudsman’s Department for Children and Adolescents	Coordinate government policies and programs that target children and adolescents. Assist the MTPE to investigate child labor complaints. (21)

Organization/Agency	Role
National Police	Enforce criminal laws regarding child labor and child exploitation, and maintain a human trafficking investigation unit to investigate cases of child trafficking for labor and sexual exploitation. (21; 59) Coordinate with the Public Ministry and MIMP to place rescued minors with family members or state social services. (60)
Public Ministry	Coordinate with the MTPE, SUNAFIL, and the National Police to investigate and prosecute cases of criminal violations of child labor laws. Maintain a specialized human trafficking prosecutorial unit in the Public Prosecutor's Office. (61)
Ministry of the Interior (MININTER)	Investigate child trafficking cases. (21) Maintain a hotline to receive reports of human trafficking. Provide victims and the general public with information on human trafficking, refer cases of human trafficking to the relevant government offices, and coordinate services for victims. (60; 62)
MIMP Children's Bureau	Design, promote, coordinate, monitor, and evaluate government policies and programs for the well-being of children. (21; 63) Provide social services to children found in the worst forms of child labor and refer cases to the MTPE. (56; 64)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MTPE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of data on labor inspections.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$23,431,454 (27)	$28,922,000 (3)
Number of Labor Inspectors	480 (58)	626 (65)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (58)	Yes (3)

Number of Child Labor Violations Found	132 (58)	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	Unknown	Unknown (3)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown	Unknown (3)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (27)	Yes (3)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (27)	Yes (3)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (27)	Yes (3)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (58)	Yes (3)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (58)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (27)	Yes (3)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Peru's workforce, which includes over 17 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Peru would employ roughly 1,135 inspectors. (66; 67; 68) The government increased the budget for the National Labor Inspection Superintendency (SUNAFIL) and opened new SUNAFIL inspection offices in Callao, Lambayeque, Cusco, and Piura during the reporting period. However, NGOs, the MTPE, and SUNAFIL reported that the number of labor inspectors and inspections remained inadequate and noted that insufficient training for inspectors and funding for conducting inspections, hiring additional inspectors, and maintaining offices continued to hamper their enforcement of child labor laws, particularly in the informal sector, including in artisanal mining and domestic work. (69; 3; 70; 71) Furthermore, reports indicate that penalties for child labor were insufficient to deter violations. SUNAFIL collected no fines for child labor violations issued between 2014 and 2016 because the fines remained in the judicial appeals process; NGOs estimated that the MTPE collected only 10 percent of fines issued in 2017. (3) In 2017, SUNAFIL was operational in 14 of 25 regions and issued a new protocol to strengthen child labor inspections and sanctions. (3)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Peru took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Yes (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Yes (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Yes (3)
Number of Investigations	764 (72)	Unknown (3)
Number of Violations Found	281 (72)	Unknown (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown (3)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (27)	Yes (3)

During the reporting period, the National Police conducted 865 human trafficking operations and rescued 302 children from commercial sexual exploitation and labor exploitation. (3) However, the government sometimes housed child victims of human trafficking in police stations for extended periods of time. (4) Following an investigation conducted by the National Police, Public Ministry, and Ministry of Interior, the special trafficking in persons prosecutor in Cusco achieved the longest human trafficking sentence in Peru to date when, in December, the government sentenced a brothel bar owner to 35 years in prison for subjecting four teenage girls to human trafficking for the purpose of commercial sexual exploitation in the Madre de Dios region. Despite this case, reports indicate that investigations and prosecutions were inadequate to deter child trafficking, particularly in illegal mining areas and bars, noting too few investigators, insufficient funding or resources to carry out investigations, low conviction rates, and that training for MTPE investigators was inadequate to strengthen MTPE investigative capacity. (3; 71; 4; 65)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (CPETI)	Implement the National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor. (53) Propose public policies and coordinate, evaluate, and monitor government actions to combat child labor. Maintain subcommittees, including on informal mining, child labor in indigenous villages, and project evaluation. (21) Led by the MTPE, comprises representatives from 17 government agencies, including MININTER; the ministries of Education and Justice; the Peruvian National Police; and business associations, unions, and NGOs. (21; 23)
Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor	Manage and implement regional public policy for the prevention and eradication of child labor. Present in all 25 regions of Peru. (58)
National Commission Against Forced Labor	Coordinate government efforts to combat forced labor, including conducting research and awareness-raising campaigns, developing legislation, and strengthening Peru's institutional capacity to address forced labor. Led by the MTPE, with participation of eight additional government ministries. (59; 60)
Permanent Multi-Sectoral Commission on Illegal Mining	Coordinate government efforts to address illegal mining by developing programs to eradicate child labor and commercial sexual exploitation of children in mining areas. Led by the Prime Minister's Office, includes representatives of regional governments and six national government agencies, including the Ministry of Energy and Mines and MININTER. (73)
Multi-Sector Commission Against Trafficking in Persons	Lead and coordinate government efforts to combat human trafficking by designing, recommending, monitoring, and implementing policies to combat human trafficking, including of children. Chaired by MININTER, comprises 12 government agencies, including the MTPE, MIMP, and the ministries of Justice, Education, and Health. (59)

During the reporting period, government agencies used data from the 2015 national child labor survey to inform their efforts to address child labor, enhancing coordination between SUNAFIL, the MTPE, the National Police, and local officials. Following devastating floods in 2017, which may have left children in Peru more vulnerable to child labor and the worst forms of child labor, representatives from the Ministry of Education, Attorney General's Office, National Police, Ministry of Women and Vulnerable Populations (MIMP), the MTPE, and SUNAFIL coordinated with regional officials in Piura to provide training and outreach on child labor and human trafficking prevention in the region. (3; 74; 75) However, research was unable to determine whether the coordinating bodies above were active during the reporting period. In addition, some Regional Commissions for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor have not fulfilled their mandate to create action plans to combat child labor, while others have action plans but have failed to provide the necessary funding to carry them out. (57; 61; 3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Strategy for the Prevention and Eradication of Child Labor (2012–2021)	Aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor by improving livelihoods of low-income families, educational opportunities and working conditions for adolescents; raising awareness of child labor; and increasing child labor law enforcement. (22; 58; 64) Also seeks to improve the quality of child labor data in Peru. (22) In 2017, approximately 8,000 children in 5 regions received assistance from 3 pilot projects implemented under the strategy. (3)
A Peru Without Child Labor	Aims to prevent and eradicate child labor through a partnership between the government and a network of private businesses committed to supporting the National Strategy. (58; 64; 76)
National Action Plan for Children and Adolescents (2012–2021)	Establishes a comprehensive set of government policies for children and adolescents to eradicate the worst forms of child labor. (58; 59; 60; 64)
Second National Plan to Combat Forced Labor (2013–2017)	Established policies and priorities for combating forced labor to reduce children's vulnerability to becoming engaged in forced labor. (77; 58)
Intersectoral Protocol Against Forced Labor	Outlines the government's role in combating forced labor and provides for the housing, legal defense, and educational reintegration of children and adolescent victims of forced labor. Monitored by the National Commission Against Forced Labor. (78; 58; 79)
National Policy Against Trafficking in Persons	Aims to prevent and reduce human trafficking by addressing root causes, prosecuting perpetrators, assisting victims, and strengthening programs for vulnerable populations, including child laborers. (21; 53; 58; 80)

In February 2017, the Governments of Peru and the United States signed a memorandum of understanding to combat labor exploitation, including forced labor and hazardous child labor, in illegal gold mining through cooperation on prevention, investigation, prosecution, and conviction. (81) In July 2017, the Governments of Peru and Chile signed a declaration to work to eradicate child labor and improve employment opportunities in both countries through exchanges and joint research studies. (82) Although a potentially useful policy tool, funding was never secured to implement the Second National Plan to Combat Forced Labor for 2013–2017. (3)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects that aim to eliminate child labor, including its worst forms, through research, improved monitoring and enforcement, policy development, and awareness-raising. These projects include Promoting Better Understanding of Indicators to Address Labor Trafficking in Peru, a $2 million, 4-year project implemented by Capital Humano y Social Alternativo (CHS); Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development, implemented in 10 countries by the ILO; Proyecto Semilla (Seed Project) : Combating Exploitative Rural Child Labor in Peru, a $16 million, 7-year project implemented by Desarrollo y Autogestión ; Consolidating and Disseminating Efforts to Combat Forced Labor in Brazil and Peru, a $6 million, 5-year project implemented by the ILO; From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (The Bridge Project), a global project implemented by the ILO. For additional information about USDOL's work, please visit our website. (83; 84; 85; 86)
Responsible Peru†	MTPE program to create formal youth employment opportunities, encourage adolescents to stay in school, and strengthen corporate social responsibility. (21; 3) In 2017, the MTPE signed agreements with the Municipality of Rímac and with 4 private companies. (3)
Huánuco Project†	Improves school retention and attendance rates among child laborers in rural areas. In conjunction with the Together Program, assists approximately 4,000 children and 3,200 families by providing cash transfers, education, and livelihood services. (22; 56; 58; 60; 61)
Carabayllo Project†	Provides scholarships, education assistance, psychological help, and other services to 1,000 families and 1,500 children to reduce urban child labor, especially in garbage dumps. (22; 56; 58; 60; 61; 25; 26)
Child Labor Record System (2015–2017)	$230,243 Government of Canada-funded, 2-year project implemented by the ILO to create an integrated child labor identification and registration system to improve case management and measure policy impact. Primarily operates in Lima, Huánuco, and Tacna and refers children in, or at risk of, child labor to appropriate education and social services. (58; 87; 88; 89)
Learn Program ( Yachay )†	MIMP program to increase protection and access to social services for children subjected to street work, begging, and commercial sexual exploitation. (90) In 2017, assisted 7,228 children, including by helping 5,667 children reduce their number of hours worked to focus on education. (3)
Street Educators ( Educadores de Calle )†	MIMP program under Yachay that provides counseling and training to children engaged in begging and street work. Operates 71 centers for educational activities, parent training, and workshops. (21; 91; 3) Connects working children and their families to educational and social services to withdraw them from exploitative work and improve family welfare. (72; 57; 91) In 2017, expanded to 2 additional cities, for a total of 22. (3)
Together Program ( Juntos )†	Ministry of Social Development program, provides cash transfers to approximately 763,000 low-income households in 15 of the country's 25 regions. (53; 92; 93; 3) In 2017, reached an additional 83,000 families. (3)

† Program is funded by the Government of Peru.

Reports indicate that existing social programs are not sufficient to fully address the problem of child labor in Peru, including the large number of children that perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Peru also lacks targeted programs to assist children who are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation and children who work in mining, logging, and domestic work. (27; 3; 4) At the IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor, held in Buenos Aires, Argentina in November 2017, the Government of Peru pledged to design a national program for children ages 14 to 17 engaged in hazardous work and begin implementing it in 2019 through regional and local governments. The program will target rural areas and provide training to help children older than the minimum age enter formal, safe employment. (94)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Peru (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that children are either prohibited from engaging in night work with no exceptions or if children are permitted to engage in night work, they are adequately protected.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2017
Enforcement	Publish information on the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites; the number of child labor violations found and for which penalties were imposed and collected; and the number of criminal investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the level of funding allocated to Labor Inspectorates for staff, training, and resources to help ensure adequate enforcement of child labor laws, particularly in the informal sector, including in artisanal mining and domestic work.	2009 – 2017
	Increase the collection rate of fines imposed for child labor law violations, especially to deter future violations.	2015 – 2017
	Establish SUNAFIL offices in all regions of Peru to support labor law enforcement throughout the country.	2017
	Ensure timely referrals of child victims of human trafficking to appropriate shelter and social services.	2017
	Increase the level of funding and the resources allocated for criminal law enforcement related to the worst forms of child labor, including for increased training on the worst forms of child labor for criminal investigators.	2015 – 2017
	Conduct criminal investigations in mining areas and bars in which minors serve alcohol or are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, and ensure that penalties are properly enforced.	2016 – 2017
Coordination	Strengthen coordination and information-sharing mechanisms among government agencies responsible for responding to child labor issues.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that regional CPETI commissions develop action plans to combat child labor and allocate sufficient funding to implement these plans.	2010 – 2017
Government Policies	Allocate sufficient funding to fully implement plans to combat forced labor.	2013 – 2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible for all children, in particular, in indigenous and Afro-Peruvian communities and rural areas.	2014 – 2017
	Expand social programs to reach a greater number of children that perform dangerous tasks in agriculture, and initiate social programs to address child commercial sexual exploitation, child labor in mining, child labor in logging, and child domestic work.	2009 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Philippines made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the Free Internet Access in Public Places Act, which aims to prevent and combat the online sexual exploitation of children. The government also amended the Guidelines in Assessing and Determining Hazardous Work in the Employment of Persons Below 18 Years of Age to include more agricultural work activities. In addition, the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) piloted a referral system to connect children engaged in small-scale gold mining to social services. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, it did not adequately protect children engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration, penalties, or physical harm. In addition, the enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging, especially due to the limited number of inspectors, lack of resources for inspections, and inspectors' inability to assess penalties. Children in the Philippines engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict, and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Philippines engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and gold mining. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8) The Survey on Children indicated that 3.2 million children aged 5 to 17 years old engage in child labor, of which approximately 3 million engage in hazardous work. (9) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Philippines.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	7.5 (1,549,677)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	93.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	7.8
Primary Completion Rate (%)		101.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (10)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Survey on Children, 2011. (11)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

	Use in illicit activities, including in the distribution, procurement, and sale of drugs, including methamphetamine ( shabu ) (28; 38; 39; 40)

The use of children in illicit activities, specifically in the distribution, procuring, and selling of drugs, including a cheap methamphetamine known as shabu, has become a cause for concern for the Philippine government. (41; 8; 28; 39; 9; 38) The government continued its anti-drug campaign, which began in 2016, and did not adequately protect children engaged in drug trafficking from inappropriate incarceration, penalties, or physical harm. (42; 43; 44; 45; 46) According to national police statistics, out of the 800,000 drug users and dealers who registered with authorities by the end of November 2017, 24,000 were identified as minors, and of those minors, 400 were classified to be trafficking drugs. (47) In 2017, the police and armed persons, allegedly associated with the police, killed a number of children suspected to be drug dealers. (48; 49; 44; 42; 46; 47; 50; 51; 52; 53) There is also a report that some children arrested for drug-related offenses were beaten and abused by police, and possibly forced to be photographed with drugs planted by police. (50) Additionally, there is a report of children being arrested for alleged involvement in drug dealing, and sent to detention centers, commonly known as Bahay ng Pag-Asa, or “House of Hope,” across the country. (46) It has been reported that children in these detention centers are routinely subject to physical and emotional abuse, deprived of liberty, and forced into overcrowded and unhygienic cells. (46; 54; 55; 56)

Children, primarily girls, are trafficked domestically from rural communities to urban centers and tourist destinations for the purpose of domestic work and commercial sexual exploitation. (57; 34) Research indicates that the Philippines is the top global internet source of commercial sexual exploitation of children, where children are coerced into performing sex acts for live internet broadcast to paying foreigners and local Filipinos, which usually take place in small internet cafes, private homes, or windowless dungeon-like buildings commonly known as “cybersex dens.” (58; 59; 60; 61; 62; 34)

Child soldiering also remains a concern among non-government militias and terrorist organizations, predominately in the southern island of Mindanao. (8) In Marawi City, many children as young as age 7 were recruited, paid, and trained as fighters by the Maute Group, a terrorist organization linked to ISIS. Reports indicate that these children aided the Maute Group, including as fighters, during the Marawi City crisis in 2017, when ISIS-affiliated terrorists took over the city and captured civilian hostages, resulting in a battle with government forces for the city’s control. (36; 63; 37; 64) In addition, research suggests that the Abu Sayyaf Group, the Bangsamoro Islamic Freedom Fighters, the Moro National Liberation Front, and the New People’s Army continue to recruit children in schools for use as human shields, cooks, and fighters. (6; 65; 66)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Philippines has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

* No conscription (76)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (77)

In August 2017, the government signed into law the Free Internet Access in Public Places Act, which requires the Department of Information and Communications Technology (DICT) to develop rules and guidelines to prevent and combat the online sexual exploitation of children pursuant to existing laws. The DICT will coordinate with the Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography and consult with telecommunications companies and civil society organizations to fulfill this mandate. (79; 80) In January 2017, the National Telecommunications Commission ordered internet service providers in the Philippines to block commonly accessed websites that feature child pornography and violate the Anti-Child Pornography Act. (81; 73)

During the reporting period, the Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE) also amended its Guidelines in Assessing and Determining Hazardous Work in the Employment of Persons Below 18 Years of Age to clarify that children are prohibited from most work activities that involve planting, plowing, harvesting, handling pesticides and fertilizers, work in slaughterhouses, and animal rearing. (8; 70)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Department of Labor and Employment that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor and Employment (DOLE), Bureau of Working Conditions	Enforce child labor laws; regularly train inspectors and regional personnel. Inspect establishments and monitor compliance with labor laws in the formal sector. (82) Register DOLE enforcement activities using the Labor Law Compliance System Management Information System. (83)
Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD)	Rehabilitate and reintegrate child laborers. (84) Coordinate regional Special Action Units, with at least one dedicated staff member per region to conduct rescue operations for child laborers and cooperate with social workers to manage ongoing cases. Maintain 16 Crisis Intervention Units and 30 residential facilities nationwide, as well as social media accounts, to address cases of child abuse and support child abuse victims, including children exploited in hazardous labor. (16; 38)
Philippine National Police (PNP)	Investigate and prosecute cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (35; 85) In the case of the Women and Children’s Protection Center, enforces laws on child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children. (12) Oversee the Internet Crimes Against Children office within its Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division, which aims to combat the online sexual exploitation of children. (86)
Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams ( Sagip Batang Manggagawa – SBM QAT)	Lead the regional mechanism for rescuing children who work in exploitative situations. (87) Detect, monitor, and respond to incidents of child labor using a cooperative and interagency approach. Permitted to conduct unannounced compliance visits in video karaoke bars, massage parlors, sauna/bath houses, and farms when a child labor complaint is made. (38; 87) Chaired by DOLE. (87)
National Bureau of Investigation (NBI)	Investigate and prosecute child labor cases. (35; 85) Operate a national Trafficking in Persons Task Force, as well as a Task Force on the Protection of Children from Exploitation and Abuse. (88; 89)
Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency	Enforce the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act. Maintain a national hotline for reporting cases of children used in illicit activities. (84) Coordinate with the DSWD to assist during rescue operations. (12)
National Telecommunications Commission	Enforce the Anti-Child Pornography Law. Coordinate with Internet Service Providers to block websites containing child pornographic material. (81; 73)

During the reporting period, the Department of Social Welfare and Development piloted a referral system in Camarines Norte to refer children engaged in small-scale gold mining to social services to withdraw them from work and place them into education programs. (90)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Department of Labor and Employment that may hinder adequate child labor enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections and the limited number of inspectors. (16; 38; 83) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of the Philippines's workforce, which includes approximately 42 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, the Philippines would employ roughly 2,783 labor inspectors. (38; 93; 94; 95) While the government slightly increased funding for the labor inspectorate in 2017, research indicates that this funding was insufficient to adequately enforce child labor laws across the country's 16 regions, and particularly in rural areas where child labor is prevalent. (8; 96; 97)

In addition, enforcement of child labor protections is not adequate for children employed in the informal sector and small- and medium-size enterprises, particularly in agriculture, due to DOLE's lack of capacity and resources. (98; 49) While the Rescue the Child Laborers Quick Action Teams are permitted to conduct unannounced compliance visits in video karaoke bars, massage parlors, sauna/bath houses, and farms, they are not authorized to conduct visits in private homes to search for underage child domestic workers. (83)

In 2017, Rescue the Children Quick Action Teams conducted 16 rescue operations and removed 43 child laborers from hazardous and exploitative working conditions.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Philippines took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training of investigators. In addition, the government continued its anti-drug campaign, which began in 2016, and did not ensure that children in the worst forms of child labor were protected from inappropriate incarceration, penalties, or physical harm. (48; 53; 49; 44; 42)

Police and armed persons killed children who were suspected to be involved in drug dealing. (8; 50; 52; 51) Though information on specific cases was limited, there were at least three reported instances of suspected children engaged in drug trafficking being killed in 2017 by law enforcement in connection with the government-directed campaign against illegal drugs, as well as several other instances of children reportedly killed by vigilantes allegedly tied to the police. (50) In addition, there were collateral deaths of children caught in the crossfire during police operations connected to the drug war. (53; 51; 50; 47) Some high-level government officials at times suggested that killing suspected drug traffickers and users was necessary to wipe out drug-related crime, increasing the vulnerability of children being used in the drug trade. (53; 50; 43; 100; 101; 102)

A small number of police officers implicated in a killing of a minor associated with the drug war have been charged with murder; the case was ongoing at the end of the reporting period. (100; 101; 102; 50; 53; 42) In 2017, cases in which children were killed by law enforcement officers and armed civilians, perpetrators were most often not held criminally accountable, including for deaths allegedly connected to the anti-drug campaign. The Philippine National Police (PNP) refer children involved in drug trafficking to the DSWD to receive shelter or rehabilitation programs. (40)

In 2017, the Philippine National Police's Women and Children Protection Center (PNP-WCPC) investigated 35 cases of child trafficking, which resulted in the rescue of 355 children. The government reported the conviction of 36 trafficking offenders in 22 trafficking cases involving 57 minors. (92) In 19 of these convictions involving online sexual exploitation of children, the government offered the defendant a plea agreement to avoid re-traumatization of child victims who would otherwise have had to serve as witnesses during the trial. (92) With the support of NGO and foreign government donors, the PNP-WCPC personnel participated in numerous training programs to enhance PNP personnel's investigative skills in combatting the online sexual exploitation of children and other forms of child trafficking. (99; 92)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the structure, functions, and funding of the National Child Labor Committee.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Child Labor Committee (NCLC)	Coordinate national efforts to combat child labor and chaired by DOLE. (84) Promote information-sharing at the national, regional, and provincial levels. (84) Composed of 16 government agencies, workers' organizations, 1 employers' group, and 1 umbrella nongovernmental organization. (103)
Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking (IACAT)	Coordinate, monitor, and oversee efforts to combat human trafficking, including child trafficking. Co-chaired by the Department of Justice and the DSWD. (12; 89) Composed of 24 anti-human trafficking task forces established in eight regions and seven interagency task forces in major seaports and airports. (12; 16; 83)
Inter-Agency Council for the Welfare of Children (CWC)	Operate a monitoring and response system to assist children engaged in armed conflict. (35)
Inter-Agency Committee on Children Involved in Armed Conflict	Advocate for protecting children and preventing the involvement of children in armed conflict. Chaired by the CWC. (83) Coordinate and monitor the implementation of the Children in Armed Conflict Program Framework. (12)
Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography	Monitor and implement the Anti-Child Pornography Act. (104) Composed of 12 government agencies and 3 nongovernmental organizations. (103) Chaired by the DSWD. (105)
Juvenile Justice and Welfare Council	Lead community outreach and education efforts, through offices located throughout the country, to prevent the use of children in illicit activities, including drug trafficking. Manage livelihood, rehabilitation, food, and scholarship programming. (40)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In March 2017, the Department of Labor and Employment's Secretary submitted a draft executive order to the Acting Head of the Presidential Management Staff that aims to reorganize the National Child Labor Committee (NCLC), redefine its functions, and allocate funds to support its projects and activities, which would accelerate the elimination of child labor in the Philippines. At the end of the reporting period, the Office of the President was still reviewing the draft executive order. (106; 8; 103)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Philippine Program Against Child Labor (2016-2022)	Aims to remove one million children from child labor by the year 2025. (38) Implementation led by the Department of Labor and Employment's Bureau of Workers with Special Concerns. (107)
National Strategic Action Plan Against Trafficking in Persons (2017–2021)†	Aims to address labor trafficking and the online sexual exploitation of children. (108) In 2017, through the Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking, held consultations to identify gaps and challenges, establish priorities, targets, and goals, and secure commitment from stakeholders. (34)
Inter-Agency Council Against Child Pornography Three-Year Strategic Plan (2015–2017)	Aims to eradicate child pornography in the Philippines by focusing efforts in five strategic areas: (a) advocacy and prevention; (b) law enforcement and prosecution; (c) protection, recovery, and reintegration; (d) research, monitoring, and management of information systems; and (e) partnerships and networking. (109; 2; 1; 12)
Philippine Development Plan (2017-2022)†	Aims to build the socioeconomic resilience of individuals and families by reducing their vulnerability to various risks and disasters; this includes the goal of universal social protection for all Filipinos. (8) Aims to reduce the number of children engaged in child labor by 30 percent or roughly 630,000 children. (103)
National Strategic Framework for Plan Development for Children (Child 21) (2000–2025)	Sets out broad goals for national government agencies, local governments, and NGOs to achieve improved quality of life for Filipino children by 2025. (89; 110) Addresses concerns related to the worst forms of child labor under the section on children in need of special protection. (16)
National Plan of Action for Children (2011–2016)	Serves as an implementation roadmap for the National Strategic Framework for Plan Development for Children. (89) Child labor elimination and prevention strategies are included throughout the document, particularly in goal 2 on child protection, which specifies that children should be free from violence, abuse, neglect, and exploitation. (16)
Child Protection Compact Partnership (2017-2021)†	Aims to improve the response to child trafficking, including live streaming online of child sexual exploitation and child trafficking for labor purposes, by (1) increasing criminal investigations, prosecutions, and convictions; (2) strengthening the government's and civil society's capacities to identify and provide comprehensive services for victims; and (3) strengthening existing community-based mechanisms that identify and protect victims of child trafficking. (111; 112) In April 2017, the government committed approximately $800,000 for its implementation. (92)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (113; 114; 71)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with the provision of adequate programs to address victims of child pornography.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Child Labor Prevention and Elimination Program ( Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program)	DSWD program that provides conditional grants to poor families with children to improve their access to health care, adequate nutrition, and education; implements local awareness-raising campaigns; institutes child labor-monitoring mechanisms; and requires neighborhoods to develop child labor elimination plans. (115; 116) Covers 1,627 cities and municipalities in 79 provinces and all 17 regions. (83) Program will include a child labor module that will impart information on the effects of child labor to project participants and the family's role to combat child labor. (38; 117)
Campaign for Child-Labor Free Barangays †	DOLE program that aims to eliminate child labor in villages by raising awareness of child labor and human trafficking laws, and through government livelihood programs and guidelines. (118) In 2017, DOLE declared 6 additional neighborhoods child labor free, bringing the total number to 343 since 2014. (92) By 2016, DOLE regional offices have certified 210 establishments as child labor free. (38)

Program	Description
Livelihood for Parents of Child Laborers ( Kabuhayan para sa Magulang ng Batang Manggagawa )†	DOLE program that provides livelihood assistance to parents, guardians or other family members of child laborers. (85) In 2017, 3,430 parents of child laborers received livelihood assistance. (92)
Recovery and Reintegration Program for Trafficked Persons†	DSWD and IACAT program that provides recovery and reintegration services to victims of human trafficking and raises awareness in vulnerable communities. Includes the National Referral System, which strengthens coordination among agencies providing services to human trafficking victims through the use of standard referral and reporting forms. (119) There are 149 referral networks established in 16 regions. (38)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in the Philippines that aim to eliminate child labor in artisanal and small-scale gold mines, and its worst forms, by improving the capacity of the national government, the implementing the National Action Plan Against Child Labor, conducting research and data collection, developing strategic policies, drafting legislation, and supporting social services delivery for child domestic workers. These projects include Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR), implemented by the ILO in at least 11 countries; Global Action Program (GAP) on Child Labor Issues, implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries; Building a Generation of Safe and Healthy Workers: SafeYouth@Work implemented by the ILO with the Philippines as one of the three pilot countries; and “CARING Gold Mining Project,” Convening Stakeholders to Develop and Implement Strategies to Reduce Child Labor and Improve Working Conditions in Artisanal and Small-scale Gold Mining (ASGM) (2015–2019), implemented by the ILO with the Philippines as one of the two pilot countries. (120; 121; 122; 123) In 2017, the CARING Gold Mining Project began implementing Strategic Helpdesks for Information, Education, Livelihoods and other Development Interventions, which will allow for the collection of child labor data. (90) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Alternative Learning System Program†	Department of Education program that offers non-formal education to out-of-school children, including child laborers and children displaced from military conflict, as well as opportunities to attain a certificate of education equivalency. Has received between $7-15 million and has benefited 500,000 children as of 2015. (124)

† Program is funded by the Government of the Philippines.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (85; 125; 126)

Evidence suggests family members commercially exploit children sexually through live streaming and production of pornography. (58; 31; 34; 59) Although programs exist to assist victims of human trafficking, the Philippines lacked programs to rehabilitate children who have been victims of online commercial sexual exploitation in large part because this is an emerging issue within the country. (38) In addition, there are not adequate programs to provide awareness of this problem and its impact on child victims. (58; 61; 62)

Although the government has implemented programs in small-scale mining, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation, most notably, child pornography. (103; 8) In addition, although the DSWD works in consultation with parents and community leaders to determine how best to assist children suspected of being involved in the drug trade, the DSWD does not have programs specifically designed to increase protections for or assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking to address their heightened vulnerability.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Philippines (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor, as well as resources available in order to provide adequate coverage of the workforce, particularly in rural areas where child labor is prevalent.	2014 – 2017
	Build enforcement capacity to address child labor protections for children employed in the informal sector, including agricultural work.	2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish labor and criminal law enforcement information, including the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites, the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed, the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected, and whether initial trainings were conducted for new criminal investigators.	2015 – 2017
	Enhance efforts to prevent the inappropriate incarceration of, and violence against, children suspected to be engaged in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2017
	Prosecute law enforcement officials and civilians responsible for the killing of children engaged in the drug trade.	2017
	Ensure that investigators receive training on new laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2017
Coordination	Issue the proposed executive order to restructure the National Child Labor Committee and ensure it has the legal mandate and resources necessary to effectively coordinate national efforts to combat child labor.	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Institute programs to address and combat the root causes of families profiting from the sexual abuse and exploitation of their children via live streaming and in the production of child pornography.	2017
	Rehabilitate children who have been victimized through sexual abuse and exploitation via live streaming and in the production of child pornography by their families.	2017
	Raise awareness of the problem of families exploiting their children for money through the production of child pornography and live streaming, and its detrimental impact on child victims.	2017
	Develop programs to increase protections for and provide assistance to children engaged in drug trafficking to address their heightened vulnerability.	2017
	Ensure that Bahay ng Pag-Asa child detention centers in the Philippines do not subject children to physical or emotional abuse and have adequate resources to remedy overcrowding and unhygienic conditions.	2017

Rwanda

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Rwanda made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, the Ministry of Public Service and Labor released the Ministerial Instructions Related to the Prevention and Fight Against Child Labor. These instructions apply to both the formal and informal sectors, identify additional types of work permitted and prohibited for children, specify penalties for businesses that employ child laborers, and include penalties for parents who do not send their children to school. The Ministry of Public Service and Labor also integrated child labor elimination goals into local-level strategic policies. In addition, the government opened an additional 16 One-Stop medical center for victims of the worst forms of child labor, prosecuted cases involving commercial sexual exploitation of children, and published information for the first time about the number of child labor violations found and penalties collected. However, children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children in Rwanda also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Enforcement and implementation of child labor laws and regulations remain problematic, and social programs do not sufficiently address child labor in agriculture.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children in Rwanda also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1; 2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Rwanda.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	6 to 14	5.2 (151,257)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	88.6
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	4.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		67.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Integrated Household Living Conditions Survey, 2013–2014. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including carrying heavy loads,† applying pesticides† and fertilizers† (5; 6; 7)
	Forestry activities, including transportation and loading of wood (8; 6)
	Production of sugarcane, bananas, and tea (9; 10; 11)
	Planting and harvesting beans, cabbage, coffee, corn, manioc, peas, pineapple, potatoes, pyrethrum, sweet potatoes, and sorghum (5; 12)
	Herding cattle and caring for cattle and pigs (5)
	Fishing activities, including netting, setting traps, and transporting goods to the market (6; 8)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Industry	Construction, † including fetching water, rock crushing, and laying bricks (10; 6; 13)
	Mining † coltan and chalk (14; 6; 8)
Services	Domestic work † (1; 10; 15; 6; 7; 13; 16; 2)
	Repair of motorcycles and motor vehicles (6)
	Street work, including begging, † collecting scrap metal, † lifting and carrying heavy loads, † portering, and vending (9; 17; 18; 19; 20; 21; 6; 22)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (23; 24; 6; 2)
	Forced agricultural labor and domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (23; 15; 25; 2)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Rwanda are trafficked internally for domestic work. Some Rwandan children are externally trafficked, primarily to Uganda, Democratic Republic of the Congo, and in East Africa for commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in domestic work and in agricultural and industrial sectors. (2)

Although the Ministry of Education established a policy that provides free basic education for 12 years, of which the first nine are compulsory, in practice, the costs of uniforms, school supplies, and unofficial school fees may preclude some families from sending their children to school. (25; 26; 6) Additionally, the government reported that the likelihood of primary level completion is only 50%, which contributes to the low enrolment rate of 33% at secondary schools. (6) The government is currently conducting its 2017/2018 national household survey that includes child labor indicators; data is collected every four years. (6) The most recent data published for 2013/2014 showed that children ages 6-17 engaged in economic activity in the agriculture, forestry, and fishing sectors. (6)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Rwanda has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government’s laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 4 of the Labor Law (27)

In 2017, the Ministry of Public Service and Labor released Ministerial Instructions Related to Prevention and Fight against Child Labor that applies both to the formal and informal sectors of the economy. These instructions identify additional types of work permitted and prohibited for children; specifies penalties for businesses that employ child laborers; includes penalties for parents that do not send their children to school; and underscores the importance of a child's right to education. (6; 35) In 2017, new legislation addressing the worst forms of child labor and human trafficking were drafted and await final approval in 2018. (6)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Public Service and Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Service and Labor (MIFOTRA)	Enforce labor laws, including laws on child labor. (12; 6) In partnership with the Ministry of Education (MINEDUC), reintegrate children withdrawn from child labor with their families and enroll them in school. (25)
Rwandan National Police (RNP)	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor and operate a free hotline to report incidents of gender-based violence and child abuse, including child labor. (12; 6) In the case of the RNP's Child Protection Unit and Anti-Trafficking Unit, enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1; 36; 37; 25) In the case of the Directorate for Anti-Gender-Based Violence, assist victims of the worst forms of child labor through anti-gender-based violence officers at each of the country's 78 police stations. (9)
National Public Prosecution Authority (NPPA)	Prosecute violations of labor laws, including laws on child labor. (12)
Directorate General of Immigration and Emigration	Receive referrals for human trafficking cases and employ an anti-trafficking specialist. (38) Verify that children transported across the border are traveling with the permission of their parents or guardians. Train border and immigration officials to identify potential human trafficking victims. (12)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Rwanda took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Public Service and Labor that may hinder effective labor law enforcement, including with regard to human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

* The government does not publish this information.

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Rwanda's workforce, which comprises more than 6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developing economies, Rwanda would employ roughly 156 labor inspectors. (39; 40) Reports indicate that MIFOTRA inspectors encounter difficulty determining what constitutes child labor in the agriculture sector. (6) However, MIFOTRA reported it had adequate funding and transportation to carry out labor inspections in 2017. (25; 6) During the year, MIFOTRA conducted investigations in mines and quarries, rice and tea plantations, construction, and domestic work sites, and published for the first time the number of violations found and the amount of penalties imposed pertaining to child labor. (6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Rwanda took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Rwandan National Police that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with regard to investigation planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the year, the National Public Prosecution Authority reported prosecuting four cases involving Rwandan children subjected to commercial sexual exploitation as a result of human trafficking. (6) In December 2017, the RNP made arrests related to child domestic workers and children involved in hazardous agricultural activities. The cases are still under investigation and have yet to be referred to the NPPA for prosecution. (6) It was also reported that the RNP intercepted a perpetrator in Burera District who attempted to traffic four girls, ages 11 to 15, from Rwanda to Uganda. (41) Although the RNP operates a free hotline staffed by social workers to report incidences of gender-based violence and child abuse, including child labor, it is unknown how many of these complaints were related to child labor. (23)

In 2017, the Rwandan Demobilization and Reintegration Commission provided services to 10 child ex-combatants from the Democratic Republic of the Congo at the Musanze Child Rehabilitation Center in Northern Province. (6)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including with regard to efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Inter-Ministerial Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinate government efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, review child labor laws, advocate for the inclusion of child labor policies in national development plans, oversee the implementation of child labor interventions, and conduct field visits to assess the prevalence of child labor and to raise awareness of child labor. Met quarterly in 2017. (9; 36; 6)
Interagency Working Group on Human Trafficking	Enable national-level discussion and coordination of efforts to address human trafficking, including child labor. Includes representatives of the Ministry of Gender and Family Promotion (MIGEPROF), the Ministry of Justice, the RNP and the NPPA. (42)
National Commission for Children (NCC)	Monitor, promote, and advocate for children's rights; develop action plans to protect children from abuse and exploitation. Overseen by MIGEPROF and supported by a board of directors and an advisory council of 14 institutions. (9; 43) During the year, the NCC also noted difficulty in determining what activities constituted child labor in the agriculture sector. (6)
Roundtable on the Elimination of Child Labor for Sustainable Tea Forum (REST)	Implement policies and programs related to child labor in the tea sector. Representatives include MIFOTRA, Winrock International, and tea industry and civil society groups. (25) REST was superseded by NSCCLs and DSCCLs during the reporting period. (42)
Local Committees	Monitor incidents of child labor nationwide through 149 local committees. (9; 36) In the case of the Child Labor Committees, implement policies developed by the Inter-Ministerial Steering Committee on Child Labor in 30 districts and coordinate district labor inspectors, police, and social services officers in conducting inspections, enforcing labor laws, and providing social services to child labor victims. In the case of Gender-Based Violence Committees, operate at the district level to raise awareness about gender-based violence and coordinate social services to assist gender-based violence victims. In the case of Child Protection Committees, identify and report cases of child rights violations at the district, sector, and cell levels. (1)
Kigali City Council Task Force	Coordinate activities to combat child labor in the districts of Gasabo, Kicukiro, and Nyarugenge. The Task Force met during the year to discuss strategies to combat child labor. (37; 6; 42)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor, including its worst forms (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with regard to mainstreaming child labor issue into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Policy for the Elimination of Child Labor (2013) and 5-Year Action Plan to Combat Child Labor	Aims to prevent at-risk children from entering exploitative child labor; withdraw children engaged in exploitative labor through the provision of education; rehabilitate former child laborers through counseling, life skills training, and medical care; raise community awareness about child labor; and establish monitoring and evaluation mechanisms on child labor. The government committed more than $4.2 million to implement the activities listed in the National Policy and the Action Plan. (12; 44; 45; 46)
Trafficking in Persons Action Plan	Aims to improve government efforts to combat human trafficking through awareness-raising, research, poverty reduction strategies, improved services provision, enforcement, and collaboration. Developed by the Consultative Forum on Human Trafficking, Drug Abuse, and Gender-Based Violence. (23; 47)
Government Policies Advancing Youth Employment and Social Protection	Aims to increase understanding of child labor and economic exploitation, and provides employment for school dropouts. Includes the National Employment Policy and National Youth Policy. (48; 49; 50)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (34; 51; 52; 53; 54)

In 2017, MIFOTRA ensured that child labor elimination goals were integrated into local-level strategic policies. (6) The government also met in December to review its 2017–2024 National Strategy for Transformation. The new strategy, to be published in 2018, should address issues related to access to education, school dropout rates, and school feeding, among other things. (6) The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies in Vision 2020, the National Social Protection Strategy, and National Technical and Vocational Education and Training Policy. (48; 55; 56)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that may include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Programs to Combat Child Labor and Raise Awareness†	Government programs to combat child labor and raise awareness. Includes MIGEPROF’s campaign to teach parents and community leaders to recognize risk factors for human trafficking and to identify victims. (23) The Friends of the Family Program ( Incuti Z’Umuryango ), which trains volunteers to provide social services to families and children who are victims of the worst forms of child labor, identifies children at risk of trafficking or forced labor, and reports them to district governments and the RNP. This program also establishes monitoring committees at the village, cell, sector, district, and national levels to combat child labor. (23) The Vision 2020 Umurenge Program provides cash and in-kind transfers to child-headed households and street children. (12; 6) During 2017, the government also held several awareness raising campaigns* regarding child labor and Rwanda’s National Agricultural Export Development Board partnered with UNICEF to provide training to 30,000 local village volunteers to address child labor. (6; 57; 8) MIGEPROF received a budget of $2.6 million for child rights protection. (6) The funding is used to support efforts to address gender based violence and support child protection units in police stations. (8)
Victim Assistance Programs†	Gitagata Center provides education, vocational training, and psychosocial support, and reunites former street children in the Bugesera District with their families. (9; 58) “One-stop” centers are located in hospitals and district capitals for victims of gender-based violence and human trafficking, both foreign and domestic, including individuals who have experienced child domestic work, commercial sexual exploitation, and forced labor. These centers provide medical care, counseling, legal aid, short-term shelter, and access to police services. In 2017, the number of centers increased from 28 to 44. (23; 6)
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects aim to collect data on child labor, remove children from child labor, and provide technical assistance to the government to develop policies to combat child labor. Includes Rwanda Education Alternatives for Children in Tea-Growing Areas (REACH-T)(2013–2017), a $5 million project implemented by Winrock International. During the year, the government used the Child Labor Monitoring System developed by REACH-T to monitor child labor activities in tea-growing districts and intends to expand the use of the system in 2018 to other child labor activities. (6) The government also participates in the Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues (2011–2017), a $15.9 million global project implemented by the ILO in 40 countries, including Rwanda. (59; 60) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
McGovern-Dole School Feeding Program	$25 million WFP and U.S. Department of Agriculture pilot program that works with the Government of Rwanda to provide school meals to 83,000 children in 4 districts (Karongi, Rutsiro, Nyamagabe, and Nyaruguru). (25)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Books Can Open Closed Doors	Save the Children and Children's Voice Today program to advocate for the rights of child domestic workers and offer services and support. Since 2015, the program has trained 42 children in vocational skills, provided social services to 98 children, withdrawn 5 children from child labor, and educated more than 6,000 children and 3,000 community members about child labor issues. (61)
Study on Violence Against Children†	The government, in collaboration with UNICEF and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, is conducting a 2-year study on violence against children, including child labor. The study's findings will be published in 2018. (25)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Rwanda.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (9; 23; 62; 63)

Although Rwanda has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to address the extent of the child labor problem in the agriculture sector.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Rwanda (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of inspectors to provide sufficient coverage for the workforce.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure the MIFOTRA labor inspectors receive sufficient training to determine what constitutes child labor in the agriculture sector.	2017
	Publish information about the number of criminal investigations and violations found related to the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Disaggregate the number of complaints received by the RNP's hotline that relate to child labor.	2013 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that the NCC receives sufficient training to distinguish child labor from permissible children's work.	2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into Vision 2020, the National Social Protection Strategy, and National Technical and Vocational Education and Training Policy.	2011 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure that school costs, such as uniforms, school supplies, and unofficial school fees, do not diminish the impact of the 12-year education policy.	2010 – 2017
	Expand existing social programs to address child labor in the agriculture sector.	2017

Saint Lucia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Saint Lucia made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The National Social Protection Policy provided social welfare assistance to low income families instead of only targeted individuals. The government also held workshops with secondary school officials to raise awareness of child labor issues. A rapid assessment conducted by the ILO in 2016 revealed limited evidence that children in Saint Lucia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and the sale and transportation of drugs. Saint Lucia's law does not fully protect children from hazardous work and illicit activities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Lucia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and the sale and distribution of drugs. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Saint Lucia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	7.5 (2,017)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	99.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	8.2
Primary Completion Rate (%)		Unavailable

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2007, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (7)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4, 2012. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Street vending, including selling food and handicrafts in markets (1; 9; 10; 3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation (2; 11; 3; 5; 6)
	Sale and distribution of drugs (2; 10; 3; 4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Saint Lucia lacks detailed data on the extent of child labor in the country. A rapid assessment conducted by the ILO in 2016 revealed limited evidence that children engage in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes in exchange for rides, clothing, or cell phones or with the knowledge or encouragement of parents in situations of financial need. (2; 12; 3; 4) Limited evidence also suggests that children are used to transport and sell drugs. (2; 3; 4) Local and foreign children are also subjected to sex trafficking, including by parents and caregivers. (5; 13; 6; 14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Saint Lucia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓

Convention	Ratification
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Saint Lucia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children and using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 122 of the Labor Code (15; 16)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 122(2) of the Labor Code (15)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 126(b) and 214 of the Labor Code (15)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 4 of the Constitution; Article 6 of the Labor Code (15; 17)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 3, 5, and 10(c) of Counter-Trafficking Act No. 7 (18)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 141 of the Criminal Code; Articles 2 and 5 of Counter-Trafficking Act No. 7 (18; 19)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 141 and 560 of the Criminal Code (19)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*†
State Voluntary	N/A*†
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 27 of the Education Act (20)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 16 of the Education Act (20)

* No conscription (21)

† No standing military (21)

Saint Lucia has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (3; 15) In addition, although the Criminal Code prohibits the use of children in some illicit activities, such as street work, the using, procuring, or offering of children for the production and trafficking of drugs is not criminally prohibited. (19; 22) Laws related to forced labor are insufficient because forced labor is not criminally prohibited except when it results from human trafficking. The law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation because the use or offering of children for commercial sexual exploitation is not criminally prohibited. (18)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Education, Human Resource Development, and Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Education, Human Resource Development, and Labor	Enforce laws on child labor, in part through labor inspections conducted by its Department of Labor. (23; 24)
Royal Saint Lucia Police Force	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. Through its Vulnerable Persons Unit, investigate cases of child labor, abuse, and neglect, and work in collaboration with the Division of Human Services. (9) Use a specific manual to investigate crimes related to children. (23)

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Home Affairs, National Security, and Justice	Coordinate and lead on anti-human trafficking issues with various ministries. (3; 6)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Saint Lucia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Education, Human Resource Development, and Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown* (2)	$878,270 (3)
Number of Labor Inspectors	7 (2)	9 (3)

Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (2)	Yes (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (3)

* The government does not publish this information.

Although inspectors look for child labor and forced labor violations during inspections, insufficient funding hampers the Labor Inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws in all relevant sectors. (9; 26; 25) Inspectors can make recommendations to the Labor Commissioner but cannot assess penalties, and existing penalties are insufficient to deter employers from committing child labor violations. (2; 27; 25)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Saint Lucia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	No (2)	No (3)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	No (3)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (13)	Yes (3)
Number of Investigations	0 (2)	0 (3)

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (cont)

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Number of Violations Found	0 (2)	0 (3)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (2)	0 (3)
Number of Convictions	0 (2)	0 (3)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (2)	Yes (3)

Although the local police can enforce laws against the worst forms of child labor, it is the Vulnerable Persons Unit who leads this effort. (2) During the reporting period, police officers were trained on victim identification, referral, and assistance skills. (6) However, sufficient training for police is needed in order to adequately identify and work with child victims of human trafficking. (3; 25; 25) In addition, insufficient resources, including funding, transportation, and equipment hamper police capacity to enforce child labor laws. (2; 3) The judicial system within the Ministry of Home Affairs, National Security, and Justice also has a backlog of cases and lacks personnel and resources. (6; 25)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Ministry of Health, Wellness, Human Services, and Gender Relations	Refer potential child labor cases to the Royal Saint Lucia Police Force. (23)
Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Coordinate the identification and referral of human trafficking cases among law enforcement, social services, and immigration officials under the Counter-Trafficking Act. Comprises public servants, including representatives from the Department of Labor, police, and victim-service NGOs. (10; 18; 23) Continued work in 2017. (3)
Office of Gender Relations	Provide referrals to human trafficking victims for health, advocacy, crisis, and legal services. (5)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2015–2018)	Identifies the strategic goals and objectives for combating human trafficking, and the means to achieve them. The action plan was active in 2017 with public awareness campaigns. (3) Establishes the coordination of counter-trafficking measures and the adequate cooperation between all actors through the National Framework for Combating Trafficking in Persons. (2; 13; 28)
National Social Protection Policy (2014–2024)	Establishes a social protection policy in Phase I (2014–2019) by consolidating the Social Safety Net programs. In Phase II (2019–2024), implements wider reforms for creating a coherent social protection policy. (2) Child protection policies are incorporated into poverty reduction concepts and promote access to education. (9; 29) The policy was active in 2017 and seeks to harmonize two social programs to better deliver social services. (3)

During the reporting period, the National Social Protection Policy provided assistance to serve entire families instead of only targeted individuals. (3) This has helped a core group of the lowest-income families, and has plans to distribute assistance to more people in 2018 through 2019. (3) Also, the Ministry designed a formal inter-agency mechanism to oversee poverty reduction programming and intervention. (3) However, case management within the mechanism remains an issue due to not being electronic. Although, the government is working on changing the system to prevent potential loss and damage of files, as well as greater coordination between agencies. (3; 25) In addition, child labor elimination and prevention strategies are not integrated into the National Social Protection Policy. (10) Research did not reveal policies addressing commercial sexual exploitation of children and the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons lacked funding to fully implement all objectives. (6)

Saint Lucia

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

During the reporting period, Saint Lucia attended the 10th ILO Meeting of Caribbean Ministers of Labor: Realizing Decent Work Under the 2030 Agenda. (30) Government officials discussed and participated in a Regional Initiative to Eliminate Child Labor in the Caribbean. (30; 31)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including funding and adequacy to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
ILO Decent Work Program	Promotes decent work and advances the ILO's Decent Work Agenda. (2) In 2017 the program was active and completed a rapid assessment of child labor. (3; 4) The Saint Lucia Trade Union Federation, with support from the ILO Office for the Caribbean, held workshops to raise awareness on child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. (32; 33)
Educational Programs †	The Saint Lucia Social Development Fund and Public Assistance Program fosters school attendance; the Community Empowerment's After School Program aims to improve academic performance and maintains school attendance of children ages 8 to 16; the Upton Garden Girls Center provides education, training, and self-development opportunities to teenage girls; the Center for Adolescent Renewal and Education provides second-chance education, training, and self-development services to adolescents; the Boys Training Center supports boys ages 10 to 18 who have come in contact with the law or require care and protection; and the Koudmen Sent Lisi program funds textbook rentals, a book bursary that reimburses students for textbooks, a school feeding program, and a transportation subsidy program at most secondary schools. (1; 2; 9; 3) All of the programs were active in 2017. (25)
Strengthening Capacity to Accelerate Eradication of Child Labor in Latin America and the Caribbean	Government of Spain-funded $603,070, 2-year project implemented by ILO-IPEC that aims to strengthen public policies and government capacity to combat child labor in over 20 countries in Latin America and the Caribbean, including Saint Lucia. (34) The program was active in 2017. (25)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (35; 36; 6)

Research found no evidence of any programs with the specific goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms. In addition, overall funding for social programs remains a concern because it does not meet the needs of all children in the country, especially trafficked children and those engaged in illicit activities, and it is highly dependent on foreign assistance. (3; 6)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Saint Lucia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the forced labor of children.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that laws criminally prohibit the using or offering of a child for commercial sexual exploitation.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that laws prohibit procuring or offering a child for illicit activities, including drug trafficking and production.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Authorize labor inspectors to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that new labor inspectors and criminal law enforcement investigators receive training on child labor law enforcement and that refresher courses are provided for all labor inspectors.	2015 – 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data on risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the Labor Inspectorate receives sufficient funding for conducting labor inspections.	2015 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the resources allocated to criminal investigators, including transportation and equipment.	2017
	Manage judicial cases adequately by ensuring that there is no backlog and increasing resources, including personnel.	2017
Government Policies	Ensure that child labor elimination and prevention strategies are integrated into the National Social Protection Policy.	2015 – 2017
	Adopt a policy that addresses all worst forms of child labor, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2010 – 2017
	Increase funding for the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons so that it can meet all of its objectives.	2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017
	Design and implement social programs that specifically target and assist children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and illicit activities such as the sale and transportation of drugs.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that funding for social programs is sufficient so that it can meet the needs of all vulnerable children in the country and does not rely on foreign funding.	2017

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government approved a Memorandum of Understanding on Countering Human Trafficking in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, which outlines each signatory agency's role in combating human trafficking and the worst forms of child labor. The government also trained criminal law enforcement personnel on human trafficking issues and conducted multiple awareness raising activities on human trafficking. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Limited research also suggests children perform dangerous tasks in begging. Gaps remain in the legal framework, as the minimum age for hazardous work falls below international standards and there is no law to prohibit the use of children in the production of drugs.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Limited research also suggests that children perform dangerous tasks in begging. (1; 2; 3; 4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		98.0

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (5) Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2016. (6)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Activities unknown (7; 4)
Services	Domestic work and begging (8; 9; 10)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation (11; 12; 4)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Limited research and information received from various sources suggests that some children in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, including by their relatives, in exchange for money or goods. (13; 7; 14; 15)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines' legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the minimum age for hazardous work and prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 8 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (16)

Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Part I, Sections 3–4, and Articles 1–2, and 5 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (16)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Part II, Articles 5–8 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (17)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Part II, Article 7 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (17)

Free Public Education	Yes		Part III, Articles 14–16 of the Education Act (18)

* No conscription (19)

† No standing military (20)

The government has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited to children. The law does not prohibit use of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. Furthermore, the use of children in the production and trafficking of drugs is not criminally prohibited. (17) The law also does not criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of child labor laws.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforce child labor laws through the Department of Labor and refer victims to appropriate social services. (2; 7)
Royal Police Force	Make criminal arrests, including those involving the worst forms of child labor. Address human trafficking through the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit (ATIPU), refer victims to appropriate social services, and fund financial requests made by the ATIPU. (2; 21)
Ministry of Social Development	Maintain the Child Protection Unit, which includes Child Protection Officers who report cases of child abuse. (9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including resources.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$421,308 (3)	$453,200 (22)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (3)	Yes (7)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (3)	Yes (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (7)

The Ministry of Labor can inspect all sectors and it is responsible for investigating labor violations. If the Ministry finds a criminal violation, it forwards the case to the Royal Police Force. (7)

During the reporting period, the Department of Labor reported that the number of inspectors and funding was sufficient. (7) However, a lack of adequate resources, such as computers and training, hampered the labor inspectorate's enforcement of child labor laws. (3; 21; 23) According to sources, the number of inspections conducted was also inadequate because few businesses were inspected. (7; 23)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including allocating resources.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	N/A	Yes (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A (7)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (3)	Yes (7)
Number of Investigations	0 (3)	0 (7)
Number of Violations Found	0 (3)	0 (7)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (3)	0 (7)
Number of Convictions	0 (3)	0 (7)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (7)

The police received sufficient training, according to the police department, including trainings for 69 newly recruited police officers. (7; 14) However, inadequate resources hampered the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Unit’s capacity to combat human trafficking. (14)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons	Develop a national plan to address human trafficking, coordinate the collection of data among government agencies, establish policies to enable government agencies to work with NGOs to prevent human trafficking and assist victims, and provide training to all relevant government officials and authority figures. Chaired by the Prime Minister. (2; 17; 24) Comprises representatives from police, immigration, public prosecutions, social services, gender affairs, and the Department of Labor. (13)

Sources have reported that efforts to counter child begging, a sector where child labor is known to occur, could benefit from a coordinating mechanism. (23)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Protection Policy Framework (2015–2020)	Strengthens national child protection strategies and programs. (25) Charged with adopting policies, goals, and reporting standards for child protection. Allocated $498,786 in 2017 for Child Protection Services and ensured the protection of 2,000 students. (26; 25)
National Plan of Action Against Trafficking in Persons (2016–2020)†	Establishes procedures to eradicate human trafficking. Administered by the National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons, which is chaired by the Prime Minister. (10; 27; 28) In 2017, the government revised the national plan and extended it to 2020. (14; 28)
Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) on Countering Human Trafficking in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines†	Outlines the responsibilities of each signatory agency in combating human trafficking and the worst forms of child labor. (7; 29) Assigns tasks and responsibilities among nine government stakeholders regarding trafficking in persons. (14; 29) Includes the Department of Labor, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Commerce, ATIPU, and others. (22)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

In 2017, the government participated in an ILO meeting with other Caribbean ministers of labor as part of the 2030 Agenda to Realize Decent Work. All participants agreed to create a regional initiative to end child labor in the Caribbean region. (30)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Saint Vincent and the Grenadines

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Government-funded educational programs†	Provides free meals to students and low-income families through the Supplementary Feeding Program (31; 32; 7). Continued to fund other programs such as the Book Loan Program; the Street Children Rehabilitation Program; and the Foster Care Program. (9; 7; 8; 33; 31) All programs were active in 2017. (23)
Zero Hunger Trust Fund†	Provides meals, materials and uniforms to children in need. (3) Active in 2017. (7)

† Program is funded by the Government of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (14)

Although the government has implemented programs to address educational and food needs, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically to assist children in commercial sexual exploitation and begging, both of which are industries reported to employ children. (23)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited to children, in consultation with workers' and employers' organizations, and ensure that the minimum age for hazardous work is 18.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the laws for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation are sufficient and do not only apply to human trafficking.	2017
	Ensure that laws prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child for the production of illicit drugs.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2016 – 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by providing sufficient resources to conduct labor inspections.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the amount of resources, including personnel and vehicles, for the ATIPU.	2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation and begging.	2017

Samoa

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Samoa made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government released a report on child labor focused on street vending and progressed toward finalizing a list of hazardous labor for children. However, children in Samoa perform dangerous tasks in street vending. The government lacks a mechanism to coordinate interagency efforts to address child labor, and Samoan laws do not comprehensively specify the types of hazardous work prohibited for children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Samoa perform dangerous tasks in street vending. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Samoa. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		104.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (7)
Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Gathering coconuts, fruit, and nuts (9)
	Tending domestic animals (9)
Services	Domestic work (9; 10)
	Street vending, including selling food, garlands, and other products (1; 2; 3; 4; 10; 5; 6; 11; 12)
	Garbage scavenging (10)

Although the Samoa School Fee Relief Grant Scheme provides 11 years of free education, hidden school-related costs, such as registration fees, uniforms, meals, and transportation, make it challenging for some children to access education. (13; 14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Samoa has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Samoa's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 51 of the Labour and Employment Relations Act (15)

Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 155–157 of the Crimes Act (18)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 73, 74, 82, and 157 of the Crimes Act (18)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A†
State Voluntary	N/A†
Non-state	No	15	Article 8 of the International Criminal Court Act (19)
Compulsory Education Age	No	14‡	Article 4 of the Education Act (20)
Free Public Education	No

† No standing military (19)

‡ Age calculated based on available information

Samoa law prohibits certain hazardous activities for children, such as operating heavy machinery; however, street vending, an activity in which children are known to work long hours and into the night, is not prohibited for children under age 18. (21) In addition, the law allows children between the ages of 12 and 14 to engage in light work for a limited number of hours, but it does not specify the conditions under which light work may be undertaken, nor does it define the activities that are permitted, as called for under international standards. In 2017, the Ministry of Commerce, Industry, and Labor continued finalizing a more comprehensive list of hazardous work and a list of allowable forms of light work, but this legislation was not approved during the reporting period. (22) Research also found no evidence of laws that ban using, procuring, or offering children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. Although the International Criminal Court Act prohibits recruiting children ages 14 and under into non-state armed groups, the law does not apply to children ages 15 to 18. (19)

The Education Act requires that children attend school from ages 5 to 14 or until they have completed the work of year eight. (20) This standard leaves children who have completed their education requirement but are not yet legally permitted to work vulnerable to involvement in the worst forms of child labor. (23) Although Samoan laws do not mandate free public education, the Samoa School Fee Relief Grant Scheme seeks to provide this service. (24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Commerce, Industry, and Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor. (31)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 8). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including integrating elimination and prevention strategies into policies relevant to child labor.

Table 8. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Samoa School Fee Relief Grant Scheme	Provides free public primary and secondary education. (24; 32) In 2017, the government allocated an additional $2.9 million to fully fund the policy. (11)

The government has not integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies in the Strategy for the Development of Samoa, the Education Sector Plan, or the UNDAF Pacific, which concluded in 2017. (33; 34; 35)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Samoa Decent Work Country Program 2017–2020)†	ILO and government program that promotes decent work in Samoa. Supports legal reform and improved implementation of laws related to child labor, and promotes access to information and employment services for youth. (36; 37)
Pacific Sub-Regional Child Labor and Trafficking Program	In 2017, released the Samoa Rapid Assessment on Children Working on the Streets, which was submitted to the Samoa National Tri-Partite Committee and endorsed by the MCIL. (10)

† Program is funded by the Government of Samoa.

The government signed a memorandum of understanding to continue the Samoa Decent Work Country Program from 2017 to 2020. (37) In January 2017, the Ministry of Women, Community, and Social Development, in conjunction with the Small Business Enterprise Centre, conducted a weeklong training for 11 families with children who work as street vendors. The training exposed these families to other business opportunities that would prevent their children from working as street vendors. (38)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Samoa (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2017
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor, including street vending.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, or offering a child for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the law establishes a compulsory education age that is at least equal to the minimum age for admission to employment.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts related to child labor, including number of child labor violations found, and penalties imposed and collected, as well as the number of criminal investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions. Publish information on law enforcement efforts related to child labor, including the amount of funding for the labor inspectorate and training for criminal investigators.	2013 – 2017
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, including by training new labor inspectors.	2015 – 2017
	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between labor enforcement authorities and social services providers.	2014 – 2017
	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor.	2009 – 2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into relevant policies.	2012 – 2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017
	Enhance efforts to make education accessible for all children by fully eliminating school-related costs.	2016 – 2017
	Institute programs to address child labor in street vending.	2009 – 2017

São Tomé and Príncipe

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, São Tomé and Príncipe made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government continued to contribute resources to support centers that aim to prevent child labor by keeping children in school. However, children in São Tomé and Príncipe engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The types of hazardous work prohibited for children are not comprehensive, and the compulsory education age does not extend to the minimum age for work. Inadequate resources hamper law enforcement agencies' capacity to enforce child labor laws.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in São Tomé and Príncipe engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in São Tomé and Príncipe.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.6
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	89.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	24.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		86.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2014. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including weeding, fertilizing, and spraying plants (2; 5)
	Line and hook fishing (2)
Industry	Carpentry and woodworking (6)
	Construction (2)
Services	Working in shops, restaurants, and bars (2; 5)
	Street work, including begging and selling goods (2; 6; 7)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation (1)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

São Tomé and Príncipe has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor (cont)

Convention	Ratification
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in São Tomé and Príncipe’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Article 128 of the Legal Regime of Individual Employment Conditions (8)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 129 of the Legal Regime of Individual Employment Conditions (8)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 129 and 134 of the Legal Regime of Individual Employment Conditions (8)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 159–160 and 181 of the Penal Code (9)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 160 and 181 of the Penal Code (9)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 179–182 of the Penal Code (9)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 279–280 and 289 of the Penal Code (9)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 1 of Decree-Law 3/83 (10)
State Voluntary	Yes	17	Legislation title unknown (11; 12)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	No	12‡	Article 6 (2)(1) of the Basic Education System Law (13)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 6(1) of the Basic Education System Law (13)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (14; 13)

The law’s minimum age protections do not apply to children working outside of a formal labor relationship, such as children who are self-employed. (8; 14)

The law prohibits children under age 18 from engaging in heavy work carried out in unhealthy or dangerous conditions. It also prohibits underground and night work; however, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover agriculture, an area of work in which there is evidence of exposure to hazardous substances, agents, and processes. (8) The gap between the end of compulsory education and the minimum age for work leaves children ages 12 and 13 vulnerable to child labor because they are not in school, but they also may not legally work.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs	Enforce labor laws, including child labor. (15)
Ministry of Justice and Human Rights	Enforce criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor. (15)

São Tomé and Príncipe

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	$5,000 (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	13 (15)	6 (1)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (16)	Yes (1)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	N/A (15)	N/A
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	No (15)	No (1)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	65 (15)	5 (1)
Number Conducted at Worksites	Unknown	5 (1)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	N/A	N/A
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	N/A	N/A
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown	No (1)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown	Yes (1)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (1)

Although in 2017 the government budgeted $2 million to the Labor Inspectorate, only $5,000 was provided to the inspectorate by the end of the year. Enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections. (1)

Children found by labor inspectors are referred to the Department of Social Protection and Solidarity in the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (17)	No (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	No (1)
Number of Investigations	1 (15)	1 (18)
Number of Violations Found	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (15)	0 (1)
Number of Convictions	0 (15)	0 (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Yes (18)

In 2017, police officers launched an investigation to determine whether a girl was a victim of human trafficking. (18) Children found by the Ministry of Justice and Human Rights officials are also referred to the Department of Social Protection and Solidarity in the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (1)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Anti-Child Labor Committee	Lead efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. (19) Led by the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (17)
Department of Social Protection and Solidarity, Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs	Provide counseling and integration services to children found during labor inspections and criminal investigations. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor	Guides the government's efforts to combat child labor. (15)

In 2017, the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor was not fully implemented due to a lack of resources. (1)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program (2013–2017)	Government program in collaboration with the ILO that aimed to eliminate the worst forms of child labor through legislative action and strategic programs. (20; 21)
Support Centers†	Three government-funded centers, run by NGOs, operate in areas with high concentrations of poor families, orphans, and street children. Provide household stipends to keep children in school and teach income-generating skills. (15; 22; 18)
Disadvantaged Mothers Program ( Mães Carenciadas )†	Government program that provides in-kind support, including food, school materials, and uniforms on an as-needed basis. The support is distributed by social workers. (16)

† Program is funded by the Government of São Tomé and Príncipe.

Research found no evidence of programs designed to specifically address children engaged in agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in São Tomé and Príncipe (Table 11).

São Tomé and Príncipe

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children who are self-employed.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Establish a compulsory education age that is equal to or higher than the minimum age for employment.	2014 – 2017
Enforcement	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2017
	Provide inspectors and investigators with adequate training; equip labor inspectors with the necessary resources to conduct inspections.	2009 – 2017
Government Policies	Ensure that the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor has adequate resources for implementation.	2017
Social Programs	Implement programs that specifically target children engaged in agriculture.	2010 – 2017

In 2017, Senegal made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government drafted regulations for the Law for the Modernization of Daaras. However, children in Senegal engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. Criminal and labor law enforcement agencies lack adequate resources to carry out their work, and redundancy among coordinating bodies to combat child labor hinders effective collaboration. Furthermore, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not include domestic work and street work, areas where there is evidence of child involvement.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Senegal engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8; 9; 10) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Senegal.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	22.3 (4,255,365)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	53.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	13.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		58.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (11)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey, 2015. (12)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Herding cattle (13; 14)
	Fishing, activities unknown (13; 14)
	Farming, including the production of cotton, rice, peanuts, and mangoes (2; 4; 14; 15)
Industry	Washing ore, crushing rocks, using mercury, and carrying heavy loads† while mining gold, iron, and salt, and quarrying rock (16; 14; 15; 17; 18; 19; 20; 8)
	Welding and auto repair (14; 15; 21)
Services	Domestic work (2; 16; 14; 15; 22; 21)
	Street work, including vending (2; 14; 23; 24)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced domestic work, gold mining, fishing, and farming, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4; 7; 25; 26; 27)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2; 7; 20; 28; 29; 27)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 16; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 9; 10; 14; 15; 25; 26; 30; 31; 32; 33)
	Forced labor in garbage collection (34)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Senegal are exploited in domestic servitude, forced labor in gold mines, and trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation, particularly internal trafficking. (25; 26; 27) In Senegal, it is a traditional practice to send boys to Koranic schools, called daaras. However, instead of receiving an education, many students, known as talibés, are forced to beg by their teachers, known as marabouts. (5; 9; 26; 35; 36; 37) The marabouts take the talibés' earnings and often beat those who fail to meet the daily quota. (5; 6; 10; 36; 37) This system enriches marabouts, bringing in over $10 million annually in Dakar alone, according to a recent study by UNODC. (38; 39) The talibés often live in overcrowded, unsanitary conditions, receive inadequate food and medical care, and are vulnerable to physical and sexual abuse. (5; 6; 9; 34; 37; 40) They typically come from rural areas in Senegal and from neighboring countries, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (5; 6; 35; 37; 41) A 2014 daara-mapping study estimated that 30,000 of the estimated 54,800 talibés in Dakar are forced to beg, and a 2016 study found that 9,000 of the estimated 14,000 talibés in the St. Louis department are also forced to beg. (14; 42; 43; 44; 45; 46; 47; 48; 49; 50)

A variety of factors remain as barriers to education, forcing some students to quit school. These barriers include school-related fees, a lack of birth registration documents, and a lack of both teachers and rural schools. Some girls reportedly quit school due to sexual harassment, including by teachers, and because of early pregnancy. (2; 7; 51; 52; 53; 21)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Senegal has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Senegal's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the prohibition of military recruitment by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article L. 145 of the Labor Code; Article 6 of the Decree Establishing the Scale of Penalties for Violations of the Labor Code and Associated Rules for Application (54; 55)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 1 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Article 1 of the Ministerial Order No. 3750 Determining the Types of Hazardous Work Prohibited for Children and Youth; Article 1 of the Ministerial Order No. 3751 Determining the Categories of Business and Work Prohibited to Children and Youth (56; 57; 58)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Ministerial Order No. 3750 Determining the Types of Hazardous Work Prohibited to Children and Youth; Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3751 Determining the Categories of Business and Work Prohibited to Children and Youth (56; 57; 58)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article L. 4 of the Labor Code; Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor; Article 1 of the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Protection of Victims (54; 58; 59)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 1 of the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons and Similar Practices and the Protection of Victims (59)

Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 2 of the Ministerial Order No. 3749 Determining and Prohibiting the Worst Forms of Child Labor (58)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 19 of Law No. 2008-28 (61)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 3 of Law No. 2004-37 (62)
Free Public Education	Yes	18	Article 3 of Law No. 2004-37; Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution (62; 63)

* No conscription (14)

In 2017, application decrees were drafted as part of the voluntary Daara Modernization Program to improve regulation of daaras through the Law on the Modernization of Daaras drafted in 2013. (6; 66; 34; 37; 44; 45; 67; 68; 21) Legislation is also pending to establish a Children's Ombudsman and a Children's Code; the law has been drafted and presented to the Ministry of Good Governance and Child Protection for revision. (50; 21)

Furthermore, two distinct laws treat issues related to forced begging in a way that may create ambiguity. Although the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons broadly prohibits forced begging, a provision of the Penal Code permits the seeking of alms for religious purposes on specific days. (8; 58; 69; 65) Government officials, the UNODC, UNICEF, and local NGOs have stated that penalties for child labor violations may not be severe enough to deter employers from exploiting children, particularly because the penalties are rarely enforced. (70) Further, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not include domestic work or street work, areas where there is evidence of potential harm to child workers. (14; 56; 57; 58) The light work provisions are also not specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor because they do not limit the number of hours per week for light work, determine the activities in which light work may be permitted, or specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken. (57; 54)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Social Dialogue, Professional Organizations, and Institutional Relations that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Social Dialogue, Professional Organizations, and Institutional Relations (MOL)	Enforce child labor laws through the Directorate General of Labor and Social Security and by using social security inspectors. (70; 71)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Enforce all laws through judicial role, including those on child trafficking, forced child begging, and forced labor, and prosecute violations. (15) Train police and judiciary on laws related to human trafficking and forced begging. (6) Through its Department of Correctional Education and Social Protection, help develop draft texts in the field of social protection and juvenile delinquency; strengthen the capacity of stakeholders to care for children; and share responsibility with the Ministry of Women, Family, and Children (MWFC) to provide services to vulnerable children. (30; 68; 72; 73)
Ministry of the Interior and Public Security	Oversee all law enforcement agencies, including the local and national police officials who investigate cases of human trafficking and forced child begging, and arrest perpetrators of the worst forms of child labor. (15; 25; 64; 74) House the Children's Unit, located in Dakar, which employs three officers who specialize in child protection, victim identification, and reinsertion. (25; 30; 64) Through its Children's Unit, receive assistance from the Vice Squad in child protection cases. (75)

(76) Operate the Ginddi Center for vulnerable children and a toll-free child protection hotline through which the public can report child labor abuses. (30; 34)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Senegal took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Social Dialogue, Professional Organizations, and Institutional Relations that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of a formal and reciprocal referral mechanism between labor law enforcement and criminal law enforcement agencies and social services.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

All new labor inspectors are trained at the National Administration School, which provides a module on the worst forms of child labor and a consultation with members of the National Committee Against Child Labor. (15; 25) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Senegal's workforce, which includes over 6 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Senegal should employ roughly 174 inspectors. (77; 78) The MOL acknowledged that the current number of labor inspectors is insufficient; it also noted that a high turnover rate and significant reduction in its funding level had further hindered the labor inspectorate's capacity to enforce child labor laws. (14; 15)

Research indicates that there is a lack of child labor law enforcement in the informal sector, where most children are employed. This is especially true in the artisanal gold mining sector as most activities take place in the far southeast of the country in the Kédougou region, far from the capital. (66; 15; 51; 71) The entities responsible for enforcing laws against child labor are primarily concentrated in Dakar and Thiès, so enforcement is limited outside of the capital. (6; 79) Article L. 241 of the Labor Code grants inspectors the authority to assess penalties for all offenses; however, they typically do so only for minor offenses and refer the more serious infractions to the courts for determination of penalties. (15; 54; 65) Courts may require violations to be resolved through conciliation at the labor inspectorate or refer cases to a tribunal for judgment. (15) Although the Ginddi Center's child protection hotline was operational during the reporting period, the total number of calls was unknown. Furthermore, it is not clear how many cases of child labor were identified as a result of these calls. (27)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Senegal took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the authority and operations of the criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of knowledge by law enforcement officials and judges on the application of the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons, and associated penalties including those against forced begging.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017

Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (14)	Yes (21)

Number of Investigations	Unknown (14)	Unknown (21)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (14)	Unknown (21)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (14)	Unknown (21)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (14)	Unknown (21)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (14)	No (21)

UNODC delivered a training workshop on techniques to investigate human trafficking in March that was attended by 30 judiciary police officers of the criminal investigations division. (29)

The government reported that existing laws are sufficient to prosecute and punish individuals who use talibés for personal profit. (1; 6; 25; 34) However, the courts have had limited success in prosecuting cases related to forced begging, partly due to a perceived lack of political support, cultural norms, and pressure from influential Koranic teachers who support this practice, particularly in rural areas, along with a lack of coordination and resource constraints. (25; 65; 69; 80; 81; 82) In addition, police rarely investigated cases of forced begging or brought them to the courts for prosecution. (45) Finally, although police stations in Senegal are expected to report cases involving children to the Ministry of the Interior and Public Security's Children's Unit, research found no evidence that this occurs regularly. (75; 79)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including regard to clarity of institutional mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee Against Child Labor	Coordinate initiatives, policies, and partnerships with civil society organizations to address child labor. Chaired by the MOL and includes representatives from three ministries, the police, and elected officials. (25; 83; 84)
National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP)	Report on human trafficking in Senegal, with a focus on women and children; coordinate the implementation of the National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings and other efforts to prevent human trafficking; prosecute perpetrators; and protect victims. (64; 68; 85; 86; 87) Chaired by the MOJ and employs five staff members. (6; 25; 68)
Inter-Ministerial Commission	Coordinate implementation of the National Strategy on Child Protection and its related action plan. (70)
Office of the President's Childhood Protection Unit	Coordinate government efforts related to child protection, including through the implementation of the National Strategy on Child Protection. (68; 88) Reports directly to the President of Senegal. (75; 88) Contribute to the creation and implementation of child protection policies, and develop a national system for collecting and disseminating data about vulnerable children. Advocate on behalf of all entities working on issues related to child begging, violence against children, and child labor. (88)

The National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons remains underfunded and research was unable to determine whether any coordinating bodies were active during the reporting period. Redundancy among the activities of the coordinating bodies also creates confusion and obstructs effective collaboration and implementation of efforts. (25; 26; 45; 64; 74; 84)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of policy implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Human Beings (2018–2020)	Aimed to strengthen the legal framework to prevent human trafficking, build capacity by training enforcement officials and working with religious leaders, provide protection and judicial remediation for victims. (25; 89) Implemented by the National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (CNLTP) and merged with the Partnership for the Rescue and Rehabilitation of Street Children and the National Framework Plan for the Eradication of Child Begging. (1; 13; 30; 34; 45; 87; 28) In 2017, the government provided $142,265 in funding to CNLTP, an increase from last year's budget of $88,915, and adopted a new action plan extending until 2020 with wide input from civil society and religious leaders. As part of the policy, trainings of magistrates and police on trafficking issues were also conducted.
National Strategy on Child Protection	Aims to establish an integrated national social protection system and specifically identifies the issue of child begging through an action plan with a recommended budget of $18 million. (13; 34) Implemented through Child Protection Committees (CDPEs), currently established in 24 prefectures, which refer victims to social services and assist law enforcement with reintegrating child trafficking victims. (13; 25; 30) In 2017, as part of the policy, trainings of magistrates and police on trafficking issues were conducted.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (25)

In 2017, the First Lady of Senegal, along with other leading figures, made a declaration in Abidjan, Côte d'Ivoire on child protection, including child trafficking, exploitation, child labor, and all other forms of violence against children. (90; 91)

In 2017, research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken to renew the National Action Plan on the Prevention and Abolition of Child Labor in Senegal, which expired in 2016. (1; 13; 23; 92; 93; 94; 45)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†‡

Program	Description
Project to Fight Against Trafficking and the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2013–2019)†	MWFC program that aims to raise awareness about forced begging and assist victims of child labor. (30) In 2017, research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken.
National Program of Family Assistance Bursaries (2013–2017)†	Social safety net program that provides conditional cash transfers to vulnerable families who keep their children in school. (15; 23; 87; 95; 96; 97; 98) In 2017, program activities continued.
Daara Modernization Program†	$18.5 million government-funded voluntary program implemented by Tostan and La Rencontre Africaine pour la Défense des Droits d'Homme (RADDHO) that aims to regulate, inspect, and fund daaras and eliminate forced begging. (45; 99; 100; 8) The Ministry of Education signed an accord with the Senegalese Association of Koranic Schools to rehabilitate and equip 90 daaras ; its Funds for Koranic Schools program also developed a secular curriculum and works with religious institutions to remove children from street begging and exploitative situations. (30; 71) In 2017, research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken.
Ginddi Center†	The MWFC-run shelter serves abused and vulnerable children, including runaway talibés , street children, and child trafficking victims. (3; 30; 34; 71; 72; 74) Provides food, education, vocational training, family mediation, and medical and psychological care. (3; 25; 72; 74) (101) In 2017, research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken.
Centers to address child trafficking†	The MOJ runs transit houses in Dakar, Pikine, and Saint-Louis that provide monitoring, education, and rehabilitation and reintegration services for victims of child trafficking. (25) In 2017, research was unable to determine whether any actions were undertaken.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (14; 102; 103)

Although the Government of Senegal has implemented programs to address child trafficking and forced begging, research found no evidence that the government has carried out programs to assist children in domestic work, agriculture, or mining. (7; 15; 34; 74; 93)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Senegal (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that penalties for child labor violations, including the worst forms, are stringent enough to serve as a deterrent.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children are comprehensive.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Clarify ambiguity in forced begging provisions in the Penal Code and the Law Concerning the Fight Against Trafficking in Persons to explicitly guarantee that no exceptions can enable a child to be forced to beg.	2017
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2017
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement efforts related to child labor, including the number of labor inspections conducted, including those at worksites, the number of violations found, penalties imposed and collected, and whether routine inspections are conducted and targeted.	2013 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing labor laws, including laws related to child labor to meet the ILO's technical advice, and ensure adequate labor inspectorate funding.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that labor law enforcement and inspections are carried out in the informal sector and areas outside of the capital region.	2014 – 2017
	Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints, log all calls to the MWFC child protection hotline, and track cases of child labor for referral to law enforcement or social services providers.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that criminal law investigators and labor inspectors receive refresher training on laws related to the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Establish a formal and reciprocal referral mechanism between labor law enforcement and criminal law enforcement agencies and social services.	2016 – 2017
	Publish information on the criminal enforcement of child labor laws, including the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions.	2016 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure the effectiveness of coordinating mechanisms on child labor by providing adequate resources, support, and distinct scopes of responsibility so that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2010 – 2017
Government Policies	Adopt a national policy to address child labor.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure that all children have access to education by eliminating school-related fees, building schools in rural areas, training additional teachers, ensuring that all children have access to birth registration, and ensuring that schools are free from sexual abuse.	2011 – 2017
	Institute programs to address child labor in domestic work, agriculture, and mining, and ensure that adequate funding is available to support existing programs targeting the worst forms of child labor, including forced begging.	2010 – 2017
	Undertake activities to support the Project to Fight Against Trafficking and the Worst Forms of Child Labor, Daara Modernization Program, the Ginddi Center, and Centers to address child trafficking.	2017

In 2017, Serbia made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government of Serbia implemented the Regulation on Determining Hazardous Work of Children, which includes a list of hazardous occupations for children in the formal and informal economy. In addition, the Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children against Child Labor was adopted by labor inspectors, police, and social protection agencies, providing increased coordination on identifying and reporting all forms of child labor. Training on child labor was conducted for 81 labor inspectors, social workers, and police officers across 29 districts and the government passed the Strategy for Preventing and Suppressing Human Trafficking. In addition, Serbia published a labor force survey with data on children working between the ages of 15 and 18. However, children in Serbia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. The Criminal Code and Law on Public Peace and Order do not treat child beggars as victims and the Social Welfare Centers are overburdened, which limits efforts in combating child labor, including its worst forms.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Serbia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced begging and commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) During the reporting period, the Government of Serbia published a labor force survey with data on children working between the ages of 15 and 18 from 2016. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Serbia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	15.1 (725,227)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	94.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	17.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		98.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (7)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 5, 2014. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (5; 9)
	Forestry (6)
	Fishing (6)
Industry	Manufacturing, activities unknown (9)
	Construction, activities unknown (9; 5; 10)
	Mining and quarrying (9)
Services	Street work, including washing cars, collecting scrap material, vending, and begging (2; 11; 10; 12; 13)
	Wholesale and retail trade (9; 5; 14; 6)
	Repairing motor vehicles (9)
	Working in food service, information and communication, and transportation and storage (9; 5)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 3; 4; 10; 12; 15; 5)
	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 3; 4; 12; 5; 16)
	Use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (12; 5)
	Domestic work as a result of human trafficking (1; 4)
	Use in illicit activities, including in petty crime (1; 2; 3; 4; 12; 16)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children from Serbia, particularly those from Roma communities, were trafficked internally to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation. (4; 16) Child trafficking victims, especially girls, Roma children, and children from low-income families in rural communities, are most vulnerable to child labor. (2; 17)

Asylum seekers and grantees are allowed to access free primary and secondary education in Serbia. (18; 2) In 2017, 3,950 at-risk children, including unaccompanied and separated children, were identified in the country. (19) Unaccompanied children and those of migrant and asylum-seeking families from Iraq (Kurds and Yazidis), Afghanistan, Syria, Cameroon, Pakistan, and Nepal are vulnerable to trafficking for labor and sexual exploitation, particularly if they are not enrolled in school. (2; 12; 20; 21; 5; 22; 14) Social programs assist migrant children with access to education. (23; 24; 18; 25)

Some Roma, Ashkali, and Balkan Egyptian children experience challenges in attaining birth registration, which may make school enrollment difficult for them and increase their vulnerability to engage in child labor. (13; 26; 20; 27; 28; 25) Although the government has instituted a program to increase the attendance of Roma children in preschool and the law allows children to be enrolled without required documentation, economic hardship, ethnic discrimination, language barriers, and placement in special, non-mainstream schools sometimes discourage some Romani children from attending school, especially girls. (13; 26; 29; 30; 27; 25) A technical working group exists to streamline complex registration procedures for undocumented minorities, including the registration of children of unregistered parents. (31) Government officials indicate that, as a result of these efforts, the number of undocumented minorities in Serbia decreased from 6,500 to 400 persons, including children. (23)

Constitutional and legal protections prohibit discrimination in education against individuals with disabilities. (26; 32; 33) However, some individuals with disabilities, especially Roma children, sometimes face difficulty accessing education due to social prejudices. (34; 33; 27; 28; 25)

Children ages 6 to 17 from Serbia are being recruited to participate in military training camps in Russia. (35; 36) The military training includes teaching them how to use weapons and other basic paramilitary skills. (37)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Serbia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Serbia's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the hazardous occupation of child begging.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 24 of the Labor Law; Article 66 of the Constitution (32; 38)

Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15‡	Article 71 of the Constitution; Articles 94 and 98 of the Law on the Foundations of the Education System (32; 44)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 71 of the Constitution; Article 91 of the Law on the Foundations of the Education System (32; 44)

* No conscription (41)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (32; 44)

In 2017, the government adopted the Regulation on Hazardous Labor of Children which went into effect in January 2018. (5; 39) The Regulation includes prohibited occupations, which are deemed to be hazardous for children in the formal economy, including in vocational education, such as mining, construction, collecting hazardous waste, and animal production. (39) The Regulation designates responsible agencies for combatting child labor. It also directs the labor inspectorate to collect data on child labor. (5; 45) In addition, the Instruction on Conduct of Labor Inspection in the Protection of Children from Child Labor directs inspectors to specifically look for child labor and report on it when it is found. (5; 39; 45)

The law provides heightened penalties for the use of children in illicit activities; however, the Criminal Code and Law on Public Peace and Order do not treat child beggars as victims, but rather as perpetrators and offenders. (40; 18; 46; 47; 14)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Employment, Veteran, and Social Affairs (MOLEVSA) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Employment, Veteran, and Social Affairs (MOLEVSA)	Inspect businesses, receive and investigate child labor complaints through the Labor Inspectorate. (48) Through the Center for Human Trafficking Victims' Protection (CPTV), identify and rescue child trafficking victims and potential victims, conduct needs assessments, and refer victims to social services. Maintain records and contribute to trafficking research projects. (1) The CPTV is divided into two parts: the Agency for Coordination of Protection of Trafficking Victims and the future Urgent Reception Center. (2; 16) The MOLEVSA has internal teams for the protection of children with disabilities and children working on the street. (49) These teams provide children with homes, food programs, and relocation from harmful family situations. (49)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Enforce laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking through the Organized Crime Police and Border Police Force. Oversee the General Police Directorate, which consists of 17 local police directorates with dedicated anti-trafficking units. (1; 50; 51; 16)
Social Work Centers (SWCs)	Assist street children by tracking them. There are 115 SWCs and they work with the MOLEVSA. (2)
Republic Public Prosecutor's Office	Lead investigations on human trafficking cases and exchange information through a network of 27 local prosecutors and NGOs. (50) Provide financial support to the CPTV. (52)
Parliamentary Committee on Children	Review all draft legislation pertinent to children's rights. Monitor the implementation of the child-related provisions of all laws. (17)
Deputy Ombudsman for Children's Rights, Office of the Protector of Citizens	Monitor and conduct research on the situation of children's rights in Serbia. Produce reports on child begging, promote inclusive education and legal prohibition of corporal punishment, and manage draft laws on children's rights for parliamentary approval. (53)

Throughout the reporting period, the Center for Human Trafficking Victims' Protection (CPTV) worked with state institutions, international organizations, and NGOs on anti-human trafficking. In addition, the government appointed a new director to lead the CPTV in August 2017. (3; 23; 31)

Also, according to the MOLEVSA, the Social Welfare Centers (SWCs) are significantly overburdened. (31)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Serbia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOLEVSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation and labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

‡ Data are from January 2017 to November 2017.

Labor inspectors are responsible for inspecting registered and unregistered businesses, but not businesses within the agricultural sector. (2; 5; 54) The Labor Inspectorate has a general work plan with planned inspections, which is drafted at the beginning of each year; however, the work plan is general in nature and does not specifically target high-risk sectors in which child labor is known to occur, such as in agriculture on farms. (5; 56) In 2017, the CPTV and the MOLEVSA coordinated labor inspections to target specific companies and industries with child labor. (16)

As of September 2017, through the Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children against Child Labor, if children are identified in situations of exploitative labor, labor inspectors and police are required to inform the SWCs. (5) Labor inspectors found 26 children between the ages of 15 and 18 working. Of that number, 10 child labor violations were found due to absence of work contracts in legal occupations. (31) In working with employers, the Labor Inspectorate was able to secure work contracts for eight of those cases. (5; 31)

Also in 2017, the Labor Inspectorate's jurisdiction was expanded through the Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children against Child Labor, which gives instruction on how to inspect for child labor. (5; 54) During the year, although the funding and number of inspectors was reported sufficient by the Labor Inspectorate, the Labor Inspectorate indicated that additional technical equipment, such as laptops and cars, would improve the efficiency of detecting child labor. (5; 54) In 2017, 66 labor inspectors were trained on human trafficking prevention, funded by the Council of Europe. However, the Labor Inspectorate officials noted that the existing training is not sufficient. (57; 49; 5)

The CPTV now frequently accompanies the MOLEVSA on inspections and provides cross-training to labor inspectors on human trafficking-related issues, including child labor. (23)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Serbia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including financial resource allocation and prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Unknown (5)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Yes (18)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (3)	Yes (5)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown (5)
Number of Violations Found	21 (3)	21 (31)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown (5)
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown (5)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (3)	Yes (5)

Human trafficking training is provided as a part of the general police curriculum given to law enforcement officials who process immigration cases. (3) During the reporting period, the CPTV provided training for 60 professionals on how to identify trafficking victims among refugees and migrants, including children victims of trafficking. (16) A source indicated that agencies responsible for investigations of trafficking in persons investigations lack funding. (5) In addition, according to the Republic Public Prosecutor's Office, data on violations, prosecutions, and convictions are difficult to determine and collect because child labor cases are not assigned to any specific agency. (5)

During the reporting period, the SWCs, the primary provider of social services to human trafficking victims, assisted child trafficking cases. (1) However, NGOs reported that CPTVs lacked specialized care and procedures for child victims. (1; 3; 23) Furthermore, criminal law enforcement personnel dedicated the majority of their resources to cases of human smuggling related to the migration crisis, which diminished their ability to investigate and prosecute human trafficking cases. (1; 3; 22)

In 2017, the government, NGOs, and national shelters implemented the Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) for immigrant and migrant children. (58; 31) The SOPs aid in the identification of children at risk of being trafficked, while keeping the child's best interests in mind. (58; 59)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates of the Council for Children’s Rights.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Council for Children’s Rights	Coordinate government efforts to address child labor by monitoring and evaluating government activities. The Council includes representatives from international organizations and government ministries, including the MOLEVSA. (60) It had regular meetings in 2017 and established a new council. (5; 18)
National Council for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings	Set government trafficking in persons policies, chaired by the MOI. The National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons acts as the Secretary of the Council and manages the work of the implementation team. (1) It met in 2017. (61)
Refugee Protection Working Group (RPWG)	Address refugee child protection and non-food needs. Co-chaired by UNHCR and the MOLEVSA with the participation of NGOs, local governments, and international organizations. (24) The RPWG meets monthly, is the main mechanism for coordinating services to refugees, and has three sub-working groups, including a group on child protection. (24) Continued to meet in 2017. (31)

In 2017, the National Coordinator for Combating Trafficking in Persons (National Coordinator) was elevated to a full-time position and an independent office with five employees was created under the MOI. (5; 22) However, constraints on time and financial resources limited the National Coordinator’s ability to address police investigations, prosecutions, and the protection of trafficking victims. (1; 3; 50) The Cabinet of the MOI must provide approval before the National Coordinator can work or meet with non-Serbian government officials or organizations, which may limit the coordination efficiency on child labor. (16)

In June 2017, the Council for Children’s Rights established a working group of 17 members for the drafting of the Strategy for Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence. (27; 31) However, the working group failed to meet during the reporting period. (31)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant Roma policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Special Protocol of Labor Inspection for Protecting Children Against Child Labor†	Requires labor inspectors to use a child labor checklist to identify child labor during inspections. (5; 45) Designates responsible agencies for child labor cases and establishes actions to be taken when child labor is found. (5; 45) Mandates that police and labor inspectors inform the SWCs on cases of child labor, which creates a referral mechanism among the three entities. (5; 45)
Strategy for Preventing and Suppressing Human Trafficking and Action Plan (2017–2022)†	Creates a legislative framework, budget, benchmarks, and strategic areas in need of improvement to combat trafficking in persons. (5; 62) The government has allocated $76,000 for 2017–2019. (5; 62)
Protocol on Rules and Procedures for the Institutions and Organizations Working with Children Involved in Life and Work on the Streets of Belgrade†	Aims to enhance institutional cooperation among the MOI, the Criminal Police Directorate, Communal Police, City SWCs, the City Secretariat for Education, the City Secretariat for Health, and civil society organizations. (63) Defines street children, worst forms of child labor, child work, and child trafficking. (2; 63) Stipulates lead institutions, rules, and procedures for interacting with street children. Save the Children is funding the first round of trainings. (2)
National Strategy for Roma Inclusion (2016–2025)*	Aims to improve access to education for Roma population in Serbia in education, including access to preschool. Seeks to include representatives from Roma communities in policy implementation. (64) The project was active in 2017 and contributed to an increase in Roma pupils in secondary schools. (29) In addition, the government adopted the Action Plan for the Strategy for Social Inclusion of Roma Men and Women for 2017–2018†, which mandates the inclusion of Roma in education and employment. (18)
Anti-Discrimination Strategy and Action Plan (2013–2018)	Seeks to prevent discrimination and improve the situation of children and ethnic minorities, including Roma, refugees, internally displaced children, and victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, including those used in the production of pornography. (65)

Policy	Description
Decree on Dedicated Transfers	Aims to allocate funds to local governments for the development of social services for people with disabilities, including children. (66) Active in 2017 with funds transferred to municipalities. (31)
Development Partnership Framework (2016–2020)	Government of Serbia and UN strategic planning document for the achievement of the UN's sustainable development goals, including inclusive education, especially for the most vulnerable, and strengthening social welfare for families. (67)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

*Child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy. (14)

In 2017, at the Argentina Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor, the Government of Serbia pledged to implement regulations on hazardous work for children, improve monitoring and implementation of laws related to child labor, and create A National Roadmap for the Elimination of Child Labor for 2018 to 2022. (68)

During the reporting period, the Decree on Dedicated Transfers was active, allocating funds to municipalities. However, it was unclear whether the funds were used appropriately to assist children with disabilities. (31)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs including with adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†‡

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Programs	Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR) is a USDOL-funded capacity-building project implemented by the ILO in 11 countries to build local and national capacity of governments to address child labor. (69) In 2017, in Serbia, 81 labor inspectors, social workers, and police officers were trained in child labor prevention and identification. Inspectors were also given 26 computers and training on child labor was provided to police in 29 districts across Serbia. (5) The Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development (MAP) is a USDOL-funded, 2-year project implemented by the ILO that aims to increase the knowledge based on child labor in Serbia. (69; 70) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Child Allowance Program†	Government cash benefits program for poor families, conditional on school enrollment for children ages 7 and older. (53; 71)
Assistance to Roma Children in Education†	Ministry of Education, Science, and Technological Development Program that seeks to improve the school attendance rate of Roma children. (53) Includes the Law on the Foundations of the Education System, which encompasses affirmative measures to improve participation and performance of Roma children in the education system. (31)
Inclusive Early Childhood Education and Care*†	World Bank, Ministry of Finance, and Ministry of Education, Science, and Technological Development project that aims to improve access to early childhood education for socially disadvantaged children. (72)
Strengthening the Identification and Protection of Victims of Trafficking†	Implemented by the IOM, the CPTV, and the MOI. The project contributes to the implementation of the National Anti-Trafficking Strategy by improving mechanisms for the prevention and identification of victims of human trafficking. (31) In July 2017, the MOLEVSA issued an instruction on the implementation of indicators for the preliminary identification of victims of trafficking in the social protection system, making the application of these indicators binding and mandatory for all MOLEVSA employees. (31; 73)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Serbia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (3; 74; 16)

Although the Government of Serbia has implemented programs on child labor and inclusive education, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs specifically designed to assist children living and working on the streets, including child begging. (18) In addition, research could not determine if the Child Allowance Program was active in 2017.

In 2017 the CPTV was still looking for donors to complete the Urgent Reception Center. (2) During the past 2 years, it has been unclear when the Urgent Reception Center would be completed due to funding. (5) When fully operational, the Urgent Reception Center will provide temporary accommodations for child trafficking victims; however, it is not intended to be a specialized shelter for children. (1; 31)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Serbia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law does not treat child beggars as criminals.	2017
Enforcement	Train new labor inspectors and criminal investigators on child labor and make information regarding child labor law enforcement publicly available, including the number of penalties imposed that were collected, the number of criminal law investigations conducted, and the number of criminal prosecutions initiated and the number of convictions.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that staff members at the CPTV and SWCs have sufficient capacity, such as personnel and funding, to address the specific needs of child trafficking victims.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors and criminal investigators have the necessary training, tools, and equipment to conduct thorough investigations on laws related to child labor and increase funding for agencies combating trafficking in persons.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement personnel dedicate time and resources to human trafficking cases.	2016 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that the National Coordinator for Combatting Trafficking in Persons has sufficient resources to address coordination with police investigations, prosecutions, and the protection of trafficking victims.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the Council for Children’s Rights fulfills its mandate of a coordination body to monitor child labor issues in the country.	2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Strategy for Roma Inclusion.	2017
Social Programs	Address barriers to education, including access to birth registration documentation; access to education for children with disabilities; and access for minority populations, particularly Roma.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the Child Allowance Program is active and fulfills its mandates.	2017
	Complete the necessary steps to make the Urgent Reception Center to protect child victims of human trafficking operational and ensure that it is fully funded to carry out its mission.	2013 – 2017

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Sierra Leone made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Despite new initiatives to address child labor, Sierra Leone is receiving this assessment because it continued to implement a policy that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. A government policy continued to prohibit girls who were pregnant from attending regular public schools or taking secondary and postsecondary school entrance exams during the reporting period, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Sierra Leone engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in diamond mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Sierra Leone's laws do not adequately protect children from involvement in hazardous work, and the country has not implemented its national action plan on child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Sierra Leone engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in diamond mining and in commercial sexual exploitation, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (1; 2; 3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Sierra Leone.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	51.3 (897,142)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	67.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	43.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		66.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from the Demographic and Health Survey, 2013. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of cassava, coffee, cocoa, palm oil, peanuts, and rice (6; 7; 8; 9)
	Fishing, including deep-sea fishing, † mending nets, and working on boats in the open sea † (1; 3)
Industry	Mining † for alluvial diamonds, sand, and gold, including loading gravel in sacks or basins, carrying sacks on their heads, washing, and sieving (1; 8; 10; 11; 12; 13)
	Quarrying † and crushing stone, including granite, and transporting gravel (1; 3; 14)
	Construction, activities unknown (1; 2; 8; 13)
	Manufacturing †, activities unknown, and metallurgy (2; 15)
Services	Scavenging scrap metals and recyclable materials from dumpsites (1; 16; 17)
	Domestic work (1)
	Street work, including begging, trading, and selling goods (1; 2; 3; 8; 18; 13)
	Portering, including carrying heavy loads † (1)
	Working as apprentices, including in auto-repair shops and on transportation vehicles ( poda poda ) (1)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 19; 20)
	Forced domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (19; 21)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Forced stealing (1)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 8; 13)
	Forced labor at granite and alluvial diamond mines, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 19; 20)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Sierra Leone is a source, transit, and destination country for children trafficked for forced labor in domestic work, granite and diamond mining, and begging; trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation also occurs. (3; 8; 20; 22)

Research indicated that the government continued to implement a policy to prohibit pregnant girls from attending regular public schools and taking secondary and postsecondary school entrance exams, which makes them vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. (23; 24; 25; 13) In addition, despite the legal right to free basic education, many children do not complete primary school because of the high costs of uniforms, books, and fees charged by school authorities. (1; 26) Children’s access to education is also limited by a lack of schools and teachers, distance from schools, and sexual abuse by teachers. (1; 8; 23; 27; 28) Further, despite legal protections, children with disabilities are less likely to attend school due in part to discrimination and school facilities that are not adequately accessible. (23; 28; 29) NGOs also reported that children were denied access to school because of their HIV status. (23)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Sierra Leone has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Sierra Leone’s legal framework to protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of specific provisions on light work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Section 125 of the Child Right Act; Section 52 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act (30; 31)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Sections 126 and 128 of the Child Right Act; Sections 47–56 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act (30; 31)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 128 of the Child Right Act; Sections 47–56 of Chapter 212, Employers and Employed Act; Sections 164 and 170 of the Mines and Minerals Act (30; 31; 32)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Part II, Section 2, and Part IV, Sections 14, 15, and 21 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Section 19 of the Constitution of Sierra Leone (33; 34)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Part II, Section 2, and Part IV, Sections 14, 15, and 21 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act; Section 60 of the Child Right Act (30; 34)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 19–34 of the Sexual Offenses Act; Part II, Section 2, of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act (34; 35)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 7 and 13 of the National Drugs Control Act (36)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Section 28 of the Child Right Act (30)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Section 3 of the Education Act; Section 125 of the Child Right Act (26; 30)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 3 of the Education Act; Section 9 of the Constitution of Sierra Leone; Section 11(c) of the Child Right Act (26; 30; 33)

* No conscription (37)

In 2015, the government developed a list of hazardous work prohibited for children under age 18; however, it remains with the Cabinet for review and has not yet been approved. (8; 37) Currently, the types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not comprehensively cover children's work in a number of sectors in which child labor is known to occur, including in agriculture, construction, domestic work, transportation, street work, auto repair shops, and dumpsites, all areas of work in which there is evidence of work in an unhealthy environment, and work with dangerous machinery, equipment, and tools. (1; 23; 30; 31; 32)

The Child Right Act sets the minimum age for light work at age 13; however, it is not specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor because it does not limit the number of hours per week for light work, determine the activities in which light work may be permitted, or specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken. (30)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Child Welfare Committees that may hinder adequate child labor enforcement.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Formulate, implement, and monitor compliance with child labor regulations through its Child Labor Unit. (8; 38) MLSS District Labor Officers are responsible for enforcing labor laws in the formal sector. (19) Operate regional offices in Bo, Kenema, Makeni, in addition to an office in the diamond-producing district of Kono. (8)
Ministry of Mines and Mineral Resources	Enforce regulations against the use of child labor in mining. Authorized to suspend licenses of mining operators engaged in child labor. (23; 32)
Ministry of Social Welfare, Gender and Children's Affairs (MSWGCA)	Serve as the umbrella agency to oversee child protection issues, including child labor. (1; 19) Head the National Trafficking in Persons Secretariat. (19)
Sierra Leone Police	Investigate and prosecute child labor crimes identified through Family Support Units, which are mandated to minimize and eradicate the incidence of sexual abuse, domestic violence, and child abuse by leading the investigation and prosecution of related offenses. (19; 39)
Transnational Organized Crime Unit	Enforce human trafficking laws and provide statistics and information on cases of human trafficking. (40)
Ministry of Local Government and Rural Development	Enforce child labor laws in the informal sector through its district councils. (1)
Child Welfare Committees	Promote awareness of children's rights and report child welfare concerns to officials responsible for children's issues. Provide recommendations on the support of village children and address complaints and concerns by village inhabitants. (30; 39)

The Child Right Act requires the establishment of a Child Welfare Committee in every village, chiefdom, and district; however, these committees have been established only in a few parts of the country due to budgetary constraints. (19; 25; 30; 37)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Sierra Leone took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including with labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown (8)	Unknown (13)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Unknown (8)	Unknown (13)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (8)	Yes (13)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (13)

In 2017, the number of labor inspectors increased to 30, up from 6 the previous year. (37) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Sierra Leone's workforce, which includes over 2.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed economies, Sierra Leone should employ roughly 74 inspectors. (42; 43) In addition, enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections and insufficient training. (19; 13) Although the government has a complaint line for issues related to child protection, it does not receive any child labor complaints in 2017. (10) Further, the Ministry of Mines and Mineral Resources can conduct inspections of mines and revoke licenses from license holders who are found to be using child labor, but reports indicated that the government did not adequately enforce these laws in the diamond mining sector, due to the limited number of labor inspectors and a lack of funding. (23; 32; 13)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Sierra Leone took actions to combat the worst forms of child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with training for criminal investigators.

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (8)	N/A (13)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (8)	No (13)
Number of Investigations	12 (8)	Unknown (37)
Number of Violations Found	23 (8)	Unknown (37)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	6 (8)	Unknown (37)
Number of Convictions	0 (8)	0 (13)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8)	Yes (13)

Reports indicate that criminal law enforcement in Sierra Leone, particularly efforts to address human trafficking, is hampered by a lack of coordination, limited funding, and a lack of training of law enforcement personnel and the judiciary. (8; 44; 13) During the reporting period, NGOs reported 4 cases of sex trafficking and 15 cases of labor trafficking that resulted in criminal investigations; it is unknown if any of these cases involved children. (13)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including a lack of named members to the National Commission for Children.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Technical Steering Committee on Child Labor (NTCCL)	Develop and coordinate a National Action Plan Against the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (10; 38; 45) Led by the MLSS and the MSWGCA, includes representatives from 10 other government agencies and representatives from international organizations and NGOs. (41)
National Trafficking in Persons Task Force	Coordinate the needs and requirements of agencies that provide shelter and services for human trafficking victims, gather data on reported human trafficking cases, and meet regularly to develop policy and address the issue of child trafficking. (10) Led by the MSWGCA. (46)
National Commission for Children	Coordinate and exchange information in accordance with the Child Right Act. Advise the government on ways to improve the condition and welfare of children as part of the NTCCL. Led by the MLSS and the MSWGCA. (30)

Research was unable to determine whether all members of the National Commission for Children have been named as required by the Child Right Act and whether the coordinating bodies were active during the reporting period. (37)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government of Sierra Leone has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including lack of approval of the National Action Plan against the Worst Forms of Child Labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on Human Trafficking	Includes strategies to address human trafficking through prevention, victim identification, protection and referral, training, and government coordination and monitoring. (47) In 2017, the government conducted radio broadcast programs to increase public awareness of human trafficking, conducted training programs on trafficking issues for the police, and informed Sierra Leone nationals overseas in Guinea and Kuwait of the dangers of human trafficking. (37)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (41; 48; 49; 13; 50)

In 2017, the then First Lady of Sierra Leone, Sia Nyama Koroma, along with other African First Ladies, made a declaration in Abidjan, Côte d'Ivoire, to pledge support to their governments' efforts to prevent child labor, support victims, enhance regional cooperation, and mobilize resources. (51; 52)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The government has yet to approve the National Action Plan against the Worst Forms of Child Labor, which was drafted in 2014, because it remains under review by the Cabinet. (13)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with insufficient shelters and safe houses for children who have been withdrawn from working on the streets or in forced labor.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†‡

Program	Description
Child Trafficking Shelters †	Government program that refers child trafficking victims to privately run shelters that house child victims of forced labor and human trafficking. (21) Research was unable to determine whether these shelters cared for any child trafficking victims in 2017. (37)
Revitalizing Education Development in Sierra Leone (2014–2017)	World Bank-funded, $23.4 million project that aims to strengthen the education system in Sierra Leone. Adds resources to support the initiation of a school feeding program, helps eliminate informal school fees, supplies books to children in grades one to three, and supports local councils with school infrastructure needs, among other activities. (53; 54). In 2017, the government worked with the World Bank to secure an additional $10 million in funding for the project. (55; 37)
UNICEF Country Program (2015–2018)	Aims to combat the worst forms of child labor, increase access to basic education, and address children's needs. (28)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (56; 57)

Sierra Leone has insufficient shelters and safe houses for children who have been withdrawn from working on the streets or in forced labor. (3; 25; 37)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Sierra Leone (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that all children are protected from hazardous work in sectors that have hazardous conditions and in which child labor is known to occur, including in agriculture, construction, domestic work, transportation, street work, auto repair shops, and dumpsites.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children's involvement in child.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Ensure that Village Child Welfare Committees are fully established and operational.	2014 – 2017
	Publish information about MLSS funding, whether unannounced inspections are conducted, whether the Labor Inspectorate is authorized to assess penalties, and the number of criminal law enforcement investigations, violations found, and prosecutions initiated, and increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice ratio.	2011 – 2017
	Enforce laws prohibiting child labor in mining, particularly in the diamond mining sector.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure initial training, training on new laws, and refresher training for civil and criminal law enforcement officials on labor and criminal law enforcement.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the child protection complaint line is fully operational and accessible as a way to target child labor issues.	2013 – 2017
	Improve coordination between criminal law enforcement agencies to ensure that violations are adequately investigated and prosecuted and that the judicial system has sufficient training and ability to handle child labor and human trafficking cases.	2014 – 2017
	Provide labor law and criminal law enforcement officials with sufficient budgetary and transportation resources to adequately enforce the labor laws throughout the country.	2012 – 2017

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Coordination	Designate all members of the National Commission for Children in accordance with Child Right Act requirements and ensure that all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2014 – 2017
Government Policies	Permit pregnant girls to take school entrance exams and attend regular public schools.	2015 – 2017
	Adopt the National Action Plan against the Worst Forms of Child Labor.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Increase access to education for children by eliminating school expenses, providing transportation, increasing the number of schools, eliminating abuse by teachers, and improving access for children with disabilities as well as for children in situations involving early marriage, pregnancy, and motherhood.	2013 – 2017
	Increase the availability of shelters and safe houses for victims of forced labor and for children removed from street work, ensuring that they receive and care for trafficked children.	2009 – 2017

Solomon Islands

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Solomon Islands made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted the Child and Family Welfare Act, which mandates the establishment of social services, and a referral mechanism with law enforcement authorities, for children in need of care and protection who are at risk of or subject to hazardous or exploitative labor. However, children in the Solomon Islands engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. The minimum age for employment does not meet international standards, and the government has not comprehensively identified the hazardous occupations prohibited for children. In addition, education is not compulsory, which increases children's vulnerability to child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the Solomon Islands engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the Solomon Islands. Data on some of these key indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		85.1

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2012, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (7)
Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting palm oil fruits on plantations (9; 10; 6)
	Harvesting sea cucumbers, including diving in deep water (4; 9; 6)
Industry	Alluvial mining† (9; 6)
	Furniture construction (6)
	Construction on roads and buildings, including making bricks (9; 6)
Services	Domestic work and work as cooks (4; 9; 6)
	Scavenging for cans and metal in garbage dumpsites, streets, and streams (3; 9; 6)
	Working in nightclubs, casinos, and motels (4; 9; 6)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 11; 12)
	Use in illicit activities, including in the cultivation and trafficking of drugs (1; 3; 9; 6)
	Forced domestic work and forced work as cooks (4; 13; 6; 12)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

In the Solomon Islands, the commercial sexual exploitation of both boys and girls is prevalent near logging camps, near or aboard fishing vessels, and at hotels, casinos, and entertainment establishments. (2; 5; 6; 11; 14) There are no nationally representative data available on the prevalence and nature of child labor in the Solomon Islands.

Although the government's Fee Free Basic Education Policy provides free education for children in grades one through nine, additional school fees, uniform and book costs, and transportation limitations make it challenging for some children, particularly girls, to access education. (9; 6; 15)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Solomon Islands has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the Solomon Islands' legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and the minimum age for hazardous work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	12	Article 46 of the Labor Act (16)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 47–49 of the Labor Act (16)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 6 of the Constitution (17); Articles 251 and 256 of the Penal Code; Part 7 of the Immigration Act (18; 19)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Part 7 of the Immigration Act; Article 145 of the Penal Code (19; 20)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 141 and 143–144 of the Penal Code (18; 20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A†
State Voluntary	N/A†
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

† No standing military (21)

The minimum age for work is not in compliance with international standards because the Labor Act permits children as young as age 12 to work. (16) The hazardous work prohibitions are not in compliance with international standards. The Labor Code prohibits all children under age 18 from working at night in industrial undertakings, all girls under age 18 from working in a mine or on a ship, all boys under age 15 from working in an industry or on a ship, and all boys under age 16 from working in a mine. However, the Labor Code does not clearly set forth a minimum age for hazardous work in compliance with international standards or delineate the type of work considered hazardous for all children. In addition, the legal framework does not prohibit dangerous work in scavenging and agricultural activities, in which there is evidence of children being exposed to injuries, extreme temperatures, and agrochemicals. (9)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

The Penal Code, which criminally prohibits domestic human trafficking, with heightened penalties if the offense is committed against a child, has insufficient prohibitions against child trafficking because threats, the use of force, or other forms of coercion are required to be established for the crime of child trafficking. Further, the law prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for the production of pornography, but these prohibitions are insufficient, as they do not include pornographic performances. (20)

Laws do not prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. (18) In addition, the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups is not prohibited.

The Solomon Islands has not established an age up to which education is compulsory, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor. Although there are no laws that provide free basic education, there is a policy that sufficiently provides for free basic education. (22)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Commerce, Industry, Labor and Immigration that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Commerce, Industry, Labor and Immigration	Enforce child labor laws. (23) Through the Immigration Division, leads efforts to combat human trafficking, including the trafficking of children. (24; 25)
Royal Solomon Islands Police	Enforce criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor. (13) Leads investigations of internal human trafficking cases. (26)
Joint Monitoring and Investigation Team	Monitor and investigate cases of transnational human trafficking, specifically in the logging industry. Comprises representatives from the Immigration Division, the Royal Solomon Islands Police, Customs, and Forestry Division. (24)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in the Solomon Islands took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). Gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Commerce, Industry, Labor and Immigration that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in the Solomon Islands took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including limited collection of law enforcement data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2017, the government adopted the Child and Family Welfare Act, which mandates the establishment of social services, and a referral mechanism with law enforcement authorities, for children in need of care and protection who are at risk of or subject to hazardous or exploitative labor. (31)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Anti-Human Trafficking Advisory Committee	Coordinate efforts across the government to address human trafficking. (24) Includes the Immigration Division, which acts as secretariat, and representatives from law enforcement agencies and NGOs. (26; 11) Research was unable to determine whether this body was active during the reporting period.

Although the government has established a coordination body on trafficking in persons, as well as the National Advisory Committee on Children, which advises the Cabinet on children's issues, research found no evidence of mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address all forms of child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of all worst forms of child labor.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on Human Trafficking and People Smuggling (2015–2020)	Establishes a framework for national anti-human trafficking efforts. Raises awareness about commercial sexual exploitation of children and services available for vulnerable children. (24; 32) Approximately $3,850 has been allocated for victim support under the plan. (26)
Fee Free Basic Education Policy	Subsidizes school fees for grades one through nine to increase access to education. (9; 22; 33)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (34)

Although the Government of the Solomon Islands has adopted the National Action Plan on Human Trafficking and People Smuggling, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor. Child labor prevention and elimination strategies do not appear to be integrated into the Fee Free Basic Education Policy.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Protecting Children from Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse Through Empowerment and Cooperation	EU-funded program, implemented by Save the Children in collaboration with the National Advisory Committee on Children that ended in November 2017. Sought to strengthen community-level child protection and referral mechanisms in three provinces to protect children from engagement in commercial sexual exploitation. (35; 36; 37; 38)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (39)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the Solomon Islands (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography and the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2017
	Raise the minimum age for employment to at least age 14 to comply with international standards.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that laws clearly establish age 18 as the minimum age for hazardous work.	2009 – 2017
	After tripartite consultations, determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for children, including the types of work in which children are engaged when there is evidence of hazards, such as in scavenging and agriculture.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits child trafficking, regardless of whether threats, the use of force, or other forms of coercion can be established.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for pornographic performances.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits using, procuring, and offering a child for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Establish by law an age up to which education is compulsory.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information on the enforcement of labor laws and criminal laws on child labor, including its worst forms.	2009 – 2017
	Allocate adequate funds for the enforcement of laws on child labor, including its worst forms.	2014 – 2017
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat all forms of child labor.	2010 – 2017
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Fee Free Education Policy.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Conduct research on child labor in the Solomon Islands to inform policy and program design.	2013 – 2017
	Eliminate barriers to basic education by improving access to school transportation and eliminating school-related fees.	2014 – 2017

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Somalia made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. During the year, Somalia approved a National Development Plan that aims to prevent and eliminate child labor. However, despite this initiative, Somalia is receiving this assessment because it continued to implement a practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. The Somali National Army recruited and used children in armed conflict in violation of its national law during the reporting period. Children in Somalia also perform dangerous tasks in street work. Laws do not identify hazardous occupations or activities prohibited for children, and child trafficking for labor and commercial sexual exploitation is not criminally prohibited. Furthermore, the government did not employ labor inspectors and conducted no inspections.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Somalia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Somalia. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
		All [Somalia]	Puntland	Somaliland
Working (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable	9.5	13.2
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable	38.3	44.2
Combining work and school (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable	4.7	6.6
Primary completion rate (%)		Unavailable	Unavailable	Unavailable

Primary completion rate was unavailable from UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (5)
	Herding livestock (1)
	Fishing, including cleaning (5)
Industry	Construction, including crushing stone (5; 1)
	Mining and quarrying (5)
Services	Street work, including shining shoes, washing cars, conducting minibuses, vending, and transporting khat (a legal, amphetamine-like stimulant) (2; 6; 7)
	Working as maids in hotels (6)
	Domestic work (2; 6)
	Voluntarily recruited children used in hostilities by state armed groups (1; 8)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (1; 8)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, herding livestock, breaking rocks, selling or transporting khat , begging, and construction work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 7)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (9; 1)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

As of September 2017, there were an estimated 2 million internally displaced persons in Somalia. (10) Internally displaced persons, including children, are vulnerable to human trafficking for sexual and labor exploitation. Trucks transporting goods to Somalia return to Kenya with girls who are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation in brothels in Kenya and destinations outside of Kenya. (1) Some Somali children seeking refuge in Kenya to avoid recruitment by the terrorist organization al-Shabaab are subsequently trafficked for labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Research also found that children in Somalia are trafficked to Saudi Arabia and forced to beg on the streets. (1)

In 2017, the terrorist group al-Shabaab increased its campaign of forcibly recruiting children as young as age 8 for use in armed conflict. (1; 11) These children planted explosive devices, acted as human shields, conducted assassinations and suicide attacks, gathered intelligence, and provided domestic service; some girls were also forced into sexual servitude. (1) Research found that the Ahlu Sunnah Wal Jama'a militia, which to date has not yet integrated into the Somali National Army (SNA), recruited children. Somalia's numerous clan militias also used child soldiers. (1) During the reporting period, the SNA recruited children for use in armed conflict, even though General Order No. 1 prohibits military personnel from recruiting and employing child soldiers. (12; 1)

The protracted violence in Somalia has reduced access to all basic services, including public education. (13; 14) Attacks on schools by al-Shabaab, SNA, and other armed groups have resulted in the forced recruitment of children, state and non-state military occupancy of schools, and damaged educational facilities. (14; 15)

Al-Shabaab occupied rural areas in south-central Somalia. The Federal Government of Somalia (FGS) had limited control outside its capital city, Mogadishu. In other parts of the country, essential governance functions were provided by regional administrations, including the self-declared independent region of Somaliland in the northwest and the federal member state of Puntland in the northeast. (16; 1)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Somalia has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The FGS has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Somalia's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the lack of prohibition and recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 93 of the Labour Code; Article 38(1) of the Private Sector Employees Law (17; 18)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 90 of the Labour Code; Article 38(2) of the Private Sector Employees Law; Article 29 of the Provisional Constitution (17; 18; 19)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Articles 90 and 94 of the Labour Code; Articles 10 and 38(4) of the Private Sector Employees Law (17; 18)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 455 and 464 of the Penal Code (20)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 403–404 and 407–408 of the Penal Code (20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	General Order No. 1 (12)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	General Order No. 1 (12)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	No	14‡	Articles 13 and 15 of the General Education Law (21)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 14 of the General Education Law (21)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (21)

In 2017, the FGS adopted the General Education Law that establishes 8 years of compulsory education; however, the gap between the end of compulsory education and the minimum age for work leaves children age 14 vulnerable to child labor because they are not in school, but they also may not legally work. (6; 21) In September, Somaliland drafted a human trafficking law. (22) In November, Puntland State passed new penal and criminal procedure codes that criminalize human trafficking. According to international stakeholders, the legislation meets international standards. (22)

It is unclear whether laws issued prior to 1991 are still in effect in Somalia. However, in 2014, Parliament issued a public statement citing some pre-1991 laws which suggests that the FGS continued to recognize relevant historic laws. (23) The Provisional Constitution does not provide a minimum age for employment. However, the pre-1991 Labour Code establishes 15 as the minimum age. (17) Additionally, although the Labour Code establishes a minimum age of 12 years for light work and describes the conditions under which light work may be undertaken, it neither determines the activities in which light work may be permitted nor prescribes the number of hours per week for light work. (17)

The Labour Code allows the Secretary of State to prescribe the types of work that are prohibited to children under age 18; however, legislation that comprehensively prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children does not appear to exist. (17)

Laws related to the commercial sexual exploitation of children are not sufficient, because using, procuring, and offering a child for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. (20) The Penal Code requires extensive updating. Many fines in the Code equal less than $1, which does not serve as an effective deterrent. (20; 24) Furthermore, it appears that under Article 405, children involved in prostitution would not be protected from criminal charges. (20)

The Juvenile Justice Law of Puntland defines a child as anyone age 14 and under; consequently, the Government detained and issued prison sentences to children over age 14 for their association with armed groups. (25; 26)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government does not have a labor inspectorate for the enforcement of laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Somali National Police	Investigate and enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (27) The Counter-Trafficking and Organized Crime Unit has 40 officers. (28)
Puntland Security Forces	Investigate and enforce human trafficking laws. (29)
Puntland Ministry of Justice	Prosecute human trafficking cases. (29)

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Somaliland Police	Investigate human trafficking. (30)
Somaliland’s Attorney General’s Office	Prosecute human trafficking cases. (30)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, the lack of a labor inspectorate in Somalia impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. (6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Somalia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including human and financial resources.

In 2017, the Somali National Police remained understaffed, undertrained, and lacked the capacity to investigate or enforce laws on the worst forms of child labor. (6)

The SNA issued a general staff order in 2016 stating that children under age 18 may not enlist; however, despite reports of continued recruitment and use of children, research found no information that the FGS investigated or prosecuted SNA officials who recruited or used child soldiers during the reporting period. (15) During the reporting period, criminal law enforcement officials continued to detain children in the company of adults for alleged association with non-state armed groups. (26; 8) The death sentences imposed on 10 children in 2016 in Puntland were reversed; however, the children were issued 20 year prison sentences. (25) In addition, although the Provisional Federal Constitution of Somalia defines a child as anyone below age 18, more than 30 children were given sentences ranging from 8 years to life imprisonment for association with al-Shabaab. (26; 19) Research found that the existing referral mechanisms for victims of child labor only address children in armed conflict. (25)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The FGS has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 7. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Child Protection Unit	Raise awareness of child soldier issues and work with UNICEF to implement the standard operating procedures on protecting children associated with armed conflict. (5; 33; 34) In 2017, conducted awareness campaigns and monitored SNA troops to prevent and eliminate the recruitment of children. (25)
Children Associated With Armed Conflict Working Group	Implement the Child Soldier Action Plan and the Action Plan to End the Killing and Maiming of Children in Contravention of International Law. (33; 34) Comprises of the Child Protection Unit, Ministry of Defense officials, representatives from the Ministry of Women and Human Rights Development and other ministries, and UN representatives. (33; 8) No coordination activities were conducted during the year. (30)
Human Trafficking Task Forces	The Human Trafficking and Smuggling Task Force, led by the Ministry of Interior and Federal Affairs, leads the FGS' anti-trafficking efforts. (28) Puntland's Counter Trafficking Board leads the region's anti-trafficking efforts. Somaliland's Counter Human Trafficking Agency coordinates the development of legislation and collection of data. (28) No coordination activities were conducted during the year. (30)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The FGS has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Child Soldier Action Plan	Establishes a strategy for the reception and stabilization of children found within the SNA, and for the prevention of child soldiers through education of soldiers and monitoring of military camps. (33)
National Development Plan (2017–2019) †	Aims to end all forms of violence against children, including child labor. (35)
United Nations Strategic Framework (2017–2020) †	Establishes a broad framework for preventing, eliminating, and rehabilitating children associated with armed conflict. (36)

‡ The government has other policies which may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (37; 38)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the FGS participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
National Program for Treatment and Handling of Disengaged Combatants	FGS program in coordination with UNICEF that rehabilitates former combatants, emphasizing the specific needs of child combatants, and of female combatants and their dependents. (39) Centers, located in Baidoa, Belet Weyne, Kismayo, and Mogadishu, provide accommodation, psychological counseling, education, and vocational training to former combatants. (40)
UNICEF Country Program (2011–2017)	Donor-funded program in coordination with the FGS that aims to expand and improve access to education and protect children who are affected by conflict. (41; 42) In 2017, supported the reintegration of 1,234 children formerly associated with armed groups into their families and communities. (22)
Efforts to Combat Human Trafficking (2014–2017)	Strengthening the National Criminal Justice Response to Trafficking in Persons is a $750,000, USDOS-funded, 3-year project implemented by UNODC to enhance the criminal justice response to trafficking in persons within the FGS and Somaliland. Aims to strengthen legal frameworks to meet international standards; and develop and provide training on identifying victims, conducting investigations, and prosecuting cases. (43) In Somaliland, vulnerable children, including trafficking victims, received social services at the Hargeisa Orphanage Center before being reunited with their families. (28) Puntland authorities worked with IOM and local NGOs to provide social services and reintegration assistance to victims of trafficking. (28)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (44)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Although the FGS implemented programs to address child soldiers, research found no evidence that it carried out programs to assist children in other forms of child labor. Furthermore, existing programs fail to address the scope of children in armed conflict.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Somalia (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict; the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography; and the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2017
	Clarify whether the pre-1991 Labour Code is still in effect under the FGS. Ensure that a legal framework on child labor is in place which includes a minimum age for work and hazardous work; determines the activities in which light work may be permitted and prescribes the number of hours per week for light work; and in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations, determines the types of hazardous work prohibited for children.	2009 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit child trafficking for labor and sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit using, procuring, and offering a child for prostitution, pornography, and pornographic performances.	2015 – 2017
	Update the Penal Code to ensure that penalties for the commercial sexual exploitation of children are sufficiently stringent to deter violations.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the law protects children involved in commercial sexual exploitation from criminal charges.	2011 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities.	2009 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Raise the compulsory education to be commensurate with the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure Puntland's regional laws define a child as anyone below age 18, in accordance with international standards.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Establish a Labor Inspectorate to investigate, monitor, and enforce laws related to child labor, including adequate funding, human resources, and training for personnel.	2009 – 2017
	Publish information on the training of investigators, as well as the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions achieved in all regions of Somalia.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement officials receive adequate training and resources to investigate, prosecute, and convict violators of the worst forms of child labor.	2012 – 2017
	Cease the recruitment and use of child soldiers by the SNA and its allied militia. Investigate, prosecute, and punish, as appropriate, SNA commanders who recruit and use children.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that children associated with armed groups are not detained with adults and refer these children to social service providers. Cease the practice of sentencing children to life imprisonment for associating with armed groups.	2015 – 2017
	Establish a referral mechanism between the Somali National Police and social welfare services for children engaged in forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation.	2014 – 2017
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure coordination mechanisms to address the worst forms of child labor, such as child soldiering, are active and conduct activities to address the child labor problem.	2017
Social Programs	Enhance efforts to eliminate barriers and make education accessible and safe for all children by removing all armed groups and forces from schools and other educational facilities.	2013 – 2017
	Develop programs to address child labor, such as in street work and forced labor in agriculture.	2009 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of children in armed conflict.

In 2017, South Africa made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government amended the Children’s Act to prohibit persons convicted of child trafficking from working with children, adopted Phase IV of the National Child Labor Program of Action for South Africa, and increased funding for the Child Support Grant which provides monthly direct cash transfers to primary caregivers who have vulnerable children. The Child Labor Intersectoral Groups were also active during the year and assisted with human trafficking awareness campaigns throughout the country. In addition, the South African Department of Labor and the South African Police Service entered into a memorandum of understanding to facilitate labor inspections in hostile workplaces. However, children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging. Government social programs are not sufficient to address the scope of child labor and barriers to education remain, especially among children with disabilities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in South Africa engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging. (1; 2) Data on key indicators on children’s work and education are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		83.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Data were unavailable from Understanding Children’s Work Project’s analysis, 2018. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including harvesting corn, mangos, lychees, bananas, grapes, citrus, and other fruits (1; 5; 6)
Services	Domestic work (7; 5)
	Garbage scavenging for food items and recyclable items† (8)
	Food service, activities unknown (2)
	Street work, including transportation services, vending, and begging (2; 5)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including gang-related activity (9; 10; 11)
	Use in the production of pornography (12; 13; 14; 15; 16)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (17; 18; 19; 20; 16; 21; 22; 2; 23; 24)
	Forced labor in domestic work, agriculture, food service, street vending, illicit activities, and begging, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (25; 2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

South Africa is a source, transit, and destination country for child trafficking. Children are trafficked from rural areas to the cities of Bloemfontein, Cape Town, Durban, and Johannesburg. (2) Girls are mainly victimized for commercial sexual exploitation and domestic work, while boys are forced to work in street vending, food service, and begging. (17; 26; 27; 28; 2)

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Every five years, the government publishes data on youth activities, including on child labor. (1) In March 2017, the government released its 2015 Survey of Activities of Young People; the survey results stated that 557,000 child laborers were identified in the country. In KwaZulu-Natal province, approximately 1 out of 10 children were engaged in child labor, the highest percentage of all provinces. (5) Additionally, the 2015 UNAIDS report, which was published in 2017, showed that 2.1 million South African children were newly orphaned due to AIDS in 2015; this number has not declined since 2011. (29; 30) Orphaned children and those with disabilities are especially vulnerable to child labor, such as forced begging. (9; 31)

In South Africa, education is free through the primary level and every child has a constitutional right to basic education. However, not all public schools are free and some schools charge fees; this varies by municipality and region. (7; 32) South Africa waives tuition for the poorest primary schools and provides students with school supplies, including books. (33; 34) However, for public schools, families must pay for uniforms and other school-related expenses, which may affect children's access to education. (8; 35; 36)

In May 2017, the Department of Basic Education reported that South Africa had a total of 464 "special needs" schools for children with disabilities and a further 715 full-service inclusive schools in the country that have, as part of their mission, provisions to support children with disabilities. (37) In addition, since 2015, the government has provided some students with disabilities transportation assistance to school. However, several reports suggest that children in South Africa with disabilities have limited access to education because mainstream educational facilities and teachers, particularly in poorer neighborhoods, are not equipped to educate children with disabilities. (38; 39; 40; 41) As a result, some parents are forced to enroll their children with disabilities in special schools that require the payment of fees, thereby increasing the likelihood that these children will not receive an education. (42; 43; 44; 45; 1) Additionally, a NGO reported that children without unabridged birth certificates (birth certificates with information about both parents) are sometimes denied access to school. Education officials in the Western Cape Province confirmed this practice in 2017. (37)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

South Africa has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in South Africa's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of the use of children by non-state armed groups in armed conflict.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 43 of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act (BCEA) (46)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Regulations on Hazardous Work by Children in South Africa (47)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 4-10 of the Regulations on Work by Children in South Africa; Part II, Articles 6-9 of the BCEA; Regulations on Hazardous Work by Children in South Africa (47; 48)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 13 of the Constitution; Article 141 of the Children’s Amendment Act; Article 48 of the BCEA; (48; 49; 38)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 141 of the Children’s Amendment Act; (49)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 141 of the Children’s Amendment Act; Chapter 3 of Criminal Law Amendment Act 32 (49; 50)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 141 of the Children’s Amendment Act (49)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*		Article 52 of the Defense Act (51)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 52 of the Defense Act (51)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Chapter 2, Articles 1–5 of the South African Schools Act (32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Chapter 2, Article 5 of the South African Schools Act (32)

* No conscription (51)

In January 2017, the government amended the Children’s Act to determine that persons convicted of egregious criminal offenses, such as child trafficking and child pornography, must be “deemed unsuitable to work with children.” (1; 52; 53)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the South African Department of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
South African Department of Labor (SADOL)	Enforce child labor laws by conducting inspections of worksites. Report child labor violations to the South African Police Service (SAPS) for further investigation and the South African Department of Justice and Constitutional Development for prosecution. (54) Operates 142 labor centers; these centers accept labor complaints, assign inspectors to address reported violations, and have designated child labor coordinators who focus on child labor inspections. (7; 36)
South African Police Service (SAPS)	Enforce legislative mandate under the Children’s Act to investigate cases involving the worst forms of child labor. (55) The SAPS’s Human Trafficking Desk monitors and evaluates police efforts to investigate human trafficking crimes, trains investigators, and refers human trafficking cases to provincial SAPS units. (7)
South African Department of Justice and Constitutional Development	Enforce criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. (1) The Children’s Court specifically focuses on litigation involving children accused of or victimized by crimes, and cases involving child abuse, abandonment, and neglect. (56)
National Prosecution Authority	Prosecute criminal cases, including human trafficking and other worst forms of child labor cases. (7; 57)
Department of Social Development (DSD)	Provide child protection and social services to vulnerable children, including victims of human trafficking. (1) Manage 57 shelters for children living and working on the streets. (58)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in South Africa took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the SADOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$35 million (59)	$34.7 million (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	1,533 (59)	1,295 (1)

* The government does not publish this information.

During the year, the SADOL identified 45 children who were victims of labor law violations and it is unclear whether these offenses included the worst forms of child labor. (1) During the year, the number of labor inspectors declined from 1,533 to 1,295 due to budget constraints and high turnovers. (1) Currently, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of South Africa's workforce, which includes more than 22 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, South Africa would employ roughly 1,497 inspectors. (60; 61)

According to Section 65 of the Basic Conditions of Employment Act, SADOL inspectors are unauthorized to assess penalties, but can conduct inspections, issue compliance orders, and enter establishments such as private homes used for business. It is also unclear whether the number of labor inspections reported include both desk review and worksite inspections. (37) The government continued funding an NGO-operated hotline that refers child labor complaints to government protection agencies or SAPS. (7) However, it is unknown how many child labor complaints the hotline received, as this information was not disaggregated from the larger dataset. (62; 37)

SADOL inspectors report labor law violations that carry criminal penalties to the South African Police Service (SAPS). SAPS conducts criminal investigations involving child labor and ultimately refers cases for prosecution to the National Prosecution Authority. (63; 1) Additionally, SADOL inspectors address labor rights concerns of foreign nationals and refer those cases to the Department of Home Affairs (DHA), which then transfers the cases to the South African Department of Social Development for social services. Inspectors also refer cases that may involve child labor to social workers who are able to refer the child to organizations that provide shelter, food and clothing, and rehabilitation services. (7; 33; 1) The government reported that SAPS employed forensic social workers, who assess child victim's emotional, mental, and physical health and obtain uncontaminated information from child victims, to collaborate with investigators and provide care to victims of the worst forms of child labor and other crimes against children. The government also reported that SAPS has established victim-friendly rooms in over 1,000 of its police stations nationwide. (59; 37)

The South African Department of Labor provided in-house training to its inspectors during the year, but NGOs and government officials noted that it was insufficient. Sources also indicate that the Inspectorate has limited resources to carry out investigations. (1) In addition, some labor inspectors encounter difficulty accessing farms due to concerns for their own safety or fear of entering private property. As a result, in 2017, the SADOL and SAPS entered into a memorandum of understanding for police to escort inspectors to areas deemed dangerous or hostile. In addition, SADOL continues to conduct random inspections and files a criminal report when there are suspected violations. (62; 1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in South Africa took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with regard to prosecution planning.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (59)	Yes (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (59)	Yes (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (59)	Yes (1)
Number of Investigations	75 (59)	2 (1)
Number of Violations Found	75 (59)	45 (1)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (59)	1 (1)
Number of Convictions	3 (59)	1 (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (59)	Yes (1)

During the year, the government did not disaggregate data regarding child victims of human trafficking, resulting in the low number reported for 2017. (37) NGOs reported that the SAPS has difficulties properly identifying victims of human trafficking during law enforcement activities, despite assistance from the NGO community. As a result of improper screening, police sometimes arrested child trafficking victims instead of referring them to receive assistance from social services. (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor. (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among national and provincial task teams.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Implementation Committee on Child Labor	Monitor and support advocacy and awareness-raising; mainstreaming of child labor into government policies; and the implementation of child labor programs, legislation, and enforcement. (1) Chaired by SADOL, members include representatives from commercial agriculture, trade unions, and government agencies, including SAPS. (7) Includes provincial-level child labor coordinating structures. (64; 1) In 2017, the Committee met on a bimonthly basis. (1)
Provincial Child Labor Intersectoral Support Groups	Facilitate the prevention of all types of child labor. Established by SADOL and managed by child labor coordinators in each province, members include the SADOL Head Office, SADOL Provincial Child Labor Coordinators, the Department of Justice (DOJ), the National Prosecuting Authority, the Department of Home Affairs (DHA), the DSD, and the Department of Education; NGOs; and labor federations. (7; 36) In 2017, the groups met quarterly, participated in the national child protection week with a speech by Home Affairs Minister Hlengiwe Mkhize and assisted with human trafficking awareness campaigns. (1) The national and provincial task teams lack training on human trafficking resulting in unlawful arrests and detentions of human trafficking victims. Moreover, some teams fail to meet and communicate during the year. (65)
National Trafficking in Persons Task Team	Coordinate the government's anti-human trafficking efforts, including overseeing strategy and policy decisions made at the provincial level in Gauteng, Mpumalanga, KwaZulu-Natal, Western Cape, Limpopo, and Eastern Cape. Led by the NPA's Sexual Offenses and Community Affairs Unit and DOJ's Victim Support Directorate, members include SADOL, the DSD, and the DHA, as well as other representatives of national law enforcement. (7; 9) Reports indicate that the team lacks a budget, has no funding for permanent staff, and provides no training to enforcement agencies to ensure adequate enforcement of anti-human trafficking laws. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including with regard to mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

South Africa

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Labor Programme of Action for South Africa, Phase IV (2017–2021)	Serves as the primary policy instrument to prevent and eliminate child labor in South Africa. (34; 66) Promotes government activities by outlining the mandate of each agency to combat child labor. (7; 66) Lead agencies identified in the program include: Departments of Labor, Basic Education, Justice and Constitutional Development, Social Development and Provincial Departments, Water and Sanitation, and the South African Police Service, and National Prosecuting Authority, and Statistics SA. In 2017, the government adopted and published Phase IV that expanded on the action steps identified in the previous iteration of the program. (1) The program does not include a timeframe to meet identifiable benchmarks to assess the progress and adequacy of implementation efforts.

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the South African Education Action Plan or the National Development Plan. (67; 68)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Support Grant†	Government program, led by the DSD and the South African Social Security Agency, which provides monthly direct cash transfers to primary caregivers who have vulnerable children. Helps alleviate economic pressures and lower the cost of raising a child. (7; 1) In 2017, the budget increased from R 4.15 billion to R 5.15 billion, resulting in $31 per month for qualifying families, which benefited 12 million children. (1)
Foster Care Grants†	Government program that encourages children in the foster care system to remain in school, as a preventive technique to combat child labor. (7) To date, about 440,295 children benefited from the foster care grant. (1)
National School Nutrition Program†	Government program that provides school meals to vulnerable primary and secondary school children from poor families. (69; 1) (70) Over 80 percent of needy children were benefiting from the program during the 2016–17 fiscal year. (1) According to the Department of Basic Education's 2016-2017 annual report, the Department provided 6.006 billion rand (approximately $455 million as of June 2018) for the National School Nutrition Programme Grant, providing meals to 9.045 million students at 20,300 primary, secondary, and special schools nationwide. (37)
Food Relief Program†	Food relief program of the DSD and the South African Social Security Agency to assist vulnerable and orphaned children, as well as child-headed households with insufficient income. (33; 34) To date, the program supported financially 140 community nutrition development centers and provided food to half a million people. (62)
Shelters and Care Centers†	DSD program that funds 13 shelters and oversees 17 NGO-operated temporary safe care centers for victims of abuse and human trafficking, including children. (9; 2) In addition, the government continues to operate 53 Thuthuzela Care Centers that provide assistance to rape and sexual violence victims including minors, but no data is available on whether victims received were minors. (37)
Awareness-raising Campaigns†	Government program that conducts training on anti-human trafficking initiatives and regulations governing social service providers. (9) Through awareness raising campaigns, DSD trainers reached 114 DSD provincial officials, 2 officials from the Commission for Gender Equality, and 35 NGO social service providers. As a result of the anti-human trafficking campaigns, suspected cases of the worst forms of child labor were identified and investigated. (62) During the year, SADOL signed a memorandum of understanding with an agricultural industry association, Agri South Africa, to raise awareness about child labor in the agricultural sector. (1)

† Program is funded by the Government of South Africa.

In October 2017, the Gauteng Department of Social Development hosted an event at Turffontein Race Course in Johannesburg to raise awareness about trafficking in persons and assistance to victims of human trafficking. (71)

During the year, Agri South Africa developed a policy to address child labor in agriculture but this policy has yet to be published. Although South Africa has programs that target child labor, and data collected and reported by the South African government states that child labor is decreasing, yet still the scope and reach of social programs are insufficient to address the child labor problem, particularly in agriculture and domestic work. (37)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor, including its worst forms, in South Africa (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2015 – 2017
	Employ enough labor inspectors to cover the workforce and satisfy the ILO technical advice.	2017
	Disaggregate the number of complaints received by the hotline to determine the number of suspected child labor violations reported across the country.	2013 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that law enforcement properly identify victims of the worst forms of child labor.	2017
	Ensure that the coordination bodies such as the Trafficking in Persons Task Force receive sufficient funding to carry out activities.	2017
Government Policies	Include a timeframe and benchmarks in the Child Labor Program of Action for South Africa, to properly monitor and assess the progress of efforts to combat child labor.	2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the South African Education Action Plan and the National Development Plan.	2013 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure that children with disabilities have equal access to education.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that children can complete primary school by removing the cost uniforms and other fees.	2009 – 2017
	Institute programs to address the worst forms of child labor in agriculture and domestic work.	2010 – 2017

In 2017, South Sudan made efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor, but it was also complicit in the use of forced child labor. After several years in draft form, the government enacted the Labour Act of 2017 that provides additional protections for children; however, the Act lacks clarity on prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor. The government also identified and registered child soldiers within armed groups. Despite these initiatives to address child labor, South Sudan is receiving an assessment of no advancement because its national army—the Sudan People’s Liberation Army—recruited, sometimes forcibly, children to fight opposition groups. Children in South Sudan are also engaged in other worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. The government neither brought to justice those who recruited or used children in armed conflict, nor held accountable perpetrators of any other form of child labor. It also failed to convene its National Steering Committee on Child Labor or accede to the UN CRC’s two optional protocols.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in South Sudan engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in armed conflict and commercial sexual exploitation. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in South Sudan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	45.6 (463,624)
Working Children by Sector	10 to 14
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	31.5

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced labor in cattle herding, domestic work, construction, brick making, rock breaking, begging, shoe shining, car washing, delivery cart pushing, and market vending (15; 23; 6; 16)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 4; 15; 24; 6; 16; 7; 25)
	Forced recruitment of children by state and non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (4; 5; 6; 7; 26; 27; 28; 29) (25; 8; 30)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Violent conflict continued throughout 2017, increasing the number of internally displaced persons (IDPs) to 1.9 million and the number of refugees in neighboring states to nearly 2.43 million; the estimated 20,000 unaccompanied minors in IDP camps across the country were particularly vulnerable to recruitment by armed groups or abduction for other types of forced labor or commercial sexual exploitation. (6; 7)

In 2017, armed groups from all sides of the ongoing conflict continued to recruit and use children, with more than 19,000 children estimated to have been associated with government and opposition forces. (6; 25; 30; 31; 32) An even greater number of children fight as part of local community defense forces, during which they are used by their communities to perpetuate inter- and intra-communal violence. (6; 25) Recruitment and use of children was reported throughout the country, including in legacy Unity, Jonglei, Warrap, Upper Nile, Western and Northern Bahr el Ghazal, and Central and Eastern Equatoria states. As in previous years, the highest levels of recruitment, use, and re-recruitment of children were documented in Unity state. (25)

The national army—the Sudan People’s Liberation Army (SPLA)—and its aligned forces recruited child soldiers as young as age 12, sometimes forcibly or with the aid of senior politicians and community leaders, to fight against armed groups. (6; 7; 8) In 2017, UNICEF verified 140 incidents of recruitment and use of children, affecting at least 1,221 children (1,057 boys and 164 girls). About 65 percent of these incidents were attributed to the SPLA and other government security forces, with the remaining attributed to the SPLA-In Opposition (SPLA-IO) (First Vice President Taban Deng Gai), the SPLA-IO (Riek Machar), the South Sudan National Liberation Movement, and the South Sudan Democratic Army-Cobra Faction. (25; 30)

Boys were forcibly recruited for use in armed conflict, including through abduction from their homes and schools and as a result of coercive threats to confiscate their family’s cattle. (7; 25; 33) UNICEF estimates 3,200 children have been abducted since 2013, many of whom have been subsequently forced into combat roles. (6; 7; 25) Children who joined willingly to protect their communities, after the loss of family members or shelter, or with promises of food or money for their families, were ultimately unable to leave the groups at will and instead were forced into combat roles. (7; 25; 30) Children also cooked, collected firewood, herded cattle, washed clothes, carried water and ammunition, manned checkpoints, carried out patrols, stole cattle, served as escorts and bodyguards to senior officers, perpetuated violence against civilians, or recruited other children. (6; 25; 33; 34)

The SPLA, other government security services, and armed groups forcibly recruited girls to serve as child soldiers and carry out support roles, during which time they were often coerced into performing sex acts. (34; 6) In 2017, UNICEF and ceasefire monitors noted an increase in the use of girls in armed forces. With worsening economic conditions due to the ongoing conflict, families also increasingly placed girls into prostitution to augment household income. (6; 7)

Ongoing conflict continued to impair the government’s ability to deliver aid, provide education, and address the worst forms of child labor. (6) Approximately 2.2 million – 72 percent of the school-age population – are not attending school. (35; 6) Although the Constitution and the Child Act provide for free primary education, in practice, many families cannot afford to send their children to school because parents often must pay teachers’ salaries—a prohibitive cost for many families. (4; 36) Uniform costs, chronic food insecurity, and low levels of birth registration also impede access to education in South Sudan. (4; 1; 36; 37; 38; 39; 40; 41) Many children, particularly those in rural areas, do not have access to schools, often because of the lack of infrastructure, such as roads and school buildings. (35, 36) Other barriers to education include unpaid teacher salaries, high truancy rates among teaching staff, and a shortage of qualified teachers. (4; 36; 6)

In 2017, there were 70 incidents of attacks on schools across the country. The UN also verified 27 new incidents of occupancy and use of schools for military purposes by the SPLA, the SPLA-IO (Riek Machar), and the SPLA-IO (Taban Deng Gai) in the regions of Equatoria, Unity, and Upper Nile. Despite some schools being vacated by armed groups during the year, many schools were still being used for military purposes at year's end. The lack of access to education may increase the risk of children's involvement in the worst forms of child labor. (42) In addition, there has not been a comprehensive child labor survey in South Sudan. (4; 43; 6)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

South Sudan has ratified some key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government did not deposit the necessary documents to accede to the UN CRC's two optional protocols, despite the national Legislative Assembly's passage of a bill in 2013 allowing it to do so. (4; 44; 6)

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in South Sudan's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the minimum age for work and the compulsory education age.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Section 12 of the Labour Act; Article 25(3) of the Child Act (45; 46)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 12 of the Labour Act; Articles 22(3), 24(1), and 25(1) of the Child Act (45; 46)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Compulsory Education Age	No	13	Article 9.1(b) of the General Education Act (51)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 6(a) of the General Education Act; Article 14(1) of the Child Act; Article 29.2 of the Constitution (45; 49; 51)

In November 2017, the Transitional National Legislative Assembly passed the Labour Act, which the president signed into law in December. (52; 6) The law prohibits forced labor and the worst forms of child labor and includes minimum ages for work, light work, and hazardous work. However, Article 12(2) allows children between ages 14 and 18 to engage in the worst forms of child labor, which is a violation of international standards. The law prescribes general penalties for infractions of up to 5 years of imprisonment, a fine, cancelation of business licenses, or closure of the premises for up to 2 years. In accordance with the law, the Minister of Labor must draft and issue regulations to implement key elements related to child labor, including the number of hours and conditions for light work, the exceptions under which 16-year-old children may perform hazardous work, and a complete hazardous work list. (46)

Children are required to attend school only until age 13. This standard makes children between ages 13 and 14 particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, because they are not required to be in school but are also not legally permitted to work. (53)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Public Service, and Human Resource Development that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor, Public Service, and Human Resource Development (MOL)	Develop labor policies, enforce child labor laws, conduct workplace inspections, and oversee the operation of vocational training centers. (4; 45; 54)
Ministry of Gender, Child, and Social Welfare	Coordinate activities on children's rights and act as the focal ministry for child protection. (55)
Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA) Directorate for Child Protection	Headed by a Brigadier General. Prevent the recruitment of children into the army, monitor barracks, identify child soldiers and assist with their release, investigate allegations of child soldiering, and provide training on children's rights to child protection officers and members of the SPLA. (15; 56; 57) Serve as liaison between the SPLA and the international community. (56)
Ministry of Interior	Enforce criminal laws to combat human trafficking and maintain a database on crime statistics. (58)
Ministry of Justice	Protect citizens' rights and enforce the Comprehensive Peace Agreement and the Constitution, including child protection provisions in those laws. (59)
South Sudan Police Services	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (53)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, it is unknown whether labor law enforcement agencies in South Sudan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor, Public Service, and Human Resource Development that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial and human resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Officials from the Ministry of Labor, Public Service, and Human Resource Development reported that in 2017 they lacked sufficient resources, such as fuel and vehicles for transport to conduct labor inspections. In addition, there was high absenteeism among ministry staff and salaries for civil servants in nearly every ministry were not paid for several months. (4; 6) Although statistics regarding the number of people in South Sudan’s labor force are unavailable, it is unlikely that eight labor inspectors are sufficient to address the scope of the country’s child labor problem. (4; 60; 61; 62; 6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in South Sudan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown (4)	Unknown (7)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (4)	N/A (7)

Although both the Joint Action Plan to Combat the Use of Child Soldiers and the September 2014 Punitive Order commit the SPLA to holding its military officers accountable for the recruitment or use of children, the government has neither investigated nor prosecuted officers who allegedly committed such crimes. (31) On the contrary, David Yau Yau, a commander whose recruitment of children is well-documented, was integrated into the government in 2016 and subsequently served as Deputy Minister of Defense, then Deputy Minister of Labor, and is now Governor of Jonglei state. Regulations under the SPLA Act of 2013 and the White Paper on Defense instruct commanders to conduct annual refresher training on child soldiering and human rights; most units did not hold their annual session in 2017 because of ongoing conflict, poor communication, and general lack of capacity. (7)

South Sudan

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

South Sudan's justice system faces enormous challenges, such as low capacity, inadequate funding, interference by the government and the SPLA, lack of training for law enforcement personnel, and a scarcity of judges, prosecutors, and defense attorneys. (15; 36; 56; 7) Prosecutors and law enforcement officials are not familiar with the Child Act's prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor because the Act has not been adequately disseminated. (53; 55) Law enforcement capacity in general is weak, even against violent crimes. In 2017, police continued to indiscriminately arrest and imprison children engaged in commercial sexual exploitation rather than treating them as victims. (7)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination among agencies.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinate efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor across government ministries; led by the MOL. (2) The National Steering Committee on Child Labor did not convene or coordinate activities to combat child labor in 2017. (6)
National Disarmament, Demobilization, and Reintegration Commission (NDDRC)	Oversee and coordinate the implementation of the Joint Action Plan to Combat the Use of Child Soldiers and reintegrate children formerly engaged in armed conflict. (63) Responsible for the negotiation of the release, screening, and registration of child soldiers; reunification with family when possible; and educational placement or vocational training. The last formal demobilization of child soldiers from armed groups occurred in 2015. (7) In 2017, the NDDRC carried out an age-assessment exercise in Pibor, Jonglei, to verify the presence of children associated with the SPLA-IO (Taban Deng Gai). The exercise identified 313 boys and the commission began preparing for their release, along with children identified at other sites, to take place in 2018. (42)

The SPLA took steps in 2017 to prevent the recruitment of children. Formal enlistment procedures required an age assessment that was usually done through a dental exam, because many children do not know their birthdate. (7)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation of relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Joint Action Plan with the United Nations to Combat the Use of Child Soldiers	Requires the SPLA to release all children associated with government security forces. Provides services for their family reunification and reintegration, and investigates grave violations against children. (64; 7) Both the SPLA and the SPLA-In Opposition signed or recommitted to joint action plans as of December 2015, but they have yet to implement the plans and continued to recruit child soldiers, at times by force. (7)
Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in the Republic of South Sudan	Establishes the structure of a Transitional government of National Unity and outlines actions to be taken by signatories. Article 1.7.3 prohibits the recruitment and use of child soldiers by armed forces or militias. Article 1.10 requires warring parties to immediately and unconditionally release all child soldiers under their command or influence. (65) Although the release of some child soldiers occurred in 2015, evidence suggests that the signatories have continued to recruit or re-recruit children. (7)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
UNICEF Country Program (2016–2018)	$115.4 million UNICEF-funded program implemented by the government that aims to develop child protection systems, with an emphasis on birth registration; develop a child-sensitive justice system; provide basic social services to conflict-affected children and communities (including demobilized children); and provide return, reintegration, and resettlement services for children affected by armed conflict. (36)
Children, Not Soldiers Campaign	Ministry of Defense program to raise public and SPLA awareness of child protection principles, and to hold perpetrators accountable for recruiting child soldiers. Also aims to end the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict. (64)
Emergency Education Program (2014 – 2017)	$3 million USAID-funded program implemented by UNICEF that supports children at risk for being recruited into armed groups. Monitors child recruitment in and around schools through work documenting attacks on schools; provides psychological first aid and child protection activities; and allows re-integration for children who were associated with armed groups back into learning opportunities, especially through Alternative Learning Programs. (66) In 2017, provided psychosocial support and other services to an unknown number of former child soldiers.
Interim Care Center	State Ministry of Education, Gender, and Social Welfare-administered, UNICEF-funded center in Yambio that provides temporary housing to released child soldiers, as well as children and mothers rescued from the Lord's Resistance Army. This center requires improved fencing, access to water, a generator, and training for staff on child protection case management to better care for released children. (7; 32)

Although South Sudan has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the scope or extent of the problem, including in commercial sexual exploitation and child soldiering. The reintegration and rehabilitation services provided to child soldiers are insufficient to meet the existing needs. (2; 15; 6; 7)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in South Sudan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Complete ratification of the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict and UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography by delivering the necessary documents to the UN.	2013 – 2017
	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the compulsory education age is consistent with the minimum age for work.	2013 – 2017
	Amend Article 12(2) of the Labour Act to clarify that the worst forms of child labor are prohibited for all children under 18 years of age.	2017
	Draft and finalize implementing regulations for the Labour Act that provide a list of hazardous work for children, the number of hours and conditions for light work, and the exceptions under which 16 year old children may perform hazardous work.	2017
Enforcement	Ensure that the Child Act's minimum age of 18 years for voluntary military recruitment is enforced by ending all recruitment and use of children under age 18 by the SPLA, the SPLA-IO, or associated militias.	2012 – 2017
	Cease all military use of schools and school compounds.	2015 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2017
	Provide sufficient human and financial resources and train personnel for effective inspection and enforcement efforts.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that prosecutors and law enforcement officials are familiar with the prohibitions on the worst forms of child labor in the Child Act and the Labour Act and are trained in implementing all laws related to child labor.	2012 – 2017
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors and criminal law enforcement personnel, as well as new employees.	2012 – 2017
	Strengthen the Inspectorate's role to include investigating worksites (onsite), conducting unannounced inspections, and initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to high-risk sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2015 – 2017
Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2015 – 2017

NO ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT COMPLICIT IN FORCED CHILD LABOR

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Establish referral mechanisms for labor inspectors, criminal law enforcers, and social services providers to facilitate effective enforcement of labor and criminal laws and to implement social programs that address child labor issues.	2014 – 2017
	Prosecute perpetrators of child labor violations, including government officials.	2015 – 2017
	Track and make publicly accessible information on investigations, citations, penalties, prosecutions, and convictions for crimes involving child labor, including its worst forms.	2012 – 2017
	Investigate, prosecute, and punish with adequate penalties that constitute an effective deterrent to officers in all former warring parties responsible for the recruitment or use of children in armed conflict.	2013 – 2017
	Pending investigations, suspend from their positions any commanders who are credibly alleged to have recruited and used child soldiers or who have allowed soldiers to occupy schools.	2013 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that the National Steering Committee on Child Labor convenes and is able to coordinate activities to combat child labor.	2013 – 2017
Government Policies	Ensure that policies, such as the Joint Action Plan to Prevent the Use of Child Soldiers, Article 1.10 of the Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan, and the MOL's Policy Framework and Strategic Plan, are implemented.	2012 – 2017
Social Programs	Strengthen efforts to lessen the potential impact of food insecurity and the high cost of living on the ability of rural populations to educate children.	2012 – 2017
	Improve access to education by addressing the lack of school infrastructure in rural areas and registering all children at birth.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that children complete their primary education by subsidizing or covering the cost of school uniforms and teachers' salaries.	2014 – 2017
	Resume paying teacher salaries in areas that have been under the control of opposition forces during the conflict.	2014 – 2017
	Conduct a national child labor survey, including research to determine the activities carried out by children, to inform policies and social programs.	2013 – 2017
	Cooperate with child protection agencies, pursuant to Article 1.10 of the Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan, to disarm and immediately release children in armed forces and aligned militias, and transfer them to appropriate civilian rehabilitation and reintegration programs that include education and vocational training, as well as necessary counseling. Ensure that the rehabilitation services provided to child soldiers are sufficient.	2014 – 2017
	Improve the security, water access, and training for staff at the Interim Care Center for former child soldiers in Yambio.	2017
	Increase the scope of social programs to reach more children at risk of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and child soldiering.	2012 – 2017

Sri Lanka

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Sri Lanka made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government published the 2016 Child Activity Survey, launched the National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor in Sri Lanka, and drafted a revised list of hazardous work prohibited for children. In addition, the number of labor inspectors in Sri Lanka is now sufficient for the size of the workforce. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, the law related to the minimum age for work does not meet international standards. However, children in Sri Lanka engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in domestic work. The hazardous work list is not comprehensive because it does not include domestic work. Children also face barriers to education, including lack of transportation and inadequate number of teachers.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in domestic work. (1; 2; 3; 4) In 2017, the government published the 2016 Child Activity Survey. (5) However, the definition of child labor used in the survey does not align with international standards. For example, 5-11 year olds working less than 15 hours per week and 12-14 year olds working less than 25 hours per week in agriculture are not counted as child laborers. In addition, terms such as “contributing family worker” and “related person” are unclear. These issues may have led to an underestimation of the population of children in child labor in the Child Activity Survey. Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Sri Lanka.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	0.8 (28,515)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	98.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	0.9
Primary Completion Rate (%)		100.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (6)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children’s Work Project’s analysis of statistics from Child Activity Survey, 2016. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (5; 8)
	Fishing, including deep sea fishing, processing fish, and selling fish (5; 8; 9; 10)
	Forestry, activities unknown (4)
	Animal husbandry (4; 5; 10)
Industry	Manufacturing, textiles and garments (1; 4; 5)
	Mining,† including gem mining (4; 5; 11)
	Construction, activities unknown (4; 5; 12)
	Food processing, sorting, drying, and packaging food (10)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Services	Domestic work (5; 13)
	Transportation, carrying and handling goods (5)
	Vending, in stores and on the streets, and begging (5; 9)
	Work in hotels, restaurants, and offices (4; 5; 12)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 14; 15)
	Forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2)
	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking (4)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

There are reports of children from tea estates being trafficked internally to perform domestic work in Colombo; their payments are withheld and their movements are restricted. (2) Children, predominantly boys, are also forced into commercial sexual exploitation in coastal areas as part of the sex tourism industry. (2; 15)

Though the government provides free education to all school children, some children in rural areas face barriers to accessing education, including difficulties traveling to school in some regions, lack of sanitation and clean water in schools, and an inadequate number of teachers. (4; 16; 17)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Sri Lanka has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Sri Lanka’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including with protections for children engaged in domestic work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Sections 7, 9, 13 and 34 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (18)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 20A of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act (18)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Hazardous Occupations Regulation No. 47 (18; 19)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 358A, 360C, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (20)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 360C, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (20)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 286A, 360B, 360A(2), and 360A(4) of the Penal Code (20)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Sections 288, 288A, 288B, and 360C of the Penal Code (20)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Sections 20A and 31 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section 2(xviii) of the Hazardous Occupations Regulation No. 47 (18; 19)
Non-state	Yes	18	358(1)(d) of the Penal Code; Sections 20A and 31 of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act; Section 2(xviii) of the Hazardous Occupations Regulation No. 47 (18; 19; 20)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 43 of the Education Ordinance; Compulsory Attendance of Children at Schools Regulation (21; 22)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 47 of the Education Ordinance (21)

* No conscription (23)

The hazardous work list is not comprehensive because it does not include domestic work, for which there is evidence that children are subject to abuse. (2) However, the government is considering including domestic work in a revised hazardous work list. (4) This revised list of hazardous work prohibited for children was drafted in 2017, but the government has not yet finalized the regulation. (24) In November 2017, at the IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor, the government pledged to raise the minimum age for employment to 16 before the end of 2018 and eradicate the worst forms of child labor by 2022. (4)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the Department of Labor of the Ministry of Labor, Trade Union Relations and Sabaragamuwa Development (MLTRS) that may hinder adequate child labor enforcement.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor, Ministry of Labor, Trade Union Relations and Sabaragamuwa Development (MLTRS)	Enforce child labor laws and receive public complaints of child labor filed in national and district-level offices. Refer cases involving the worst forms of child labor to the police and National Child Protection Authority (NCPA). (17) Conduct special investigations in relation to child labor through the Women and Children's Affairs Division. (25)
Children and Women's Bureau of the Sri Lankan Police (CWBSLP)	Enforce laws on child labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation of children, and the use of children in illicit activities. (17)
NCPA Special Police Investigation Unit	Inspect premises, interrogate people, and seize property suspected to be involved with child abuse, including unlawful child labor. (26; 27)
Department of Probation and Child Care Services	Coordinate services for child victims of forced labor, human trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation who have been by the police and the court. Refer children to centers that provide shelter, medical and legal services, psychological counseling, and life and vocational skills training. (17; 28)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Sri Lanka took actions to combat child labor, including its worst forms (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the Department of Labor's MLTRS that may hinder adequate child labor enforcement, including the Inspectorate's authority to assess penalties.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspectors	391 (17)	524 (4)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (17)	Yes (4)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (4)	Yes (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (4)	Yes (4)

In 2017, the government of Sri Lanka recruited 179 new labor inspectors who are trained on all aspects of labor laws, including those on child labor. The government completed 250 inspections in sectors vulnerable to hazardous child labor but did not find children working in the selected establishments. (4)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Sri Lanka took actions to combat the worst forms of child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Investigations	147 (17)	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	3 (17)	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (30)	Yes (30)

The Children and Women's Bureau of the Sri Lankan Police (CWBSLP) monitors and works closely with Children and Women's Bureau desks operated in each of the 488 police stations in the country. (27) In addition, the CWBSLP supervises the National Child Protection Authority (NCPA) Special Police Investigating Unit, which has approximately 40 police officers who investigate complaints involving children, including child labor. (10) The agency also has approximately 300 child protection officers based in the districts who are tasked with preventing child exploitation and victim protection. (4; 17)

In 2017, a former member of the non-state armed group Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam was sentenced to life imprisonment for recruiting a child into the group during the past armed conflict. (31)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Coordinate efforts to eliminate child labor, including the National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor in Sri Lanka, the government's key policy document for the elimination of the worst forms of child labor. Chaired by the Secretary of the MLTRS, includes representatives from key government agencies, employer and workers' organizations, ILO, UNICEF, and NGOs. (4; 32)
National Child Protection Authority (NCPA)	Coordinate and monitor activities related to the protection of children, including activities to combat the worst forms of child labor. Consult with the relevant government ministries, local governments, employers, and NGOs, and recommend policies and actions to prevent and protect children from abuse and exploitation. (33) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.
National Anti-Trafficking Task Force	Coordinate interagency efforts to address all human trafficking issues, including commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor. Led by the Ministry of Justice and includes representatives from a range of government agencies, including the Ministry of Social Services, Ministry of Women and Child Affairs, Labor Secretariat, NCPA, Department of Probation and Child Care, Police Criminal Division, and Bureau for the Prevention of Abuse to Women and Children. (34; 35) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that may hinder efforts to address child labor, including explicitly integrating child labor elimination and prevention strategies into existing education policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Policy on Elimination of Child Labor in Sri Lanka	Aims to mainstream child labor issues into national development policies, increase the minimum age for employment, promote the implementation of hazardous work regulations, strengthen capacity to enforce child labor laws, and maintain a complaint procedure. The MLTRS is responsible for the implementation, monitoring, and reporting of the policy. (32) Policy was approved in 2016 but officially launched in 2017. (4; 24)
Let's Protect Children†	Presidential Secretariat program that seeks to monitor child protection policies implemented by the Ministries of Education, Health, and Labor. Aims to ensure child safety and physical and psycho-social development. (10)
National Strategic Plan to Monitor and Combat Human Trafficking (2015–2019)	Seeks to combat human trafficking by raising stakeholder awareness, improving victim protection services, increasing prosecution of human trafficking cases, and conducting research and data collection. Seeks also to improve coordination among the Anti-Trafficking Task Force members. (35; 36) During the reporting period, established new anti-trafficking units and created a special police division for the protection of witnesses and victims of all crimes. (37)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (4; 30; 38; 39; 10)

The National Education Sector Development Framework and Program (2013–2017), which seeks to improve children's access to the school system, does not explicitly include child labor elimination and prevention strategies. (17; 40)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with adequately removing barriers to education for children in rural areas.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Labor-Free Zone by 2016†	Local government initiatives that seek to eliminate child labor through the identification of children engaged in child labor, a rehabilitation program, assistance to families of children at risk of engaging in child labor, and an awareness-raising campaign. Operated by the district secretariats, with assistance from the MLTRS, and with technical and financial support from the ILO. Initiative continued in 2017. (4; 41)
'1929' Childline Sri Lanka†	NCPA-funded and operated 24-hour toll-free emergency telephone service for vulnerable and abused children. Connects children in need of help to direct assistance and rehabilitation services. (42) From January to July 2017, the Childline received 102 child labor complaints. (43)
Shelter for Victims of Human Trafficking	Ministry of Women and Child Affairs shelter provides children and female victims of human trafficking with safe shelter and access to medical, psychological, and legal assistance. (30; 34) The Ministry continued to operate the shelter during the reporting period. (37)
Country Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR)	USDOL-funded capacity-building project implemented by the ILO in 11 countries to build local and national capacity of governments to address child labor. In 2017, conducted a legal review of laws pertaining to child labor in domestic work and provided analysis to the MLTRS. Also, worked with the ILO to finalize the Rapid Assessment of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children. (24) Additional information is available at the USDOL website.
Decent Work Country Program (2013–2017)	ILO technical assistance project detailing the policies, strategies, and results required to make progress toward the goal of decent work for all. Includes four strategies to reduce the worst forms of child labor: (a) build capacity to mainstream worst forms of child labor into sectorial plans and programs, (b) adopt an integrated area-based approach, (c) strengthen institutional mechanisms for coordination and monitoring, and (d) develop knowledge base to track progress. (44)

† Program is funded by the Government of Sri Lanka.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Sri Lanka (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited to children are comprehensive, including domestic work.	2017
Enforcement	Publish information on labor law enforcement, including on inspectorate funding.	2014 – 2017
	Collect and publish information on criminal law enforcement actions, including on training for investigators, the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor.	2014 – 2017
	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2015 – 2017
	Determine whether the number of inspections per labor inspector is appropriate to ensure the quality and scope of inspections.	2017
	Provide additional funding for the CWBSLP and the NCPA to adequately investigate forced labor, child trafficking, and the commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2011 – 2017
Coordination	Publish information about activities undertaken by coordinating bodies.	2017
Government Policies	Ensure that child labor elimination and prevention strategies are explicitly integrated into existing education policies.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Eliminate barriers to education, including difficulties with transportation to schools, lack of sanitation and clean water in rural schools, and an inadequate number of teachers.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that the definition of child labor used in the NCLS report clearly aligns with international standards.	2017

In 2017, Suriname made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government reinstated the Child Protection Network and conducted a National Child Labor Survey. However, children in Suriname engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. The compulsory education age does not reach the minimum age for employment, leaving some children more vulnerable to labor exploitation. The Ministry of Labor does not target risk-prone sectors, such as mining and agriculture, for inspection. The government does not have formal mechanisms to refer victims of child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking identified by labor or criminal law enforcement authorities to the appropriate social services, and existing social programs are insufficient to address the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Suriname engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in mining. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Suriname.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	6.4 (6,671)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	95.8
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	6.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		91.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (7)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 4, 2010. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Harvesting crops, applying pesticides, † carrying heavy loads † (4) Fishing and forestry (3)
Industry	Mining, particularly gold mining (2; 3; 5; 4) Construction, † including carrying heavy loads † (4)
Services	Street work, including vending (9; 4) Domestic work (3)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (1; 2; 3; 6; 4)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children in Suriname, mostly boys, work in small-scale gold mines carrying heavy loads. These children risk exposure to mercury and cyanide, excessive noise, extreme heat, and collapsing sand walls. (2; 5; 4) Children, including children from Guyana, are subjected to commercial sexual exploitation in Suriname, sometimes as a result of human trafficking, including in informal mining camps in the country's remote interior. (3; 9; 6; 4)

Suriname

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Although Suriname's net attendance ratio for primary school is 95 percent, it is only 59 percent for secondary school, and research indicates that secondary school attendance in the interior is as low as 21 percent. Children from low-income households, particularly in the interior, face difficulties accessing education due to long distances to schools, transportation costs, and school fees. (10; 2; 11; 4; 12)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Suriname has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Suriname's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the compulsory education age being below the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 17 of the Labor Code (13)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 18 and 20 of the Labor Code (13)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Articles 2–3 of the Decree on Hazardous Labor; Articles 20–21 of the Labor Code (13; 14)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 15 of the Constitution; Article 334 of the Penal Code (15; 16)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Articles 307 and 334 of the Penal Code (16)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 293, 303, and 306 of the Penal Code (16)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 9 of the Legal Status of Military Personnel Act (17; 18)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	No	12	Article 39 of the Constitution; Article 20 of the Law on Basic Education (19; 15; 20)
Free Public Education	Yes		Articles 38–39 of the Constitution (15)

* No conscription (24)

Article 20 of the Law on Basic Education requires children to attend school until they are at least age 12. (20) This leaves children between ages 12 and 14 particularly vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, because they are no longer required to attend school but are not yet legally permitted to work. The Constitution guarantees free public education for all citizens and the September 2014 amendment to the Citizenship and Residency Law granted citizenship to children born in Suriname of foreign born parents. Sources indicate, however, that a small number of children born in Suriname to foreign parents before September 2014 remain ineligible to receive citizenship and free public education. (2; 15; 21)

The Penal Code establishes penalties for the production and trafficking of drugs, but it does not appear to specifically prohibit the use, procuring, and offering of a child in the production and trafficking of drugs. (16)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforce laws related to child labor. (4)
Police	Enforce criminal laws related to child labor. (4) Includes the Youth Affairs Police, which covers law enforcement involving children under age 18 and is jointly responsible for child labor-related crimes. (22) In addition, includes the Police Trafficking in Persons Unit, which investigates reports and allegations of human trafficking and forced sexual exploitation nationwide, including cases involving children. (19)
Prosecutor's Office	Investigate and prosecute human trafficking cases. (23)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Suriname took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including targeted inspection of risk-prone sectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	No (10)	No (4)

* The government does not publish this information.

The government does not collect or publish data on child labor inspections and violations. Labor inspections are mainly conducted near coastal areas and the Ministry of Labor noted that there are insufficient labor inspectors to provide adequate coverage to ensure the enforcement of labor laws, particularly in mining and agricultural areas, fisheries, and the country's interior. (10; 24; 25; 4; 2)

Suriname

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Suriname took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including lacking a referral mechanism.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (10)	Yes (4)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A (10)	N/A (4)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (10)	Yes (4)
Number of Investigations	4 (26)	4 (4)
Number of Violations Found	2 (26)	3 (4)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	1 (26)	8 (4)
Number of Convictions	2 (26)	2 (4)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	No (10)	No (4)

In 2017, the Police Trafficking in Persons Unit initiated 4 new investigations involving the commercial sexual exploitation of 5 children and referred 3 human trafficking cases, involving 4 child victims, for prosecution. During the year, the Prosecutor's Office initiated prosecutions of eight individuals in two human trafficking cases and achieved convictions against two individuals for the commercial sexual exploitation of a child. (4)

The number of investigators is inadequate to respond to human trafficking cases and, according to the Prosecutor's Office, investigations are initiated only as a result of complaints filed and are limited by a lack of resources, especially for travel to the interior of the country. (10; 27; 28; 29; 4) Law enforcement efforts are also limited by the lack of formal processes for victim referrals. When the Youth Affairs Police find children working on the street, these children are sometimes registered and sent home without referrals to any relevant services. (19; 29; 4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Although the government has established a coordination mechanism on human trafficking, research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
Anti-Trafficking Working Group	Coordinate the government's anti-human trafficking efforts. (22; 19) Provide care to victims of human trafficking through government-supported NGOs. (19; 30) Comprises nine government agencies. (4) Includes organizations that target the worst forms of child labor, such as the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (22; 19)
Child Protection Network	Reinstated in 2017 to prevent child abuse, neglect, and exploitation. Led by the Ministry of Social Affairs and includes the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Ministry of Justice, Police, Office of the First Lady, National Assembly, and NGO stakeholders, as well as support from UNICEF. (4)

VI. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the implementation of the Roadmap to Combat Human Trafficking.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Roadmap to Combat Human Trafficking in Suriname (2014–2018)	Outlines a policy to combat human trafficking through 2018. (28)

Research found no evidence that the Roadmap to Combat Human Trafficking in Suriname has been implemented. (23; 24; 31; 4) The government plans to implement a National Action Plan on the Elimination of Child Labor based on the results of the 2017 National Child Labor Survey. (32)

V. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including services for child victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Country-Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor (CLEAR) (2013–2017)	USDOL-funded capacity-building project implemented by the ILO in 11 countries to build local and national capacity of governments to address child labor. In Suriname, aims to improve monitoring and enforcement of laws and policies related to child labor and implement a National Action Plan on the elimination of child labor. (32) In 2017, supported a national child labor survey. (4) For additional information, please visit our website.
Regional Initiative School to Work Transition Program	Regional Initiative Latin America and the Caribbean Free of Child Labor program with support from the Cooperation Agency of Brazil and the ILO to assist Caribbean countries, including Suriname, to improve youth transition from school to work. In February 2017, held a workshop on apprenticeships in Suriname. (4; 33)
Child and Youth Hotline†	Government-run hotline that provides confidential advice to children in need, including victims of the worst forms of child labor. (28) Receives approximately 80 calls per day. (27)
Anti-Trafficking Hotline†	Government-sponsored hotline through which citizens can provide information to the police about human trafficking cases. (28)
Human Trafficking Awareness Program†	Government-funded anti-human trafficking awareness campaign for press, radio, television, Internet, and social media. (19; 23; 20; 30)
Second Basic Education Improvement Program (2015–2040)	$20 million IDB-funded, 25-year loan implemented by the Ministry of Education to develop curriculums and textbooks, provide teacher training, renovate classrooms, build housing for teachers in the interior, and build a center for teacher training and professional development. Aims to benefit 90,000 students and 6,500 teachers. (23; 34)

† Program is funded by the Government of Suriname.

The government continues to support initiatives to eradicate child labor, but existing social programs are insufficient to fully address the problem. In particular, Suriname lacks programs to assist child victims of human trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation, as well as children who work in mining and agriculture. (4; 12)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Suriname (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the use, procuring, and offering of a child for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Increase the compulsory education age to at least age 14, the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that all children, including children of foreign-born parents, have access to free public education.	2015 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Make information on labor law enforcement efforts publicly available, including the Labor Inspectorate's funding levels, as well as the number of annual labor inspections conducted.	2012 – 2017
	Strengthen the labor inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on the analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents, such as in fisheries and the interior of the country, particularly in mining and agricultural areas in which child labor is likely to occur.	2015 – 2017
	Allocate sufficient funding to ensure that criminal law enforcement officers have the resources necessary to conduct investigations, particularly in the interior of the country and informal mining areas.	2014 – 2017
	Create a formal mechanism to refer victims of child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking identified by labor or criminal law enforcement authorities to the appropriate social services.	2010 – 2017
Coordination	Establish coordinating mechanisms to combat child labor.	2015 – 2017
Government Policies	Develop and implement a National Action Plan on the elimination of child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Strengthen efforts to prevent and eradicate the trafficking of children, including for commercial sexual exploitation, by implementing the Roadmap to Combat Human Trafficking in Suriname (2014–2018).	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Develop social programs to prevent and eradicate child labor in agriculture and mining and to improve secondary school attendance, particularly in the interior.	2015 – 2017
	Strengthen social services and shelters to assist child victims of commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking.	2014 – 2017

In 2017, the United Republic of Tanzania made a minimal advancement to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government published regulations to define hazardous work for children in several sectors and, for the first time, explicitly prohibited hazardous tasks for children in the fishing industry. Despite these initiatives to address child labor, Tanzania is receiving this assessment because it continued to implement a policy and practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. Since 1984, the government has regulated access to secondary education through the Primary School Leaving Exam. Students who do not pass the exam do not have an opportunity to re-take the exam, and must drop out of public school, preventing them from continuing their education. Students in Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar complete primary education at the average age of 14. Children in Zanzibar who do not pass the exam can find themselves both out of formal education but still below the minimum age for work, which is age 15, leaving such children at increased risk of child labor. Although the government has expressed its intention to phase out the National exam by 2021, it has yet to initiate efforts or make preparations to do so. The government also explicitly supports the routine expulsion of pregnant students from public schools, making them more vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. Children in Tanzania engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining, quarrying, and domestic work. Other gaps remain in the legal framework, including protections for child engagement in illicit activities and domestic work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tanzania engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining, quarrying, and domestic work. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Mainland Tanzania.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	29.3 (3,573,467)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	74.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	24.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		72.4

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The United Republic of Tanzania consists of Mainland Tanzania and the semi-autonomous Zanzibar archipelago. Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar have separate laws and regulations governing child labor and are presented separately when information differs between them.

Tanzania is a source, transit, and destination country for child trafficking for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation. Child trafficking is often facilitated by victims’ family members, friends, or intermediaries promising assistance or employment. (29; 31; 32; 6; 12) Girls are often trafficked for domestic servitude or commercial sexual exploitation, including along the Kenya border and in tourist areas. (29; 30; 6) Although most children are trafficked internally, children from Burundi and Rwanda are also trafficked to Tanzania for involuntary servitude. (33) Impoverished rural children and those orphaned by HIV/AIDS are particularly vulnerable. (32; 34; 6; 12)

Children working in mining are exposed to many hazards such as mercury poisoning and entrapment when tunnels collapse, especially in smaller unlicensed operations. (35; 22; 21)

Despite a recent policy shift to institute tuition-free primary education, families must still pay for books, uniforms, and school lunches, at costs that are prohibitive to some families. (36; 37; 38; 39) Barriers to education such as these can reduce children’s access to school and increase their vulnerability of child labor.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tanzania has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tanzania's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work, access to public education, compulsory education age and the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

* No conscription (48)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (36)

Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar's non-union matters are governed by distinct territorial jurisdictional laws, leaving each territory to determine its own child labor laws. (1; 44) The minimum age for work laws in Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar do not meet international standards because they do not extend to all working children, including children engaged in domestic work. (40; 42; 43) In 2017, Mainland Tanzania published regulations for the Employment and Labor Relations Act that defined hazardous work for children in many sectors. For the first time, the government explicitly prohibited hazardous tasks for children in the fishing industry. (49; 35) However, Mainland Tanzania's hazardous work list for children does not specify weeding and processing as activities that are dangerous agricultural tasks in the production of tobacco, cloves, coffee, sisal, and tea. (4; 40; 41; 42; 43; 35) Zanzibar does not have a hazardous work list, and research could not determine that the new regulations on hazardous work from Mainland Tanzania are applicable to Zanzibar. (49) In addition, Mainland Tanzania does not clearly provide penalties for using children for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs. Zanzibar prohibits the use of children for illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs. (42; 43)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED POLICY AND PRACTICE THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Tanzania does not have a law requiring free public education, but it does have an education policy that allows children to attend primary school without paying tuition fees. The government regulates access to secondary education through the Primary School Leaving Exam; students who do not pass the exam do not have an opportunity to re-take the exam and must drop out of public school. (50) The compulsory education age for children in Mainland Tanzania is 14 but in Zanzibar is 13. (51) However, while children in Mainland Tanzania may begin work at 14, children in Zanzibar cannot work until the age of 15. As a result, children who do not pass the exam can find themselves both out of formal education in government schools and still below the minimum age for work, leaving them at increased risk of child labor. (50; 52) Although the government has expressed its intention to phase out the exam by 2021, it has yet to initiate efforts or make preparations to do so. (50; 52; 53)

Another practice that may contribute to children being left out of the formal education system, stems from Mainland Tanzania's Education Act of 1978 which allows the Ministry of Education to conduct medical examinations on students. Sources indicate that the Ministry has forced students to undergo a pregnancy test and expelled them from school if they are pregnant. (49; 36; 52; 54) Although pregnant girls are more at risk of expulsion, boys who are found to be sexually active are also expelled from school. (33) In June 2017, President John Magufuli stated publicly that he supported the expulsion of pregnant students from public schools. (49; 55; 56; 57)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the labor ministries of Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Minister of State in the Prime Minister's Office for Policy, Parliamentary Affairs, Labor, Employment, Youth, and the Disabled (Mainland)	Enforce child labor laws. Assign area labor officers to each region to respond to reports of child labor violations, issue non-compliance orders, and report incidents to police and the Ministry of Health and Social Welfare. (1) Through its Labor Administration and Inspection Section, provide legal guidance on request, disseminate information to employers and employees on their rights and obligations, and help area offices conduct labor inspections. (58)
Ministry of Health, Community Development, Gender, Elders, and Children (Mainland)	Enforce child protection laws and regulations and health and social welfare policies. Employ officers to monitor child labor at the district and village levels, and report findings to the President's Office of Regional Administration and Local government. (2) Promote community development, gender equality, and children's rights by formulating policies, strategies, and guidelines, in collaboration with stakeholders. (58)
Ministry of Empowerment, Adults, Youth, Women and Children (Zanzibar)	Ensure compliance with child protection and child labor laws, including inspections, through its Child Protection Unit. (58) Following a merger with the Ministry of Labor, Economic Empowerment and Cooperatives, investigate child labor cases reported by the police and refer cases to social welfare officers. (50)
Ministry of Health (Zanzibar)	Enforce anti-trafficking laws, including cases of child trafficking. (58)
Tanzania Police Force	Investigate cases of child labor and other forms of child endangerment reported to police stations; in some cases, refer the cases to labor officers or seek assistance of social welfare officers and the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions for legal actions. Includes a Human Trafficking desk, and Gender and Children's desks to handle cases pertaining to children. (29; 58; 59; 60)
Ministry of Home Affairs (Mainland)	Enforce anti-trafficking laws, including child trafficking, and laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation of children and the use of children in illicit activities. Chair the Anti-Trafficking Committee. (58)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Tanzania took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the labor ministries of Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the authority to assess penalties, and the lack of publicly available enforcement data.

†Data are from January 2016 to July 2016.

‡Data are from July 1, 2017 to December 31, 2017.

Despite regulations requiring that one or more labor officers be assigned to each region, research was unable to determine whether this was followed during the reporting period. (61) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Tanzania's workforce, which includes nearly 25 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in least developed countries, Tanzania would employ about 622 inspectors. (62; 63)

The government provided incomplete data on inspections for the reporting period; however, in previous years, inspections in Mainland Tanzania were carried out in sectors such as agriculture, mining, domestic work, hotels, trade, industry and commerce, construction, and fishing. (3) Exact figures on Labor Inspectorate funding are unavailable; however, NGOs noted that child labor inspections could benefit from additional funding and increased numbers of inspections. (58) Complaint and referral mechanisms lack investigative and enforcement capacity. (8; 11; 58) In Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar, penalties for violations of labor and criminal laws are determined by the courts according to the Employment and Labor Relations Act. (49)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Tanzania took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the collection of and availability of enforcement statistics.

* The government does not publish this information.

Police reported that eight girls trafficked from Nepal had been returned home. (12) The government continued to include human trafficking in police academy training; research was unable to obtain information on the number of new employee training. (33) Supported by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, Tanzania implemented a human trafficking data collection and reporting system, including computers and operator training for police, immigration officials, and the Director of Public Prosecutions; these government officials also received training on identifying and prosecuting human trafficking victims. (12)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Education Task Force on Child Labor	Review education sector policies and existing laws, regulations, and strategies related to children's issues, including the National Action Plan. Review existing curriculum and programs, identify gaps, and suggest strategies to resolve barriers to education access related to child labor. (8; 64) Research was unable to determine whether the National Education Task Force was active during the reporting period.
Zanzibar Child Labor Steering Committee	Coordinate various implementing agencies responsible for child labor and provide policy guidance on the Zanzibar National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor. (58) Chaired by Zanzibar's Ministry of Empowerment, Adults, Youth, Women and Children. (61) Research was unable to determine whether the Child Labor Steering Committee was active during the reporting period.
National Protection Steering Committee	Provide overall policy guidance and coordination at the national and local levels of the National Action Plan to End Violence Against Women and Children (NPA-VAWC) through the merger of the National Inter-Sectoral Coordination Committee and the Multi-Sector Task Force on Violence Against Children. (50; 60) Operate the NPA-VAWC National Protection Technical Committee and Thematic Working Groups at the national level. Merge pre-existing committees at the regional and district levels, focusing on violence prevention and response, including the Child Labor Committees, the Gender Based Violence Committees, District Child Protection Teams (DCPT) and Most Vulnerable Children Committees. (58; 60) Research was unable to determine whether the National Protection Steering Committee was active during the reporting period.

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Anti-Trafficking Committee and Secretariat	Promote, define, and coordinate policy to prevent human trafficking through engagement with local NGOs. (29; 32; 45; 50) Chaired by the Ministry of Home Affairs, includes representatives from the Prime Minister's Office for Policy, Parliamentary Affairs, Labor, Employment, Youth, and the Disabled. (61) In 2017, the Parliament allocated approximately $43,500 to the Secretariat. However, the secretariat reported that its budget is not sufficient to conduct a nationwide public relations campaign to raise awareness of trafficking issues. (12)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established one policy related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into other relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Plan of Action to End Violence Against Women and Children in Tanzania (NPA-VAWC) (2017–2022) †	Prevent and respond to all forms of violence against women and children through comprehensive multi-sectoral collaboration at all levels combination of eight national action plans. (60) The renewed plan details responsible agencies to address multiple challenges, including education and poverty reduction. (58)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (2; 58; 50; 65)

The Anti-Trafficking Secretariat held meetings in 2017 to discuss challenges in the implementation of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan. These meetings ended in December 2017. (61; 66; 53; 67)

The National Plan of Action to End Violence Against Women and Children in Tanzania (NPA-VAWC) was published in December 2016 and includes funding requirements for 4 years. The government allocated $5.72 million for fiscal year 2017–2018, but did not provide details on how the allocation was spent. Research has been unable to confirm that the plan has been implemented. (8; 58; 53)

At the 2017 Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor held in Argentina, the Government of Tanzania made a pledge to implement a strategy within the NPA-VAWC to strengthen law enforcement through capacity building of labor officers and social partners, and conduct labor inspections in sectors with a high prevalence of child labor. The pledge also included the implementation of the National Skills Development Strategy (2016–2016 - 2020–2021), a 5 year plan that aims to equip the workforce, through internships, apprenticeship programs, and the development of a social protection policy, to extend coverage of social protection in the formal and informal economy. (68)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the scope and implementation of programs in all relevant sectors, including construction, service and informal sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development (MAP)	USDOL-funded research project implemented by the ILO in 10 countries to increase the knowledge base relating to child labor by collecting new data, analyzing existing data, and building capacity of the government to conduct research in this area. Additional information is available on the USDOL website.

Program	Description
Promoting Sustainable Practices to Eradicate Child Labor in Tobacco (PROSPER) Platform for Unity and Sustainability (PROSPER+) (2016–2017)	$837,592 continuation project funded by the ECLT Foundation implemented by Winrock International, the Tanzania Association of Women Leaders in Agriculture and the Environment, and the Tabora Development Foundation Trust. Aims to reduce child labor in tobacco-growing areas by: (a) encouraging advocacy of social and political change; (b) coordinating to convert policy into action; (c) providing decent work for youth and combating hazardous work; and (d) expanding access to quality education and economic opportunities. (58; 69) In 2017, hosted child labor awareness events in targeted communities involving 9,725 participants in collaboration with the Tanzania Leaf Tobacco Companies and Alliance One International. PROSPER+ trained 101 cooperative leaders on combatting child labor and sensitized other crop boards on child labor issues, including Tanzania Tea Board, Tanzania Coffee Board, Tanzania Sisal Board, and Tanzania Cotton Board. (33)
Eradicating the Worst Forms of Labor in the Eight Mining Wards of the Geita District, Phase 2 (2015–2019)	$1.1 million EU-funded, 3-year project implemented by Plan International Tanzania to enhance social protection mechanisms to prevent and improve awareness of child labor among children, parents, and mining employers near Chato, Geita, and Nywangwale. (17; 49) During the year, increased community initiatives to support vulnerable children by training community leaders and social workers on child protection issues and discussing financial savings as a sustainable solution to child labor in 81 village meetings. (33)
Tanzania Social Action Fund Conditional Cash Transfer Program (TASAF CCT), Phase III (2012–2018)†	Government-funded conditional cash transfer program to provide financial assistance to vulnerable populations, including children. (70) USDOL-funded study reported increased school enrollment and reduced forced child migration and child labor. (2; 71; 49) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement TASAF-CCT, Phase III during the reporting period. (33)
Decent Work Country Program (DWCP)	ILO-supported program with four objectives: (a) create jobs, (b) guarantee rights at work, (c) extend social protection, and (d) promote social dialogue. Outcomes include improved operational environment for the elimination of child labor and its worst forms. (58; 72; 49) In 2017, ILO reviewed DWCP II, in collaboration with the Ministry of Labor and Employment and the Trade Union Congress of Tanzania and Employers Association developed the DWCP III document, the next phase of the program. (33)
Achieving Reduction of Child Labor in Support of Education (ARISE)	Joint initiative of the ILO, Japan Tobacco International, and Winrock International, seeks to end child labor in tobacco through education. Operates in three districts in the Tabora Region: Kaliua, Urambo, and Uyui. (73; 74) In 2017, in collaboration with the Ministry of Health, Community Development, Gender, Elderly and Children. They worked to build capacity of these DCPTs in Uyui and Urambo, which reactivated the Most Vulnerable Child Committees in 215 villages. (49) Assisted in preparing annual work plans and budgets that were approved by the Urambo and Uyui District Full Councils, making funds available to implement anti-child labor activities in 2017-2018. (49)

† Program is funded by the Government of Tanzania.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (58)

The government funded social programs do not cover construction, service and informal sectors where children engage in child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tanzania (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that minimum age protections apply to children engaged in domestic work.	2013 – 2017
	Criminalize the use of children in illicit activities, particularly in producing and trafficking drugs.	2012 – 2017
	Criminalize the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Mainland Tanzania: Continue to expand the list of hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children to ensure the list includes weeding and processing as activities in the production of tobacco, cloves, coffee, sisal, and tea.	2016 – 2017
	Zanzibar: Create a list of occupations and activities that are hazardous for children.	2017
	Ensure that there is no gap between the age for compulsory education and the minimum age for work, which leaves children vulnerable to child labor.	2017
	Ensure that the law does not prohibit access to education for pregnant girls.	2017
	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet ILO's technical advice.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that a dedicated labor officer is appointed to each region, and publish this information.	2013 – 2017
	Authorize the Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar Labor Inspectorates to assess penalties.	2017
	Publish information for Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar on child labor law enforcement actions, such as funding, trainings provided, routine and unannounced inspections conducted, child labor violations found, penalties imposed and collected, and referral mechanisms between labor authorities and social services.	2011 – 2017
	Provide sufficient funding and trained staff to conduct child labor inspections.	2013 – 2017
Enforcement	Bolster the investigative and enforcement capacity of the government referral mechanism.	2014 – 2017
	Publish information on enforcement efforts to combat child labor, including investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and criminal convictions executed in Mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar.	2012 – 2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Primary Education Development Plan III.	2011 – 2017
	Eliminate provisions in the Primary School Leaving Exam that are a barrier to education, such as the no retake policy.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Address barriers to education, including prohibitive costs, such as books, school meals, or uniforms.	2010 – 2017
	Integrate programs that addresses construction, service and informal sectors to address children engaged in child labor.	2017

In 2017, Thailand made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government assigned 102 interpreters for non-Thai speaking migrants and ethnic minorities at Department of Labor Protection and Welfare offices and inspection centers at shipping ports, dedicated more police officers to investigate Internet-related crimes against children, and signed an information-sharing agreement with the U.S. National Center for Missing and Exploited Children to combat the online commercial sexual exploitation of children. The government also adopted a ministerial regulation prohibiting certain types of work for home-based workers under age 15, partially addressing the lack of minimum age protections for children working outside of a formal employment situation. However, children in Thailand engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in seafood and shrimp processing, and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to an insufficient number of inspectors, and the government has yet to conduct a nationally representative survey to measure the prevalence of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Thailand engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in seafood and shrimp processing, and in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) Children also perform dangerous tasks in street work and muay thai paid fighting (Thai kickboxing). (7; 8; 9; 10; 11) The government has yet to complete a national survey on the prevalence of children's work, which is needed to implement the National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor Phase II (2015–2020). (12; 13) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Thailand.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.0 (1,302,267)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	96.3
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	14.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		90.6

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (14)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Processing shrimp and seafood† (16; 1; 17; 12; 18)
	Fishing, including work performed on sea vessels† (12; 16; 19)
	Planting and harvesting sugarcane (20)
	Production of rubber and pineapples (21; 12)
Industry	Manufacturing, including garment production (12; 22)
	Work in poultry factories and pig farms (23; 24)
	Construction, including transporting cement and bricks (25; 12)

	Street work, including begging and vending (12; 11; 10; 29; 4; 30)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, including use in the production of pornography, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (31; 32; 33; 3; 12)
	Forced labor in vending, begging, and domestic work, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (26; 12; 22)
	Forced labor in the production of garments, in agriculture, and in shrimp and seafood processing (1; 32; 34)
	Fishing as a result of human trafficking (2; 35; 36; 22; 19)
	Use in the production and trafficking of drugs, including amphetamines, kratom, and marijuana (32; 12)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Thai Children, as well as children from Burma, Laos, and Cambodia are exploited for commercial sexual exploitation in Thai massage parlors, bars, karaoke lounges, hotels, and private residences. In addition, children are lured, including through the internet and social media, and coerced to produce pornography and perform sexual acts for live internet broadcasts. (12; 37; 38; 39; 4; 40; 3; 41; 42)

Children, particularly migrants from the Greater Mekong Sub-region, engage in hazardous work in shrimp and seafood processing. While incidents of child labor in shrimp and seafood processing have declined in recent years, children are still reported to work in the industry. (43; 16) Children who work in shrimp and seafood processing clean and lift heavy loads of seafood and work late hours. Many of these children also experience health problems, including injuries and chronic diseases. (6; 18; 1)

Although Order No. 28/2559 of the National Council for Peace and Order ensures 15 years of free education for all children in Thailand, some children, particularly migrants and ethnic minorities, struggle to access basic education due to a lack of awareness of migrant children’s right to public education, language barriers, and insufficient transportation to schools. (44; 16; 45; 46; 47; 32)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Thailand has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Thailand’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including military recruitment prohibitions.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	15	Chapter 4, Section 44 of the Labor Protection Act; Section 148/1 of the Labor Protection Act (No. 5) (48; 49)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Chapter 4, Sections 49–50 of the Labor Protection Act; Section 148/2 of the Labor Protection Act (No. 5) (48; 49)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Chapter 4, Sections 49–50 of the Labor Protection Act; Clause 4 of the Ministerial Regulation concerning Labor Protection in Sea Fishery Work; Clause 2 of the Ministerial Regulation Identifying Tasks that may be Hazardous to the Health and Safety of Pregnant Women or Children Under the Age of Fifteen Years (48; 50; 51)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 312, and 312 bis of the Penal Code; Sections 4 and 6 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (No. 3) (52; 53)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 282–283 of the Penal Code; Section 6 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (No. 3) (52; 54)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 8 of the Prevention and Suppression of Prostitution Act; Section 6 of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act (No. 3); Sections 282 and 285–287 of the Penal Code; Article 26 of the Child Protection Act; Amendment to the Penal Code Act No. 24 (52; 55; 56; 57; 53)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 26 of the Child Protection Act; Section 93 of the Narcotics Act; Section 84 of the Penal Code; Section 22 of the Beggar Control Act (56; 58; 59; 60)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	21	Section 25 of the Military Service Act (61)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Section 25 of the Military Service Act (61)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 17 of the National Education Act (62)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 10 of the National Education Act (62)

In 2017, the government adopted a ministerial regulation specifying the types of work prohibited for home-based workers under age 15. (63; 47; 51) During the reporting period, an amendment to the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act went into effect, which imposes stricter penalties when the trafficking victim is a child under age 15. (53) In addition, an amendment to the Labor Protection Act on Child Labor went into effect during the reporting period, which increases the penalties for using child laborers under age 15 and employing children in hazardous work, including a financial penalty and imprisonment. (42; 49) The minimum age for work does not comply with international standards because the law does not grant protections to children working without a formal employment contract. (48)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor (MOL) and the criminal enforcement agencies, which may hinder adequate child labor enforcement.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor Protection and Welfare (DLPW) of the Ministry of Labor (MOL)	Enforce child labor laws through workplace inspections. (12) Operate Hotline 1546 and staff 86 labor protection and welfare offices in every province to answer questions about working conditions and receive complaints from the public about child labor. (63)
Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division of the Royal Thai Police (RTP)	Enforce laws related to forced labor, human trafficking, child pornography, and commercial sexual exploitation of children. Operate Hotline 1191 to receive complaints on human trafficking and violence against children. (64)
Department of Special Investigations (DSI) in the Ministry of Justice	Investigate human trafficking crimes, including those related to government officials' complicity, and transnational or organized crime. (63)

Organization/Agency	Role
Anti-Human Trafficking Department under the Office of the Attorney General	Enforce criminal laws against human trafficking. (64) Investigate or co-investigate human trafficking offenses and monitor cases to improve the quality of prosecution of human trafficking cases, particularly sex trafficking. (65; 12)
Anti-Trafficking in Persons Division under the Criminal Court of Justice	Enforce the Anti-Human Trafficking Act. (64) Prosecute human trafficking cases, focusing specifically on sex trafficking, forced labor, slavery, and the illegal trade of human organs. (65)
Thailand Internet Crimes Against Children Taskforce	Investigate and enforce laws against the online sexual exploitation of children and child trafficking, including the distribution and production of child pornography. (12) Comprise of police officers and Department of Special investigation agents. (66)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Thailand took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including an insufficient number of labor inspectors.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$1,001,168 (67)	$614,251 (12)
Number of Labor Inspectors	880 (63)	1,506 (12)

Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	39,350 (63)	40,306 (12)
Number Conducted at Worksites	39,350 (63)	40,306 (12)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	71 (63)	103 (12)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	71 (63)	103 (47)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown (67)	53 (12)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (32)	Yes (12)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (32)	Yes (12)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (32)	Yes (12)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (32)	Yes (12)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (32)	Yes (12)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (32)	Yes (12)

Labor inspection duties are carried out by 592 Department of Labor Protection and Welfare (DLPW) civil servants, 98 contract employees employed by the DLPW, 188 labor inspectors under the MOL Permanent Secretary Office, and 628 officials from other agencies, including the Royal Thai Police (RTP). More than 84 percent of unannounced child labor inspections targeted high-risk worksites that employ children working in shrimp and seafood processing, garment production, sugarcane planting and harvesting, construction, and working with poultry and pig livestock. (12) Inspectors who find a child labor violation must assess a penalty on the employer immediately and refer the case to the RTP. (47)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Thailand's workforce, which includes approximately 38.45 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Thailand would employ 2,558 labor inspectors. (68; 69; 70)

In 2017, the DLPW and the MOL provided trainings to approximately 532 labor inspectors and government employees on various topics, including laws related to child labor, forced labor, and human trafficking. In addition, the government assigned 102 foreign language interpreters to work in the DLPW offices and at inspection centers in Thailand's shipping ports where fishing vessels are inspected for illegal activities. The interpreters at the DLPW provide translation assistance to Burmese, Cambodian, Indonesian, and Vietnamese men and boys who are removed from forced labor on Thai and foreign-owned fishing boats. (42; 12) The DLPW also established mobile inspection teams that consist of labor inspectors, a legal affairs officer, interpreters, and occasionally employees from the departments of Special Investigation, Employment, and Fisheries. These teams, which draw on information shared by NGOs and child protection networks, conduct targeted monthly child labor inspections and are authorized to file criminal lawsuits immediately when child labor violations are found. (47; 12)

In 2017, DLPW labor inspectors developed a labor inspector handbook to guide their inspections of home-based work, which includes domestic work. In addition, the DLPW conducted two training workshops for labor inspectors to adequately enforce the Home Workers Protection Act, which gives the DLPW the authority to inspect home-based workplaces.

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Thailand took actions to combat of child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including child labor data.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (32)	Yes (12)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (66)	Yes (12)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (63)	Yes (12)
Number of Investigations	3,040 † (63)	2,891 ‡ (12)
Number of Violations Found	3,252 † (32; 63)	31 (12)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (43)	Unknown (12)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (63)	730 (12)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (63)	Yes (12)

† Data are from October 1, 2015 to September 30, 2016.

The government collects and reports administrative data on the worst forms of child labor to the Cabinet. Data for the number of investigations, violations found, and prosecutions initiated in 2016 include child drug trafficking and child pornography cases. (63) However, 2017 data for the number of violations only includes child pornography cases, as child drug trafficking cases data is unavailable. (12) Further, the data for the number of convictions in 2017 do not differentiate between cases related to the worst forms of child labor. (12; 47)

In 2017, the government provided trainings on trafficking in persons, including child trafficking and child protection, to approximately 1,940 enforcement officials, including criminal investigators. In addition, the government investigated 209 Internet-related crimes against children, and prosecutors filed 31 cases for possession and distribution of child pornography. (12) During the reporting period, the RTP provided the Thailand Internet Crimes Against Children (TICAC) Taskforce with its own budget and administrative personnel and assigned more RTP officers to the TICAC to investigate Internet-related crimes against children involving chat rooms, file-sharing platforms, and social media. (42) The government also prosecuted three cases involving children working in seafood processing factories in the provinces of Rayong and Samut Songkhram. (71)

During the reporting period, a Bangkok criminal court convicted 62 people, which included a senior military general among 22 government officials, in the largest human trafficking trial involving adults and children from Burma and Bangladesh. (72; 42; 73) In addition, the government established an interagency working committee, chaired by the Ministry of Justice's Permanent Secretary, to monitor the progress of cases involving government officials suspected of complicity in human trafficking crimes, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (42; 47)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Coordinate the implementation of child labor policies, facilitate cooperation among relevant ministries, and report annually to the Thai Cabinet on child labor issues. (64) Chaired by the MOL, with representation from other government agencies, employer and worker associations, and civil society groups. (74) Oversee a subcommittee responsible for monitoring the National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (32; 13)
National Policy Committee on Anti-Trafficking in Persons and Illegal, Unreported, and Unregulated Fishing	Coordinate anti-trafficking in persons policies and activities. Oversee five subcommittees, including the Subcommittee on Child Labor, Forced Labor, and Migrant Workers. Chaired by the MOL. (32; 75)
National Operation Center for the Prevention and Suppression of Human Trafficking	Coordinate anti-human trafficking activities, including those involving forced child labor, child trafficking, and commercial sexual exploitation. Monitor 76 Provincial Operation Centers for the Prevention and Suppression of Human Trafficking. (32; 64; 76) Operates under the Ministry of Social Development and Human Security (MSDHS). (32)
Provincial Coordination Center for Sea Fishery Workers (Operated jointly by DLPW, Marine Police, Provincial Administration, and Fishers' Association)	Compile registration records and work permit information for migrants working on fishing vessels and work with vessel owners to ensure that undocumented migrant workers are registered. Monitor and coordinate inspections of working conditions on fishing vessels. (64) Provide trainings on labor protection, receive human trafficking complaints, and coordinate with other agencies to provide assistance, remedy, and rehabilitation services for victims. (64)
Command Center for Combating Illegal Fishing	Coordinate government efforts to resolve cases of human trafficking and illegal fishing. Operate 32 Port In–Port Out Centers and 19 Forward Inspection Centers in every coastal province. (64) Carry out inspections in the fishing and seafood industry at port, at sea, and on land. (77) Agencies involved include the Royal Thai Navy; the ministries of Agriculture and Cooperatives, Transport, Interior, and Labor; and the RTP. (77)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Policy and Plan to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor Phase II (2015–2020)	Seeks to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in Thailand in accordance with international labor standards. Focuses on (a) preventing the worst forms of child labor, (b) rescuing and protecting children from the worst forms of child labor, (c) developing and enforcing relevant laws, (d) enhancing interagency cooperation, and (e) developing management and monitoring systems. (13) In 2017, provided 22,159 migrant children and adults with education access support, including Thai language classes. (47)
Cyber Tipline Remote Access Policy †	Seeks to combat the online sexual exploitation of children in Thailand by partnering with the U.S. National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Enhances the role of the Thailand Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force by which the RTP can request warrants to search the residences and electronic equipment of individuals in Thailand for child pornography and initiate criminal prosecution. (78; 79; 80; 81)

‡ The government has other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (63; 82; 83; 12)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address child labor in high-risk sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
National and Provincial Operation Centers for Providing Assistance to Women and Child Laborers†	DLPW program that provides assistance to women and child laborers, and collects and disseminates information on the worst forms of child labor. Reports to the National Committee to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labor. (84)
From Protocol to Practice: A Bridge to Global Action on Forced Labor (2015–2019)	USDOL-funded global project implemented by ILO to support global and national efforts to combat the forced labor of adults and children under the 2014 ILO Protocol and supporting Recommendation to C.29 on Forced Labor. (85) In Thailand, provided technical support for the planning of a National Working Child Survey. (32; 86) Additional information is available on the USDOL website. (86)
Government Shelters for Trafficking Victims†	MSDHS program that operates 76 temporary shelters to provide emergency assistance and protection to human trafficking victims, including children. (77) Operates nine long-term shelters that offer medical care, psychosocial services, education, and life skills education. (77; 87)
Asia-Australia Program to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2013–2018)	5-year, $45 million, Australian Aid-funded, Association of Southeast Asian Nations regional- and national-level project to build capacity and strengthen access to criminal justice for trafficking victims. (88) In Thailand, focuses on creating specialized investigative units; increasing interagency cooperation among public prosecutors, police, and the DSI; and developing training curriculum for law enforcement, prosecutors, and judges. (88)
Combatting Unacceptable Forms of Work in the Thai Fishing and Seafood Industry (2016–2019)	3.5 year, EU and ILO-funded project implemented by the ILO, the government of Thailand, and other stakeholders to prevent and reduce forced labor and child labor in the Thai fishing and seafood processing sectors, including by withdrawing children engaged in the worst forms of child labor and enhancing their access to support services. (89; 90)
Migrant Learning Centers†	NGO and government-operated centers that provide basic education to children in migrant communities along Thailand's borders. Ministerial regulations under the National Education Act specify that these centers are permitted to operate and are eligible to receive government subsidies and accreditation. (64) However, many Migrant Learning Centers rely on declining donor funding, and migrant students face difficulties acquiring a certification of education because many centers lack qualified teachers and accreditation. (63)
Welfare Cards for the Poor*†	Government program that provides low-income parents or caretakers with a monthly stipend of approximately $54 to $57 (1,700 to 1,800 baht) to be spent on transportation, farming supplies, educational utensils, and other essentials. Beginning in October 2017, the government issued welfare cards to 11.4 million registered people. (12)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Thailand.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (13; 91; 42)

The lack of available research and data on the prevalence of child labor in high-risk sectors such as agriculture, garment manufacturing, domestic work, and construction, cause difficulty for the Thai government to design appropriate programs to address the issue. (43) While the government has some social programs targeted to assist children at high risk of exploitation in the worst forms of child labor, such as migrant and ethnic minority children, these programs are not sufficient to address the extent of the problem. (12)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Thailand (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the minimum age for work applies to children without a formal employment contract.	2017
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Collect and publish comprehensive data on the number of prosecutions for all crimes related to child labor.	2015 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Social Programs	Improve access to education, especially for ethnic minority and migrant children, including raising awareness of migrant children's right to education, improving access to school transportation, and addressing language barriers for non-Thai speaking students.	2012 – 2017
	Conduct and publish a survey on working children in Thailand using research methodology in line with internationally recognized resolutions and guidelines on child labor statistics.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that there are sufficient social programs to assist children at risk of or engaged in child labor and their parents or guardians, in the relevant sectors of agriculture, garment manufacturing, domestic work, and construction.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that there are sufficient social programs targeted to assist children from vulnerable groups, such as migrants and ethnic minorities, who are at high risk of the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2017

Timor-Leste

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Timor-Leste made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government enacted the Law to Prevent and Fight Against Human Trafficking and established a monitoring committee to assess the progress of the Inter-Agency Trafficking Working Group, responsible for implementing the National Action Plan on Combating Human Trafficking. In addition, the government approved a hazardous work list for children. However, children in Timor-Leste engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. The government's Penal Code and Labor Code are not sufficient because they leave children under age 17 vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, including illicit activities. In addition, inadequate transportation restricts inspectors' ability to conduct inspections, especially in more remote areas of the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Timor-Leste engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1; 2; 3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Timor-Leste.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	10 to 14	19.9 (26,268)
Attending School (%)	7 to 14	69.7
Combining Work and School (%)	10 to 14	12.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		95.3

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2016, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Timor-Leste Survey of Living Standards, 2007. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating and processing coffee† (6; 1)
	Growing vegetables and other crops (7; 2)
	Fishing,† including work on boats and repairing nets (1; 2; 8)
Industry	Construction,† including brickmaking (6; 1)
	Operating weaving and knitting machines (7; 9)
Services	Domestic work† (1; 2)
	Street work, including vending, begging, and scavenging (1; 10; 11)
	Shop keeping and selling goods in markets (7)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation and forced domestic and agricultural work (2; 3; 12)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)-(c) of ILO C. 182.

In Timor-Leste, some children are trafficked from rural areas to the capital city, Dili, and subjected to commercial sexual exploitation, domestic work, or forced labor in the fishing industry. (2; 13; 3; 12; 14) Other children are trafficked transnationally, including to Indonesia. (2; 15) Preliminary data from the child labor survey conducted in 2016 indicates that more than 26,000 children are engaged in “other service activities,” such as domestic work; the survey also identified 588 children engaged in street work. (16; 2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Timor-Leste has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Timor-Leste’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for hazardous work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 68 of the Labour Code (17)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	17	Article 67 of the Labour Code (17)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		List of Hazardous and Prohibited Activities to Children Under the Age of 18 (18)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 155, 162, 163, and 166 of the Penal Code; Articles 8 and 67 of the Labour Code (17; 19)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 81 of the Immigration and Asylum Act; Articles 162–164 and 166 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labour Code; Article 18 of the Law on Preventing and Combating Human Trafficking (17; 19; 20; 21)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 155 and 174–176 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labour Code (17; 19)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Article 155 of the Penal Code; Article 67 of the Labour Code (17; 19)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 14 of the Law on Military Service (22)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Law on Military Service (22)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 125 of the Penal Code (19)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Article 11 of the Education System Framework Law (23)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 59 of the Constitution of the Democratic Republic of Timor-Leste; Article 11 of the Education System Framework Law (23; 24)

In January 2017, the government enacted the Law to Prevent and Fight Against Human Trafficking, which expands legal provisions on protection and prevention measures for the crime of human trafficking, including child trafficking. The law extends criminal liability for human trafficking to corporations and codifies into law the Inter-Agency Trafficking Working Group. (2; 13; 21)

Timor-Leste

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Research, including reports from the ILO's Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations CEACR, indicates that Timor-Leste's Penal Code and Labor Code are not sufficient because they leave children under age 17 vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, and illicit activities. (25; 17; 19; 26) In addition, the minimum age of 17 for hazardous work is not in compliance with international standards, because Timor-Leste fails to ensure that children receive adequate training or fails to protect the health, safety, and morals of the child, in accordance with international standards where the minimum age identified is below 18. (17; 19) While Timor-Leste has adopted the List of Hazardous and Prohibited Activities to Children Under the Age of 18, it is uncertain how it will be harmonized with the Labor Code and Penal Code. (2; 18; 27)

The Labor Code specifies the conditions and number of hours children ages 13 to 15 are permitted to perform light work, the Labor Code does not indicate which specific activities qualify as light work. (17)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Policy (SEPFPOPE) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Secretariat of State for Professional Training and Employment Policy (SEPFPOPE)	Enforce laws related to child labor. Administer the General Labor Inspectorate Directorate, which is responsible for investigating incidents of forced labor. (6)
Timor-Leste National Police (PNTL)	Enforce criminal laws against forced labor, commercial sexual exploitation, and human trafficking. Includes the Vulnerable Persons Unit, the immigration police, and the border police. (6)
Ministry of Social Solidarity	Receive referrals from agencies, including the SEPFPOPE, that are responsible for conducting child labor investigations and providing child victims with appropriate support services. (6) Maintain at least one technical officer in each of the country's 13 districts and two child protection officers in each of the 65 subdistricts, all trained to follow the government's standard operating procedures for referrals to service providers. (28; 29; 30)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Timor-Leste took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the SEPFPOPE that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspector training.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$379,000 (31)	$197,000 (2)
Number of Labor Inspectors	22 (31)	26 (2)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (31)	Yes (2)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Unknown	No (2)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	1,338 (32)	1,721 (2)
Number Conducted at Worksites	Unknown (31)	Unknown (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	0 (31)	0 (2)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	0 (31)	0 (2)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	0 (31)	0 (2)
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (33)	Yes (2)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown (33)	Yes (2)

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (cont)

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (31)	Yes (2)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (31)	Yes (2)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (31)	Yes (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (31)	Yes (2)

Although the SEPFOPE's funding decreased from $379,000 in 2016 to $197,000 in 2017, the number of labor inspectors increased. The SEPFOPE did not provide trainings related to child labor for its labor inspectors; however, the SEPFOPE conducted general workshops on labor rights for labor inspectors, employers, and employees in the districts of Suai, Ermera, Manatuto, and Lautem. (2)

Research suggests that enforcement of child labor protections is not adequate for children who work on family farms or in domestic work because the SEPFOPE is limited to inspections in formal worksites. (2) In addition, inadequate transportation outside the capital city also limits the SEPFOPE's ability to conduct inspections in the rural areas of Timor-Leste, where child labor in the agriculture sector is prevalent. (34)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Timor-Leste took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	N/A	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown
Refresher Courses Provided	N/A	Unknown
Number of Investigations	0 (31)	4 (14)
Number of Violations Found	0 (31)	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	0 (31)	1 (14)
Number of Convictions	0 (31)	0 (2; 14)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (31)	Yes (2)

In 2017, the Vulnerable Persons Unit of the Timor-Leste National Police (PNTL) had a staff of 94 investigators charged with the enforcement of criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (35) The PNTL received training in trafficking-in-persons and victim identification, but these trainings were not specific to child trafficking. During the reporting period, the PNTL initiated four human trafficking investigations involving Timorese children. (14)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Commission Against Child Labor (CNTI)	Facilitate information sharing on child labor issues among government agencies and serve as the coordinating mechanism for filing and responding to child labor complaints. (34) Develop child labor policies, raise awareness, and contribute to efforts to ratify and implement international conventions related to child protection. (6) Chaired by the SEPFOPE, serving a 3-year term as the Technical Secretariat. (31; 34)
Inter-Agency Trafficking Working Group	Coordinate the government's efforts to combat human trafficking, develop a national action plan against human trafficking, and promote the development of comprehensive anti-trafficking legislation. Chaired by the Ministry of Justice and includes participation by the Prime Minister's office. (2)

Timor-Leste

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

The government established a monitoring committee to assess the progress of the Inter-Agency Trafficking Working Group, responsible for implementing the National Action Plan on Combating Human Trafficking, and formed a joint government- and civil society-led working group to assess anti-trafficking deficiencies. In addition, the Prime Minister's office joined the Inter-Agency Trafficking Working Group. (2; 13)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementing a new national child labor action plan.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan Against Human Trafficking in Timor-Leste (2016–2018)	Guides the government's efforts to combat human trafficking in Timor-Leste through prevention, protection, prosecution, and partnerships. The Ministry of Justice coordinates activities and responsibilities. (36; 37)
Timor-Leste Project for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Aims to strengthen implementation of ILO C. 182 by establishing the Child Labor Commission Working Group, developing a hazardous work list, and creating a national action plan against child labor. Launched in 2009 in partnership with the ILO and the government of Brazil. (34)
Timor-Leste Strategic Development Plan (2011–2030)	Provides short- and long-term plans for the nation's development, including the eradication of the worst forms of child labor, poverty alleviation, and implementation of social transfer programs. (6; 38) Specifies commitments to improve the educational system over the next 20 years. (38; 39)

In 2016, the National Commission Against Child Labor (CNTI) finalized the National Action Plan (NAP) Against Child Labor, which aims to eliminate child labor in Timor-Leste in its worst forms by 2025 and in all its forms by 2030; however, the NAP still requires approval by the Council of Ministers. (31; 16; 40; 2) To achieve this goal, key stakeholders, including the government and community-based organizations, will implement the NAP; technical working groups will coordinate the work, and the CNTI will oversee it. (16)

The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Education Strategic Plan or the Child and Family Welfare System Policy. (41; 42) In addition, research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken during the reporting period to implement the National Action Plan Against Human Trafficking, the Timor-Leste Project for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, or the Timor-Leste Strategic Development Plan. (27)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the absence of social programs for children working in agriculture or children involved in the worst forms of child labor.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues Project	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO that aims to build the capacity of the national government and develop strategic policies to address the elimination of child labor and forced labor in Timor-Leste. (43) For additional information about USDOL's work, please visit our website.
Child Labor Education and Outreach Program†	The SEPFOPE and the CNTI education and awareness-raising program, located in five primary schools in Dili that target children identified as at risk for involvement in child labor. (34) In 2017, reached 108 children and 10 households. (44)
Services for Street Children†	Government-funded safe house and support services for street children provided by the Youth Communication Forum. In 2016, assisted 36 children involved in child labor, primarily in the informal sector, including street vending. (33)
Mother's Purse ( Bolsa da Mãe )†	Ministry of Social Solidarity program that provides an annual cash subsidy of $60 to $180 to poor families with a female head of household. Aims to improve the well-being of children by conditioning the subsidy on children's school attendance and regular medical visits. (32; 34; 45) In 2017, served 61,749 families. (44)

† Program is funded by the Government of Timor-Leste.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (6; 46; 32; 29; 47; 48; 41; 49)

Although the government has implemented programs to address child labor, research found no evidence that it has carried out programs to assist children working in agriculture or children involved in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Timor-Leste (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that children receive adequate training in the type of work being done and that the health, safety, and morals of the child are protected in accordance with international standards when the minimum age for hazardous work is 17.	2017
	Ensure that the List of Hazardous Occupations and Activities Prohibited for Children and the Law to Prevent and Fight Against Human Trafficking are harmonized with the Labor Code and Penal Code.	2017
	Ensure that the law protects children under age 17 from engagement in all the worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation, and involvement in illicit activities.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish criminal and law enforcement information, including the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites, training of investigators responsible for enforcing laws on the worst forms of child labor, and the number of criminal violations found for the worst forms of child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Provide the resources and training needed to enforce laws related to child labor, including the workforce in rural areas.	2016 – 2017
	Build enforcement capacity to address child labor protections for children who work in the informal sector, including family farms and in domestic work.	2017
	Ensure that the PNTL takes steps to investigate children involved in commercial sexual exploitation.	2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors receive training on new laws related to child labor.	2015 – 2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into existing policies.	2014 – 2017
	Adopt the National Action Plan Against Child Labor.	2016 – 2017
	Take steps to fully implement the National Action Plan Against Human Trafficking, the Timor-Leste Project for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor, and the Timor-Leste Strategic Development Plan.	2017
Social Programs	Create social programs targeting working children, particularly in agriculture, and children engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation.	2017

In 2017, Togo made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The number of labor inspectors increased significantly for the fourth year in a row, and six additional inspectors are awaiting their appointment. The government also launched a new Safety Nets and Basic Services Project funded by the World Bank, provided cash transfers to 11,330 households through its National Fund for Inclusive Finance, and provided 42,317 children with school lunches. However, children in Togo engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. The government has not devoted sufficient resources to combat child labor, and labor inspectors are not authorized to assess penalties. In addition, Togo's social programs to combat the worst forms of child labor do not match the scope of the problem and rely largely on nongovernmental and international organizations for implementation.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Togo engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in domestic work. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6; 7; 8; 9; 10) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Togo.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	29.6
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	86.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	29.5
Primary Completion Rate (%)		82.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (11)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Demographic and Health Survey, 2013–2014. (12)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Working in agriculture (13; 8; 14; 15)
Industry	Working in quarries and sand mines, including excavating, crushing rocks, sifting gravel, and carrying heavy loads† (16; 17; 18; 19; 15; 20; 21)
	Working in carpentry† and tailoring (22)
	Construction (16; 13; 23)
Services	Domestic work† (24; 17; 13; 4; 19; 25; 8; 14; 15; 20)
	Carrying heavy loads,† and small-scale vending in markets
	Work as motorcycle repairmen (16; 15; 20)
	Garbage scavenging (16; 15)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Forced begging (15; 21)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (16; 13; 19; 26; 27; 15; 21)
	Forced labor in agriculture, including coffee, cocoa, and cotton; domestic work; quarries; and markets, including carrying heavy loads; each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (4; 28; 27; 21)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Togo is a source and transit country for victims of human trafficking to neighboring countries, primarily for domestic work, work in agriculture, and commercial sexual exploitation. (13; 4; 25; 29; 30) Parents may be complicit in child trafficking as a result of confiage, which involves sending a child to a relative or friend to attend school in a larger town or city, a practice that may place children at risk of exploitation as a result of internal human trafficking. (3; 5; 10; 30; 4)

Although education is free and compulsory by law, parents are responsible for paying associated fees and buying uniforms and school supplies, which makes education prohibitive for many families. (31; 32; 33; 34) Research found that long distances to schools, as well as physical and sexual abuse in schools, also posed barriers to education for some children. (10; 32; 35; 36; 34; 37) During the reporting period, some children may have been kept home from school or sent to stay with relatives in other towns to avoid ongoing political protests in the cities. (38)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Togo has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government's laws and regulations are in line with relevant international standards (Table 4).

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 150 of the Labor Code; Article 262 of the Children's Code; Article 881.1a of the Penal Code (39; 40; 41)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Civil Service, Labor, and Administrative Reform (MOL) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Civil Service, Labor, and Administrative Reform (MOL)	Enforce all labor laws, including child labor laws. (13; 31) Through its Unit to Combat Child Labor (CELTE), withdraw children from child labor situations, raise awareness, and collect data. (46) Focal points within the inspectorate are located in each of the five regions to monitor child labor issues and raise awareness at the local level. (47)
Ministry of Justice and Government Relations	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor, and prosecute violations. (23)
Ministry of Social Action, Promotion of Women and Literacy (MASPFA), Director General for the Protection of Children	Raise awareness of child labor issues, enforce laws against the worst forms of child labor, provide technical assistance, and lead government efforts to combat human trafficking. (13; 48; 20) Operate the Allo 1011 hotline for reporting child abuse, including child trafficking. (13; 48; 49; 50; 27; 20) In 2017, piloted foster family program through an NGO with 27 initial families. (20)
Ministry of Security's Division of Drugs, Morals, and Pimping	Investigate crimes involving child victims, including child trafficking. In all five regions of Togo, operate as part of the National Police. (51)

In 2017, the National Domestic Workers' Trade Union submitted a set of specifications to the government, including advocating better protections for domestic workers, issuance of birth certificates for all domestic workers, and ratification of ILO C. 189, Domestic Workers Convention. (46)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Togo took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of MOL that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including conducting inspections in all relevant sectors.

* The government does not publish this information.

The number of labor inspectors has increased significantly for the fourth year in a row, and six additional inspectors are awaiting their appointment. Unlike previous years, MOL had adequate resources and vehicles to conduct site visits outside the main cities. (23) However, MOL reported that the current number of labor inspectors is still insufficient to pursue cases of child labor, which primarily occurs in the informal sector. (31; 23) In addition, the Labor Code makes labor inspectors responsible for reconciliation and arbitration in collective disputes, which may detract from their primary duties of conducting inspections and enforcing the Labor Code. (39; 53)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Togo took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators and prosecution.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (54)	Yes (54)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	N/A
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (52)	No (23)
Number of Investigations	Unknown* (52)	Unknown* (23)
Number of Violations Found	50 (55)	3 (23)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (52)	Unknown* (23)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (52)	Unknown* (23)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (52)	Yes (23)

* The government does not publish this information.

Investigators lacked financial and physical resources to adequately enforce the law, and the Ministry of Justice was unable to offer refresher courses on child trafficking to magistrates, judges, and police inspectors during the reporting period due to a lack of funding. (7; 56) Research also indicates that poor record keeping, a shortage of physical copies of existing child labor laws throughout the country, and high turnover results in gaps of knowledge and enforcement capacity. (57; 58; 56) Cases involving child trafficking may be settled outside of court due to difficulties gathering evidence, and judges may be reluctant to impose fines or prison sentences for parents due to a fear of perpetuating the poverty that originally led them to violate child trafficking laws. (27; 21)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee for the Prohibition and Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (CDN)	Coordinate and oversee all government efforts to combat child labor, including the approval of all action plans for the abolition of child labor. (13; 15) Comprises representatives from 17 ministries and NGOs; MOL's CELTE serves as the permanent secretariat. (15)
MASPFA's Anti-Trafficking in Persons Cell (CNARSEVT)	Coordinate government efforts to combat human trafficking. (13; 30; 27) (13; 30; 27) Compile statistics on human trafficking and serve as the point of contact for repatriated child victims. (27) Comprises representatives from NGOs and six ministries, including MOL and MASPFA. (15)
Local Vigilance Committees	Raise awareness at the community level, identify child victims or children at risk, track returnees, and share information on human trafficking trends and prevention efforts with MASPFA's Anti-Trafficking in Persons Cell. (13; 27; 59) Some local vigilance committees were active during the reporting period. (23)

All coordinating bodies were active during the reporting period. (15)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Employment Policy (2013–2017)	Aims to eliminate child labor, build the capacity of the Labor Inspectorate, and increase vocational training and apprenticeship opportunities in support of the Decent Work Program. (19; 60; 61) Includes a pilot cash transfer program for 8,000 vulnerable children. (60) The accompanying Strategic Plan on Youth Employment (PSNEJ) aims to reduce children's early entry into the labor force by retaining them in school and improving the employability of older youth and their access to funding. (19; 61; 62)
Strategy to Increase Growth and Promote Employment (SCAPE) (2013–2017)	Serves as the primary national anti-poverty plan, which includes components on child labor and education. (13; 63)
National Policy of Social Protection	MASPFA policy that aims to improve social safety nets, strengthen mechanisms to combat the exploitation of children, and promote systematic birth registration. (64)
Multilateral Agreements to Combat Child Trafficking	Quadripartite agreement among the governments of Benin, Gabon, Ghana, and Togo that works to prevent child trafficking along the countries' shared borders. Multilateral accords for West and Central Africa promote cooperation among regional states to combat child trafficking. (13; 34; 27; 46)

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (65)

A National Plan of Action Against Child Labor is undergoing technical validation, but has yet to be adopted. (34) The Ministry of Social Action, Promotion of Women and Literacy's Anti-Trafficking in Persons Cell (CNARSEVT) intends to draft a new national action plan to combat human trafficking following the creation of the 2017 ECOWAS Trafficking in Persons Action Plan. (59) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement any policy during the reporting period, and only policy documents specific to labor and social protection include indicators related to child labor. (19) The government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Sector Plan (2010–2020). (66) At the IV Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor, the government pledged to incorporate child labor issues into its National Development Plan, which is currently being drafted. (67)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
World Bank-Funded Programs	Projects that combat child labor by improving social safety nets for vulnerable families and increasing access to education. Includes Togo Community Development and Safety Nets Project (2012–2017), a $26.1 million project that delivered 11,670,982 school meals and constructed 370 primary school classrooms in the Kara and Savanes regions; Cash Transfer Program for Vulnerable Children in Northern Togo (2013–2017),† a $2.55 million project implemented by MASPFA that provided conditional cash transfers to 17,655 households in northern Togo; Education and Institutional Strengthening Project 2 (2015–2018), a $27.8 million project that aims to revise course textbooks for grades 1 and 2, provide teacher training, identify recipients of school grants, and select 80 sites for promoting girls' education; and the Safety Nets and Basic Services Project (2017–2020),* a $29 million project implemented by MASPFA and the Ministry of Grassroots Development that aims to provide social safety nets to poor communities. (68; 69; 70; 71; 72; 73; 20) By the end of 2017, the Education and Institutional Strengthening Project 2 distributed 599,231 textbooks, provided 1,650 school grants, and trained 14,549 teachers. (74)
Plan International-Funded Projects	Projects that aim to support youth development, including Monitoring Children's Rights (2015–2018), a $393,000 Plan Sweden-funded, 3-year MASPFA project in support of SCAPE that aims to strengthen the institutional capacity of these organizations to better protect children in Benin, Burkina Faso, and Togo; and Gender-Sensitive and Violence-Free Education, a 3.5-year project co-funded by the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency that aims to reduce violence in schools by eliminating corporal punishment and promoting children's rights in the Central and Plateau regions. (36; 75; 76; 77)
Shelters for Vulnerable Children†	MASPFA-funded center that provides temporary shelter and services for victims, including those referred by the Allo 1011 hotline. (31; 48; 50; 27; 20) Victims may be transferred to NGO-run shelters for longer-term support. (50; 27; 20)
National Fund for Inclusive Finance†	Government program administered by the State Secretariat to the Presidency of the Republic that provides loans of up to $60 to women in rural areas of Northern Togo, aiming to reduce the demand for income provided by engaging in child labor. (78; 23) In 2017, provided cash transfers to 11,330 households in 93 villages. (79; 23)
National Plan for Registering Births in Togo (2013–2017)†	MASPFA, MOJ, and Ministry of Territorial Administration plan that aims to increase documentation of births by simplifying the process, educating families on the importance of birth registration, and increasing accessibility to birth registration in rural areas. (54; 80) In 2017, conducted outreach activities and worked with UNICEF and NGOs to deliver birth certificates in Kara and Savannes. (46; 20)
School Feeding Program†	Provides school lunches in rural areas to promote school enrollment, particularly for girls. (34; 20; 37) In 2017, provided food to 42,317 children at 143 schools. (79; 23)
Forum of Traditional and Religious Chiefs of Togo on the Harmful Social and Cultural Practices That Affect Children†	MASPFA-funded program that aims to eliminate traditional practices that may contribute to child trafficking by educating local leaders on child labor issues and the importance of education. (23)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Togo.

Social programs focus on poverty alleviation and promoting education rather than targeting specific sectors of child labor, such as domestic work, and the government relies heavily on NGOs and international organizations for implementation. (23; 59) A shortage of funds also hinders program implementation. (59) As a result, the scope of existing programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, and many of these interventions may not be sustainable over the long term.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Togo (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Publish information about the amount of funding the labor inspectorate receives, the number of inspections conducted at worksites, number of routine inspections targeted and data related to criminal law enforcement, including the number of investigations conducted, prosecutions initiated, and convictions made.	2010 – 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by authorizing the inspectorate to assess penalties.	2014 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Ensure that both labor inspectors and criminal investigators receive refresher courses, and ensure that all regional offices have copies of relevant laws related to child labor.	2009 – 2017
	Enforce penalties for labor violations according to the law.	2014 – 2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors and ensure that they are able to carry out their primary duties of inspection and monitoring of labor laws throughout the country, including in the informal sector.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that criminal investigators have sufficient financial and physical resources to effectively enforce criminal laws against child labor.	2017
Government Policies	Ensure that policies are implemented as intended and that child labor indicators are included in all relevant policies.	2016 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Sector Plan.	2013 – 2017
Social Programs	Increase access to education by eliminating school-related fees; ensuring that schools are free from sexual and physical violence; and increasing the number of schools, especially in rural areas.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that social protection programs to combat child labor receive adequate funding, are sufficient to address the scope of the problem in all relevant sectors, and promote the long-term sustainability of project initiatives.	2009 – 2017

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Tonga made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Children in Tonga perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and fishing. Gaps in the legal framework remain; the country has no laws specifying a minimum age for work or defining hazardous forms of work for children under age 18, leaving children unprotected from labor exploitation. In addition, the government has not established a policy or program to address child labor, including its worst forms.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tonga perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and fishing. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tonga. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tonga has ratified 1 key international convention concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tonga's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

* No conscription (7)

The Parliament has yet to pass the Employment Relations Bill, which would establish a minimum age for non-hazardous and hazardous work and would prohibit the categorical worst forms of child labor. In addition, the Parliament has not determined the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (9; 10; 1)

The Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organised Crime Act is insufficient to meet the international standard for the prohibition of child trafficking because it does not specifically prohibit trafficking children domestically, nor does it criminally prohibit forced labor, debt bondage, and slavery, unless they involve transnational human trafficking. (4; 5)

The Criminal Offences Act prohibits the procurement of women and girls under age 21 for prostitution but does not criminalize the procurement of boys for prostitution. (11) In addition, the Act does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, because the use of children under age 14 in the production of pornography is not criminally prohibited. The Act also does not specifically prohibit using children in illicit activities, particularly in the production and trafficking of drugs. (6; 11; 12) In addition, the Defence Services Act does not prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (7)

Although it does not appear that there are any laws that provide free basic education, there is a policy that sufficiently provides for free basic education to all children between the ages of 6 and 14. (13)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Commerce, Consumer, Innovation, Trade and Labour that may hinder adequate enforcement of their labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Commerce, Consumer, Innovation, Trade and Labour	Enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor and the worst forms of child labor, through business license inspectors and a chief labor inspector. The position of Chief Labor Inspector is currently vacant. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Tonga took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Commerce, Consumer, Innovation, Trade and Labour that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level.

Inadequate resources, including a lack of funding to hire and train the labor inspectors needed to target sectors in which child labor is present, hamper the government's capacity to enforce child labor laws in Tonga. (15; 1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Tonga took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government funded or participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tonga (Table 8).

Table 8. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify ILO C. 138, Minimum Age, ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor, UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict, UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography, and the Palermo Protocol	2017

In 2017, Tunisia made a significant advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the Law on Specific Measures for the Consecration of the Obligation of Access to Initial Vocational Training that obligates children who have dropped out of school to attend vocational training and imposes monetary penalties on their non-cooperative guardians. As part of its Child Labor National Action Plan, the government conducted a national child labor survey and released preliminary results, which indicated that nearly 8 percent of all children engaged in child labor, roughly 63 percent of whom were engaged in hazardous work. Regarding enforcement, trainings were held for juvenile and family court judges with five sessions to train judges on the implementation of the 2016 Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons. Also, the government took steps to increase the budget of the Labor Inspectorate over the previous year by 37 percent. However, children in Tunisia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and street work. The number of children dropping out of school, which may make them more vulnerable to child labor, remains high. In addition, the law's minimum age protections do not apply to children who are engaged in work in the informal sector.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tunisia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in forced labor in domestic work, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture and street work. (1; 2; 3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tunisia.

SIGNIFICANT ADVANCEMENT

Children are engaged in child labor in the informal sector, predominantly in street work, including vending and garbage scavenging. (20; 15) Child migrants from sub-Saharan countries and those fleeing conflict in Libya and Syria, as well as young girls from Tunisia's northwest region, are particularly vulnerable to human trafficking. (16; 19) Preliminary results from the National Child Labor Survey conducted by the government indicated that 7.9 percent of all children are engaged in child labor, with 63.2 percent of whom involved in hazardous work. The northwest region—consisting of the governorates of Béja, Jendouba, Kef, and Siliana—noted the highest incidence of child labor at 27.7 percent. (12) The government has not yet made the full dataset from this survey publicly available, or allowed other government agencies to access it, leaving the nature and causes of children's involvement in specific forms of child labor unknown.

Students face barriers to education, especially in rural areas, due to inadequate transportation, household poverty, and religious customs. (6; 8; 14; 21; 10) It is estimated that each year approximately 100,000 students, including a disproportionate number of girls, drop out, many as a result of physical violence in schools. (9; 22; 23; 10)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tunisia has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tunisia's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the lack of comprehensive hazardous work prohibitions for children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation

State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 2 of the National Service Law (31)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 2(5) of the Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons; Articles 3 and 18 of the Child Protection Code (28; 29)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Section 1 of the Law on Education (32)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 38 of the Constitution (33)

In 2017, Tunisia passed the Law on Specific Measures for the Consecration of the Obligation of Access to Initial Vocational Training that obligates children who have dropped out of school to attend vocational training with corresponding penalties for non-cooperative guardians of the child. Remedial courses are offered to those under age 15 to meet the ninth grade requirement to attend vocational training. (10; 34; 11; 35)

The Elimination of Violence Against Women law amended sections of the Penal Code to increase penalties for violence against female children. (36) Also, in 2017, Tunisia became the first non-european country to sign the Council of Europe's Lanzarote Convention on the protection of children against exploitation and sexual abuse. (37; 11; 19) The types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not cover street work, an activity in which there is evidence of children working in an unhealthy environment. Further, the government acknowledges, as evident from the high rates of recidivism, that the fines and penalties for child labor law violations are not dissuasive. (38)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Social Affairs (MSA) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs (MSA)	Conduct labor inspections and assess fines and penalties for infractions. (8; 24; 39) Maintain a database of human trafficking victims and work with the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) to ensure that victims of human trafficking are not prosecuted for trafficking crimes. (40) Collaborate with the Ministry of Education (MOE) and the Ministry of Health (MOH) to identify and provide support to children vulnerable to child labor. (8; 20; 17; 41; 10)
Ministry of Women, Family, and Childhood (MWFC)	Through its Delegates for the Protection of Children, gather evidence and conduct investigations on child welfare cases, conduct needs assessments and intervention plans, and act as judicial police in cases of imminent danger to children. (41; 29; 10)
Ministry of the Interior (MOI)	Investigate reports of child labor as a criminal violation, including complaints that are outside of the Labor Inspectorate's mandate and complaints in the informal sector. (15) Through its Child Protection Service in the National Police, address the commercial sexual exploitation of children and coordinate with the MSA and the MWFC regarding violations. (8; 42; 10) Through its Judicial Police, coordinate with the MSA to refer cases of at-risk youth. (8; 41; 38; 43)
Ministry of Justice (MOJ)	Coordinate anti-trafficking efforts and the criminal enforcement of child labor laws. (17)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Tunisia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MSA that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the lack of ability to enforce the minimum age protections for children on inhabited premises, such as private homes, without permission of the property owner or a court order.

Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (8)	Yes (11)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (8)	Yes (11)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (8)	Yes (11)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (8)	Yes (11; 35)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (38; 44)	Yes (11)

In 2017, the government increased the budget of the Labor Inspectorate by 37 percent over the previous year. (11) However, the government also noted that the budget for fuel and transportation was inadequate to carry out inspections, especially in remote areas of the country. (45; 11)

Mechanisms do not exist to enforce the minimum age protections for children on inhabited premises, such as private homes, without permission of the property owner or a court order. (8; 24; 10)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Tunisia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of publication of the number of investigations conducted, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions of criminal law enforcement efforts related to child labor.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	No (41)	Yes (11)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Yes (8)	Yes (11)
Refresher Courses Provided	No (41)	Yes (11)
Number of Investigations	292 (44)	13 (46)
Number of Violations Found	292 (44)	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	5 (44)	4 (46)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (8)	1 (46)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (8; 38)	Yes (11)

In 2017, the IOM, in partnership with the government, conducted trainings for civil society and professionals on human trafficking. (2) Trainings were held for juvenile and family court judges, with five specific sessions focused on the implementation of the 2016 Law on the Prevention and the Fight Against the Trafficking of Persons. (11)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee for the Implementation of the Child Labor National Action Plan (PAN-TN)	Coordinate efforts to combat child labor. Led by MSA, includes membership of five other ministries and two unions, with support from ILO. (15; 47; 48; 49)
National Commission on Trafficking in Persons	Coordinate anti-human trafficking efforts and raise awareness of human trafficking issues. Includes membership of 12 ministries, 2 members of civil society, 1 media representative, and 1 member of the National Commission of Human Rights. (17; 41; 50; 51) In 2017, the MOJ appointed an individual from the Judges Union to lead the commission as president and organized a workshop to gain feedback from civil society and international organizations on the nascent anti-trafficking strategy still in draft. (3; 11; 35; 19)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Child Labor National Action Plan (PAN-TN) (2015–2020)	Aims to raise awareness, build the capacity of stakeholders, and encourage action from NGOs and the public. (15; 42; 47) In 2017, the plan continued implementing social programs such as the National Child Labor Survey as part of its objective to increase the knowledge base about child labor. (11; 19)
National Action Plan to Combat Trafficking in Persons (2015–2017)	Aims to build the capacity of civil society to address human trafficking; boost public awareness of human trafficking; and train police, customs, and penitentiary officials to identify victims of human trafficking. (40; 52) In 2017, conducted awareness-raising activities. (35)
UNICEF Country Program Document (2015–2019)	Aims to decrease dropout rates and improve education quality and access to early education, teach life skills to adolescents, and improve access to information to protect children against violence and economic exploitation. (53; 54) In 2017, supported regional and national consultations on “Investing in Children” through policy dialogue and advocacy with the government and partners to promote child-sensitive social protection mechanisms and secure government commitments to model a child allowance scheme. (35)

During the reporting period, the National Commission on Trafficking in Persons continued work on a national strategy against human trafficking in Tunisia, but the strategy has not yet been finalized. (41; 55; 19)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	USDOL projects in Tunisia aim to conduct research on child labor and strengthen Tunisia’s ability to implement its Child Labor National Action Plan, a multi-stakeholder effort involving government, business, and civil society. These projects include PROTECTE (2016–2020),* $3 million project implemented by the ILO; and Global Research on Child Labor Measurement and Policy Development (MAP), $7 million project implemented in at least 10 countries by the ILO. (8; 15; 56; 57; 58) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Support Efforts to Combat Human Trafficking (2014–2017)	USDOS-funded project implemented by the IOM to carry out anti-human trafficking activities in collaboration with the MOJ, MOI, MSA, and MWFC. Includes three objectives: (a) build the capacity of relevant institutions and agencies to identify and assist victims of trafficking based on their individual needs, (b) strengthen cross-sector cooperation and the sharing of information through the implementation of a national referral mechanism, and (c) conduct an awareness-raising campaign to keep children in school and discourage illegal migration that could lead to human trafficking. (42) In 2017, the program continued to support capacity-building efforts related to the recent anti-trafficking law with the training of 332 public officers and civil society organizations, the development and dissemination of a manual on the anti-trafficking law, and the production of awareness-raising materials on the law. (35)

Program	Description
Shelters and Services for Victims of Human Trafficking†	The Government of Tunisia operates shelters to serve victims of human trafficking, particularly children. Provides services that include lodging, food, clothing, psychological services, legal aid through a network of pro bono lawyers, and free medical care in collaboration with the MOH. Places unaccompanied children and adults in dedicated centers to receive schooling. (59; 40; 43; 60; 61) In 2017, the shelters continued to operate and provide both accommodation and medical assistance during the reporting period. (35)
Centers to Provide Aid to Victims of Child Labor†	The government maintains 23 youth centers and 67 child protection institutions that can serve up to 6,000 children engaged in child labor or vulnerable to child labor. (42; 62) In 2017, these centers provided assistance to children through programs in educational and vocational rehabilitation, and programs providing social support for homeless children who are exposed to all forms of danger, including economic exploitation, sexual exploitation, drug use, violence, and exploitation by gangs and terrorist networks. (15; 35)
Programs to Reduce School Dropout Rates†	MOE-funded School Dropout Prevention Program maintains about 2,300 social protection units in schools and mobile units in rural areas to monitor students and prevent school dropout. In 2017, no specific activities to reduce school dropout rates were reported. (62; 35)

† Program is funded by the Government of Tunisia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (41; 59; 63; 64)

Although Tunisia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. (15)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tunisia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children are comprehensive.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Provide adequate resources for the Labor Inspectorate to conduct additional inspections, particularly in remote areas.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that mechanisms exist to enforce the minimum age protections for children on inhabited premises, such as private homes, without permission of the property owner or a court order.	2014 – 2017
	Collect and publish information on the number of child labor violations found related to the criminal enforcement of child labor laws.	2013 – 2017
	Increase penalties for those who employ children in child labor.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Address barriers to education, especially for girls in rural areas, such as lack of reliable transportation, household poverty, physical violence, and religious custom.	2015 – 2017
	Provide sufficient resources to expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem.	2015 – 2017
	Publish the full results of the National Child Labor Survey and make the microdata publicly available so that they can be used to inform programming and policies.	2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Turkey made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted a new five-year national action plan to combat child labor and created new bodies to coordinate government policy on child labor and oversee implementation of the new action plan. In coordination with international partners, the government continued to train labor inspectors on child labor and implement projects that provided assistance to more than 1,000 children working in seasonal agriculture. The Prime Ministry introduced a new circular instructing provincial governments to improve provision of educational and other services to the children of seasonal agricultural workers. However, children in Turkey perform dangerous tasks in seasonal agricultural work and in small and medium manufacturing enterprises. Gaps in the labor law and uneven enforcement resulted in insufficient protection of children employed by agricultural enterprises with fewer than 50 workers. Although the government made meaningful efforts in relevant areas during the reporting period, provisions related to the minimum age for work do not meet international standards. In addition, the government continued to make important progress in expanding access to education and other services for several hundred thousand Syrian refugee children, although high poverty rates and limited work opportunities for adult refugees left some refugee children vulnerable to exploitation in the worst forms of child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Turkey perform dangerous tasks in seasonal agriculture and in small and medium manufacturing enterprises. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Turkey.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	6 to 14	2.6 (320,254)
Attending School (%)	6 to 14	92.4
Combining Work and School (%)	6 to 14	1.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		92.5

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (6)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Child Labor Survey, 2006. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Production of cotton, hazelnuts, citrus fruits, sugar beets, cumin, peanuts, pulses, apricots, melons, and cherries (3; 4; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 5; 1; 2)
Industry	Production of furniture, bricks, shoes, leather goods, and textiles (3; 12; 13; 14; 15; 16) (17; 18; 19; 20; 21; 22)
	Construction (2; 23)
	Auto repair† (3; 24)
	Mining† (1; 25)
Services	Street work, including vending small items, carrying bundles in market areas, cleaning car windshields, collecting recyclable materials, and begging (1; 3; 26; 12; 13; 14; 15; 27) (24; 28; 29; 30)
	Working in restaurants and small shops (13; 12)

	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (2; 30)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a) – (c) of ILO C. 182.

Due to the seasonal nature of agricultural work throughout the country, children living in rural areas often migrate with their families and engage in agricultural work for up to seven months of the year. Significant numbers of these children have limited access to health care and education as a result of migration. (34; 35; 36; 4; 5; 24; 37; 2) Syrian refugee families working in agriculture tended to receive lower pay and live in worse conditions than Turkish workers, increasing the vulnerability of both Syrian adults and children to potential exploitation. (4; 12; 5; 2)

There were over 3.5 million refugees living in Turkey at the end of 2017. (38) Poverty and a lack of meaningful employment opportunities for adults contributed to an increase in child labor among refugee children. (5; 28; 29; 2) Syrian refugee children engaged in child labor in agriculture, street begging, the service sector, and small and medium manufacturing enterprises. (2; 3) Children in the manufacturing sector often worked long hours up to six days per week and earned wages as little as half of what an employer would pay an adult. (3; 15; 16; 19; 20; 21; 22; 2) Monitoring and collecting data on child labor in refugee communities remained a challenge. (2)

In 2017, the government alleged that the Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK), a U.S.-designated terrorist organization, recruited and forcibly abducted children for conscription. Authoritative data on PKK youth recruitment was not available. (2)

Syrian refugee children faced financial barriers to receiving education, including the informal tuition or other fees charged for Syrian children as well as the cost of transportation. (3; 13; 20; 2) Up to one-third of Syrian children living in Turkey had an inconsistency with their registration documents, such as registration in a province other than the one they reside in. School administrators sometimes refuse admission to these children, despite Ministry of National Education instructions that schools should accept these children while registration issues are resolved. (2) In addition, many Syrian children who were able to register for school struggled to integrate into Turkish schools due to the language barrier and lack of access to programs in which they could learn Turkish as a second language. (3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Turkey has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Turkey's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including with regard to the application of the minimum age for work to all children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

‡ Age calculated based on available information (43; 44)

Despite steps to institute additional protections for underage children engaged in agricultural work, gaps in the legal framework protecting children from hazardous child labor persisted. The National Program to Combat Child Labor identifies seasonal migratory agricultural work and work in small and medium industrial enterprises as worst forms of child labor. (2) However, the Regulation on the Principles and Procedures Governing the Employment of Children and Young Workers allows children to do fruit and vegetable picking as light work, and does not prohibit seasonal migratory agriculture. The regulation also allows children age 16 and older to participate in many manufacturing tasks, including manufacturing of clothing despite work in industrial enterprises being included as a worst form of child labor. (40) This inconsistency between national law and policy on child labor created confusion regarding the minimum age for work in the agriculture and manufacturing sectors, as well as the jobs within these sectors that are legally prohibited for children. (47; 48)

In addition, although Turkey has a list of activities in which light work may be permitted in the Regulation on the Principles and Procedures Governing the Employment of Children and Young Workers, it does not specify the conditions in which light work may be undertaken or limit the number of hours for light work. (39)

In addition, Article 4 of Turkey's Labor Law continued to exclude from its coverage agricultural enterprises employing fewer than 50 workers, which are the workplaces most likely to employ children, including in seasonal migratory work. (39) This gap in the law leaves children and other workers in agricultural enterprises with fewer than 50 workers vulnerable to exploitative conditions without legal protection. (11; 24)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Services that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Labor Inspection Board Presidency within the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MOLSS)	Implement laws on child labor and hazardous child labor, including regulating work environments and conditions for children. Monitor the implementation of the Labor Law provisions in workplaces under its jurisdiction. (2) Receive complaints about labor law violations, including child labor, through a hotline. (2)
Mentoring and Inspection Presidency within MOLSS	Monitor compliance with laws related to social security of all workers, including child workers. Conduct joint inspections with the Labor Inspection Board Presidency to find children under legal working age who have dropped out of school and refer them to education services. (1)
Turkish National Police and Gendarmerie General Command ( Jandarma )	Enforce the Penal Code, including criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (1; 49) Increase efforts to identify and prevent trafficking of refugees through the Anti-Migrant Smuggling and Trafficking Bureau within the National Police. (30) The Gendarmerie General Command ( Jandarma ) enforces laws in rural areas that are outside of the jurisdiction of National Police. (12; 49)
Department for Protection of Victims of Human Trafficking within the Directorate General for Migration Management (DGMM)	Coordinate the identification of human trafficking victims, including victims of child trafficking. (33) Manage a hotline providing 24-hour, toll-free support in multiple languages for human trafficking victims. (50)
Ministry of Justice	Prosecute cases of child labor and child exploitation. (1)
Ministry of Family and Social Policy (MFSP)	Coordinate and provide services to children living or working on the street through the Directorate General of Child Services. Operate a hotline to receive complaints about child rights violations, including child labor. (1)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Turkey took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human resource allocation (Table 6).

† Data are from January 1, 2016, to November 30, 2016.

Labor inspectors spend the first three years of their careers as assistant inspectors. They receive on-the-job training that includes modules to raise their awareness of child labor and of the legal provisions and enforcement mechanisms that exist to address it, as well as annual continuing education on new laws. (46; 2) In 2017, the number of labor inspectors was likely insufficient for the size of Turkey's workforce, which includes over 30 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in industrializing economies, Turkey would employ about 1,960 labor inspectors. (51; 52; 53) The number of inspections reported by the government decreased in 2017, however limited government statistics and a change in the methodology by which the labor inspectorate counted discrete site visits, rendered it difficult to assess trends regarding the overall number of worksites inspected in 2017 relative to 2016. (54)

In 2017, employers who illegally employed children were subject to administrative fines of approximately $430. Fine amounts are adjusted annually and have undergone small increases in recent years, but remain insufficient to deter violations. (2)

Although reciprocal referral mechanisms remain underutilized, research found that children discovered to be working illegally during the course of inspections were generally referred for social services. (1; 46) In 2017, UNICEF provided training on child labor to 400 labor inspectors with the aim of improving linkages between labor inspectors and social services. (2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Turkey took actions to combat the worst forms of child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of criminal law enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate enforcement.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

During the reporting period, the IOM provided training on preventing trafficking and managing irregular migration flows to 421 government staff responsible for migration-related criminal law enforcement and case management. (30) The Director General for Migration Management (DGMM) increased staff both at headquarters and its provincial offices, increasing capacity to identify human trafficking victims. Compared with the previous year, the government reported a 159 percent increase in potential victims interviewed and a 67 percent increase in victims identified during the reporting period. (30) Although the government continued to improve its efforts to identify victims of trafficking, identification of child trafficking victims remained low. (29; 55)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Child Labor Branch of the Employment Policies Directorate within MOLSS	Coordinate all child labor programs and efforts of the Ministry of National Education, the Child Services Directorate General in MFSP, the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry of Justice, and NGOs. (1)
Monitoring and Evaluation Board for Child Labor*	Plan and monitor implementation of the National Program to Combat Child Labor, including through biannual meetings. Held inaugural meeting in December 2017. (2)
The Child Services Directorate General Within MFSP	Coordinate services for children living and working on the streets. (1)

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
DGMM	Coordinate the implementation of migration law, including laws related to irregular migration, refugees, and human trafficking. (56; 57) In 2017, the DGMM actively worked to increase the government's enforcement capacity. (30)
Anti-Trafficking Coordination Commission	Coordinate policy on human trafficking. This commission was founded to replace the National Task Force on Combatting Human Trafficking and met in March 2017. (30)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

In April 2017, the Prime Ministry issued the Circular on Seasonal Agricultural Workers No. 2017/6, developed in cooperation with the ILO. (58) The Circular aims to address the most critical issues facing seasonal agricultural workers, particularly in the hazelnut harvesting industry, and their families by directing provincial governments to develop annual action plans to mitigate problems experienced by seasonal agricultural workers and provide services to these workers and their families. (2; 59) Services required include providing housing and health screening for workers and their families, and providing education and monitoring of school attendance for children. The Circular also established a Monitoring and Evaluation Board to monitor implementation of these directives. (2)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Program to Combat Child Labor (2017–2023)†	Identifies seasonal migratory agriculture, street work, and work in small and medium industrial enterprises as priority sectors for government efforts to combat child labor. Outlines a series of nationwide interventions aimed at eliminating child labor. (2)
National Child Rights Strategic Document and Action Plan (2013–2017)	Sets out the framework and actions for promoting services for children in fields such as health care and education. (60) Includes a section addressing child labor issues. (61; 46)
Second National Action Plan on Combating Human Trafficking	Outlines Turkey's strategy for the prevention of human trafficking. Identifies children as an exceptionally vulnerable group and calls for special security precautions for children at shelters for victims, as well as increased international cooperation on preventing child trafficking. (50; 62)
National Employment Strategy (2014–2023)	Aims to identify and solve labor market issues, with the goal of job creation and sustained economic growth. Includes the prevention of child labor, especially hazardous work in agriculture, as a focus of the plan, and advocates for increased access to education and strengthened social services as a means of preventing child labor. (63) In 2017, the government adopted action plans for 2017 to 2019. Initiatives in the new action plans include requiring Provincial Employment and Occupational Education Boards to evaluate progress in combatting child labor locally and organizing activities to raise awareness about child labor in connection with the World Day Against Child Labor. (2)
Tenth Development Plan (2014–2018)	Identifies Turkey's strategy and goals for economic development. Includes the priorities of alleviating child poverty and increasing equal opportunity in education. (64) Includes provisions for the prevention of the worst forms of child labor. (46)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the Government of Turkey funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including with regard to adequate funding of programs to address the full scope of the problem in seasonal agriculture and manufacturing.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Conditional Education and Health Care Assistance Program†	Government program that aims to reduce poverty through cash transfers. (65) Provides milk to all primary school children and distributes books free of charge. (66) In 2017, the program reached nearly 190,000 children. (2)

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Program	Description
Improving Social Integration and Employability of Disadvantaged Persons†	$41.7 million project jointly funded by the EU and the Government of Turkey. Aims to promote an inclusive labor market with opportunities for disadvantaged persons, with a view to their sustainable integration into the labor force. (67; 68; 2) Also aims to combat all forms of discrimination in the labor market through service and grant components, including allocation of specific grant funds for projects targeting the Roma population. (12; 46; 67; 68) Includes the goal of combating child labor by supporting the entry of working children's parents into the labor market. (67; 68) In 2017, conducted a labor market tendency survey of families in which children were at risk of exploitation in child labor. (2)
Piloting the USDA Guidelines in the Hazelnut Supply Chain in Turkey	$4.87 million USDOL-funded, 31-month project implemented by the Fair Labor Association in partnership with the MOLSS, Nestle and two of its main hazelnut suppliers, Olam-Progida and Balsu, in Turkey. Pilots a sustainable program to implement the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Guidelines for Eliminating Child and Forced Labor in Agricultural Supply Chains in 1,000 hazelnut plantations in Duzce, Ordu, and Sakarya, with additional interventions implemented in the environs of Sanliurfa and Mardin, the sources of most seasonal agricultural labor in Turkey. (69) In 2017, the project established four Child Labor Monitoring and Referral Centers in Ordu, Duzce, and Sakarya provinces. (2) The project also worked with the Turkish Employment agency to develop a training module for labor contractors and facilitated dialogue between labor contractors and workers. (70)
Integrated Model for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor in Seasonal Agriculture in Hazelnut Harvesting (2012–2017)	ILO- and MOLSS-implemented project funded by the Association of Chocolate, Biscuit, and Confectionery Industries of Europe (CAOBISCO). Takes an integrated approach to preventing children from working by increasing access to education and improving living conditions of children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor in hazelnut harvesting, building capacity of local and national institutions to prevent child labor, and raising awareness among industry stakeholders and the public. (1) In 2017, the program provided services to 1,125 children, of whom 1,064 were removed from work. (2)
Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues Project	USDOL-funded project implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries. Aims to improve the evidence base on child labor through data collection and research in Turkey. (71) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Programs for Syrian Refugee Children†	Government initiatives, in partnership with various international organizations and foreign governments, designed to fund schools for Syrian refugee children and provide Syrian refugee child laborers with additional educational and social services. (12)
Programs focused on Human Trafficking*†	EU-funded projects, both co-managed by the DGMM, that aim to improve human trafficking victim identification and protection through training and capacity-building. (33) The DGMM also began implementing a new UK-funded project on preventing, identifying, and combating trafficking of Syrian refugees. (30) The government also funds shelters for human trafficking victims that provide social services and legal help to victims. (50; 46; 30)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Turkey.

Although the government implemented and collaborated on programs to address child labor in the hazelnut sector, it generally lacked significant, well-funded programs to address child labor in the other areas in which it was most prevalent, including other forms of migratory seasonal agriculture outside of the hazelnut sector, as well as in street work, and small and medium manufacturing enterprises.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Turkey (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure the law effectively prohibits work the government has identified as hazardous for children, such as work in small and medium manufacturing enterprises.	2017
	Ensure that the law's light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2017
	Ensure that the law provides explicit protections for children working in small agricultural enterprises.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2015 – 2017
Enforcement	Publish information on the Labor Inspectorate's funding and on the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected.	2015 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Increase the number of labor inspectors responsible for enforcing laws related to child labor to meet the ILO technical advice.	2014 – 2017
	Increase the penalties for violation of child labor laws to an amount sufficient to deter violations.	2014 – 2017
	Publish data relating to the criminal law enforcement of child labor laws including on the initial training for new employees, number of investigations, violations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that laws prohibiting the trafficking of children are effectively enforced, including by taking steps to identify additional victims of child trafficking.	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Continue to institute programs to increase access to education and health care for children working in migrant, seasonal agriculture, particularly outside the hazelnut sector.	2014 – 2017
	Continue to expand affordable education opportunities for Syrian refugee children, including by enforcing national directives affording Syrian children access to the Turkish school system at the local level.	2014 – 2017
	Continue to expand programs to address child labor in the sectors in which it is most prevalent, including migratory seasonal agriculture, street work, and small and medium manufacturing enterprises.	2015 – 2017

In 2017, Tuvalu made a minimal advancement in efforts to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The government passed the Labor and Employment Relations Bill, which reportedly includes provisions to bring national legislation into compliance with international standards on child labor. Despite new initiatives to address child labor, Tuvalu is receiving this assessment because it continued a practice that delayed advancement in eliminating the worst forms of child labor. In 2017, the government did not conduct worksite inspections at the national level, which impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. Tuvalu’s legal framework does not include a minimum age for hazardous work or prohibitions of forced labor or child trafficking, leaving children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, Tuvalu lacks data to determine the prevalence and nature of child labor in the country. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Tuvalu engage in child labor in fishing.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Tuvalu engage in child labor in fishing. (1; 2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Tuvalu. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		112.2

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2015, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3) Data were unavailable from Understanding Children’s Work Project’s analysis, 2018. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Fishing, activities unknown (1)

Tuvalu lacks data to determine the prevalence and nature of child labor in the country.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Tuvalu has ratified one key international convention concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography

Convention	Ratification
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Tuvalu’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for hazardous work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	14	Article 84 of the Employment Act (5)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No		Articles 85–87 of the Employment Act (5)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities for Children	No		Articles 85–87 of the Employment Act (5)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 75 of the Employment Act; Articles 244 and 249 of the Penal Code; Article 68 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Article 18 of the Constitution of Tuvalu (5; 6; 7; 8)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 68 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act; Articles 136 and 244 of the Penal Code (6; 8)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Articles 136–137, 139–143, and 166 of the Penal Code (6)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Articles 141–142 of the Penal Code (6)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A†
State Voluntary	N/A†
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Education Order (9)
Free Public Education	No

† No standing military (10)

Tuvalu has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children; existing provisions only apply to a male person under the age of 18 in the industry, mining, and fishing sector. (5) In 2017, the government enacted the Labor and Employment Relations Bill, which reportedly includes provisions on the minimum age for employment and prohibits the use of children in hazardous work. (2) However, the provisions reportedly do not specify the minimum age to engage in hazardous occupations or the types of work that are considered hazardous. (5)

Based on Tuvalu’s anti-forced labor provisions, it is a misdemeanor to unlawfully compel a person to perform labor against his or her will. (6) In addition, the laws do not explicitly prohibit debt bondage for children. (5)

Tuvalu’s laws prohibiting commercial sexual exploitation of children do not meet international standards, because the use, procurement, or offering of boys ages 15 through 17 is not criminally prohibited. (6; 11) In addition, the laws do not specifically criminalize the use, procurement, or offering of a child under 18 for pornography or pornographic performances, or for other illicit activities, such as the production and trafficking of drugs. (6; 12) Although child trafficking is prohibited in Tuvalu, the law prescribes a harsher punishment for individuals involved in the trafficking of adults than for those involved in the trafficking of children. (8) The laws do not prohibit recruiting children under age 18 into non-state armed groups. (2)

Laws in Tuvalu do not ensure free basic education, but there is a policy that sufficiently provides for free basic education. (13; 14; 15; 2)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Tuvalu impeded the enforcement of child labor laws during the year.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor. (16)
Tuvalu Police Force	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (16)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, the absence of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Tuvalu impeded the enforcement of child labor laws (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017

Inadequate financial resources hamper the Labor Inspectorate's capacity to formally monitor and enforce child labor laws. (17; 2)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Tuvalu took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown (16)	No (2)

Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (16)	0 (2)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (16)	0 (2)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (16)	Yes (2)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that the government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor. (2; 18)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 8). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including incorporating child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 8. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
Free Education Policy	Establishes free basic education for children ages 6 through 13. (13; 14; 2)
Tuvalu National Human Rights Action Plan (2016–2020)†	Consolidates the government’s human rights coordination and delivery of services, including the UN CRC. (19)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

‡ The government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (20; 21)

Research found no evidence that the government has integrated child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Free Education Policy or the UNDAF for the Pacific Region. (22; 23)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 9). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including programs addressing the problem in the fishing sector.

Table 9. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Decent Work Country Program	ILO-implemented program that aims to strengthen Tuvalu’s labor laws, support the ratification of ILO C. 182, and improve data collection on child labor. (24; 25)
Education for All Program	Australian Government-funded program to improve access to quality education in Tuvalu. Objectives include increasing capacities in education planning and administration, teacher training, and early grade literacy. (14)
Government Vocational Training Programs†	Government-funded programs that provide vocational training to children who have finished compulsory primary education. Includes the Ministry of Education’s Community Post-Primary Vocational Programs, which serve children in the outer islands, and the High School Vocational Training Program at Motufoua Secondary School, which provides vocational training to students starting at year 13. (14)

† Program is funded by the Government of Tuvalu.

Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement these social programs during the reporting period. Additionally, research found no evidence of programs to specifically address child labor in the fishing sector.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Tuvalu (Table 10).

Table 10. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify ILO C. 182 on the Worst Forms of Child Labor.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the law establishes the minimum age for hazardous work as age 18.	2009 – 2017
	Determine the types of hazardous work prohibited for all children in consultation with employers' and workers' organizations.	2017
	Ensure that the law explicitly prohibits debt bondage for children.	2017
	Ensure that the law criminalize the use, procurement, and offering of boys ages 15 through 17 for prostitution, and all children for the production of pornography and/or for pornographic performances.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminalize the use, procurement, and offering of all children for illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the law prescribes harsher penalties for child trafficking and forced labor.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminalize the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Dedicate sufficient resources for child labor law enforcement.	2009 – 2017
	Conduct routine and targeted labor inspections.	2017
	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors and for investigators.	2017
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties for child labor violations.	2015 – 2017
	Strengthen the inspection system by conducting unannounced inspections.	2016 – 2017
	Establish a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on whether a reciprocal referral mechanism exists between labor authorities and social services.	2017
Coordination	Ensure that coordinating mechanisms function to combat child labor effectively.	2009 – 2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Free Education Policy and the UNDAF for the Pacific Region.	2010 – 2017
Social Programs	Conduct research to better understand the extent and nature of child labor, including its worst forms, in Tuvalu.	2010 – 2017
	Institute programs to address child labor in the fishing sector.	2009 – 2017

In 2017, Uganda made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Police officers conducted 29 investigations of the worst forms of child labor. The government, in partnership with a local bank, contributed approximately $9 million to a program that aims to reduce youth unemployment through enterprise development, job creation, and business skills training. However, children in Uganda engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. Inadequate funding, training, and resources hampered the capacity of law enforcement agencies to conduct child labor inspections and investigations. Gaps in the legal framework persist, including contradicting laws regulating the minimum age for employment. In addition, existing programs are inadequate to address child labor in the country.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Uganda engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. (1; 2; 3) Children also perform dangerous tasks in gold mining. (4; 5; 6; 7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children’s work and education in Uganda.

Table 1. Statistics on Children’s Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	30.9 (3,034,126)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	88.7
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	34.4
Primary Completion Rate (%)		52.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children’s work by sector and activity.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children from the Karamoja region are trafficked and willingly migrate to Kampala and other urban centers where they engage in begging, street vending, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation. (2; 29; 30; 3) Children from neighboring countries are exploited in forced agricultural labor and commercial sexual exploitation in Uganda. (3) During the reporting period, child trafficking victims from the Busoga sub-region in Uganda were used in armed conflict in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. (36)

Although the law provides for free compulsory education, the cost of school supplies, uniforms, and other materials often prohibits children from attending school. (4; 37; 38; 39; 7) Furthermore, research found that children experience physical and sexual abuse at school by teachers and classmates. (35; 39)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Uganda has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Uganda’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act (40)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	18	Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act; Sections 32(4) and 32(5) of the Employment Act; Regulation 5 of the Employment (Employment of Children) Regulations (40; 41; 42)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Regulation 6 and the First Schedule of the Employment (Employment of Children) Regulations; Section 7 of the Children (Amendment) Act (42; 40)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Section 5 of the Employment Act; Sections 3–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (41; 43)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Sections 3–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (43)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 8 of the Children (Amendment) Act; Sections 3–5 of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act; Sections 131, 136–137, and 139 of the Penal Code; Section 14 of the Anti-Pornography Act (40; 43; 44; 45)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 5(d) of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (43)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 52(2)(c) of the Defense Forces Act (46)
Non-state	Yes	18	Section 5(b) of the Prevention of Trafficking in Persons Act (43)
Compulsory Education Age	No	13‡	Section 10(3)(a) of the Education Act (37)
Free Public Education	Yes		Section 10(3)(a) of the Education Act (37)

* No conscription (46)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (37)

In 2016, the government approved the Children (Amendment) Act, which establishes age 16 as the minimum age for work and criminalizes the use of a child for commercial sexual exploitation. (40) The government is developing regulations to implement the Act. (47) The law's minimum age protections do not apply to children working without a formal employment relationship. (41)

Although Uganda has a list of hazardous occupations prohibited to children under 18, section 8 of the Employment of Children Regulations permits a Commissioner to allow children age 12 and older enrolled in an educational training or apprenticeship program to engage in hazardous work, in violation of international standards. (42)

Children in Uganda are required to attend school only up to age 13. This standard makes children ages 13 to 15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school but are not legally permitted to work. (37)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development (MGLSD) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development (MGLSD)	Enforce labor laws throughout the country. (31) The Industrial Court makes judgments on labor dispute cases, which are referred to the court by labor officers. (12)
Ministry of Internal Affairs	Enforce criminal laws on the worst forms of child labor. (48) The Uganda Police Force's Child and Family Protection Unit (CFPU) investigates forced labor cases, the Special Investigations Division and the Anti-Human Trafficking Desk investigate cases related to human trafficking and the use of children in illicit activities, and the Sexual Offenses Desk investigates commercial sexual exploitation. (12) Liaison officers handle child labor complaints and overall child protection issues at police posts that do not have a CFPU officer. (48) The Immigration Department assists in identifying potential human trafficking victims. (49)
Ministry of Local Government	Oversee district labor officers who refer cases to the Industrial Court. (12) Deploy community development officers at the district level when district labor officers are not available. (31)
Directorate of Public Prosecutions	Prosecute criminal cases related to the worst forms of child labor that are referred by the Uganda Police Force. (50)

Research found that coordination among the various agencies responsible for child labor law enforcement remains an issue because labor officers are under the district governments' authority instead of the MGLSD's. (47; 51) The Industrial Court, however, is

Uganda

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

advocating for the MGLSD to supervise district labor officers with the hope that it will increase the number of child labor case referrals. (12) Research found that the Industrial Court has not heard any child labor cases since its inception. (51)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Uganda took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MGLSD that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	$170,000 (35)	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspectors	53 (35)	47 (32)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	No (32)	No (32)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (35)	Yes (32)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Yes (35)	Yes (32)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (35)	Yes (32)
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	220 (35)	Unknown
Number Conducted at Worksites	100 (35)	Unknown
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	Unknown	Unknown
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (35)	Yes (32)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Unknown	Yes (32)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (35)	Yes (32)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (35)	Yes (32)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (35)	Yes (32)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (35)	Yes (32)

The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Uganda's workforce, which includes more than 20 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed countries, Uganda would employ about 500 inspectors. (52; 53; 54) Enforcement of child labor laws remains challenging due to the lack of resources for inspections. (32)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Uganda took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown	No (32)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown	Yes (36)
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (55)	Yes (56)
Number of Investigations	Unknown	29 (36)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown	100 (36)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	9 (3)	Unknown
Number of Convictions	6 (3)	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (35)	Yes (32)

According to the government, there is not a sufficient number of criminal law enforcement officials responsible for investigating child labor. (12) Training is insufficient; some criminal law enforcement officials were not aware of key human trafficking laws, and some police officers did not understand the evidence needed to prosecute child labor cases. (3; 32) Of the 29 investigations conducted by police officials in 2017, 23 were investigations of domestic trafficking for labor and sexual exploitation, 4 were of international trafficking for labor exploitation, and 2 were of international trafficking for use in armed conflict. (36) Of the 100 violations found in 2017, among the domestic child trafficking victims, 77 experienced labor exploitation and 2 experienced sexual exploitation. Among the international child trafficking victims, 16 were used in armed conflict and 5 were exploited for labor. (36) The Ministry of Internal Affairs initiated 45 prosecutions and achieved 17 convictions for trafficking in persons; however, these data are not disaggregated by victims' age or exploitation, so information about the number of prosecutions initiated and convictions achieved for the worst forms of child labor is not available. (36) During the reporting period, the government removed 81 children from child labor and reintegrated children with their families or provided access to an alternative caregiver. (32)

Research found that street children, including potential human trafficking victims, are sometimes detained by police. (1; 3; 57) According to the government, police officers send street children to homes and shelters and do not keep them in detention facilities; however, some children may have been housed in juvenile rehabilitation centers as shelters are frequently full. Police intermittently rounded up street children, housed them in children's homes and shelters for several days while social workers completed background checks and family tracing, and then returned them to their families. (57) Some children from the Karamoja region were enrolled in a youth training center in Karamoja, where they were provided with counseling and vocational training before they were returned to their families. (50; 57)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor	Coordinate child labor issues and implement the National Action Plan on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor. Led by MGLSD and includes members from several ministries, trade unions, development organizations, civil society, and media agencies. (58)
Stop Child Labor Partners Forum	Coordinate, monitor, and evaluate child labor-related programs and policies in Uganda. Led by the National Council for Children, with representatives from several ministries, CFPU, and civil society groups. (58)
Anti-Human Trafficking National Taskforce	Coordinate government efforts on human trafficking. Led by the Ministry of Internal Affairs, includes 30 members from government agencies and civil society. (58; 59)
National Child Protection Working Group	Monitor the quality of services provided to orphans and vulnerable children. Led by MGLSD, includes members from five government agencies and civil society organizations. (12)
National Council for Children's Inter-Ministerial Coordination Mechanism	Work to ensure that member organizations integrate child labor concerns into their policies and budgets. Members include 10 government agencies. (12)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies that are consistent with relevant international standards on child labor (Table 9).

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor‡

Policy	Description
National Action Plan on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labor (2012/2013–2016/2017)	Aims to reduce the worst forms of child labor in Uganda by 2017. (60) In 2017, the government continued to review the Plan and began working with civil society to develop a new plan, which is expected to be approved in 2018. (32; 51)
National Action Plan to Combat Human Trafficking (2013–2018)	Guides the government's efforts to combat human trafficking. (61)
National Social Protection Policy	Aims to reduce poverty and socioeconomic inequalities for inclusive development by targeting vulnerable people, including child laborers. (62)
National Strategy for Girls' Education in Uganda (2015–2019)	Promotes girls' education and identifies child labor, particularly domestic work, as a key barrier to girls' access to education. (63)

‡ The Government had other policies that may have addressed child labor issues or had an impact on child labor. (64; 65)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
USDOL-Funded Projects	Country-Level Engagement and Assistance to Reduce Child Labor Project (CLEAR) (2013–2018), implemented by the ILO in 11 countries to build local and national capacity of the government to address child labor; and African Youth Empowerment and Development Initiative (AYEDI) (2013–2018), $3.3 million project implemented by World Education, Inc. (66; 67) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Decent Work Country Program (2013–2017)	ILO-implemented program that outlined strategies for promoting decent work in Uganda. Priorities included youth employment and improved social protection for both formal and informal workers; also included a focus on the prevention and elimination of the worst forms of child labor. (68)
Combating Child Labor in Tobacco Growing (2015–2018)	Eliminating Child Labor in Tobacco Growing Foundation-funded program implemented by the ILO that improves the capacity of the government and social partners to develop and implement policies to combat child labor in agriculture. (69; 70)
Realizing Livelihood Improvement Through Savings and Education	NGO-implemented program in partnership with the government that provides technical assistance and capacity building to the MGLSD and the National Steering Committee on the Elimination of Child Labor. (35) The program was extended through 2018. (32)
Youth Venture Capital Fund †	Government program that aims to reduce youth unemployment through enterprise development, job creation, and business skills training. (12) In 2017, the government, in partnership with a local bank, contributed approximately $9 million for fiscal year 2017/2018. (32)

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (71; 72; 73)

Although Uganda has programs that address child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Uganda (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that only minors age 16 and older who have received adequate, specific instruction or vocational training are permitted to perform hazardous work, and that their health, safety, and morals are fully protected.	2017
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children who do not work under a formal employment relationship.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law requires free, compulsory education up to age 16 so that it is commensurate with the minimum age for work.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Ensure coordination between the Ministry of Gender, Labor, and Social Development and the Ministry of Local Government so that labor dispute cases are referred to the Industrial Court, and ensure that the Industrial Court hears child labor cases.	2015 – 2017
	Publish information on the Labor Inspectorate’s funding, number and type of labor inspections conducted, number of child labor violations found, number of child labor penalties imposed, and number of penalties collected.	2013 – 2017
	Publish disaggregated data on the prosecutions initiated and convictions achieved for the worst forms of child labor.	2017
	Authorize the Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017
	Significantly increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO’s technical advice.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure sufficient funding, training, and resources for law enforcement agencies so that child labor inspections and investigations can be properly conducted.	2013 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Strengthen mechanisms for referring street children, including potential human trafficking victims, to social services providers, and prevent these children from being detained.	2015 – 2017
Social Programs	Ensure that all children are able to attend school regardless of their ability to purchase school materials. Ensure that students are protected from physical and sexual abuse by teachers and classmates.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure the availability of shelters for victims of child labor, including child trafficking victims.	2017
	Expand existing social programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, particularly in agriculture and commercial sexual exploitation.	2009 – 2017

In 2017, Ukraine made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Despite new initiatives to address child labor, Ukraine is receiving this assessment because the government did not permit the Labor Inspectorate to conduct unannounced inspections without prior notice, which impeded the enforcement of child labor laws. Otherwise, the government made efforts by enacting legislation to improve the provision of services, including education, to children living in Russia-controlled areas of the country. Children in Ukraine perform dangerous tasks in street work and engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in the production of pornography. Legal prohibitions against child trafficking and commercial sexual exploitation of children are insufficient because they require evidence of the use of threats, force, or coercion to establish a crime, and law enforcement officials lack training on the treatment of victims of commercial sexual exploitation. These gaps put child victims of commercial sexual exploitation at risk of prosecution. In addition, national policies related to child labor lack sufficient funding for effective implementation. Russian aggression in the east of the country continued, which negatively impacted the government's ability to address the worst forms of child labor by limiting the budget available for social services and other domestic policy priorities and by increasing the vulnerability to exploitation of children living in Russia-controlled geographical areas.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Ukraine engage in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation in the production of pornography and perform dangerous tasks in street work. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5; 6) In 2017, in cooperation with the ILO, the government published a National Child Labor Survey. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Ukraine.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	9.7 (385,204)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	97.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	12.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		103.4

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2014, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (7)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from National Child Labour Survey, 2015. (8)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, activities unknown (1; 2; 5; 9; 6)
Industry	Construction, activities unknown (1; 10; 6) Mining, † including loading, transporting, and sorting coal, and extracting amber (5; 11; 12; 9)
Services	Street work, including distributing advertising leaflets, sales activities in kiosks, washing cars, and begging (1; 2; 5; 6)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Use in the production of pornography (1; 2; 3; 9) Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2; 10; 13; 14; 6) Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (9; 15; 16) Forced begging, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (10; 14; 17; 9; 16)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the conflict with Russia-led forces in the east of the country continued. The government’s continued policy focus on national security, as well as budget cuts associated with the conflict, negatively affected its ability to address the worst forms of child labor. (9) Russian aggression in eastern Ukraine has created more than 1.7 million internally displaced persons (IDPs), including more than 190,000 children. (18; 19; 20) The inability of many IDP families to access adequate shelter and available social benefits puts children at increased risk of exploitation in the worst forms of child labor. (21) In particular, the Ministry of Social Policy (MSP) noted an increased vulnerability to both domestic and international human trafficking among the IDP community. There have been reports of kidnapping of girls from conflict-affected areas for commercial sexual exploitation and labor exploitation. (10; 22; 17) Displaced individuals from the Roma community, an estimated 10 percent of whom lack identity documentation, have experienced difficulty registering as IDPs; this prevents Roma IDPs from accessing assistance and puts Roma children at even greater risk of exploitation. (23; 24; 25) An estimated 10,000 Roma people have been displaced by the conflict. (26)

Children from Ukraine are trafficked both internationally and domestically for commercial sexual exploitation and forced begging. (14; 17) Children with disabilities and homeless, orphaned, and poor children, especially those living in state-run institutions, are at high risk of being trafficked and targeted by recruiters for child pornography. (2; 18; 13; 14; 16) Ukraine is a destination and transit country for refugees from Afghanistan, Somalia, and Syria. Refugees lack access to state-run children’s shelters, have no formal means of acquiring food and other assistance from the government, and experience heightened vulnerability to child trafficking. (18)

During the reporting period, children continued to take part in active combat as part of the Russia-led forces. Recruitment of children by militant groups took place primarily in Russia-controlled territory and areas where the government was unable to enforce national prohibitions against the use of children in armed conflict. (9; 15) Russia-led forces employed children as soldiers, informants, and human shields during the reporting period. (9; 15)

Although Ukraine’s Constitution and Law on General Secondary Education guarantee free universal education, due to discrimination by school administrators, Roma children, in a limited number of cases, have been denied access to education, placed in segregated schools exclusively for Roma children, or erroneously placed in special education schools. (18; 27; 28) A source reported that the municipal governments in Ukraine were ineffective in compelling school administrators to enroll Roma children who were unfairly denied access to school. (25)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Ukraine has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Ukraine’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of commercial sexual exploitation of children.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 188 of the Labor Code; Article 150 of the Criminal Code; Article 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (29; 30; 31)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 190 of the Labor Code; Article 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (30; 31)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Order of the Ministry of Health No. 46 on the approval of the list of heavy work and work with dangerous and harmful working conditions, in which the employment of minors is prohibited; Article 150-1 of the Criminal Code (29; 32)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 43 of the Constitution of Ukraine; Article 1 of the Law on Employment; Articles 149, 172, and 173 of the Criminal Code (29; 33; 34)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 149 of the Criminal Code; Article 32 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (29; 31)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Articles 301–303 of the Criminal Code; Articles 10 and 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood; the Law on Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of Ukraine on Combating the Distribution of Child Pornography; Articles 1, 6, and 7 of the Law on the Protection of Public Morality (29; 31; 35; 36)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 304 and 307 of the Criminal Code; Articles 10 and 21 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (29; 31)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Article 15 of the Law on Military Duty and Military Service; Decree No. 447 on Measures to Improve the Defense Capabilities of the State (37; 38)
State Voluntary	Yes	17	Articles 15 and 20 of the Law on Military Duty and Military Service (38)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 30 of the Law on the Protection of Childhood (31)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	17‡	Articles 12 and 20 of the Law on General Secondary Education (39)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 53 of the Constitution of Ukraine; Article 2 of the Law on General Secondary Education (33; 39)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (39)

In March 2017, the government passed a law to strengthen social protection and access to education for children living in Russia-controlled areas, including government-paid full or partial tuition fees, free textbooks, scholarships, and free housing for students. (9)

In May 2017, the Resolution of the Cabinet of Ministers No. 295 entered into force, establishing a procedure for implementing labor legislation that governs inspection visits and offsite inspections. (9) The Resolution established, for the first time, the procedure by which local authorities may conduct labor law compliance inspections. (40) However, the new Resolution places several restrictions on the power of labor inspectors, including the frequency of labor inspections and requiring prior notice before inspections are conducted. (41; 42; 43) Act 877 on the Fundamental Principles of State Supervision and Monitoring of Economic Activity requires inspectors to provide advance notice prior to conducting an inspection. (43)

Ukraine's Parliament enacted a law in November 2017 that provides authorization for local governments to implement state anti-trafficking policy. (9)

Although the international minimum age for entering hazardous vocational training is 16, Order of the Ministry of Health Number 46 permits children in vocational training programs for hazardous occupations to perform hazardous work for less than 4 hours a day, beginning at age 14, as long as occupational health and safety standards are met. (1; 44)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Ukraine impeded the enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
State Labor Service (SLS) within the Ministry of Social Policy (MSP)	Enforce labor laws, including laws on child labor, by conducting inspections. (45)
Department on Adoption and Children's Rights Protection within the MSP	Identify children involved in the worst forms of child labor, most of whom are in the informal sector. (1; 46)
National Police	Enforce criminal laws against the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking. (45)
State Migration Service	Assist refugees and migrants in need in the country, including victims of human trafficking. (1; 47)
State Border Guards Services	Protect the country's borders and identify cases of human trafficking. (47)
Office of the Ombudsman for Children's Rights	Monitor protection of the rights of children and fulfillment of international obligations to protect children's rights, including by preventing child labor. Coordinate the development of laws on child protection. (48) Inform the public of children's rights. (48)
National Referral Mechanism (NRM)	Identify victims of human trafficking, including children, and refer victims to appropriate government agencies for assistance and services. Led by the MSP. (10)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Ukraine took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, the exceptionally low number of worksite inspections conducted at the national level in Ukraine impede the enforcement of child labor laws.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	$15 million (9)
Number of Labor Inspectors	510 (5)	648 (9)
Inspectorate Authorized to Assess Penalties	Yes (5)	Yes (9)
Training for Labor Inspectors
Initial Training for New Employees	No (5)	Yes (9)
Training on New Laws Related to Child Labor	Yes (5)	Yes (9)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Labor Inspections Conducted	4400 (5)	2726 (9)
Number Conducted at Worksites	4400 (5)	2726 (9)
Number of Child Labor Violations Found	158 (5)	99 (9)
Number of Child Labor Violations for Which Penalties were Imposed	177 (5)	102 (9)
Number of Child Labor Penalties Imposed that were Collected	158 (5)	Unknown
Routine Inspections Conducted	Yes (5)	Yes (9)
Routine Inspections Targeted	Yes (5)	Yes (9)
Unannounced Inspections Permitted	Yes (5)	No (42)
Unannounced Inspections Conducted	No (5)	No (9)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (5)	Yes (9)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (9)

During the reporting period, legislation required the State Labor Service (SLS) to provide prior notice before conducting inspections. (49; 50)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Despite an increase in the number of labor inspectors in 2017, the SLS reported that an insufficient number of labor inspectors continued to hamper their capacity to enforce child labor laws. (9) According to the ILO’s technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitioning economies, Ukraine would employ about 902 labor inspectors. (51; 52; 53)

The SLS reported that fines established for labor infractions, which range from $35 to $115, remain too low to be effective deterrents. (1; 5; 45; 54)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Ukraine took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for judges.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown (5)	Yes (16)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Unknown (5)	Unknown
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (5)	Yes (16)
Number of Investigations	Unknown (5)	116 (9)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown (5)	4 (16)
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown (5)	3 (9)
Number of Convictions	Unknown (5)	Unknown (9)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (5)	Yes (9)

The moratorium on inspections of private businesses also applied to the National Police, which impeded their investigations of criminal cases involving labor violations. (16)

During the reporting period, all new police officers received training on the identification and referral of human trafficking victims. (16) An additional 229 law enforcement officials received training on human trafficking from the IOM. (16) The IOM also coordinated the National Police, National School of Judges, and other law enforcement agencies in developing an interactive training on combating human trafficking, which was administered to 125 law enforcement personnel during the reporting period. (16)

Concerns have been raised that the existing curriculum for judicial training on human trafficking does not provide adequate information about child trafficking victims who may have been forced to commit crimes while being trafficked. (1) Data on child trafficking and other crimes related to labor exploitation of children are not disaggregated from overall law enforcement statistics; therefore, the data provided may not reflect all investigations, prosecutions, and convictions that occurred during the reporting period. (13)

In 2017, the MSP provided “victim of trafficking” status to 16 children. (16) Children who were discovered to be in dangerous situations during the course of criminal investigations were referred to the MSP Shelters and Centers for Socio-Psychological Rehabilitation of Children. (16)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Ukraine

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT – EFFORTS MADE BUT CONTINUED LAW THAT DELAYED ADVANCEMENT

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Ministry of Social Policy (MSP)	Lead the government’s efforts to combat child labor and human trafficking, including by drafting legislation and government regulations on these issues. (1; 13)
Interagency Council on Family, Gender Equality, Demographic Development, Prevention of Violence in the Family, and Counter-Trafficking Issues	Coordinate efforts to address the worst forms of child labor, including the trafficking of children. Chaired by the MSP, comprises representatives from the Ministries of Justice, Education, Security, Health, and Foreign Affairs, and from international and local NGOs. (1; 55)
Interagency Working Group to Protect the Rights of Civilians, Including Women and Children, During the Anti-Terrorist Operation in the Eastern Regions of Ukraine	Protect Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs) and other civilians from the negative consequences of the ongoing military operations in Ukraine, including the increased rates of domestic and international human trafficking. Established by the MSP, members include representatives from the Secretariat of the Verkhovna Rada Commissioner for Human Rights, the Authorized Representative of the President of Ukraine for Children’s Rights, and other government agencies and NGOs. (21)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established one policy related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including coverage of the worst forms of child labor other than child trafficking.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
State Program for Countering Human Trafficking (2016–2020)	Guide the work of the National Coordinator on Combating Human Trafficking through specific actions and timetables for preventing, protecting, and prosecuting human trafficking crimes. (17)
National Action Plan for Implementation of UN CRC (2017–2020)	Identifies priorities in the area of child protection, including improving measures to combat the worst forms of child labor and increasing coordination between government agencies and NGOs. (5; 56; 57)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues Project	USDOL-funded project that aims to improve the evidence base on child labor and forced labor through data collection and research in Ukraine. (58) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
Shelters and Centers for Socio-Psychological Rehabilitation of Children†	MSP-operated program to provide protection in 8 short-term shelters and 72 long-term rehabilitation centers for children in need, including street children. Short-term shelters provide accommodation for up to 90 days, and rehabilitation centers offer accommodation for up to 12 months. (1; 10; 13; 17; 21) Provide regular social, medical, psychological, and other types of services for non-residents. (10; 17) In 2017, received $308 million in funding, and the socio-psychological rehabilitation centers for children received $4.2 million in funding. (16)
Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children†	Government-run program to provide services for victims of human trafficking and other populations in need. (1; 17)
Multiplication of the Anti-Trafficking National Referral Mechanism in Ukraine†	Joint program by the MSP and the OSCE to train officials in several regions of Ukraine to identify and provide services to human trafficking victims. Involves collaborative work among local agencies and non-governmental partners. (13)
Countering Trafficking in Persons Project (2004–2018)	USAID-funded project implemented by the IOM; aims to reduce human trafficking by building the capacity of Ukrainian institutions to address the problem by strengthening the NRM and increasing government funding for counter-trafficking efforts. (59)

† Program is funded by the Government of Ukraine.

Ukraine has a variety of service providers for victims of human trafficking; however, the MSP must confer the official status of “victim of trafficking” on child trafficking victims to allow them to access available government services. (10; 13; 17) Research found that delays in this practice often result from insufficient documentation of the crime to the MSP by local administrations. (10; 13; 17)

Although the MSP provides services for children in shelters and socio-psychological rehabilitation centers, the current availability of shelters and trained personnel is insufficient to fully address the extent of the child labor problem. (60) The Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children have historically experienced a large turnover of staff due to an excessive workload and low pay. (61) In addition, the centers remain understaffed after budget cuts enacted in 2014 resulted in the layoff of 12,000 social workers. (62) Likewise, high turnover in the regions where local agencies are responsible for identifying human trafficking victims under the National Referral Mechanism (NRM) has hampered providing services to victims. (13)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Ukraine (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Prohibit all children under age 16 from working in hazardous occupations during vocational training.	2011 – 2017
Enforcement	Address legal provisions that have created obstacles to conducting criminal and labor inspections, and ensure that labor inspectors have the ability to conduct unannounced inspections.	2014 – 2017
	Increase the budget of the SLS to increase the number of inspectors in accordance with the ILO's technical guidance and ensure that the government conducts an adequate number of labor inspections.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that fines imposed for violations of child labor laws are sufficient to effectively deter employers from violating child labor laws.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that the curriculum for judicial training on human trafficking provides adequate coverage of the situation of child trafficking victims who have been forced to commit crimes while being trafficked.	2013 – 2017
	Track and publish data on the number of child labor penalties imposed that were collected and the number of criminal convictions made relating to violations of child labor laws.	2014 – 2017
Government Policies	Ensure that all IDPs are aware of the resources available to them and that internally displaced and refugee children are able to access adequate shelter and receive available social benefits, regardless of their ethnicity.	2014 – 2017
Social Programs	Develop programs to facilitate access to education for Roma children and ensure that municipal governments hold schools accountable for discrimination against Roma children.	2010 – 2017
	Ensure that all children who are victims of human trafficking are able to access government services available for victims including by assisting victims in obtaining necessary identity documentation.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure there is sufficient funding of socio-psychological rehabilitation centers to accommodate demand for these services including by increasing the staffing of the centers.	2013 – 2017
	Take steps to reduce turnover in the Centers for Social Services for Family, Youth, and Children and in local agencies that are part of the National Referral Mechanism to ensure that victims of human trafficking are provided with the services they require.	2012 – 2017

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Uzbekistan made moderate efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Uzbekistan is receiving an assessment of moderate advancement because, in contrast with previous years, the government took active measures to address the use of forced child labor in cotton harvest, and ILO monitoring, government monitoring, and monitoring by independent human rights activists each found that the systematic mobilization of children for the cotton harvest had ended. In 2017, President Shavkat Mirziyoyev expressed the government's commitment to eradicating all forms of forced labor in cooperation with the international community. The Prime Minister subsequently issued an order removing the requirement that teachers and certain other employees must work in cotton fields during the 2017 harvest. ILO and government monitoring identified cases of child labor in the cotton harvest but found no evidence of forced child labor. Independent human rights activists and private citizens reported only a small number of cases of forced child labor, at least some of which the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations publicly acknowledged, investigated, and remediated. In addition, the government established a Parliamentary Commission to monitor implementation of prohibitions on both child labor and forced labor, and adopted two new national policies that incorporated the goal of eliminating child labor. However, the government maintained a quota system, which holds regional government authorities responsible for mobilizing sufficient labor to meet production targets in multiple sectors, including cotton and silk, and led to the mobilization of adults for forced labor in 2017. Although enforcement of prohibitions on child labor in the cotton harvest was strong, the pressures on regional government authorities imposed by the continued use of the quota system may have created an ongoing risk of the use of child labor. There remain several gaps in labor law enforcement, including a lack of public awareness and low usage of the Feedback Mechanisms for reporting violations during the cotton harvest and an insufficient number of labor inspectors to cover the workforce adequately. Moreover, a Presidential Decree prohibiting unscheduled inspections in private businesses came into effect in 2017, which inhibited the ability of the Labor Inspectorate to detect child labor violations in the private sector.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although enforcement of prohibitions on child labor in the cotton harvest was strong, and the systematic use of forced child labor in the cotton harvest has ended, the pressures on regional government authorities imposed by the continued use of the quota system may have created an ongoing risk of child labor during the reporting period. (1; 2; 3) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Uzbekistan.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	4.3 (244,095)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	84.1
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	5.0
Primary Completion Rate (%)		97.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2017, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (4)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis of statistics from Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey 3, 2006. (5)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children’s Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating silk cocoons (6; 7; 8; 2)
Services	Street work, including vending and begging (9; 10; 11) Collecting scrap metal (12; 13; 14; 15; 16)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (17; 18) Forced labor in collecting scrap metal (12; 13; 14; 15; 16; 19; 20) Forced labor in cultivating silk cocoons (6; 7; 8; 2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Cotton production in Uzbekistan is governed by a quota system, which holds regional and local government officials responsible for mobilizing sufficient labor to meet established production targets. (21) In past years, this practice led to the mass mobilization of children as young as 11 for forced child labor in the cotton harvest. However, in 2017, the use of child labor, including forced child labor, was reduced to an isolated incidence in the cotton harvest. (22; 3; 23) Only a small number of cases of the mobilization of classes of children in schools were reported, and at least some school officials were punished. (23; 24) The government and ILO monitoring found additional children in situations of child labor in which there was no evidence of force. (22; 25; 23). However, the quota system continued to impose pressure on regional and local government officials to meet production targets, which may have created an ongoing risk of exploitative labor practices, including child labor. (3; 1; 24)

In addition to the meaningful efforts made towards eliminating forced child labor, the Prime Minister also issued a decree forbidding the forcible use of teachers, healthcare workers, and adult students in the cotton harvest in September 2017. (22) Evidence still shows that government officials forced over 300,000 adults to pick cotton during the reporting period. (26; 27; 1; 24; 28) Limited evidence also suggests in isolated incidences school administrators required children to bring cotton to school; there is no evidence that suggests that it was children, not adults that picked the cotton in these cases. (24) However, observers reported that in contrast to previous years, schools were operating without interruptions during the 2017 harvest. (23; 3)

In 2017, the government took steps to address child labor in the scrap metal collection and silk production sectors. In the scrap metal sector, reports indicate an increase in the procurement price of scrap metal has incentivized private citizens to collect and sell scrap metal and decreased the need for government mobilization of labor in this sector. (3) In addition, in December 2017, the President issued a decree prohibiting regional government authorities from tasking educational and medical institutions with the collection of scrap metal in 2018. (23; 29) In the silk sector, government efforts to modernize silk production and increase the procurement price of silk cocoons are reportedly also ongoing. (3)

In 2017, detention of human rights activists monitoring in the cotton harvest and other sectors continued. (30; 31) However, the government formally engaged human rights activists at two roundtables in 2017, following a pledge at the Fourth Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor in Argentina to work with civil society groups and independent activists to eliminate forced labor risks in Uzbekistan. (22) Monitors reported positive engagement with the government and an improved monitoring environment in 2017, adding additional credibility to reports of progress in the 2017 cotton harvest. (23; 3)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Uzbekistan has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓

Uzbekistan

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor (cont)

	Convention	Ratification
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Uzbekistan's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and minimum age for non-state compulsory recruitment.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Article 77 of the Labor Code; Article 20 of the Law on the Guarantees of the Rights of the Child; Article 49-1 of the Administrative Code (32; 33; 34; 35)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Articles 241 and 245 of the Labor Code (34)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Decree on Adoption of the List of Occupations with Unfavorable Working Conditions to Which It Is Forbidden to Employ Persons Under Eighteen Years of Age; Decree on Approval of Provision on Requirements on Prohibition of Use of Minors' Labor (36; 37)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Article 37 of the Constitution; Article 7 of the Labor Code; Article 51 of the Administrative Code; Articles 135 and 138 of the Criminal Code (33; 34; 35; 38; 39)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Article 14 of the Law on Guarantees of the Rights of the Child; Article 135 of the Criminal Code (33; 39)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Article 10 of the Law on Guarantees of the Rights of the Child; Articles 130 and 135 of the Criminal Code (33; 39)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 10 of the Law on Guarantees of the Rights of the Child; Articles 127, 270, 273, and 276 of the Criminal Code (33; 39)
Minimum Age for Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Articles 4 and 46 of the Law on Universal Military Service (40; 41)
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 24 of the Law on Universal Military Service (41)
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	18‡	Article 3 of the Law on Education (42)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 4 of the Law on Education; Article 41 of the Constitution (38; 42)

‡ Age calculated based on available information (42)

The government took several regulatory measures to prohibit the use of child and forced labor in cotton production. In September 2017, Prime Minister Aripov issued an order against the use of educational and medical sector employees in the cotton harvest, which led to a recall of these employees from the cotton fields throughout Uzbekistan. (23) Although, the Law on Guarantees of the Rights of the Child requires that the State protect children from involvement in prostitution, no law criminally prohibits the use of children in prostitution. (33; 35; 39)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MOELR) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations (MOELR)	Conduct labor inspections, including inspections for compliance with child labor laws. (43; 23)
Ministry of Interior Office for Combating Trafficking	Investigate crimes related to child trafficking, which may then be prosecuted by the Prosecutor General's Office. (44)
Prosecutor General's Office	Prosecute criminal violations involving the worst forms of child labor, including human trafficking, forced labor, and commercial sexual exploitation. (44)
Ministry of Public Education, Ministry of Higher and Secondary Special Education, and Center for Secondary and Vocational Education	Monitor elementary through secondary school students to prevent forced child labor, including in cotton production. Monitor employment of all graduates of all educational institutions for two years after graduation. (45; 46)
Youth Union	Monitor school attendance to ensure students do not miss class during the cotton harvest. (23)
Women's Committee of Uzbekistan	Monitor school attendance through the academic year, especially during the cotton harvest. (45) In 2017, conducted awareness-raising information seminars on the importance of education for girls.
Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations Human Trafficking Hotlines	Receive reports of incidents of human trafficking and refer reports to the relevant agencies. (47)
Feedback Mechanism	Receive complaints on the violation of workers' rights and labor laws through two telephone hotlines: one MOELR hotline that refers cases to the Labor Inspectorate and the Prosecutor General's Office, and one Federation of Trade Unions hotline that focuses on mediation of individual workers' rights complaints. (48; 23)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Uzbekistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the authority of the MOELR that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including labor inspectors' inability to conduct unannounced inspections (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In 2017, following the reorganization of the Ministry of Labor into the MOELR, the number of labor inspectors decreased by almost half. (25) However, MOELR officials report that there was also an increase in occupational safety and health inspectors at the regional level. (3) Despite this, the number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Uzbekistan's workforce, which includes over 17.8 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 20,000 workers in transitioning economies, Uzbekistan's Labor Inspectorate would employ about 890 inspectors. (52; 53; 54) In addition, in January 2017, a Presidential Decree prohibiting unscheduled inspections of the private sector, including labor inspections, went into effect. However, unannounced inspections continued in the cotton sector. (23) Both national and regional labor inspectors received training from the ILO on child and forced labor during the reporting period. (23)

Uzbekistan

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In addition to the MOELR-led inspections, there were also three separate mechanisms to monitor the cotton harvest in 2017. The Coordination Council on Decent Work (Coordination Council) led the government's harvest monitoring exercise. (25) Independent human rights activists conducted their own independent monitoring of the cotton harvest. The Uzbek-German Forum for Human Rights, a Berlin-based NGO, coordinates the publication of the findings of many independent activists, while others self-publish information. (1) Finally, the ILO conducted Third-Party Monitoring (TPM) of the cotton harvest, in collaboration with the Federation of Trade Unions of Uzbekistan (FTUU). (22) There has been some criticism of the TPM monitoring methodology, because ILO monitors travel with FTUU representatives to gain access to monitoring sites in Uzbekistan. In response to criticism that the presence of government-affiliated FTUU representatives had intimidated cotton pickers in previous years, FTUU officials recused themselves from monitoring interviews in 2017. (22)

In 2017, Coordination Council monitors discovered 18 children in the cotton fields. (23) The government issued administrative penalties in the amount of $107 for using child labor. (23) A total of 14 local government officials and heads of institutions were sanctioned for labor violations during the harvest. Three regional governors were dismissed, while other officials were disciplined or encouraged to retire early. (22)

The ILO TPM mechanism identified an additional 12 children ages 10-14 in one field in Karakalpakstan. Local authorities immediately removed the children from the field, and the local mahalla leader, the local Ministry of Education representative, the district prosecutor, and the district hokim investigated. (22) Following the investigation, ILO monitors were confident that it was an isolated incident, and that children had not been forced to work. (22)

In 2017, independent human rights activists and private citizens reported few cases of child labor. For instance, one activist observed two cases of children forcibly mobilized by their schools in the Andijan region. (55; 24) In one of these cases in Andijan, children ages 11 and 12, from a school class were observed picking cotton in November and reported being mobilized by their school director. (55; 24) In contrast to previous years, when the activist reported this event to the MOELR, the government investigated the allegation, found it to be credible, and imposed penalties on the responsible party. (3)

In addition to monitoring of the cotton harvest, both the MOELR and the FTUU operated separate Feedback Mechanism (FBM) hotlines during the 2017 harvest, which workers and human rights activists could use to register complaints about child labor, forced labor, and other labor law violations. (22) The MOELR-supported hotline received 7,339 calls on various labor-related issues during the harvest, an 800 percent increase over 2016. (23) In addition to its FBM hotline, the FTUU also maintained a legal clinic to assist workers with resolving complaints. (22) The FTUU reports that no calls received during the harvest were related to child labor, although activists report using the hotline to provide information on the cases of child labor they observed. (3) An ILO-conducted telephone poll indicated that only about a quarter of the population is aware of the FBM hotlines. (22) Observers agreed that a lack of public confidence, in part due to reprisals against those who made use of the FBM in past years, inhibited the functioning of the hotlines during past harvests. (21; 56)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Uzbekistan took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, limited information on the activities of criminal law enforcement authorities was available.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Yes (46)	Unknown
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown
Refresher Courses Provided	Yes (57)	Unknown
Number of Investigations	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Violations Found	12 (57)	Unknown
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown	Unknown
Number of Convictions	Unknown	Unknown
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Yes (48)	Yes (48)

In March 2017, police officers raided car washes and bazaars in Tashkent, removing 1,400 children from child labor situations. (23)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including coordination between levels of government.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Coordination Council on Decent Work (Coordination Council)	Coordinate efforts to address child labor issues, including monitoring the cotton harvest; chaired by the FTUU. (49; 57) In 2017, led national child labor monitoring activities and collaborated with the ILO to host capacity-building seminars for government ministries, regional government authorities, and farmers on the implementation of national and international labor standards. (23) Previously the Coordination Council on Child Labor, in 2017 was renamed and expanded to include oversight on issues of forced labor. (23)
Parliamentary Commission on Ensuring Guaranteed Labor Rights of Citizens*	Monitor and regularly report to the Senate on the activities of central and local-level government bodies involved in ensuring the labor rights of citizens, including prevention of forced labor. Oversee implementation of the ILO Conventions on Decent Work, Child Labor, and Forced Labor. (23)
Interagency Working Group	Coordinate efforts to address labor rights issues, including child labor. (43; 58) Report to the ILO on the government's implementation of ratified conventions and its efforts to prevent forced labor and protect working minors. Headed by the MOELR. (58; 59; 60)
National Interagency Commission to Combat Trafficking in Persons	Oversee efforts to combat human trafficking, including by improving interagency cooperation, raising public awareness, and drafting legislation. (61) Chaired by the Prosecutor General. (44)

* Mechanism to coordinate efforts to address child labor was created during the reporting period.

According to the TPM report, the prohibition on the use of forced labor is widely understood, and the systematic use of forced child labor has ended. (22) However, considering the speed of the reform, the ILO notes the need for continued coordination and capacity building to ensure that governments at the regional and district level are consistently enforcing national prohibitions on forced labor of adults, including teachers. In pursuit of this goal, the ILO in collaboration with the government held four regional roundtables to engage local government officials and members of the Farmer's Council, Women's Committee and Youth Union. These roundtables reached 330 stakeholders at the regional level. (22)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Uzbekistan

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
MOU Between the ILO and the Republic of Uzbekistan (2014–2020)	Establishes terms of agreement between the ILO and the government on cooperation to implement the Decent Work Country Program in Uzbekistan. (62) Represents an important step toward implementation of the ILO’s technical advice, including using ILO technical assistance and continuing to work with the ILO or other credible third parties to observe cotton harvests. (63; 64) In March 2017, the government signed an extension of the MOU through 2020. (22)
Senate Resolution on Measures to Ensure Guaranteed Labor Rights to the Citizens of Uzbekistan†	Establishes a plan to harmonize national legislation with the requirements of ILO conventions, including through developing relevant organizational structures and national programs; strengthening state and civil society capacity to guarantee the provision of labor rights; and carrying out an information campaign to inform citizens of their rights. (49)
National Development Strategy (2017–2021)†	Outlines measures for economic liberalization and modernization, including through a decrease in cotton production, an increased focus on the production of finished goods, and a reduction of the state regulation. Includes objectives for poverty reduction; development of education and social protection measures; capacity building for civil society and the press; and increased efficacy in anti-corruption measures. (25)
National Action Plan for the Application of ILO Conventions	Establishes a framework for implementing ILO Conventions 138 and 182 by coordinating the activities of ministries, departments, and local government authorities. (48; 65) Includes activities for the annual monitoring of the cotton harvest, which took place during the reporting period. (49; 65)
Action Plan on Improving Working Conditions, Employment, and Social Protection of Workers in Agriculture (2016–2018)	Demonstrates the government’s commitment to improving conditions for hiring of workers in agriculture; strengthening the FBM and national monitoring to prevent child and forced labor, providing increased information and guidance to advance decent work, increasing mechanization of agriculture, and improving social protection of workers in agriculture. (66; 67; 68)
Cabinet of Ministers Order 909F	Outlines steps to ensure decent working conditions by preventing child and forced labor. Lays out the government’s intentions to improve monitoring and feedback mechanisms, and to continue working with the ILO and World Bank to develop information materials and conduct public awareness campaigns on child and forced labor. (48)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

In 2017, the government began to introduce policies aimed at attracting a greater volume of voluntary workers. This included raising wages for cotton pickers, by increasing the price per kg of cotton from 61 percent for the first pass to 150 percent for the third pass. (22) However, the government maintained cotton production policies that mandate harvest quotas that offer strong incentives for local administrators to mobilize forced labor, which in turn creates an ongoing risk that children may be mobilized if local authorities do not adhere to national legislation including bans on child labor. (57; 1)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor†

Program	Description
Support for the Decent Work Country Program in Uzbekistan (2014–2019)	$6 million USDOL-funded project awarded in December 2014 to the ILO to enhance the capacity of the government and workers’ and employers’ representatives to prevent and reduce child and forced labor and promote decent work in Uzbekistan. (69; 70) In 2017, developed tailored training on preventing child and forced labor for national and local stakeholders, and provided training on child and forced labor to 6,300 people from organizations involved recruiting cotton pickers. (23)
Efforts to Prevent Child Labor in the Cotton Harvest†	Includes initiatives to provide extracurricular activities for students who might otherwise participate in the cotton harvest after school, and raise awareness about the prohibition of child labor in the harvest. (49) In 2017, as part of the ILO TPM project, the ILO and government partners distributed 44,500 posters to education institutions with information on the prohibition of child labor and the availability of the FBM hotlines, and 100,000 flyers disseminated to farmers and employers. (23; 22)
Global Partnership for Education	Multilateral initiative to coordinate the efforts of developing countries, donors, international organizations, teachers, NGOs, and the private sector to secure universal access to quality education in developing countries. (71; 72)
School Assistance†	Ministry of Public Education program to provide winter clothes and other educational resources for needy families to support school attendance. (48)

Program	Description
Family Support Assistance†	Government program provides an allowance to low-income families on the condition that their children continue their education up to age 18. (48)
Child Protection Assistance	UNICEF program with the government to develop a national child protection system to prevent child abuse, exploitation, and violence and respond to children who are victims or at risk. (73)
National Rehabilitation Center†	Ministry of Labor-operated shelter provides human trafficking victims with emergency medical and social services and assists in social rehabilitation. (49)
Fund for Community Works*†	Established in October 2017 under the Ministry of Employment and Labor Relations, offers the unemployed opportunities for paid public works, including seasonal agricultural work. Matches job seekers with labor needs in the cotton harvest to reduce the risk of forced labor. (74)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Uzbekistan.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, including its worst forms. (75; 51)

The government has implemented programs to combat child labor in the cotton harvest and to address human trafficking. (55; 23; 76; 77; 12; 78; 79; 21; 80) However, research did not find evidence of programs designed to address the potential of child labor concerns in other sectors.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Uzbekistan (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Criminally prohibit and penalize the use of a child for prostitution.	2015 – 2017
	Criminally prohibit the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Continue to allow independent observers unrestricted access to monitor labor conditions during the cotton harvest through unannounced site visits. Punish officials who threaten or detain observers or require children to bring cotton to school.	2017
	Publish information about the Labor Inspectorate's funding, number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed, and number of penalties imposed that were collected.	2015 – 2017
	Continue to build public trust in the FBM hotlines and other mechanisms for receiving child labor complaints, especially by ensuring individuals who use these mechanisms do not experience retaliation.	2017
	Increase the number of labor inspectors to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors are permitted to conduct unannounced inspections in all sectors.	2016 – 2017
	Publish all data on criminal law enforcement efforts related to child labor.	2011 – 2017
Coordination	Increase coordination efforts directed at regional and district governments to ensure they are aware of and committed to implementing the laws and policies prohibiting child labor, and ensure that appropriate remediation action is taken when they are not.	2015 – 2017
Government Policies	Revise policies that mandate cotton harvest quotas and that set purchase prices below market value to help prevent forced involvement of children under age 18 in the cotton harvest.	2012 – 2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2013 – 2017
	Expand programs to address the worst forms of child labor in sectors other than cotton harvesting.	2009 – 2017

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Vanuatu made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched the Vanuatu Child Safeguarding Policy, which provides guidelines for the protection of children from abuse, including child labor. Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Vanuatu engage in dangerous tasks in forestry. Vanuatu's minimum ages of 12 for work and 15 for hazardous work do not comply with international standards.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Vanuatu engage in dangerous tasks in forestry. (1) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Vanuatu. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		93.8

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2013, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (2) Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (3)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Forestry, including logging (1)
Services	Street vending (1)

Vanuatu lacks data to determine the nature and prevalence of child labor in the country. (4) Children living in remote areas face difficulties accessing education, increasing the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (5; 6)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Vanuatu has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Vanuatu's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work and the prohibition of using children in forced labor.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	No	14	Section 38 of the Employment Act (7)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	No	15	Section 40 of the Employment Act (7)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	No		Section 40 of the Employment Act (7)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Section 7 of the Employment Act; Section 102 of the Penal Code; Organized Crime Act (7; 8; 9)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 35 of the Counter Terrorism and Transnational Organized Crime Act (9)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Sections 101B–D and 147A–B of the Penal Code (8)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	No		Section 35 of the Penal Code (8)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A†
State Voluntary	N/A†
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	No
Free Public Education	No

† No standing military (10)

The minimum age for work does not meet international standards because the Employment Act permits children as young as 14 years of age to work. (7) In addition, the Employment Act permits children ages 12 and 13 to work in agricultural light work, but it does not specify the activities and hours per week that are allowed. (11; 7)

The government has yet to pass the Employment Relations Bill of 2012 that prohibits the engagement of children under the age of 18 in hazardous work, and it has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (5) The minimum age of 15 for hazardous work is not in compliance with international standards and does not protect children from work that could jeopardize their health and safety. (7)

Laws related to forced labor are not sufficient, as debt bondage is not criminally prohibited. (11; 7; 8) In addition, the Penal Code does not include heightened penalties for inciting children to engage in criminal activities, including drug production and drug trafficking. (8) There is no compulsory age for education, and although it does not appear that there are any laws that provide free basic education, the Primary Education School Fee Grant Policy sufficiently provides free basic education in government-owned schools for children in grades one to six. (12)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Department of Labor, and Ministry of Justice and Community Services that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Enforce provisions set forth in the Employment Act, including child labor laws. (11)
Ministry of Justice and Community Services (MJCS)	Support of agencies that review laws, make new laws, and implement relevant UN Conventions. (13) The Child Desk strengthens national planning, integrates international goals (United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child), develops a system of protection for children, and supports community efforts to prevent child abuse. (14; 13)
Vanuatu Police Force	Enforce all criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (11)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Vanuatu took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Department of Labor that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including the collection of data on labor inspectorate funding, number of labor inspections conducted, and number of child labor violations found.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Labor Inspectorate Funding	Unknown	Unknown (1)
Number of Labor Inspectors	4 (15)	Unknown (1)

Unannounced Inspections Conducted	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Complaint Mechanism Exists	Yes (15)	Yes (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Labor Authorities and Social Services	Yes (15)	Unknown (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in Vanuatu took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). Gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the lack of information regarding the number of investigations, violations, prosecutions initiated, and convictions.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Training for Investigators
Initial Training for New Employees	Unknown* (11)	Unknown (1)
Training on New Laws Related to the Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A	Unknown (1)
Refresher Courses Provided	Unknown (11)	Unknown (1)
Number of Investigations	Unknown* (11)	Unknown (1)
Number of Violations Found	Unknown* (11)	Unknown (1)

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor (cont)

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017
Number of Prosecutions Initiated	Unknown* (11)	Unknown (1)
Number of Convictions	Unknown* (11)	Unknown (1)
Reciprocal Referral Mechanism Exists Between Criminal Authorities and Social Services	Unknown (11)	Unknown (1)

* The government does not publish this information.

Based on the most recent data available from 2012, the Vanuatu Police Force employs 50 investigators, who are responsible for enforcing laws against the worst forms of child labor. (4)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efforts to address all forms of child labor.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Child Protection Working Group	Serves as the primary forum for exchanging information on child protection and the commercial sexual exploitation of children. Chaired by the Director General of the Ministry of Justice and Community Services and comprises representatives from the government, UN agencies, civil society organizations, and NGOs. (15; 16; 1; 17) Research was unable to determine whether this coordinating body was active during the reporting period.

Although the government has established a National Child Protection Working Group to combat the commercial sexual exploitation of children, research found no evidence that there is a coordinating mechanism to address all forms of child labor. (1)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including addressing illicit activities.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Vanuatu National Child Protection Policy (2016–2026)	Aims to create an environment that protects children from abuse, exploitation, human trafficking, neglect, and violence. Provides children with equitable access to services to support reintegration and recovery when needed. (16)
Vanuatu Child Safeguarding Policy (2017–2020)†	Provides guidelines for protecting children from abuse, including child labor, violence, sexual abuse, neglect, and exploitation. Provides a reporting mechanism for identifying and responding to child abuse. (18; 1)
Sector Infrastructure Plan	Launched in 2017 with the support from the Stretem Rod Blong Jastis and Sefti (SRBJS) program. (14)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

The National Child Protection Policy aims to protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation and human trafficking. However, this policy continues to leave children vulnerable to illicit activities. (16; 1) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the above listed policies during the reporting period.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to preventing child labor, which cover the main sectors where child labor has been identified in the country (Table 10).

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
CFP Review workshop†	MJCS coordinated workshop with UNICEF and Ministry of Youth and Sports Development and Training to ensure that Community Child Protection Committees and community members have the capacity to prevent, identify and respond to child abuse. Twenty-seven people were trained during the workshop. (14)

† Program is funded by the Government of Vanuatu.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Vanuatu (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2014 – 2017
	Pass the Employment Relations Bill of 2012.	2016 – 2017
	Establish a minimum age for work of at least 15 years.	2016 – 2017
	Establish a minimum age for hazardous work as age 18 and identify hazardous occupations and activities prohibited for children.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that the law protects children ages 12 and 13 employed in light agricultural work by specifying the activities and hours per week that are allowed.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that debt bondage is criminalized.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminalizes the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law specifically prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.	2016 – 2017
	Establish by law a compulsory education age that extends to the minimum age for employment.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Establish by law free basic public education.	2016 – 2017
	Provide information regarding funding to the Labor Inspectorate to enforce laws prohibiting child labor.	2015 – 2017
	Train labor inspectors on enforcing child labor laws and train criminal investigators on enforcing laws prohibiting the worst forms of child labor, and make the results of these efforts public.	2014 – 2017
	Publish data on labor law and criminal law enforcement actions taken to address child labor, including its worst forms.	2012 – 2017
	Strengthen the Labor Inspectorate by initiating targeted inspections based on analysis of data related to risk-prone sectors and patterns of serious incidents.	2016 – 2017
	Establish referral mechanisms among the Department of Labor, the Vanuatu Police Force, and social welfare services to protect and rehabilitate children involved in child labor, including its worst forms.	2014 – 2017
Coordination	Establish a coordinating mechanism to combat child labor, including its worst forms.	2012 – 2017
Government Policies	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as the use of children in illicit activities.	2016 – 2017
	Publish information about the activities that were undertaken to implement the Vanuatu National Child Protection Policy.	2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data, such as a national child labor survey, to determine the prevalence and nature of child labor in Vanuatu.	2014 – 2017
	Increase access to education for children living in remote locations.	2012 – 2017
	Implement programs to address child labor, specifically in forestry.	2012 – 2017

West Bank and the Gaza Strip

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Palestinian Authority made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor in the areas of the West Bank under its control. In December 2017, Palestinian Authority officials acceded to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography. The Palestinian Authority also supported social programs that improved children's access to education. However, children in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in construction and illicit activities. Children also engage in child labor in street vending. The legal framework does not criminally prohibit all elements of child trafficking. In addition, programs to prevent or eliminate child labor are insufficient.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in construction and illicit activities. Children also engage in child labor in street vending. (1; 2; 3; 4) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Cultivating asparagus, dates, eggplants, onions, sweet peppers, grapes, tomatoes, and marijuana (3; 7; 8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14)
	Fishing, † including working on fishing boats and repairing nets (1; 3; 4; 15; 16)
	Raising livestock, including poultry and sheep (1; 3; 17)
Industry	Construction, † including demolishing buildings and collecting rubble and gravel for construction purposes (1; 2; 3; 4; 18; 19)
	Manufacturing, including working in pottery workshops (1; 2; 4)
	Blacksmithing † (1)
Services	Street vending and portering (1; 2; 3; 4; 20; 18; 21)
	Working in auto body shops and metal workshops (1; 2; 3; 20)
	Working in shops, restaurants, bakeries, and hotels (1; 4; 15; 20)
	Domestic work (4; 19)
	Transporting goods (3; 22)
	Collecting scrap metal, cement bricks, and solid waste † (1; 13; 17)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Use in illicit activities, including smuggling drugs and food (3; 4; 25)
	Begging as a result of human trafficking (26; 17)
	Commercial sexual exploitation (17)

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

There are reports of child trafficking from the West Bank and the Gaza Strip into Israel, primarily for forced begging. (26; 17) Children are vulnerable to child labor in the agricultural sector, partly because the Palestinian Authority (PA) does not have jurisdiction to enforce laws in Area C's agricultural fields and Israeli settlements in the West Bank. There are reports of child labor in Israeli agricultural settlements in the Jordan Valley, where children work in excessive heat and are exposed to dangerous pesticides. (4; 7; 13; 14; 25) The PA has documented cases in which child laborers were injured at work in the settlements and taken to hospitals in the West Bank. (4)

In the Gaza Strip, many school structures, which had been damaged, destroyed, or repurposed during the war of 2014, have not been repaired or replaced. (4) Most schools in the Gaza Strip worked on a double-shift schedule, limiting class time to only 4 hours each day. (27; 28) In the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, attacks on schools, settler violence, military operations, delays at checkpoints, and school closures hinder children's access to schools. (29; 30; 31; 32; 33; 34; 35) Schools are overcrowded, poorly equipped, and, at times, unhygienic or susceptible to weather conditions. (36; 37) Violence and discrimination by teachers against students who work, as well as the cost of transportation, contribute to a school dropout rate of 16 percent. (38; 39)

According to UNICEF, child labor is on the rise in the Gaza Strip. (18) The UN warned that due to population growth coinciding with a decrease in real gross domestic product per capita, deterioration of social services such as health and education, projected depletion of the only water source, and damages to the economy and basic infrastructure, the Gaza Strip would likely become unlivable by 2020. (28)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The PA has Non-Member Observer status at the UN. In April 2014, PA officials presented letters of accession to 15 UN treaties to UN officials, including the UN CRC and its Optional Protocol on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict. In December 2017, PA officials acceded to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and Child Pornography (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	N/A
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	N/A
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The penal code applicable in the West Bank is Jordanian Law No. 16 of 1960 (Jordanian Penal Code for the West Bank). The penal code applicable to Gaza is Penal Code No. 74 of 1936, which was enacted during the British Mandate (Penal Code for Gaza). (40) The PA has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 93 of the Labor Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip; Article 14 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (41; 42)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 95 of the Labor Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (42)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Article 1 of Minister of Labor's Decree on Hazardous Work for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (43)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	No		Article 1 of Minister of Labor's Decree on Hazardous Work for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (43)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 1 of Minister of Labor’s Decree on Hazardous Work for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (43)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	No		Article 36 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip; Articles 306 and 310 of the Jordanian Penal Code for the West Bank; Articles 165 and 167 of the Penal Code for the Gaza Strip (41; 44; 45)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Articles 27 and 44 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip; Article 389 of the Jordanian Penal Code for the West Bank; Article 193 of the Penal Code for the Gaza Strip (41; 44; 45)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes†	18	Article 46 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (41)
Non-state	No		Article 46 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (41)
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	16	Articles 3, 15, and 18 of the Palestinian Education Act for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (46)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 37 of the Palestinian Child Law for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (41)

* No conscription in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip (25)

† No standing military in the West Bank (25)

Although human trafficking and forced labor are on the hazardous work list, the law does not criminally prohibit child trafficking or forced labor in accordance with international standards. (42; 43) The law does not sufficiently prohibit commercial sexual exploitation, as the use of children in prostitution and the use, procurement, or offering of children for pornographic performances are not criminally prohibited. (45) There are no criminal penalties for recruiting children into non-state armed groups. (41)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The PA has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the authority of the Ministry of Labor that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor (MOL), Labor Inspection Office	Enforce labor laws, including those related to child labor. (47)
Ministry of Social Affairs (MOSA), Child Protection Department	Protect children’s rights, including through the provision of services to children found involved in the worst forms of child labor. (48)
Police	Investigate violations of criminal laws, including the commercial sexual exploitation of children. (48)
Office of the Attorney General	Prosecute cases of child exploitation, including child labor. (48)

In the West Bank, under the terms of the Oslo-era agreements between the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Israeli Government, the PA has civil law jurisdiction in the areas of the West Bank designated Area A and Area B, which represent approximately 39 percent of the West Bank’s land area and contain approximately 94 percent of the Palestinian population. The Israeli Government has control over the city of Jerusalem and Area C; the latter represents 61 percent of the West Bank’s land area and approximately 6 percent of the Palestinian population, as well as the vast majority of the West Bank’s agricultural areas, where many Palestinian children work. (49; 50; 51) Although PA laws apply in the Gaza Strip, the PA had little authority in the Gaza Strip, where Hamas exercises de facto control. (50)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether labor law enforcement agencies in the West Bank took actions to combat child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

In previous years, the Ministry of Labor reported that it was unable to inspect as many businesses per year as required by the Labor Law, due to inadequate funding. (4; 17)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether criminal law enforcement agencies in the West Bank took actions to combat child labor (Table 7).

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Criminal Law Enforcement	2016	2017

PA officials previously stated that inadequate resources hampered their capacity to enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (4)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The PA has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8).

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Committee on Child Labor	Create national policy on child labor. Led by the MOL and includes representatives from four other ministries, as well as international organizations. (22) Research was unable to determine whether the National Committee on Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
MOSA Child Protection Networks	Coordinate at the district level among service providers, law enforcement, and the Attorney General to protect vulnerable children, including those involved in child labor. (48; 54) Composed of MOSA, other PA agencies, and international organizations. The role of some agencies is to provide services to vulnerable children; others ensure that crimes against children are prosecuted in accordance with the law. (48; 54) Research was unable to determine whether the MOSA Child Protection Networks were active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The PA has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Policy Agenda (2017 – 2022)*	Aims to alleviate poverty through social programs for vulnerable groups and job creation programs for women and youth, improve primary and secondary school curricula, ensure equal access to education for marginalized areas, and ensure that technical and vocational training is aligned with labor market needs. (55) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the National Policy Agenda during the reporting period.

* Child labor elimination and prevention strategies do not appear to have been integrated into this policy.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the PA funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
MOSA Social Protection Programs†	MOSA programs in the West Bank provide cash assistance, health insurance, and free education. (54) Families are assessed for eligibility; one of the goals is to prevent families from resorting to child labor. MOSA and the Ministry of Education also make efforts to ensure that children who have dropped out are sent back to school. (54) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 in the implementation of this program.
MOSA Vocational Centers‡	MOSA program in the West Bank that operates 13 vocational centers for children who have dropped out of school. (48) Research was unable to determine what steps were taken in 2017 in the implementation of this program.
UN Education Programs	UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East programs that provide educational support for children and youth in refugee camps, as well as microfinance and other forms of support to families in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. (56) In 2017, UNICEF continued reconstruction and rehabilitation of schools, partially through children's art. UNICEF arranged for 16 students to travel from the Gaza Strip to the West Bank to attend the opening ceremony of an art exhibit, as an activity to support psychosocial services to children. (27) Limited school hours of 4 hours or fewer per day necessitated psychosocial services for approximately 230,000 students. Some of the artwork addressed the subject of child labor. (27) Moreover, during the reporting period, UNICEF provided protective services to over 8,100 students in the West Bank, aiming to enable them to attend school, and delivered school bags and supplies to 13,000 school children in the Gaza Strip. (57)

† Program is partially funded by the PA.

‡ In 2016, the PA had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (58)

West Bank and the Gaza Strip

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

MOSA previously indicated that additional educational programs are needed to address child labor, but it lacks sufficient funding to implement them. (17) Although there are programs in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including in construction, street work, illicit activities, and agriculture.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in the West Bank (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits all stages of child trafficking, including trafficking for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation, and both domestic and international trafficking, in accordance with international standards.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that slavery and practices similar to slavery, including forced labor, are criminally prohibited.	2017
	Ensure that the use, procurement, and offering of children for all forms of commercial sexual exploitation are criminally prohibited.	2017
Enforcement	Ensure that child labor laws are enforced in the Gaza Strip.	2010 – 2017
	Publish information on the labor and criminal enforcement of child labor laws, including the amount of funding, the number of labor inspectors, the number and type of inspections, the training provided to inspectors and investigators, the number of child labor violations, and penalties issued and collected, as well as the number of investigations, prosecutions, and convictions.	2010 – 2017
	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2016 – 2017
	Provide further resources and staff to the MOL and MOSA to conduct labor inspections and criminal investigations.	2010 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017
Government Policies	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Policy Agenda.	2017
	Implement the National Policy Agenda.	2017
Social Programs	Expand programs to improve access to education; for example, through ensuring that children are not subject to violence and that schools are weather-proof and provided with necessary equipment and hygienic facilities.	2011 – 2017
	Ensure that MOSA social programs are implemented.	2017
	Expand programs to further address child labor, specifically in construction, street work, illicit activities, and agriculture.	2010 – 2017

In 2017, Morocco, which administers an estimated 75 percent of the territory of the Western Sahara, made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government of Morocco passed two decrees in support of the recent Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers, which limits the employment of children between the ages of 16 and 18 for domestic work. In addition, the government operated child protection centers and continued to fund the Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program, providing direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria. However, some children in Western Sahara engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. The low number of labor inspectors may hinder adequate labor law enforcement. In addition, the scope of government programs that target child labor is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem. Although the government made meaningful efforts in all relevant areas during the reporting period, laws related to the minimum age for work and the use of children for illicit activities do not meet international standards. Research also could not determine if penalties were applied for violations related to the worst forms of child labor. In addition, programs to address child labor are insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Although research is limited, there is evidence that children in Western Sahara engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation. Commercial sexual exploitation of migrant girls occurs and is reportedly more prevalent in fishing villages and on fishing boats. (1) Some children with disabilities beg in the streets. Children, particularly in rural areas, are vulnerable to child labor due to similar barriers to educational opportunities faced in internationally recognized Morocco, such as deficient facilities, lack of reliable and safe transport, and unqualified teachers. (2; 1; 3)

In general, research has not been conducted on the extent of child labor in Western Sahara, nor has research explored education levels, and data on key indicators of children’s work and education are not available from the sources used in this report. (4)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

The Moroccan-administered portion of the territory of Western Sahara is subject to the same laws as internationally recognized Morocco. (5; 6; 7; 8) The Popular Front for the Liberation of the Saguia el-Hamra and Rio de Oro (Polisario Front), a Sahrawi national liberation movement, controls the remaining roughly 25 percent of the territory; information on the laws applicable in this sparsely populated area is unavailable. (9; 10; 3) Morocco has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor, which extend to the areas in Western Sahara administered by the Government of Morocco (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The Government of Morocco has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in Morocco’s legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

Compulsory Education Age	Yes	15	Article 1 of Law No. 04-00 (16)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 1 of Law No. 04-00 (16)

* No Conscription (17)

In 2017, the Government of Morocco passed two decrees related to the recent Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers that provides protections for child domestic workers. The two decrees together prohibited specific activities in the employment of domestic workers between ages 16 and 18 and provided a work contract model for domestic workers. (18; 19; 20; 3; 21; 22; 23)

The Labor Code does not apply to self-employed children, those who work in the traditional artisan or handicraft sectors for businesses with fewer than five employees, or those who work on private farms and in residences. This leaves children vulnerable to exploitation, which does not conform to international standards that require all children to be protected under the law establishing a minimum age for work. (24; 11; 10; 25) The types of hazardous work prohibited for children do not fully cover sectors in which child labor is known to occur or sectors in which work may be undertaken under conditions that harm children's health, safety, and morals. (12) Moroccan law does not provide increased penalties or a separate crime for using, procuring, and offering children for both the production and trafficking of drugs. (26; 8)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Morocco has established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3). Information about labor law and criminal law enforcement in Western Sahara is unavailable.

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration (MOLVI)	Enforce child labor laws and oversee programs on child labor through its child labor task force. (27; 24; 28; 26) Provide occupational health and safety services, administer social security, and organize labor inspections and employment services through nationwide satellite offices. (28) Renamed from the Ministry of Employment and Social Affairs, and maintains the same functions. (3)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforce prohibitions on prostitution and other exploitive crimes involving minors, as established in the Penal Code. (24; 29)
General Prosecutor ( Procureur General )	Prosecute criminal offenses against children and process cases involving women and children within the court system through the Child Labor Units. Formerly under the Ministry of Justice and Liberties but made independent during the reporting period. (3)

In 2017, labor inspectors visited 25 companies in the 2 largest regions of the Moroccan-administered portion of the territory of Western Sahara. They removed 6 children under the age of 15 from work and registered 21 children between the ages of 15 and 17 at work. (30)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Morocco has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Technical Committee Under the Special Ministerial Commission for the Protection and Improvement of Childhood	Ensure inter-sectoral coordination and monitoring of the implementation of international conventions on the issue of children through a committee of 25 government bodies, chaired by the Head of the Government of Morocco. Establish strategies and mechanisms to implement national policies and plans in the area of child protection and in coordination efforts managed primarily at the local and regional levels. (26; 31)
MOLVI	Coordinate policies and efforts to combat child labor, providing guidance and limited funding to NGOs working against child labor through its Office for the Fight Against Child Labor. (28; 32; 33)
Ministry of Solidarity, Women, Family, and Social Development (MSWFSD)	Continue child protection and child labor elimination efforts. Increase children’s access to education. (29; 34) Responsible for implementing the Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children. (24; 35) Support 142 Child Reception Centers that provide services to child victims of violence. (26)
Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation	Coordinate efforts to reduce migrant vulnerability to child labor through its Delegate Ministry in Charge of Moroccans Living Abroad and Migration Affairs. Promote migrant children’s access to public education facilities in addition to other social services and assistance. (28; 26; 36; 3)
Ministry of National Education, Vocational Training, Higher Education, and Scientific Research	Provide education and job training to former child workers, including former child domestic workers and migrant youth. (24; 26)

The Ministry of Employment and Social Affairs was renamed the Ministry of Labor and Vocational Integration. (3) The Ministry in Charge of Moroccans Living Abroad and Migration Affairs became a delegate ministry under the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation. (3) In addition, the Ministry of National Educational and Vocational Training was renamed the Ministry of National Education, Vocational Training, Higher Education, and Scientific Research. (3)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The Government of Morocco has established policies related to child labor (Table 5). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including the lack of inclusion of child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Migration Strategy.

Table 5. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
MSWFSD’s Integrated Public Policy on the Protection of Children in Morocco	Promotes an interdisciplinary approach to respond to child exploitation, among other issues. (24; 28; 35; 31) In 2017, activities included an informational workshop and training on social standards for implementing partners; the development of terms of reference for technical support for the promotion of good parenting; and the development of terms of reference to raise awareness on the 2016 Law on Setting Up Employment Conditions of Domestic Workers, specifically the implications for domestic workers between the ages of 16 and 18. (8; 37; 3)

The Government of Morocco has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Migration Strategy. (28; 38; 33; 39; 40)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the Government of Morocco funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor, which extended to Western Sahara (Table 6). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors—in particular, children victims of commercial sexual exploitation.

Table 6. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
Tayssir Conditional Cash Transfer Program†	MSWFSD program that provides direct cash transfers to qualifying families whose children meet school attendance criteria and that aims to increase school enrollment and reduce dropout rates, particularly in rural areas, with 832,500 project participants in 2015–2016 and 509,475 in 2016–2017. (27; 7; 28; 29; 35; 37; 10; 30) The cash transfer program demonstrated a significant improvement in school participation and a modest improvement in test scores. (41; 42)

† Program is funded by the Government of Morocco.

‡ The Government of Morocco had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (7; 8; 28; 33; 37; 3)

Although the government has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, including children victims of commercial sexual exploitation. (8; 3; 28; 43)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Western Sahara (Table 7).

Table 7. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that laws prohibit children from being used, procured, or offered in illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that the types of hazardous work prohibited for children under 18 that may be undertaken in conditions that harm children’s health, safety, and morals are comprehensive.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that all children are protected by law, including children who are self-employed, work for artisan and handicraft businesses with fewer than five employees, or work on private farms and in residences.	2017
Government Policies	Continue the integration of child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the National Migration Strategy policy.	2016 – 2017
Social Programs	Conduct a comprehensive study of children’s work activities to determine whether they are engaged in or at risk of being involved in child labor, and determine the number of child laborers and education levels.	2013 – 2017
	Remove barriers to rural children’s ability to access educational opportunities.	2015 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, including child victims of commercial sexual exploitation.	2017

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Yemen made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Republic of Yemen Government signed the Safe Schools Declaration, which aims to promote and protect the right to education during armed conflict. The Republic of Yemen Government also participated in programs that supported educational and social services. However, children in Yemen engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and armed conflict. Children also engage in child labor in fishing. Due to the ongoing armed conflict, the internationally recognized Republic of Yemen Government had limited operational control of its ministries in Yemen. As a result, it was unable to provide demobilization and rehabilitation services to children who have been recruited and used by various groups engaged in armed conflict.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Yemen engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and armed conflict. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Children also engage in child labor in fishing. (6; 7; 8) According to the 2010 National Child Labor Survey, most working children were in the agricultural and domestic work sectors. (6) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Yemen.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	13.6 (834,866)
Working Children by Sector	5 to 14
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	68.0
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	10.3
Primary Completion Rate (%)		71.6

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity

	Hunting, activities unknown (6)
Industry	Quarrying and mining† (6; 7; 8)
	Construction,† activities unknown (6)
	Working in carpentry† and welding† workshops (12; 13)
Services	Street work, including selling items, begging, and scavenging garbage (6; 14; 15; 16; 17; 18)
	Working in auto repair and mechanic shops† (7; 8)
	Domestic work† (6; 11)
	Selling goods in stores (6)
	Voluntarily recruited children used in hostilities by state armed groups (3)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (19; 20; 4; 5)
	Use in illicit activities, including in drug trafficking (21; 5)
	Domestic work, begging, and working in small shops, each as a result of human trafficking (5)
	Recruitment of children by non-state armed groups for use in armed conflict (1; 2; 3; 22)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

The civil war in Yemen continued throughout 2017. The UN called the situation the world’s worst humanitarian crisis. (23) In 2017, nearly 75 percent of the population, including 11.3 million children, were in need of humanitarian assistance. (23) The conflict led to the internal displacement of more than 2 million people, and the country was on the verge of famine. (24) Approximately 400,000 children were suffering from severe, acute malnutrition. (25) The Republic of Yemen Government had limited operational control over its ministries and remained unable to enforce regulations. (7) As of December 2017, there were 280,000 refugees and asylum seekers, primarily from Somalia and Ethiopia, at risk of exploitation in Yemen. (26; 27)

Reports indicate that, due to economic hardships, commercial sexual exploitation of children has increased over the past several years. Girls are subjected to human trafficking for commercial sexual exploitation within Yemen in hotels and clubs located in Aden, Sana’a, Ta’iz, and other cities. (5) Also, there is evidence that Yemeni children, mostly boys, migrate to Sana’a, Aden, and Saudi Arabia, where they are engaged in forced labor for domestic work, begging, or work in small shops. Limited evidence points to the existence of chattel slavery, as children are sold and inherited as property in the Al Hudaydah and Al Mahwit governorates. (5) In 2017, IOM stated that 25 percent of its services in Yemen were provided to unaccompanied child migrants, mostly boys ages 14 to 17 from Ethiopia. Some of these children were subjected to human trafficking. (21)

Various armed groups, including the Houthis, the Houthi-affiliated Popular Committees, Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, and government forces, recruited and used child soldiers to serve as guards or fighters. (1; 2; 22; 3; 28) To remain alert, some child soldiers use qat, a mild narcotic that is legal in Yemen. (3) The UN documented that at least four child soldiers were killed during hostilities in Yemen in 2017, two of whom were affiliated with Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula. (28)

Limited evidence suggests that child recruitment increased because many children were unable to attend school. (1) There were 1,669 schools that were either partially or totally destroyed due to the conflict. According to UNICEF, more than 2 million children were unable to attend school. (24) Many families could not afford transportation costs to schools, and approximately 12,000 schools were closed because teachers were not being paid. (1; 29) UNICEF predicted that during the 2017–2018 academic year, 4.5 million children would be unable to resume classes. (30)

Among the Muhamasheen (“marginalized”) minority group, generally of sub-Saharan African origin, illiteracy rates are high, and child labor in the form of begging is prevalent. (14)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Yemen has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

The Republic of Yemen Government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Yemen's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including child trafficking.

Free Public Education	Yes		Article 87 of the Child Rights Law (33)

* No conscription (35)

‡ Age calculated based on available information

While Article 248 of the Penal Code criminalizes buying, selling, and dealing in human beings, the legal framework does not appear to prohibit forced labor.

The legal framework does not adequately prohibit using, procuring, or offering a child in pornography and pornographic performances, or using a child in prostitution.

Ministerial Order No. 11 of 2013 does not explicitly include all phases of child trafficking, such as harboring, transporting, and transferring children for exploitation. (31)

Research was unable to discover any law to criminally prohibit recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The Republic of Yemen Government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, research found no evidence that the Republic of Yemen Government's law enforcement agencies took actions to combat child labor, including its worst forms.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor's Child Labor Unit	Enforce child labor laws, conduct inspections, inform the Ministry of the Interior of any violations, and refer children found during inspections to appropriate social services. (8)
Ministry of the Interior	Enforce child labor laws. Police departments within the Ministry of the Interior handle human trafficking investigations. (8)
Ministry of Justice	Enforce child labor laws and prosecute and adjudicate child labor cases. (8)
Ministry of Human Rights, Ministry of Legal Affairs, Parliament, and the Social Fund for Development	Maintain supporting roles in combating child trafficking. (8)

Labor Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether the Republic of Yemen Government's labor law enforcement agencies took actions to combat child labor in 2017. During the previous year, the Republic of Yemen Government was unable to enforce child labor laws due to the civil war. (7) Likewise, in 2016, no funding and training were provided for labor inspection, and there was no mechanism to receive child labor complaints. (7)

The Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor does not have the authority to enforce child labor laws in casual employment, farming, and domestic work. (36)

Criminal Law Enforcement

Research did not find information on whether the Republic of Yemen Government's criminal law enforcement agencies took actions to combat child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The Republic of Yemen Government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 6).

Table 6. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee to Combat Child Labor	Coordinate child labor issues in Yemen. Comprises representatives from the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor, other state agencies, ILO-IPEC, and local NGOs. (8) Research was unable to determine whether the National Steering Committee to Combat Child Labor was active during the reporting period.
Technical Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons	Develop a national strategy to combat human trafficking. (37) Research was unable to determine whether the Technical Committee for Combating Trafficking in Persons was active during the reporting period.
National Network for Child Protection	Implement training programs and media awareness campaigns, and advocate progress on children's issues. (8) Research was unable to determine whether the National Network for Child Protection was active during the reporting period.
Joint Technical Committee to Prevent Recruitment of Children in the Yemeni Armed Forces	Implement and monitor the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces. Comprises the Ministry of Defense, the Higher Council for Motherhood and Childhood, the Civil Status and Registration Authority, and UN representatives. (38) Research was unable to determine whether this Committee was active during the reporting period.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The Republic of Yemen Government has established policies related to child labor (Table 7). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including covering all worst forms of child labor.

Yemen

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Table 7. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces	Ensures that national laws comply with international standards, prohibit the recruitment and use of children in armed forces, investigate allegations of violations, and facilitate UN access to monitor compliance. (39) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement this policy during the reporting period.

In 2017, the Republic of Yemen Government signed the Safe Schools Declaration, which aims to promote and protect the right to education during armed conflict by deterring parties to the conflict from using schools and by investigating violations. (40; 41)

Although the Republic of Yemen Government has adopted the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces, research found no evidence of a policy on other worst forms of child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the Republic of Yemen Government participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including adequacy of services to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 8. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Child Protection Activities	UNICEF-funded programs designed to provide psychosocial support, including access to sports and arts, in community-based and mobile centers. (42) In 2017, UNICEF provided psychosocial support to more than 519,000 children in 16 governorates through fixed and mobile child-friendly spaces and youth clubs. More than 323,000 children received skills training on how to protect themselves in emergency situations. (24)
Educational Activities	UNICEF-funded programs conducted in cooperation with the Republic of Yemen Government that provide educational support activities and services. (42) In 2017, 600,000 students gained access to education through the rehabilitation of 430 schools and the provision of temporary learning spaces. More than 409,000 students received school bags and recreational kits. (24) UNICEF also provided community-based classes, which brought 30,000 out-of-school children back to school. (24)

Although Yemen has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, particularly in commercial sexual exploitation, child soldiering, and fishing.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Yemen (Table 9).

Table 9. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2013 – 2017
	Ensure that forced labor and all phases of child trafficking are criminally prohibited.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law is sufficiently comprehensive to prohibit using a child for prostitution and using, procuring and offering a child for pornography and pornographic performances.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 into non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
Enforcement	Ensure that the Labor Inspectorate has the capacity to enforce labor laws, including reestablishing a mechanism to receive child labor complaints.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors have proper funding and training to conduct inspections.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that authorities enforce minimum age protections in all sectors in which the worst forms of child labor are prevalent, including in agriculture and domestic work.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that criminal law enforcement agencies enforce child labor laws.	2015 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure all coordinating bodies are able to carry out their intended mandates.	2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Implement the Action Plan to End and Prevent the Recruitment of Children by the Yemeni Armed Forces.	2009 – 2017
	Adopt a policy that addresses all relevant worst forms of child labor, such as commercial sexual exploitation and child trafficking.	2009 – 2017
Social Programs	Expand programs to improve children's access to education.	2013 – 2017
	Institute a rehabilitation and reintegration program for children engaged in armed conflict and children involved in other worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, child soldiering, and fishing.	2011 – 2017

In 2017, Zambia made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government launched an Education Enhancement Project, which aims to strengthen teacher training and increase access to education in rural areas. However, children in Zambia continue to engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. The government drastically reduced the number of labor inspectors and funding for the Labor Inspectorate during the reporting period. In addition, the Education Act does not specify the school-going or compulsory education age, and human trafficking laws are discordant with international standards because they require threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Zambia engage in the worst forms of child labor, including commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1; 2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Zambia.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	28.1 (992,722)
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	65.2
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	27.6
Primary Completion Rate (%)		78.7

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2013, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (3)

Source for all other data: Understanding Children's Work Project's Analysis of Statistics from the Labour Force Survey (LFS), 2008. (4)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Work in the production of cotton,† tobacco,† and other cash crops, including applying fertilizers, grading or ridging fields, harvesting crops, spraying pesticides,† transplanting, watering, and weeding crops (1; 5; 6)
	Raising and herding† cattle (7; 8; 6)
	Fishing,† working on boats, cutting and smoking fish (9; 6)
	Production of charcoal† (6)
Industry	Mining gems, including amethysts and emeralds (10)
	Mining ore, including lead, zinc, iron ore, and copper (10)
	Work in quarries, including carrying heavy loads,† conducting rudimentary mine drilling,† crushing stones, and scavenging mine dump sites (8; 11; 6)
Services	Domestic work (12; 13; 6)
	Street work, including begging and vending (12; 6)

Sector/Industry	Activity
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor ‡	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2) Forced labor in agriculture, construction, domestic work, mining, and textile production, each sometimes as a result of human trafficking (2)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Children trafficked inside Zambia are primarily trafficked from rural to urban areas for domestic work and forced labor in agriculture. (10; 14; 15) Some children in Zambia are forced by Jerabo gangs, which are illegal mining syndicates in the Copperbelt province, to load trucks with stolen copper ore. (16; 2) Along Zambia’s borders, the commercial sexual exploitation of children is common. (14) The government has yet to release information on child labor from its 2008, 2012, or 2014 Labour Force Surveys, although the general Labour Force Survey results, which did not include data on child labor, were released in 2011, 2014, and 2016. (17; 18)

Long distances to schools create a barrier to education. (1; 19; 20) Families also face costs for basic education, including fees for school supplies, which prevent some children from attending school. (16; 1; 13) Inadequate educational infrastructure, materials, and a high student-teacher ratio further hinder students. (6; 20)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Zambia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Zambia’s legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including an undefined age range for compulsory education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Article 24 of the Constitution; Article 12 of the Employment Act (21; 22; 23)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Article 17 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act; Article 3 of the Prohibition of Employment of Young Persons and Children (Hazardous Labour) Order (24; 25)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities for Children	Yes		Prohibition of Employment of Young Persons and Children (Hazardous Labour) Order (25)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Articles 14 and 24 of the Constitution; Articles 143 and 263 of the Penal Code; Article 3 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act of 2008 (21; 23; 26; 27)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	No		Article 24 of the Constitution; Article 143 of the Penal Code; Articles 2–3 (1 – 4) of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act of 2008 (21; 23; 26; 27)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Article 144 of the Penal Code; Article 2 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act (24; 27)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Article 2 of the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act (24)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	N/A*
State Voluntary	Yes	18	Article 14 of the Defence Act (28)
Non-state	Yes	18	Article 3 of the Anti-Human Trafficking Act of 2008 (26)
Compulsory Education Age	No		Article 16 of the Education Act, 2011 (29)
Free Public Education	Yes		Article 15 of the Education Act, 2011 (29)

* No conscription (28)

Penalties for child prostitution violations in the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act are different from those in the Penal Code. Although the Penal Code treats child prostitution as a felony, with a minimum 20-year jail sentence, the Employment of Young Persons and Children Act treats it as a civil penalty and imposes a fine of $35 to $165 and possible discretionary prison time. In practice, the heavier statute of the Penal Code would be applied; however, research did not uncover any such prosecutions in recent years. (27; 25) In addition, human trafficking provisions remain discordant with international standards because they require threats, the use of force, or coercion to be established for the crime of child trafficking. (26)

The Education Act requires the government to provide free education up to the seventh grade and stipulates that education is compulsory for children of “school-going age.” (10; 29; 30) The Act, however, does not set a specific age or define “school-going age,” which may allow children to leave school before they are legally able to work. (29) The lack of standards in this area may increase the risk of children’s involvement in the worst forms of child labor.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor and Social Security (MLSS)	Implement, enforce, and regulate child labor laws. (10; 31; 18) Advise other government agencies on child labor issues and coordinate government efforts to combat child labor. (18; 6)
Zambia Police Service Child Protection Unit	Work with the MLSS, District Street Children Committees, and the Ministry of Youth, Sports, and Child Development to identify and remove vulnerable children from the streets. Place rescued street children with families, in foster care, or in children’s homes. (17) Work with immigration officials to combat child trafficking; with local officials to combat crimes against children; and with schools to educate and sensitize children about abuse. Collaborate with the Ministry of Justice to investigate and prosecute child labor cases. (32)
Zambia Police Service Victim Support Unit	Handle the enforcement of laws against human trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, and the use of children in illicit activities. (31; 33)
Ministry of Community Development, Mother and Child Health (MCDMCH)	Provide social services to victims of human trafficking or sexual abuse. Operate one government shelter in Luapula province and oversee two NGO shelters. (2)
Ministry of Justice	Investigate and prosecute child labor cases. (32)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MLSS that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including human and financial resource allocation.

Table 6. Labor Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Overview of Labor Law Enforcement	2016	2017

In 2016, the MLSS employed 110 labor inspectors, but the figure for 2017 was unknown. (6; 34) Without a documented increase, the number of labor inspectors likely remains insufficient for the size of Zambia's workforce, which includes approximately 6.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 40,000 workers in less developed economies, Zambia would employ about 172 inspectors. (36; 37; 38) The MLSS has stated that an insufficient budget, insufficient office space, inadequate training, and a lack of transportation and fuel have prevented it from adequately conducting inspections countrywide. (6; 39) The MLSS conducts labor inspections in registered private institutions only; it does not conduct investigations, allowed by law, in unregistered institutions, where child labor is more likely to be found. (40) A referral mechanism exists through District Child Labor Committees that allows labor officers to refer cases to NGOs; however, not all districts have a committee due to a lack of government funding. (31) The MLSS has stated that all penalties are administrated by the courts. (6)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Zambia took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including with training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

Research was unable to determine specific enforcement activities and their results. (6)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including efficacy in accomplishing mandates.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
MLSS-CLU	Coordinate with District Child Labor Committees (DCLCs) in Zambia's 114 districts to increase local awareness and mobilize communities against child labor, including its worst forms. (10; 31) Research was unable to determine coordination activities performed during the year.
DCLCs	Respond to child labor complaints at the local level and file complaints to the MLSS. Serve as the main referral mechanism for social welfare services. Comprises the Zambia Police Service; the MLSS; the Ministry of Community Development, Mother, and Child Health; and civil society stakeholders. (10) In 2017, the DCLC for the Chipata district was active, convening several meetings to assess current efforts and to plan activities to combat child labor. (42)
National Steering Committee on Child Labor	Advise and oversee on child labor matters, including implementation of the Hazardous Work Statutory Instrument. Comprises government representatives, employers, trade unions, and civil society members. (6; 33)

The Anti-Trafficking Interministerial Committee met during the year and hosted the Malawi anti-trafficking inter-ministerial committee. (43) In addition, due to overlapping responsibilities and communication lapses, individual agency mandates may not be effective in some cases. (43)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Child Labor Policy	Created an action plan and designates responsible agencies to address child labor issues. (10; 30; 44) Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the policy during the reporting period.
National Employment and Labor Market Policy	Aims to eliminate child labor. Research was unable to determine whether activities were undertaken to implement the policy during the reporting period.
UN's Sustainable Development Partnership Framework (2016–2021)	$806 million framework that builds upon the previous UNDAF but with a stronger emphasis on partnership. (45) Aims to prevent the worst forms of child labor and protect children. (46)

In 2017, the government was in the process of revising the National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor. (6) Research found no evidence of implementation of the National Child Labor Policy and National Employment and Labor Market Policy during the reporting period. The Seventh National Development Plan outlines some activities that indirectly aim at reducing child labor. (6) In addition, the government has not included child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Policy and the National Youth Policy. (10; 17)

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

At the 2017 Global Conference on the Sustained Eradication of Child Labor, the government made pledges concerning the ratification and domestication of international labor standards related to eliminating child labor; amending legislation to effectively address child labor; reviewing the Action Plan on Child Labor to take into account outside advice; adopting a strategy and action plan for youth employment, school to work transition and empowerment; and developing a social protection policy to better protect child labor and forced labor victims and their families. (47)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address all relevant sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor‡

Program	Description
USDOL-funded Projects	USDOL projects which aim to combat child labor. Includes: EMPOWER: Increasing Economic and Social Empowerment for Adolescent Girls and Vulnerable Women in Zambia, $5 million, 4-year project implemented by Winrock International and the Global Action Program on Child Labor Issues Project, implemented by the ILO in approximately 40 countries. (48; 49) Additional information is available on the USDOL website.
ARISE: Achieving Reduction of Child Labor in Support of Education	Joint initiative between Japan Tobacco International, Winrock International, and the ILO - that provides strategies to reduce the worst forms of child labor in tobacco-growing communities in Brazil, Malawi, Tanzania, and Zambia. (50; 51; 19)
Social Cash Transfer Program†	Provides funds to families and increases school enrollment. (17; 31; 52; 53) Participants reached through the Ministry of Community Development and Social Welfare increased to 590,000 households from 242,000 in 2016. (43)
Zambia National Service Skills Training Camps†	Provides life-skills training camps for at-risk youth, including for victims of the worst forms of child labor. (30) In 2017 the government established youth skills training centers within the Zambia National Service Skills Training Camps. (43)
World Bank-Funded Projects	Projects to improve access to education, particularly for girls. Includes: Education Enhancement Project (2017 – 2022)*, a $60 million project to improve math and science instruction in primary and secondary schools and Girls' Education and Women's Empowerment and Livelihood Project (GEWEL) (2015-2020), a $64 million project to provide livelihoods support to extremely poor households and increase secondary school enrollment for girls. (54; 55) By the end of 2017, the GEWEL Project supported 8,669 girls in secondary school. (56)

* Program was launched during the reporting period.

† Program is funded by the Government of Zambia.

‡ The government had other social programs that may have included the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor. (10; 57)

Although Zambia has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem in all relevant sectors because no programs target child labor in agriculture, domestic work, or commercial sexual exploitation. In addition, shelter space is insufficient, resulting in some victims being temporarily housed in jail. (58; 2)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Zambia (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Accede to the CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography.	2013 – 2017
	Determine through statutory instrument the “school-going age” for compulsory education, consistent with international law.	2012 – 2017
	Harmonize legislation to ensure that penalties for child commercial sexual exploitation are consistent.	2009 – 2017
	Ensure that laws prohibiting child trafficking do not require threats, the use of force, or coercion to be considered child trafficking.	2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Enforcement	Institutionalize training for labor inspectors, investigators, and law enforcement, including through periodic refresher courses.	2010 – 2017
	Authorize the Labor Inspectorate to assess penalties.	2017
	Publish complete information on Labor Inspectorate funding, number of labor inspectors, number of violations found, penalties imposed and collected, investigations conducted, prosecutions initiated, and convictions achieved.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure the number of labor inspectors is sufficient to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that labor inspectors receive adequate resources to enforce labor laws throughout the country and that inspections cover all areas in which children work, including registered and unregistered businesses.	2010 – 2017
	Establish District Child Labor Committees in remaining districts.	2011 – 2017
Coordination	Improve lines of communication and clarify responsibilities among agencies to improve effectiveness and referrals to social services.	2011 – 2017
Government Policies	Provide sufficient funding to implement existing policies.	2012 – 2017
	Integrate child labor elimination and prevention strategies into the Education Policy and National Youth Policy.	2013 – 2017
Social Programs	Publish the data on child labor from the 2008, 2012, and 2014 Labor Force Surveys.	2011 – 2017
	Provide free education to all children as required by law, improve school infrastructure, decrease the distance students must travel to access education, and increase the number of qualified teachers.	2012 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to address the full scope of the child labor problem in all relevant sectors, including agriculture, domestic work, and commercial sexual exploitation.	2011 – 2017

In 2017, Zimbabwe made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government established anti-human trafficking task forces in 7 out of 10 provinces, and the Stop Child Labor Program developed a bridge school that provided education and social services to former child laborers. The government also continued funding its cash transfer program, arrested perpetrators engaged in commercial sexual exploitation of children, and withdrew children from the worst forms of child labor. However, children engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and mining. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. Zimbabwe continues to lack specific social programs targeting sectors in which child labor is most prevalent. In addition, gaps remain in the country's legal framework against child labor, such as lack of free basic education, which increases children's vulnerability.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Zimbabwe engage in the worst forms of child labor, including in commercial sexual exploitation and mining. Children also engage in child labor in agriculture. (1; 2; 3; 4; 5) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Zimbabwe. Data on some of these indicators are not available from the sources used in this report.

Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education

Children	Age	Percent
Working (% and population)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Attending School (%)	5 to 14	Unavailable
Combining Work and School (%)	7 to 14	Unavailable
Primary Completion Rate (%)		88.9

Source for primary completion rate: Data from 2013, published by UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2018. (6)
Data were unavailable from Understanding Children's Work Project's analysis, 2018. (7)

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

Table 2. Overview of Children's Work by Sector and Activity

Sector/Industry	Activity
Agriculture	Farming, including the production of tea, cotton, tobacco, corn, and sugarcane (8; 9; 10; 11; 12; 13; 14; 4; 15)
	Fishing, including casting nets, hauling fish loads, and sorting fish (8; 9; 10; 12; 15)
	Forestry, such as dragging logs from felling sites and loading logs for transport (8; 11; 12)
	Cattle herding (8; 12)
Industry	Mining gold and chrome, using dangerous chemicals such as cyanide and mercury, and extracting material from underground passages and quarries† (8; 9; 16; 17)
Services	Street work, including vending and begging (8; 10; 11; 18; 19; 20; 15)
	Domestic work (8; 11; 12; 21; 22; 5; 15)
Categorical Worst Forms of Child Labor‡	Use in illicit activities, including drug trafficking and gambling (9)
	Commercial sexual exploitation, sometimes as a result of human trafficking (8; 9; 11; 12; 23; 24; 1; 25; 2; 3)
	Working in agriculture, mining for the production of gold and chrome, and domestic work, each as a result of human trafficking (9; 23; 5)

† Determined by national law or regulation as hazardous and, as such, relevant to Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182.

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

Zimbabwean children are trafficked to South Africa, Mozambique, and Zambia, where they become victims of commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor in domestic work. Zimbabwean children, especially orphans, are sometimes lured by relatives with the promise of education or adoption, but instead are recruited to work within the country as domestic workers or forced to work in mining, drug smuggling, or other illegal activities. (5) The deterioration of Zimbabwe's economy also contributes to an increase in child labor. (26; 27; 28) An NGO conducted research that revealed that girls under age 18 engaged in commercial sex due to push factors such as the breakdown of the family unit, poverty, and gender-based violence. (2; 29) In 2017, UNICEF reported that Zimbabwe experienced flooding that damaged schools in Tsholotsho, Hwange, Bubi, Masvingo, and Gokwe North, resulting in the displacement of hundreds of people, including children, from their homes. (30; 31) These push factors increase children's vulnerability to child labor, including its worst forms. (9)

Citizenship is derived from birth, but many children, especially orphans and children living in rural areas, are not registered due to poverty and lack of awareness of the requirements. (9; 24) Beginning in grade seven, children are unable to sit for exams without a birth registration, leading some to enter the workforce at a young age. (9; 15) School fees are often prohibitively expensive and limit access to education. (10; 32) According to the UN, children with disabilities, especially in rural areas, experience greater abuse, violence, stigma, and exclusion, and, therefore, have limited access to education. (24)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Zimbabwe has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

	Convention	Ratification
	ILO C. 138, Minimum Age	✓
	ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
	UN CRC	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓
	UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography	✓
	Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons	✓

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in Zimbabwe's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including access to free public education.

Table 4. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	16	Section 3 of the Labor Amendment Act (33)
Minimum Age for Hazardous Work	Yes	18	Section 11(4) of the Labor Act (33)
Identification of Hazardous Occupations or Activities Prohibited for Children	Yes		Section 11(4) of the Labor Act; Section 10A of the Children's Act (33; 34)
Prohibition of Forced Labor	Yes		Sections 54–55 of the Constitution; Section 4A of the Labor Act (33; 35)
Prohibition of Child Trafficking	Yes		Section 3 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (36)
Prohibition of Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children	Yes		Section 87 of the Criminal Law Act; Section 3 of the Sexual Offenses Act; Section 8(2) of the Children's Protection and Adoption Act; Section 3 of the Trafficking in Persons Act (36; 37; 38; 39)
Prohibition of Using Children in Illicit Activities	Yes		Section 156 of the Criminal Law Act; Section 10 of the Children's Protection and Adoption Act (9; 38; 39)
Prohibition of Military Recruitment
State Compulsory	Yes	18	Section 9 of the National Service Act (40)
State Voluntary	Yes	16	Sections 5 and 10 of the National Service Act (40)

Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Non-state	No
Compulsory Education Age	Yes	12‡	Section 5 of the Education Act (41)
Free Public Education	No

‡ Age calculated based on available information (42)

Zimbabwean law does not mandate free basic education for children. (43) Lack of access to basic education may increase the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (9) In addition, children in Zimbabwe are required to attend school only up to age 12. This standard makes children ages 12–15 vulnerable to child labor because they are not required to attend school and not legally permitted to work. (42)

In 2017, the Mines and Minerals Amendment Bill was under legislative review and awaited final approval. The newly proposed amendments would allow for the revocation of a mining license if miners engaged in the use of child labor. (32)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Public Service, Labor, and Social Welfare (MPSLSW) that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Table 5. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Public Service, Labor, and Social Welfare (MPSLSW)	Enforce labor laws and investigate labor-related complaints, including complaints involving child labor. Established a Department for Child Welfare and Probation Services responsible for child protection services, including investigating, intervening in, and reporting on child abuse cases. (9; 11)
Zimbabwe Republic Police (ZRP)	Enforce laws related to the worst forms of child labor in conjunction with the MPSLSW and the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs. (9) Address issues related to child labor through victim-friendly units in every district. Conduct transnational trafficking investigations through an anti-trafficking desk at Zimbabwe's INTERPOL office. (9)
Ministry of Justice and Legal Affairs	Oversee all courts, including labor courts. Address trafficking and child victim cases through victim-friendly courts. (9)

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2017, labor law enforcement agencies in Zimbabwe took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MPSLSW that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including penalty assessment authorization.

The MPSLSW's inspectorate has assigned designated agents who conduct inspections in specific regions and labor inspectors who conduct inspections in all regions. (44) It is unclear whether designated agents conduct child labor investigations in the informal sector. Labor inspectors also oversee arbitration and conciliation, which strains their capacity to conduct onsite investigations to combat child labor. (44)

In 2017, the MPSLSW conducted investigations and removed 73 children from commercial sexual exploitation. (25) The MPSLSW transported 53 girls subjected to commercial sexual exploitation to a safe location to receive assistance. (32) The number of labor inspectors is likely insufficient for the size of Zimbabwe's workforce, which includes approximately 7.9 million workers. According to the ILO's technical advice of a ratio approaching 1 inspector for every 15,000 workers in developing economies, Zimbabwe would employ about 527 labor inspectors. (45; 46) Research indicates that the government continues to lack sufficient resources, mainly financial, to investigate child labor law violations. (8; 47)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2017, criminal law enforcement agencies in Zimbabwe took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the MPSLSW that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including the publication of enforcement data.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 8). However, gaps exist that hinder the effective coordination of efforts to address child labor, including the efficacy of coordination activities.

Table 8. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role and Description
National Steering Committee to Address the Worst Forms of Child Labor	Address the worst forms of child labor. Chaired by the MPSSLW and includes the Ministries of Health and Child Care; Primary and Secondary Education; and Youth Development, Indigenization, and Empowerment. (49) Also includes international organizations and civil society groups, such as workers' and employers' organizations. (49; 50) It is unclear whether the committee met to address child labor. (32)
Ministry-Level Committee on Children's Issues	Coordinate government ministries' efforts related to children's issues, including child labor. Includes the MPSSLW and the Ministries of Education; Women's Affairs; and Youth Development, Indigenization, and Empowerment. (9; 11; 49) Research could not find information about the activities and achievements of this coordinating body.
Child Protection Committees	Operate at the village, ward, district, provincial, and national levels to discuss issues affecting children, including child labor. Representatives include ministries, civil society, local volunteers, and teachers. Report to the ministry-level Committee on Children's Issues. (32) Research could not find information about the activities and achievements of this coordinating body.
National Task Force on Street Children	Outline strategies to combat child labor, including feeding street children at drop-in centers, reuniting children with their families, and offering counseling sessions. Chaired by the MPSSLW and includes NGOs that work on street children's issues. (9; 49) Also includes the Ministry of Home Affairs, represented by the ZRP. (32) Research could not find information about the activities and achievements of this coordinating body.
Anti-Trafficking Inter-Ministerial Committee	Create a national action plan to combat human trafficking and promote the reintegration and rehabilitation of trafficking victims, including children. (8; 51) The committee met twice during the year. In addition, 7 of 10 provinces established anti-trafficking in persons provincial taskforces led by local community leaders. (32)

The National Steering Committee on Victim Friendly Courts met during the year to discuss child protection issues in court proceedings. In addition, the government collaborated with the Zimbabwe National Council for the Welfare of Children (ZNCWC) to develop a child labor handbook that explains the child labor laws to labor inspectors, child protection services staff, and representatives from labor unions. (32) The ZNCWC also signed a Memorandum of Understanding with state broadcaster Zimbabwe Broadcasting Corporation to allow ZNCWC to publish content on child labor issues. (32)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including mainstreaming child labor issues into relevant policies.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor	Strengthens understanding of child labor issues and creates an entity to coordinate responses to the findings of this analysis. Consists of three focus areas: education assistance, poverty assistance through a cash transfer scheme, and health assistance. (9) Research could not determine whether actions were taken during the year.
Trafficking in Persons National Plan of Action (2016–2018)	Aims to implement the UN Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons through the development of strategies to combat human trafficking, with emphasis on prevention, protection, prosecution, and partnership. The plan was developed with technical support from IOM, UNODC, and the Southern African Development Community, and officially launched in July 2016. (52) During the implementation of the plan, victims received medical assistance, and there were awareness-raising campaigns. (53)
Zimbabwe UN Assistance Development Framework (2016–2020)	Integrates child labor prevention strategies in the Education for All campaign headed by the UN. Promotes gender equality, reduction of HIV/AIDs prevalence, and allocates social resources to address child labor. (54) Research could not determine whether actions were taken during the year.

Although the MPSSLW, in collaboration with the ILO, previously conducted a child labor rapid assessment that prompted the development of the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor, the government took no actions to operationalize the plan and did not use the results of the assessment to inform policies or programs. (8) In 2017, all ministries approved the National Social Protection Policy Framework that includes social protection strategies to address poverty, social insurance, and labor market interventions. Despite this, the policy does not explicitly include child labor prevention and elimination measures. (32)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

In 2017, the government funded and participated in programs that may contribute to the prevention or elimination of child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of programs to address the full scope of the problem.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Program	Description
Phase III of the National Action Plan for Orphans and Vulnerable Children (2016–2020)	UNICEF Child Protection Fund program that includes a focus on equity and access to quality education for children and provides child protection services. Provides a cash transfer program that encourages families to keep children in school. (55) During the year, cash transfers reached at least 63,095 poor households in 23 districts, and provided child protection and welfare services to 57,596 children. (53)
Stop Child Labor Program	Hivos-funded program that establishes child labor-free zones throughout the country. The program includes the Ministry of Labor, Coalition Against Child Labor in Zimbabwe, African Network for the Prevention and Protection Against Child Abuse and Neglect, Progressive Teachers Union of Zimbabwe, Zimbabwe Teachers' Association, and the General Agriculture and Plantation Workers Union. (12) Teachers, labor inspectors, police officers, and other stakeholders support this initiative by sending child laborers back to school. (56) In 2017, the Progressive Teachers Union of Zimbabwe and the Coalition Against Child Labor in Zimbabwe developed a bridging school for dropout students. To date, the school has served 92 ex-child laborers. (57) The program funding expired in April 2017. (32)
Basic Education Assistance Module (BEAM)†	Government program, supported by the UK Department for International Development, that provides basic financial assistance to families for education costs, such as tuition and examination fees. Aims to keep children in school and to enroll children who lack access to school as a result of economic hardship. (58) The Government continued support throughout the year, but it is unclear how many students benefitted. (32) BEAM's primary school beneficiaries totaled 298,186 children, and secondary school beneficiaries totaled 90,284 children. (53)

† Program is funded by the Government of Zimbabwe.

In 2017, the Registrar General's office implemented a mobile birth registration program across the country to ensure that citizens receive identity documents, including birth certificates. (53) Although Zimbabwe has programs that target child labor, the scope of these programs is insufficient to fully address the extent of the problem, especially the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO ELIMINATE CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the elimination of child labor in Zimbabwe (Table 11).

Table 11. Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the age up to which education is compulsory is the same as the minimum age for work.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law establishes free basic education for children through age 15.	2009 – 2017
Enforcement	Ensure that inspectors have sufficient time and resources to conduct core inspection duties such as child labor inspections.	2017
	Authorize the labor inspectorate to assess penalties for labor law violations.	2017
	Increase the number of labor law inspectors to provide sufficient coverage of the workforce to meet the ILO's technical advice.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure adequate funding, human resources, and training for the labor inspectorate to conduct child labor inspections.	2009 – 2017
	Publish information about the Labor Inspectorate's funding and training, and the penalties collected.	2016 – 2017
	Publish information about the training system for criminal investigators, the number of criminal investigations, the number of prosecutions initiated, and the number of convictions achieved.	2015 – 2017
Coordination	Ensure that child labor committees meet regularly to address the worst forms of child labor.	2016 – 2017

Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Government Policies	Implement the National Action Plan to Combat Child Labor.	2010 – 2017
	Integrate child labor prevention and elimination measures in relevant policies, such as the National Social Protection Policy Framework.	2017
Social Programs	Collect and publish data on the extent and nature of child labor to inform policies and programs.	2017
	Ensure that children are registered at birth to facilitate their entrance into secondary school.	2014 – 2017
	Ensure that children with disabilities have equal access to education.	2016 – 2017
	Expand existing programs to address the scope of the child labor problem, especially to address commercial sexual exploitation of children.	2010 – 2017

Non-Independent Countries and Territories

Limited information is available regarding child labor and government efforts to combat it in non-independent countries and territories eligible for Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) benefits. Obtaining data on the prevalence and distribution of the worst forms of child labor in these countries is difficult, and statistics on children's work and school attendance are often unavailable from the sources used in this report. In some cases, there is no evidence to suggest that the worst forms of child labor exist in certain territories. In these cases, when laws appear to meet the guidelines called for in ILO C. 182 and embodied in the Trade and Development Act (TDA), and when the territory has a good enforcement framework, no suggested actions have been included.

With regard to ratification of key international conventions concerning child labor, these non-independent countries and territories generally are not eligible to become members of the ILO. However, although they are not members of the ILO, ILO C. 138 and ILO C. 182 may apply to some of them. (1; 2) Ratification of other conventions, such as the UNCRC, may apply to some of them.

Across non-independent countries and territories, research found various legal structures that govern laws and regulations related to child labor, including its worst forms. Some territories are self-governing, except in the areas of foreign affairs and defense. Domestic laws in the metropolis do not generally apply to these territories, unless explicitly extended. In other territories, certain domestic laws of the metropolis apply, and in a few territories, all domestic laws in the metropolis apply.

Research found some information on the efforts of non-independent countries and territories in the areas of laws and regulations, enforcement, coordination, policies, and programs; however, this information, in many cases, was limited.

Assessments

Evidence suggests that the worst forms of child labor are an issue in some non-independent countries and territories. These entities are assessed in the same manner that all other countries are assessed in this report. Other non-independent countries and territories do not appear to have a problem with the worst forms of child labor. These entities fall into three types.

The first type of non-independent country or territory is one in which the population of children is either nonexistent or extremely small (fewer than 50). For this reason, ILAB does not write profiles on these territories. The three territories that fit this category are the British Indian Ocean Territory, Heard Island and McDonald Island, and the Pitcairn Islands. Heard Island and McDonald Island are uninhabited, and the population of the Pitcairn Islands is fewer than 50 people. (3) The British Indian Ocean Territory is inhabited by U.S. and U.K. military personnel. (4)

The second type of non-independent country or territory is one with no evidence of a worst form of child labor problem and with a good legal and enforcement framework. Given both the lack of a demonstrated problem and the presence of a preventive legal and enforcement framework, ILAB does not assess the efforts of these territories or include suggested actions for them. Such entities are marked "No Assessment." Wallis and Futuna was the only territory not assessed in 2017.

The third type of non-independent country or territory is one assessed by advancement. A country or territory in this group received an assessment of advancement, indicating whether it was making Significant, Moderate, Minimal, or No Advancement in its efforts to prevent or eliminate the worst forms of child labor. For 2017, the Cook Islands and Western Sahara received an assessment of Moderate Advancement; Anguilla, the British Virgin Islands, and the West Bank and Gaza Strip received an assessment of Minimal Advancement; and Christmas Island, the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, the Falkland Islands (Islas Malvinas), Montserrat, Niue, Norfolk Island, Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha, and Tokelau received an assessment of No Advancement.

CHRISTMAS ISLAND

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Christmas Island made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Christmas Island. However, a gap in the legal framework for light work leaves children vulnerable to involvement in child labor. The law also does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities.

COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Cocos (Keeling) Islands made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in the Cocos (Keeling) Islands. However, a gap in the legal framework for light work leaves children vulnerable to involvement in child labor. The law also does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities.

NORFOLK ISLAND

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Norfolk Island made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Norfolk Island. However, the legal framework does not have a minimum age for work for children. The law also does not fully protect children from commercial sexual exploitation or hazardous work.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Christmas Island, the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, or Norfolk Island. (1; 2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Christmas Island (CI), the Cocos (Keeling) Islands (CKI), and Norfolk Island (NI) are included as part of the territory of the Australian Commonwealth, which provides for their defense. (1; 3; 4; 5; 6) All legislation of the Federal Parliament applies, unless specifically excluded. (7)

Because Australia has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor, the following conventions apply to Christmas Island, the Cocos (Keeling) Islands and Norfolk Island (Table 1).

CHRISTMAS ISLAND AND COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS

Christmas Island and the Cocos (Keeling) Islands are subject to the laws and regulations related to child labor of the Commonwealth of Australia and the state of Western Australia (Table 2). (1) However, gaps exist in their legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor including the prohibition of child trafficking.

Table 2. Laws and Regulations on Child Labor

CHRISTMAS ISLAND/COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS
Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation
Minimum Age for Work	Yes	15	Section 190 of the Western Australia Children and Community Services Act (8)

Free Public Education	Yes		Section 98 of the Western Australia School Education Act (14)

* No conscription (13)

In Christmas Island and the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, the Government of Western Australia's Children and Community Services Act sets the minimum age for light work in delivery employment at 10 years if the child is accompanied by a parent or an authorized adult. This is not in compliance with international standards, which set the minimum age for light work at age 13. (8; 15)

Laws related to child trafficking are not sufficient as the recruitment, harboring, transfer, and receipt of children for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation is not clearly criminalized. (10)

For Christmas Island and the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, the Western Australia School Education Act notes that education is compulsory until the end of the year in which a child reaches age 17 years and 6 months, until the child finishes the minimum requirements for secondary school graduation under the Curriculum Council Act of 1997, or until the child reaches age 18, whichever comes first. (14)

NORFOLK ISLAND

Norfolk Island is subject to the laws and regulations related to child labor of the Commonwealth of Australia and is transitioning to the law of the state of New South Wales. (16; 6) Certain Norfolk Island-specific laws related to child labor, including the Norfolk Island Employment Act and the Norfolk Island Criminal Code, remained in effect during the reporting period. (17) The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor. However, gaps exist in Norfolk Island's legal framework to adequately protect children from child labor, including the minimum age for work.

Overseas Territories of Australia

NORFOLK ISLAND
Standard	Meets International Standards: Yes/No	Age	Legislation

Free Public Education	Yes		Section 31 of the New South Wales Education Act (21)

* No conscription (13)

Norfolk Island does not have a minimum age for work. Under the Norfolk Island Employment Act, children younger than age 15 may begin working with certain limitations. (22; 18) This is not in compliance with international standards because it allows the employment of children under the age of 15. It also fails to meet international standards because it is lower than the compulsory age for education and may increase the risk of children's involvement in child labor. (15)

In addition, the government is not in compliance with international standards because it does not have a minimum age for hazardous work and has not identified hazardous occupations prohibited for children. The prohibitions on commercial sexual exploitation do not protect children age 16 and 17 and do not criminalize using or procuring a child for prostitution. The Norfolk Island Criminal Code does not criminalize forced labor, child trafficking, or the use of children in illicit activities, including in the production of drugs. (20)

On June 1, 2016, the Norfolk Island Administration Act went into effect, which established that New South Wales' (NSW) state laws apply to Norfolk Island. This includes raising the compulsory education age to 17. (2; 23; 16) Although this legislation has the potential for improving legal protections for children engaged in child labor, it is unclear when NSW's child labor laws will be implemented on Norfolk Island. (2; 23)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Although there is no evidence of a problem, the Government of Australia has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, which apply to Christmas Island, the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, and Norfolk Island. Norfolk Island also has its own institutional mechanisms to enforce labor laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

CHRISTMAS ISLAND/COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS
Organization/Agency	Role
Australian Federal Police, the Department of Immigration, and the Department of Regional Development	Enforce criminal laws related to the worst forms of child labor. (24) In the case of the Child Protection Operations Team, coordinate and investigate online and multi-jurisdictional online child sex exploitation issues, including child pornography. (25) In the case of Human Trafficking Teams, investigate human trafficking for the purpose of transnational sexual and labor exploitation. (26)

CHRISTMAS ISLAND/COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS
Organization/Agency	Role
Australian Department of Child Protection	Issue orders to stop a child from working if there is a risk of harm. (27)

Western Australian WorkSafe Inspectors provide services on Christmas Island and the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, where they have the right to enter, at any time, any workplace including aircraft, ships, and vehicles in which employees work or are likely to be in the course of their work. Inspectors have unrestricted access to workplaces, except where there is a statutory restriction, to determine whether employers are in compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act. (28; 29)

NORFOLK ISLAND
Organization/Agency	Role
Norfolk Island Employment Inspectors and Child Welfare Officers	Monitor the employment of young workers and take action with regard to their protection. Work to prevent the production of child pornography. (26)
Australian Federal Police	Be responsible for law enforcement services on Norfolk Island, including combating transnational crimes. (30; 31)

Norfolk Island no longer maintains its own inspectors since the Australian state of NSW assumed social service responsibilities in July 2016. (29)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

CHRISTMAS ISLAND/COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS/NORFOLK ISLAND
Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Interdepartmental Committee on Human Trafficking	Chaired by the Attorney General's Department, deals with child labor issues from a human trafficking perspective and consists of 10 government agencies. (32)

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO PREVENT CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Christmas Island, the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, and Norfolk Island (Table 5).

Table 5. Suggested Government Actions to Prevent Child Labor

CHRISTMAS ISLAND/COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS
Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Raise the minimum age for all light work to age 13 to comply with international standards.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017

WALLIS AND FUTUNA

NO ASSESSMENT

For the 2017 reporting period, no assessment has been made regarding Wallis and Futuna's efforts to advance the elimination of the worst forms of child labor because there is no evidence of a worst forms of child labor problem and the country has a good legal and enforcement framework on child labor.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Wallis and Futuna. Wallis and Futuna has a population of 12,200 inhabitants, including 3,420 children. (1; 2)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

Wallis and Futuna is considered a French Overseas Collectivity and therefore Wallis and Futuna cannot ratify international conventions; however, France's ratification of such conventions applies to Wallis and Futuna. (3) France has ratified all key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratification

ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor	✓
 UN CRC	✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict	✓

French law applies in Wallis and Futuna. (1; 4) The Government of France has established laws and regulations, which are in line with relevant international standards (Table 2).

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

Even with no evidence of a problem, the Government of France has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

Organization/Agency	Role
Service of Labor and Social Affairs Inspection of Wallis and Futuna	Enforce labor laws and report violations involving children to local social assistance personnel. (1; 2; 11) There were three labor inspectors in 2017. (11)
Defender of Rights	Promote children's rights, including through the prohibition of child labor. (12)
French National Police	Oversee the health and safety of children. (1)

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor.

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor.

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO PREVENT CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, there are no actions needed to advance the continued prevention of child labor in Wallis and Futuna.

COOK ISLANDS

---

MODERATE ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Cook Islands made a moderate advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government released its National Policy Framework for Children, which aims to protect the rights of children, and enacted the Family Protection and Support Bill, which includes protection for children from abuse and neglect. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in the Cook Islands. However, the government has not established adequate legal protection to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The law does not criminally prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances, or the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, the minimum age for work in the Cook Islands is not in compliance with international standards.

NIUE

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Niue made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Niue. However, the government has not established adequate legal protection to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The law does not criminally prohibit the use, procuring, or offering of a child for prostitution, the production of pornography, or pornographic performances, or the use of children for illicit activities, including for the production and trafficking of drugs. In addition, Niue has not established a minimum age for work and lacks a law that prohibits hazardous occupations and activities for children.

TOKELAU

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Tokelau made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Tokelau. However, the government has not established adequate legal protection to prevent the worst forms of child labor. The law does not criminally prohibit forced labor and child trafficking. In addition, Tokelau has not established a minimum age for work and does not prohibit hazardous occupations and activities for children.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in the Cook Islands, Niue, and Tokelau.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

COOK ISLANDS

The Cook Islands is a self-governing territory in free association with New Zealand, and it follows a combination of its own laws and some of the laws of New Zealand and the United Kingdom that were enacted prior to self-government in 1965. (1; 2)

Since 1988, no treaty signed, ratified, accepted, approved, or acceded to by New Zealand extends to the Cook Islands, unless New Zealand acted expressly on behalf of the Cook Islands. (1) The Cook Islands has ratified one key international convention concerning child labor (Table 1).

NIUE

Niue is a self-governing territory of New Zealand and is fully responsible for its internal affairs. (3)

Since 1988, no treaty signed, ratified, accepted, approved, or acceded to by New Zealand extends to Niue, unless it was done expressly on behalf of Niue. (1) Niue has ratified one key international convention concerning child labor (Table 1).

Overseas Territories of New Zealand

TOKELAU

Tokelau is a non-self governing territory of New Zealand; however, New Zealand statutory law does not apply to Tokelau unless it is expressly extended to Tokelau. (4)

International treaties are applied only with the consent of the Government of Tokelau. New Zealand's ratification of conventions does not apply automatically to Tokelau. (1; 5; 4) Tokelau has not ratified any key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 1).

Table 1. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratifications
	Cook Islands	Niue	Tokelau
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
 ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor
 UN CRC	✓	✓
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
 UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The Governments of the Cook Islands, Niue, and Tokelau have established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 2). However, gaps exist in their legal frameworks to adequately protect children from child labor, including the prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

There are no armed forces in the Cook Islands, Niue, and Tokelau. (6) New Zealand is responsible for the defense of the territories at their request and consultation. (6)

The Employment Relations Act prohibits children younger than age 13 from being employed. (7; 13) The Act also prohibits a school-aged person, defined as ages 13 to 16, from working during normal school hours, working for more than 10 hours a week outside of school hours, or doing work that is not considered light work. (7; 13) However, legislation does not determine the activities in which light work is permitted. (7) The Cook Islands does not criminalize the use of children in illicit activities, particularly the production and trafficking of drugs. The law does not criminally prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under age 18. (11)

Although Niue's Public Service Regulations prohibit the permanent employment of any person under age 18 in public service, minimum age protections do not apply to children working in the private sector. (17; 18) Niue has not established a minimum age for hazardous work or determined by law or regulation the types of work which are hazardous for children. (17) Niue's trafficking provision does not clearly criminalize domestic trafficking or trafficking of children in the absence of force, fraud, or coercion. (14) Niue does not criminalize the use, procurement, or offering of children for prostitution, pornography, or pornographic performances. Niue does not criminalize the use of children in illicit activities, particularly the production and trafficking of drugs. (17) The law does not criminally prohibit non-state armed groups from recruiting children under 18. (11)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The Governments of the Cook Islands, Niue, and Tokelau have established relevant institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 3).

Table 3. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

COOK ISLANDS

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor.

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor in the Cook Islands, Niue, and Tokelau. However, the Government of the Cook Islands has established policies related to child labor (Table 4).

Table 4. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

COOK ISLANDS
Policy	Description
Cook Islands National Youth Policy (2015–2020)	Identifies priority areas for youth, including education and work opportunities, health, and youth risk and resilience. (25)
National Policy Framework for Children (2017–2020)†	Provides a framework to protect the rights of children with outcomes focused on their health, education, safety, economic opportunities, and international connectivity. (26) Aims to protect the rights of children by strengthening data collection on children to improve the government’s understanding of their abuse and experience in the legal system and improving collaboration between the government, parents, and the community. (13; 26)

† Policy was approved during the reporting period.

In 2015, the Cook Islands released a youth study that indicated that children and young adults ages 15 through 24 were employed in restaurants, accommodations, offices, and other areas in the Cook Islands; however, the report did not specifically address whether children under age 18 were involved in child labor. (23)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor.

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO PREVENT CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, the following actions would advance the continued prevention of child labor in the Cook Islands, Niue, and Tokelau (Table 5).

Table 5. Suggested Government Actions to Prevent Child Labor

COOK ISLANDS
Area	Suggested Action	Year(s) Suggested
Legal Framework	Ratify ILO Convention 182; the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict; the UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography; and the Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.	2016 – 2017
	Ensure that the law’s light work provisions are specific enough to prevent children from involvement in child labor.	2017
	Ensure that the Crimes Act addresses and criminalizes commercial child sexual exploitation, including using, procuring, and offering a child for prostitution, for the production of pornography, and for pornographic performances.	2012 – 2017
	Ensure that the law prohibits the use of children in illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs.	2015 – 2017
	Ensure that the law criminally prohibits the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups.	2016 – 2017

ANGUILLA

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Anguilla made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. After two category five hurricanes impacted Anguilla, the Ministries of Health, Education, and Human Development, in cooperation with UNICEF, worked together to provide recovery assistance to children. In addition, the Minister of Labor from Anguilla attended the 10th ILO Meeting of Caribbean Ministers of Labor: Realizing Decent Work Under the 2030 Agenda, where there were discussions about a regional initiative to eliminate child labor in the Caribbean. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Anguilla. However, the law does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities and the minimum age for work does not meet international standards.

BRITISH VIRGIN ISLANDS

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the British Virgin Islands made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. After two category five hurricanes impacted the British Virgin Islands, the Ministry of Education and UNICEF worked together to reopen schools and provide recovery assistance to children. In addition, the Minister of Labor from the British Virgin Islands attended the 10th ILO Meeting of Caribbean Ministers of Labor: Realizing Decent Work Under the 2030 Agenda, where there were discussions about a regional initiative to eliminate child labor in the Caribbean. Research found no evidence that child labor exists in the British Virgin Islands. However, the law does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities, and the minimum age for recruitment by non-state armed groups does not meet international standards.

FALKLAND ISLANDS (ISLAS MALVINAS)

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, the Falkland Islands made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor, including its worst forms, exists in the Falkland Islands. However, the minimum age for work and hazardous work do not meet international standards. The law also does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities.

MONTSERRAT

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Montserrat made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor, including its worst forms, exists in Montserrat. However, the law does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities, and the minimum age for recruitment by non-state armed groups does not meet international standards.

SAINT HELENA, ASCENSIÓN, AND TRISTÁN DA CUNHA (FORMERLY SAINT HELENA)

NO ADVANCEMENT

In 2017, Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha (formerly Saint Helena) made no advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. Research found no evidence that child labor, including its worst forms, exists in Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha. However, there is not a minimum age for work and the law does not prohibit the involvement of children in illicit activities. Gaps also remain in legislation related to forced child labor and the trafficking of children for labor exploitation.

ANGUILLA, BRITISH VIRGIN ISLANDS, FALKLAND ISLANDS, MONTserrat, AND SAINT HELENA, ASCENSIÓN, AND TRISTÁN DA CUNHA

Research found no evidence that child labor exists in Anguilla (A), the British Virgin Islands (BVI), the Falkland Islands (FI), Montserrat (M), and Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha (SH). (1; 2; 3; 4)

Table 1 provides one key indicator on children's education in the BVI and M, the only Overseas Territories (OTs) of the United Kingdom for which information is available. Data on other key indicators for the UK OTs are not available from the sources used in this report.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

British Overseas Territories recognize the jurisdiction and sovereignty of the United Kingdom, but they are constitutionally not part of the UK. They are self-governing, except in the areas of foreign affairs and defense. (7) Domestic UK law does not generally apply unless explicitly extended in Anguilla, the British Virgin Islands, and Montserrat. The Falkland Islands and Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha generally incorporate English Law Ordinances to the extent permitted by local circumstances and subject to modification by local laws. (3) Under Article 35(4) of the ILO Constitution, when the UK ratifies a Convention, the Territory must consider if it will accept the Convention. If the Convention is accepted, it is considered applicable to that territory. (3; 7) The following conventions have been extended to the Overseas Territories of the UK (Table 2).

Table 2. Ratification of International Conventions on Child Labor

Convention	Ratifications
	A	BVI	FI	M	SH
 ILO C. 138, Minimum Age
ILO C. 182, Worst Forms of Child Labor			✓		✓
 UN CRC	✓	✓	✓		✓
UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict
UN CRC Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography
 Palermo Protocol on Trafficking in Persons

The Governments of the Overseas Territories of the UK have established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 3). However, gaps exist in their legal frameworks to adequately protect children from child labor, including prohibition of using children in illicit activities.

The minimum work age of 12 does not meet international standards. There is also a minimum work age of 14, but it only applies to industrial undertakings, transportation of passengers or goods by roads or rail, and work on ships. (8; 9) Moreover, the minimum age of 14 for hazardous work does not meet international standards. However, there is a prohibition of night work for children under age 16 in manufacturing of raw sugar, and a prohibition of night work in other industrial undertakings for children under 18. (8) Additionally, Anguilla does not prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, including the production and trafficking of drugs. (10; 14; 15) The law does not criminally prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (10)

In the British Virgin Islands, the Labor Code specifies that hazardous work is to be defined by the Minister of Labor, but the Minister of Labor has not defined hazardous work for children. (3; 4) In addition, the minimum age of 14 for light work is not in compliance with international standards. The law does not criminally prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. (18)

The minimum age of 14 for work is not in compliance with international standards. (22) The minimum age of 16 for hazardous work is not in compliance with international standards. (22; 23)

The law does not prohibit adults from using, procuring, and offering a child in the production and trafficking of drugs in the Falkland Islands. Although child trafficking has not been identified as a problem, the law does not criminalize trafficking children for labor exploitation. (28; 25; 24) Also, the law does not criminally prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

Children under age 18 may not be employed at night, or in occupations designated as hazardous. (29) The Minister of Labor for Montserrat is entrusted with the responsibility of deciding what constitutes hazardous work but Montserrat has not determined by national law or regulation the types of hazardous work prohibited for children. (29) The law does not criminally prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups. The law does not criminally prohibit the use of children in illicit activities. (27)

Overseas Territories of the United Kingdom

Saint Helena, Ascensión, and Tristán da Cunha (STATC) have not determined by national law or regulation the types of work prohibited to children, other than work on vessels engaged in maritime navigation. (34) The laws prohibiting forced labor in STATC are not sufficient as debt bondage and slavery are prohibited constitutionally, but not criminally. (35) While the UK Sexual Offences Act, which is applicable to this territory, prohibits trafficking for sexual exploitation, there are no laws prohibiting the trafficking of children for labor exploitation. (39) The law also does not criminally prohibit the recruitment of children by non-state armed groups.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for enforcement actions to address child labor. However, in Anguilla, the British Virgin Islands, the Falkland Islands, and Montserrat, the UK government has established an institutional mechanism for the enforcement of labor laws. (Table 4).

Table 4. Agencies Responsible for Child Labor Law Enforcement

ANGUILLA
Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor of the Ministry of Finance, Economic Development, Investments, and Tourism	Enforce child labor laws through the Labor Commissioner, pursuant to the Employment of Children (Restriction) Act. (40)
Department of Social Development of the Ministry of Social Development	Safeguard the well-being of children and investigate reports of child abuse. (41; 42)
Royal Anguilla Police Force	Investigate child protection cases. (41; 42)
BRITISH VIRGIN ISLANDS
Organization/Agency	Role
Ministry of Labor	Enforce labor laws and collect data and statistics on violations of the Labor Code. (16)
FALKLAND ISLANDS
Organization/Agency	Role
Royal Falkland Islands Police	Enforce laws protecting children against abuses, including sexual abuses. (43)
MONTSERRAT
Organization/Agency	Role
Department of Labor	Prohibit employment of children, pursuant to the Labor Code of 2012, under the Labor Commissioner. (44; 40)
Royal Montserrat Police Service	Enforce laws involving children outside of the labor law. (40)
Department of Social Services	Employ social workers to work on child protection issues. (40)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears no need for mechanisms to coordinate efforts to address child labor. However, the Governments of Anguilla and the Falkland Islands have established mechanisms to coordinate their efforts to address child labor (Table 5).

Table 5. Key Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

ANGUILLA
Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Ministry of Social Development	Implement child protection efforts and ensure that Anguilla complies with the CRC. (45)
FALKLAND ISLANDS
Coordinating Body	Role and Description
Falkland Islands Safeguarding Children Board	Ensure children's welfare, including protection from sexual abuses. Chaired by the Director of Health and Social Services, members include the Education Department, the Attorney General's Chambers, Social Services, Royal Falkland Islands Police, healthcare professionals, members of the Legislative Assembly, and a representative from the military community. (46)

Overseas Territories of the United Kingdom

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for policies to address child labor. However, the Government of Anguilla has established the Child Protection National Action Plan, Safeguarding and Child Protection Protocols and Procedures, and an Inter-Agency Child Protection Protocol. All of these policies may contribute to the prevention of child labor. (47; 48; 45; 41; 42; 49; 50; 51)

During the reporting period, the ministers of labor from Anguilla and the British Virgin Islands attended the 10th ILO Meeting of Caribbean Ministers of Labor: Realizing Decent Work Under the 2030 Agenda, where they discussed and participated in a regional initiative to eliminate child labor in the Caribbean. (52; 53)

VI. SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

As there is no evidence of a problem, there appears to be no need for programs to address child labor. However, the Government of Anguilla established the Safeguarding Children in Anguilla Project and Child Safeguarding in the Overseas Territories Regional Project that may contribute to the prevention of child labor. (45; 54; 55; 56) In addition, the Government of the British Virgin Islands has established child protection programs promoting children's rights, which may contribute to the prevention of child labor. (2; 40)

In 2017, two category five hurricanes impacted Anguilla and the British Virgin Islands, and had minor impacts on Montserrat. (4) During this time, all education services were temporarily disrupted. (4) When schools reopened after the hurricanes in Anguilla, the Ministries of Health, Education, and Human Development, in cooperation with UNICEF, supported children who experienced emotional trauma. (57; 58; 40) Likewise, the Ministry of Education and UNICEF worked together to reopen schools through recovery assistance in the British Virgin Islands. (58; 40)

VII. SUGGESTED GOVERNMENT ACTIONS TO PREVENT CHILD LABOR

Based on the reporting above, suggested actions are identified that would advance the continued prevention of child labor in Anguilla, the British Virgin Islands, the Falkland Islands, Montserrat, and Saint Helena, Ascension, and Tristan da Cunha (Table 6).

Table 6. Suggested Government Actions to Prevent Child Labor

Reference Materials: Key Concepts and Definitions

CHILDREN'S WORK AND EDUCATION STATISTICS: SOURCES AND DEFINITIONS

In this report, 121 countries include a statistical table (Table 1. Statistics on Children's Work and Education) with data on the percentage of working children, school attendance rate, percentage of children who combine school and work, and/or primary completion rate. For a smaller set of profiles, a chart lists the percentages of children who work by sector.

This appendix provides definitions and descriptions of the sources for these data and some of the strengths and weakness inherent in these data. In a few cases more current sources of data may be available than the ones used in this report; however, the most reliable, standardized sources available to date are used to allow for cross-country comparisons. Because reliable child labor surveys are not available for many countries, in some cases USDOL uses statistics from child labor surveys that are more than 10 years old (data from 2007) when this report was written. If data did not exist from the sources described below, if no other reliable and publicly available source of data exists for a country, or if data exists but has not been analyzed to allow for cross-country comparisons, this report concludes that the statistics are "unavailable."

Working Children

Many of the statistical tables in the country profiles in this report present data on the percentage and number of working children, or children in employment. Data presented in the current report may differ from data that were presented in previous reports because more updated data have become available.

Definition

"Working children" or "children in employment" describes children engaged in any economic activity for at least 1 hour during the reference period. Economic activity includes market production and certain types of non-market production, principally the production of goods and services for own use. The work children perform may be in the formal or informal economy, inside or outside family settings, or for pay or profit. This includes children working in domestic service outside the child's own household for an employer, paid or unpaid. This definition is in accordance with the Resolution Concerning Statistics of Child Labour (Resolution II), adopted by the 18th International Conference of Labour Statisticians in 2008, and the report, Marking Progress Against Child Labour, published by the ILO in 2013. (1; 2)

Working Children versus Children Engaged in Child Labor

This report presents statistics on "working children" rather than on "children involved in child labor." These terms are defined precisely in the section, "Definitions Related to Child Labor." The definition of working children does not vary among countries, and therefore, statistics on working children are comparable across the country profiles. In contrast, the definition of "children involved in child labor" is based on national legislation, including, for example, the minimum age for work, which varies from country to country. As a result, child labor data are not comparable across countries.

Data Sources and Limitations

Data are from the UCW project analysis of primarily four survey types: (a) the ILO's SIMPOC surveys; (b) UNICEF's Multiple Indicator Cluster Surveys (MICS); (c) national Labor Force Surveys (LFS); and (d) other national and regional level household surveys, including Demographic and Health Surveys (DHS). (3)

According to the UCW researchers, typical surveys on children's work do not collect sufficiently detailed information on children's activities to accurately measure economic activity. (4) This observation was repeated in December 2008 at the 18th International Conference of Labor Statisticians. A resolution adopted at the conference provides guidelines for governments on collecting child labor data. Specifically, the guidance indicates that countries can choose to use a broad framework to measure children's work and child labor that encompasses unpaid household services or that countries can use a narrower definition of children's work that excludes such services, as long as the definition used is clearly specified. (5) This resolution is contributing to the collection of more comparable data on children's involvement in non-market activities.

In analyzing the data from the above-mentioned surveys, the UCW attempted to apply a standard definition of children's work. Although UNICEF MICS and ILO SIMPOC reports, for example, each use a different definition of work. As of the writing of this report, MICS reports include household chores in their definition of work, while SIMPOC reports do not. To the extent possible, the UCW applied a common definition of work to the micro-data described. To date, this has resulted in the individual analysis of more than 184 data sets. While every attempt was made to present a standardized child work statistic, differences across the surveys have the potential to affect the comparability of statistics across countries and across years. Some of these differences are explained in greater detail here but, in general, they include differing age groups, questionnaire content and wording, purpose of the survey, sample design, non-sampling errors, and year of data collection.

In general, data are presented for children ages 5 to 14, but some of the profiles present a work statistic for children ages 6 to 14, 7 to 14, or 10 to 14, depending on the age categories used in the original survey. The wording of work-related questions may also affect the results. For example, the question on work in these surveys usually refers to work during the past 7 days; however, some surveys may refer to work activities during the past 12 months, and therefore, they are likely to capture a higher proportion of working children than surveys with 7-day timeframes. The purpose of the survey—whether specifically to measure children’s work and child labor (SIMPOC surveys) or to measure the labor force participation of adults—may affect estimates of children’s work. (6) In addition, sample design may impact survey results. For example, children’s work is often clustered geographically; SIMPOC surveys are designed to capture children’s work in such geographic areas. As a result, estimates of working children vary across surveys that do not use the same sample design. (7) The ILO, UNICEF, and the UCW continue to investigate the effects of these survey differences on estimates of children’s work.

As noted, some country profiles also include the sector in which children reportedly work. For some surveys, sector of work was not reported by the entire sample of working children. Therefore, the distribution of children working by sector—agriculture, industry, and services—represents children with non-missing data for the sector of work. Additional information on the sectors of work reported in the chart appear in Table 1 under “Formats.”

Percentage of Children Attending School

The percentage of children attending school is the share of all children within a specified age group that reported attending school. The UCW project data described above in the section “Working Children” are used to develop country-specific school attendance statistics. To be consistent with estimates of working children, the age group for which attendance statistics are calculated for children is generally ages 5 to 14. In some cases, however, different age categories are used, usually ages 6 to 14 or 7 to 14.

Percentage of Children Combining Work and School

The percentage of children who combine work and school is the share of all children within a specified age group reporting both working and attending school. The UCW project data described earlier under “Working Children” are used to develop country-specific statistics on children combining work and school. The age group for which these statistics are calculated is usually for children ages 7 to 14.

Primary Completion Rate

This report uses the “gross intake ratio to the last grade of primary education” as a proxy measure for primary completion. This ratio is the total number of new entrants in the last grade of primary education, regardless of age, expressed as a percentage of the population at the theoretical entrance age to the last grade of primary education. A high ratio indicates a high degree of current primary education completion. The calculation includes all new entrants to the last grade, regardless of age. Therefore, the ratio can exceed 100 percent, due to over-aged and under-aged children who enter primary school late or early or repeat grades.

Data Sources and Limitations

Unlike the other statistics presented in the country profile data tables, which are all based on the UCW analysis described earlier, primary completion rate data are from the UNESCO Institute for Statistics. The data were downloaded on January 4, 2018, and are available at <http://data.uis.unesco.org/>. Further information on this statistic is available from the UNESCO Institute for Statistics Glossary at <http://uis.unesco.org/en/glossary>.

UNESCO uses population estimates from the United Nations Population Division (UNDP) to calculate some of the rates it publishes, including the gross intake ratio to last grade of primary education. These population estimates change over time. The last revision that affected the statistics used in this report was in 2018. All population-based indicators, including gross intake ratio to last grade of primary education, for all years are re-calculated using these latest estimates. For some countries and years, when the new UNDP population estimates are found to be inconsistent with education data, related indicators are removed. All updates made to UNESCO data on gross intake ratio to last grade of primary education are reflected in the primary completion rate statistic included in this report.

LABOR LAW ENFORCEMENT: SOURCES AND DEFINITIONS

Labor Force Calculation

This report uses data from the CIA World Factbook, which lists the most recent estimates for countries’ total labor force. This number is used to calculate a “sufficient number” of labor inspectors based on the country’s level of development, as determined by the UN. (8)

Country Classification

For analyses, the Development Policy and Analysis Division (DPAD) of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat (UN/DESA) classifies all countries of the world into one of four broad categories: (a) developed economies, (b) economies in transition, (c) developing economies, and (d) least developed countries. The composition of these groupings is intended to reflect basic economic country conditions. Several countries, in particular the economies in transition, have characteristics that could place them in more than one category; however, for analyses, the groupings have been made mutually exclusive. This is decided upon by the United Nations Economic and Social Council and, ultimately, by the General Assembly deciding on the list of the least developed countries based on recommendations made by the Committee for Development Policy. The basic criteria for inclusion require that certain thresholds be met for per capita GNI, a human assets index, and an economic vulnerability index. For the Findings on the Worst Forms of Child Labor Report, “developed economies” equate to the ILO’s classification of “industrial market economies,” “economies in transition” to “transition economies,” “developing economies” to “industrializing economies,” and “the least developed countries” equates to “less developed countries.” Countries that appear on both “developing countries” and “least developed countries” lists are considered “least developed countries” for calculating a “sufficient number” of labor inspectors. (9)

Number of Labor Inspectors

Article 10 of ILO Convention No. 81 calls for a “sufficient number” of inspectors to do the work required. Because each country assigns different priorities of enforcement to its inspectors, there is no official definition for a “sufficient number” of inspectors. The factors that need to be considered include the number and size of establishments and the total size of the workforce. No single measure is sufficient, but in many countries, the available data sources are weak. The ratio of inspectors per workforce is currently the only internationally comparable indicator available. In its policy and technical advisory services, the ILO has taken as reasonable benchmarks that the number of labor inspectors in relation to workers should approach: 1/10,000 in industrial market economies; 1/15,000 in industrializing economies; 1/20,000 in transition economies; and 1/40,000 in less developed countries. (10)

ILO Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations

The ILO CEACR examines and makes two types of comments upon the application of international labor standards by states that are party to the relevant conventions. Direct requests contain the Committee’s technical comments or questions about the state’s application of a particular convention, and these requests are sent directly to governments. Observations, which are published in the Committee’s annual report, contain comments on fundamental questions raised by a state’s application of a particular convention and recommendations for the state. (11)

GLOSSARY OF OTHER TERMS

Basic Education

Article 7(c) of ILO C. 182 requires countries to “ensure access to free basic education.” According to the International Standard Classification of Education, basic education corresponds to the first 9 years of formal schooling and comprises primary and lower secondary education. Primary education is considered to be the first stage of “basic education” and covers 6 years of full-time schooling, with the legal age of entrance normally being no younger than 5 years or older than 7 years. Primary education is designed to give pupils a sound basis in reading, writing, and mathematics, along with an elementary understanding of other subjects, such as history, geography, natural science, social science, religion, art, and music. Lower secondary education is more subject-focused and requires specialized teachers. It corresponds to about 3 years of schooling and marks the end of compulsory education where it exists. Basic education can also include various non-formal and informal public and private educational activities offered to meet the defined basic learning needs of groups of people of all ages.

Article 13 of the 1966 International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights indicates that primary education should be compulsory and free to all. Secondary education, including technical and vocational education, should be available and accessible to all, and free education should be progressively introduced. Article 28 of the 1989 Convention on the Rights of the Child affirms the right of the child to education and the state’s duty to ensure that primary education is free and compulsory. (12; 13; 14; 15; 16)

Bonded Labor, Debt Bondage

Bonded labor or debt bondage is “the status or condition arising from a pledge by a debtor of his personal services or those of a person under his control as security for a debt if the value of those services as reasonably assessed is not applied towards the liquidation of the debt or the length and nature of those services are not respectively limited and defined,” as defined in the UN Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery, the Slave Trade, and Institutions and Practices Similar to Slavery (1956). (17)

Bonded labor typically occurs when a person who needs a loan and has no security to offer, pledges his or her labor, or that of someone under his or her control, as security for a loan. In some cases, the interest on the loan may be so high that it cannot be paid. In others, it may be deemed that the bonded individual’s work repays the interest on the loan but not the principal. Thus, the loan is inherited and perpetuated, and becomes an inter-generational debt. (18; 19)

Bonded labor is prohibited as one of the worst forms of child labor in ILO C. 182. (16)

Child Domestic Worker

Child domestic workers are children who work in third-party private households under an employment relationship. Child domestic workers engage in various tasks that include cleaning, cooking, gardening, collecting water, and caring for children and the elderly. Child domestic workers sometimes have live-in arrangements, whereby they live in their employer’s household and work in exchange for room, board, and sometimes education. Child domestic workers are vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor, including sexual, physical, and verbal abuse, in large part because they often depend on their employers for basic needs and work in locations hidden from public view. (20; 21)

Child Labor Elimination Projects

Since 1995, USDOL has funded more than 300 projects in over 90 countries. ILAB currently oversees more than $270 million of active programming to combat exploitative child labor. To date, USDOL-funded child labor elimination projects have rescued close to 2 million children from exploitative child labor and have improved livelihoods for approximately 185,000 vulnerable families to reduce their reliance on child labor. (22)

Child Trafficking

The Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, (“Palermo Protocol”) provides a commonly accepted definition of “human trafficking,” which states: “the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring or receipt of a child for the purpose of exploitation shall be considered ‘trafficking in persons’ even if this does not involve any of the means set forth in subparagraph (a) of this Article.” Therefore, there does not need to be abuse of power, control, coercion, or fraud present to constitute child trafficking, as the definition for adults requires. The Palermo Protocol states in Article 3(a) that trafficking in persons means “the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harbouring, or receipt of persons, by means of the threat or use of force or other forms of coercion, of abduction, of fraud, of deception, of the abuse of power or of a position of vulnerability, or of the giving or receiving of payments or benefits to achieve the consent of a person having control over another person, for the purpose of exploitation. Exploitation shall include, at a minimum, the exploitation of the prostitution of others or other forms of sexual exploitation, forced labor or services, slavery or practices similar to slavery, servitude or the removal of organs.” (23)

The trafficking of children is prohibited as a worst form of child labor in ILO C. 182, Article 3(a). (16)

Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children

Based on the 1996 Declaration and Agenda for Action of the First World Congress Against the Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children, “commercial sexual exploitation of children” (CSEC) is defined as “sexual abuse by the adult and remuneration in cash or kind to the child or third person or persons.” (24; 25; 26) The remuneration dynamic distinguishes CSEC from the sexual abuse of a child, which does not include commercial gain; however, sexual exploitation also includes abuse. The definition of CSEC includes these activities:

- Prostitution in the streets or indoors, in such places as brothels, discotheques, massage parlors, bars, hotels, and restaurants, among others;
- Child sex tourism;
- The production, promotion, and distribution of pornography involving children; and
- The use of children in sex shows (public or private).

ILO C. 182 Article 3(b) prohibits using, procuring, or offering of a child for prostitution or for the production of pornography or for pornographic performances. (16)

Compulsory Education Age

The age up to which children and youth are legally required to attend school. (12)

Convention on the Rights of the Child

The Convention on the Rights of the Child spells out the basic rights of children, such as the right to survival; to develop to the fullest; to be protected from harmful influences, abuse, and exploitation; and to participate fully in family, cultural, and social life. The Convention protects children’s rights by setting standards in health care; education; and legal, civil, and social services. According to Article 32 of the Convention, children have the right “to be protected from economic exploitation and from performing any work that is likely to be hazardous or to interfere with the child’s education, or to be harmful to the child’s health or physical, mental, spiritual, moral, or social development.” (27)

Hazardous Work

Article 3(d) of ILO C. 182 sets forth the following as a worst form of child labor: “work which, by its nature or the circumstances in which it is carried out, is likely to harm the health, safety or morals of children.” This is colloquially referred to as “hazardous work.” Countries must determine what type of work is considered hazardous work by law or regulation. ILO Recommendation 190 (ILO R. 190) includes options for consideration in determining which types of work are hazardous. (28; 16)

Illicit Activities

ILO C. 182, Article 3(c) prohibits “the use, procuring or offering of a child for illicit activities, in particular for the production and trafficking of drugs.” Illicit activities in this context can include crimes, but the activity need not be illegal to be considered illicit. (16) According to ILO R. 190 and the General Survey on the Fundamental Conventions Concerning Rights at Work, illicit activities can include “activities which involve the unlawful carrying or use of firearms or other weapons,” and “the use of children by criminal organizations for transporting weapons and carrying out arson attacks or destroying public or private property, illicit activities such as housebreaking and petty theft, and that there are reports of children being engaged by adults in car breaking, housebreaking, selling drugs and selling stolen goods, ...use of children for forced or organized begging, gambling, the unlawful carrying or use of firearms or other weapons, or for the commission of an offence or a crime using violence or the threat of violence.” (28; 29)

ILO Recommendation 190 (ILO R. 190): Worst Forms of Child Labor

ILO R. 190 supplements the provisions of ILO C. 182 and provides guidance to ratifying countries regarding its implementation. It provides guidelines to assist countries in determining what type of work should be considered hazardous and thus what type of work countries should prohibit for all children as a worst form of child labor, in accordance with Article 4 of ILO C. 182. The ILO R. 190 Recommendation describes populations in need of specific attention regarding the worst forms of child labor, such as girls and children involved in hidden forms of work. It also provides guidance regarding specific steps countries that have ratified ILO C. 182 should take to combat the worst forms of child labor, such as the collection and exchange of data on both the problem and best practices to address it; passage and enforcement of laws that penalize violations with criminal penalties; awareness-raising about the problem; establishment of policies against the worst forms of child labor; and international cooperation through technical, legal, and other forms of assistance. (28)

Informal Sector

While the concept of the informal sector was introduced into international usage in the 1970s, it was only in 1993 at the 15th International Conference of Labor Statisticians that an internationally recognized definition was established for data collection to delineate the “informal sector” as unincorporated, small, or unregistered enterprises, and the employees of those enterprises. An enterprise is unincorporated if no complete set of accounts are available that would permit a financial separation of the activities of the enterprise from that of its owners, and it produces marketable goods or services. The registration and size criteria are determined according to national circumstances and legislation, which provides a degree of flexibility in identifying the informal sector from country to country. However, all interpretations of this sector share the notion of enterprises whose activities are not covered or are insufficiently covered by law or whose activities are not covered by law in practice, meaning that the relevant law is not applied or enforced. Workers in such enterprises often lack the benefits of regular, stable, and protected employment. Because employers in the informal sector are generally either not covered by labor laws or are not held accountable for complying with labor protections, including occupational safety measures, children who work in “hazardous” or “ultra-hazardous” informal settings likely face increased risk of exploitation, including injury. In addition, because businesses in the informal sector are not usually included in official statistics, children working in informal sector enterprises may not be counted in labor force activity rates. (30; 31)

Light Work

This report uses the definition of “light work” as established in ILO C. 138, Minimum Age for Admission to Employment. Under Article 7(1) of the Convention, “National laws or regulations may permit the employment or work of persons 13 to 15 years of age on light work which is—(a) not likely to be harmful to their health or development; and (b) not such as to prejudice their attendance at school, their participation in vocational orientation or training programmes approved by the competent authority or their capacity to benefit from the instruction received.” Countries that have specified a minimum legal working age of 14 may permit the employment or work of persons ages 12 to 14 in light work as defined in Article 7(1), but should specify limitations on their hours of work, as well as activities and conditions in which light work may be undertaken. (32)

Minimum Age for Work

The minimum age for work is the age at which a child can enter into work. ILO C. 138 states that the minimum age for admission to employment should not be less than the age of completion of compulsory schooling and should not be less than age 15, or age 14 for developing countries that specified a minimum legal age of 14 upon ratification of ILO C. 138. (18)

Non-Formal Education

Any organized educational activity outside the established formal school system—whether operating separately or as an important feature of some broader activity—that is intended to serve identifiable learning objectives. Non-formal or transitional education programs can enable former child workers to catch up or be mainstreamed with their peers who began their schooling at the appropriate age. (18)

Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict

This optional UN protocol, adopted in 2000, addresses and commits ratifying countries to take action against the involvement of children in armed conflict, which is a worst form of child labor per ILO C. 182, Article 3(a). (33)

Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography

This optional UN protocol, adopted in 2000, addresses and commits ratifying countries to take action against the commercial sexual exploitation of children, which is a worst form of child labor as defined in ILO C. 182, Article 3(b). (34)

Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper

This document is written by the government of a developing country with the participation of civil society to serve as the basis for concessional lending from the World Bank and IMF, as well as debt relief under the World Bank’s Highly Indebted Poor Countries Initiative. A poverty reduction strategy paper (PRSP) should be used to measure poverty in the country, identify goals for reducing poverty, and create a spending and policy program for reaching those goals. A PRSP should also ensure that a country’s macroeconomic, structural, and social policies are consistent with the objectives of poverty reduction and social development. A new PRSP must be written every 3 years to continue receiving assistance from international financial institutions such as the World Bank. (35)

Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, supplementing the United Nations Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime (Palermo Protocol)

The Palermo Protocol supplements the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and covers the trafficking of children, also delineated as a worst form of child labor under ILO C. 182, Article 3(a). (23) See Child Trafficking above.

Ratification

Ratification is a serious undertaking whereby a state formally accepts the terms of an international agreement, thus becoming legally bound to apply it. Other ways of becoming bound to an international agreement include acceptance, approval, accession, signature, or through an exchange of notes.

To ratify an agreement, a country must adopt new laws and regulations, if necessary, or modify the existing legislation and practice to support the agreement and formally deposit the instruments of ratification with the appropriate depositary. In the case of ILO Conventions, ratifications must be registered with the Director-General of the ILO. (36)

For certain international agreements that require ratification, signing an agreement or enacting an agreement into domestic law by congress, or a similar state organ, does not mean that the international agreement has been ratified. Signing an international agreement serves as a preliminary endorsement, albeit a formality, because signatories are not bound by the terms of the international agreement or in any way committed to proceed to the final step of ratification. However, a signatory is obliged to refrain from acts that would defeat the objective and purpose of the international agreement, unless it makes clear its intention not to become a party to the international agreement. Appropriate state entities may signal approval of an international agreement, but that is only one of the requisite steps on the path toward official ratification. The final step requires that the instruments of ratification be submitted to the ILO's depositary. (37)

In the case of ILO Conventions, ILO procedures provide the option to ratify or not ratify a Convention, but they do not include the option to sign a Convention as a preliminary endorsement. Generally, an ILO Convention comes into force in a ratifying country 12 months after the government has deposited the requisite instrument of ratification. This grace period provides ILO members time to enact or modify legislation to comply with the Convention before it comes into force. (36; 16; 32)

Hazardous Unpaid Household Services

For this report, the term "unpaid household services" by children refers to the domestic and personal services a child performs within the child's own household, under the following conditions: (a) for long hours; (b) in an unhealthy environment, including equipment or heavy loads; or (c) in dangerous locations. (2)

Reference Materials: Research Framework and Organization of Country Profiles

RESEARCH METHODS

This section describes the research methods used for data collection and sources and information analysis, and the limitations of these methods in this report.

Data Collection and Sources

Information was gathered for this report through desk research, U.S. embassy reporting, and limited field work. Information was also received from some foreign governments. Desk research consisted of an extensive review of mostly online materials, which included both primary and secondary sources. The sources included academic and independent researchers, media outlets, NGOs, international organizations, foreign governments, and U.S. government agencies. Information was also collected from U.S. government-funded technical assistance and field research projects.

Examples of sources used in this report are the most recent available editions of country laws relevant to child labor; national-level child labor surveys; NGO reports on the nature of child labor in various countries; and UN reports, including direct requests and observations by the ILO Committee of Experts. (1)

U.S. Department of State and U.S. embassies and consulates abroad provided important information by gathering data from contacts, conducting site visits, and reviewing local media sources. A request for information from the public was published in the Federal Register, and a copy of the request was mailed to the Washington, D.C.-based foreign embassies of the countries included in this report. (2) Data were also gathered through site visits to certain countries covered in this report, and included the collection of additional documents and key informant interviews.

Analysis of Information

The existence of child labor, particularly in its worst forms, often involves violations of laws and regulations, including serious criminal violations in some egregious cases. Information on child labor may be intentionally suppressed. Victims of the worst forms of child labor are often unable to claim their rights or even communicate the abuse they are suffering because they are traumatized, unaware of their rights under the law, or politically underrepresented or marginalized. These factors make information on the worst forms of child labor difficult to obtain. Therefore, to compile a credible and comprehensive report, ILAB used the following criteria to assess information:

Nature of the information.

Whether the information about child labor and government efforts to combat it gathered from research, public submissions, or other sources was relevant and probative, and covered the “worst forms of child labor” and “government efforts” as used in this report (see “Key Definitions”). Specific evidence of government efforts was preferred when it was available.

Date of the information.

Whether the source information about child labor was no more than 5 years old. More current information was given priority, and, to the extent possible, ILAB used sources published during the reporting period. Information from sources older than 5 years was generally not considered.

In the case of child labor statistics, however, certain factors contribute to less frequent generation of new data. Because government and other efforts to address exploitative child labor take time to have an impact on national-level rates of child labor, children’s involvement in such activities does not change dramatically from year to year. Child labor surveys are carried out infrequently, in part because the child labor picture does not change frequently, although the number of surveys have increased recently. To present an overall picture of children’s work in as many countries as possible, ILAB used statistics, that are, in some cases, more than 10 years old (from 2007) as of the writing of this report. For more information on the statistics used in this report, see the “Children’s Work and Education Statistics: Sources and Definitions” section in Appendix 3.

In addition, in cases in which previous editions of this report have asserted that the worst forms of child labor exist in the production of goods, and in the absence of evidence that the problem has been effectively eliminated, sources more than 5 years old may be used. This practice makes the report’s information on such forms of child labor consistent with USDOL’s List of Goods Produced by Child Labor or Forced Labor, as mandated by the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act of 2005 (TVPRA). Statements that the worst forms of child labor exist in the production of goods will be removed when there is evidence that the problem has been effectively eliminated.

Source of the information.

Whether the information, either from primary or secondary sources, was from a source in which methodology, prior publications, degree of familiarity and experience with international labor standards, or reputation for accuracy and objectivity warranted a determination that it was relevant and probative.

Extent of the corroboration.

Whether the information about the use of child labor was corroborated by other sources.

Limitations

While data on the worst forms of child labor and information about government efforts to provide remediation are improving, data are still insufficient to provide a complete understanding of the problem. A lack of information may create the impression that a country has less serious problems with the worst forms of child labor than it has in reality. At the same time, a dearth of information may create the impression that a government is doing less than it should when, in fact, efforts to combat child labor exist, but are simply unreported or unpublicized. Although countries with open and available information may sometimes appear to have larger problems relative to other countries, this may not be the case. In fact, countries that collect information on child labor are in a better position to eliminate the problem than countries in which such information is suppressed, because with better information they can target their policies and programs at identified problem areas to achieve maximum impact.

Although information was requested from the public, including governments covered in the report, only 5 governments out of the 132 countries submitted information in response to the request. (2) In addition, the lack of in-country data collection and access to other in-country sources of information in the majority of the countries may have affected the reporting.

Due to the inability to travel to each country covered in the report, ILAB relies on U.S. embassies, internet research, and submissions received in response to the Federal Register notice to gather primary and secondary sources of information. For countries where internet access and technology are limited, there may be less information available online. Countries with more closed government processes and less civil society participation may also have less information readily available. When ILAB was unable to find information about report topics, including the content of important laws or enforcement efforts, this was noted in the report.

Most of ILAB's online research was conducted in English; however, we also gathered and read source materials written in Spanish, French, and, to a limited extent, Portuguese, Russian, Bosnian, Serbian, and Arabic. Materials written in other languages were generally not reviewed.

Despite ILAB's best efforts to cover relevant topics as comprehensively as possible, the report cannot address every salient issue that may affect children's involvement in the worst forms of child labor. For example, there are many factors that affect whether a household sends a child to school, to work, or both. A lack of available information, however, limits the discussion of these issues for some countries. In these cases, we note that the profile's information is incomplete. Furthermore, ILAB chose to limit its reporting of education to the issue of access, and generally does not cover the quality of education because research on the relationship between quality of education and child labor is lacking.

ORGANIZATION AND CONTENT OF COUNTRY PROFILES

ILAB organized country profiles to track the types of efforts outlined in the TDA Conference Committee report. In this report, the Conference Committee indicated that the President should consider certain criteria when determining whether a country has met its obligation under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) program to implement its international commitments to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. (3) Each country profile contains an introductory paragraph that provides an assessment of government actions to advance efforts in eliminating the worst forms of child labor, six sections that describe the problem and different aspects of government efforts to address it, and a set of suggested actions. The following section describes the content in the country profiles.

Content of Country Profiles

Each country profile begins with an overview of 2017 in a single paragraph, beginning with a statement identifying the assessment level assigned to the country for 2017. (See "Framework for Country Assessments" in Section 7 of this appendix for more detail on the criteria used to determine a country's assessment.) Following the statement of assessment, the summary includes meaningful efforts taken by a government to implement its commitments to eliminate child labor. The summary also notes where children are engaged in the worst forms of child labor or if no worst forms of child labor exist, where they are engaged in tasks for which there is evidence that such tasks fall into the categories suggested by R. 190 of hazardous work—referred to as "dangerous tasks" in the report. Depending on the situation in the country, the summary may also discuss child labor that does not rise to the level of hazardous work. Finally, the paragraph highlights areas in which key gaps in government efforts remain.

Section I: Prevalence and Sectoral Distribution of Child Labor

The first section of each country profile attempts to provide, to the extent that information is available, a comprehensive picture of child labor in the country. This section begins with a review of available data on working children and school attendance, followed by a presentation of the most common sectors and activities in which children are engaged. The narrative also provides information about the nature and conditions of the work, specific populations that are particularly vulnerable to child labor, government complicity in the use of forced child labor, circumstances that make accessing education difficult, and events during the year that destabilized the country.

Section II: Legal Framework for Child Labor

The second section of each country profile provides information on whether the country has adequate laws and regulations proscribing the worst forms of child labor. This section describes a country's legal framework with regard to child labor and assesses the adequacy of that legal framework by comparing it, in general, to the standards set forth in ILO C. 182 and ILO C. 138, and to other international instruments, including the Palermo Protocol and the Convention on the Rights of the Child and its Optional Protocols. ILAB considered whether the laws criminally prohibited the categorical worst forms of child labor in ILO C. 182, 3(a)–(c), as suggested by ILO R. 190. In line with the ILO Committee of Experts, ILAB considered any law that could be used to prohibit child labor, including its worst forms. ILAB also considered whether the country had ratified key international instruments related to child labor.

It is important to note that ILAB analyzes a country's legal framework regarding compliance with international standards, regardless of whether a problem exists in a country. This is to ensure that legal frameworks also serve as preventive mechanisms. For example, even in the case of a country that does not have a problem with the use of children in illicit activities, if there are no laws to prohibit the use of children in illicit activities, the report points out a gap when comparing laws on this issue against international standards.

The corresponding table indicates where the legal framework meets international standards and where it does not. For example, the table indicates whether the country's minimum age for work complies with the international standard.

ILAB assessed whether a country's laws prohibit forced labor, human trafficking, and debt bondage. For child trafficking specifically, ILAB reviewed the adequacy of existing legal protections related to international and domestic trafficking for both commercial sexual exploitation and forced labor against the Palermo Protocol's standard for child trafficking, including whether the legal protections prohibit the five possible elements of the human trafficking process—recruiting, harboring, transporting, transferring, and receiving persons.

In all cases in which countries maintain a military force, ILAB assessed whether the country prohibited the compulsory military recruitment of children and whether the minimum age for voluntary military recruitment is at least 16, with certain safeguards to ensure voluntariness. For all countries, ILAB assessed whether the recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups is prohibited, even if non-state armed groups are not present in the country.

For the issue of commercial sexual exploitation of children, ILAB assessed whether a country's laws criminally prohibit the using, procuring, and offering of children for prostitution; the production of child pornography; and the use of children in pornographic performances. For illicit activities, ILAB assessed whether laws criminally prohibit the using, procuring, and offering of a child in the production and trafficking of drugs.

ILAB assessed whether a country has created a hazardous work list and whether the types of hazardous work prohibited are comprehensive, based on whether there is evidence that children engage in work where, according to ILO R. 190, the work may be hazardous. Because the standards on the minimum age for work in ILO C. 138 provide a foundation for protections against the worst forms of child labor, ILAB used the standards embodied in that convention to assess each country's minimum age for admission to work and the age up to which education is compulsory. (1) ILO C. 138 establishes that countries should set a minimum age of 15 for work, or age 14 for countries with less-developed economies where the country has specified an age of 14 upon ratification of the convention. The profile also indicates that, if a country permits children to engage in light work, whether it has set a minimum age of 13 for light work, or age 12 for less-developed economies, and whether legislation related to light work determines permitted activities, the number of hours per week, and the conditions under which light work may be conducted.

ILAB assessed whether the age up to which compulsory education aligns with the minimum age for work, in accordance with ILO C. 138, which states that the minimum age for work should not be less than the age up to which education is compulsory, and that it should be at least age 15, or age 14 for developing countries. However, the opposite situation—if the minimum age for work is higher than the upper cut-off age for compulsory education—should also be avoided because when children are not required to be in school or permitted to work they are susceptible to falling into the worst forms of child labor. The section points out when a country's age up to which education is compulsory is below or above the minimum age for employment and suggests that the government rectify this gap. It also notes whether a country has free public education through at least the basic level.

Section III: Enforcement of Laws on Child Labor

The third section of the country profiles addresses the second and third criteria included in the TDA Conference Committee report, concerning whether the country has “adequate laws and regulations for the implementation and enforcement of such measures,” and “established formal institutional mechanisms to investigate and address complaints relating to allegations of the worst forms of child labor.” (3) This section describes the roles of government agencies in enforcing laws relevant to child labor, including its worst forms, and reports on labor law and criminal law enforcement efforts during the reporting period.

In this section, ILAB analyzes whether and to what degree the country defines enforcement agency roles and investigates and addresses complaints related to allegations of child labor. Because ILO C. 182 discusses enforcement only to a limited extent, other international standards and practices are also considered as general evaluating guidelines, including from ILO C. 81 and ILO C. 129 on Labor Inspection and Labor Inspection in Agriculture, respectively. To the extent possible, ILAB assesses whether the country has taken these actions:

- Established labor inspection systems, including a functioning Labor Inspectorate;
- Provided sufficient funding and resources to enforce child labor laws and regulations;
- Employed a sufficient number of inspectors, according to the ILO's technical advice, to enforce the country's child labor laws and regulations;
- Provided sufficient training for inspectors, including initial training for new employees, training on new laws related to child labor, and refresher courses;
- Developed and implemented an adequate labor inspection strategy that allows for different types of on-site inspections of worksites—such as routine, targeted, complaint-driven, and unannounced—and conducted inspections with sufficient frequency and in all relevant sectors;
- Provided sufficient authority to the Labor Inspectorate to penalize child labor violations and follow through with sanctions where appropriate;
- Published information on specific inspection results and fines or sanctions imposed for violation of child labor laws and regulations, including the worst forms of child labor;
- Established a complaint mechanism for labor violations; and
- Set up a reciprocal referral mechanism between labor authorities and social services.

Although ILAB researched and requested law enforcement information on the topics for this year's report, the information was not available in all cases. For example, in many cases, ILAB did not have enough information to determine whether the number of inspectors was sufficient in the country. Only in certain situations, where a country's government acknowledged it did not have a sufficient number of labor inspectors or ILAB obtained information indicating that the number of labor inspectors was small relative to the size of the country's workforce, did ILAB issue findings of insufficiency. In the latter situation, and in determining whether a finding should be included, ILAB considered the ILO's recommendation that the number of labor inspectors in relation to workers should approach 1:10,000 in industrial market economies, 1:15,000 in industrializing economies, 1:20,000 in transition economies, and 1:40,000 in less developed countries. (4)

In addition, ILO R. 190 states that countries should criminally prohibit the categorical worst forms of child labor as set forth in ILO C. 182 Articles 3(a)–(c). Therefore, the report also assesses whether, for criminal law enforcement, the country has taken these actions:

- Established criminal investigation systems;
- Provided sufficient funding and resources to enforce the worst forms of child labor laws and regulations;
- Provided sufficient training for investigators, including initial training for new employees, training on new laws related to child labor, and refresher courses;
- Conducted a sufficient number of investigations related to the worst forms of child labor;
- Published information on specific investigation results and violations, prosecutions, and convictions related to the worst forms of child labor; and
- Established a reciprocal referral mechanism between criminal authorities and social services.

Section IV: Coordination of Government Efforts on Child Labor

The fourth section of the country profiles also addresses the third criterion included in the TDA Conference Committee report, whether the country has established “formal institutional mechanisms to investigate and address complaints relating to allegations of the worst forms of child labor.”

(3) This section provides information on key institutions in the country charged with coordinating overall efforts to combat child labor, including its worst forms. Although the Conference Committee report speaks only to whether such mechanisms are in place with regard to investigation and complaints of the worst forms of child labor, ILO C. 182, Article 5, states that “[e]ach Member shall, after consultation with employers’ and workers’ organizations, establish or designate appropriate mechanisms to monitor the implementation of the provisions giving effect to this Convention.” ILAB applied this concept of monitoring to all provisions of the convention, not just those directly related to the enforcement of child labor laws. However, because the term monitor is often associated exclusively with enforcement activities, ILAB uses the term coordinate to describe this function.

Section V: Government Policies on Child Labor

The fifth section of the country profiles provides information on the fourth criterion in the TDA Conference Committee report on whether the country has “a comprehensive policy for the elimination of the worst forms of child labor.” (3) This section describes a country’s key policies and plans to combat child labor, including its worst forms.

ILAB used the framework provided in ILO R. 190, Article 15(f), which illustrates measures that countries might take to combat the worst forms of child labor, such as “encouraging the development of policies by undertakings to promote the aims of the Convention.” (5) In ILO C. 182 and in comments from the ILO Committee of Experts, the terms programs and plans of action are often used interchangeably. Indeed, in some cases, it is difficult to distinguish among a policy, a plan, or a program. (6) For the TDA Conference Committee report, a policy on child labor is defined as a framework that lays out general principles that are intended to guide a government’s actions on child labor. Although policies may call for the passage of new laws and the establishment of new programs, the actual adoption of laws and program implementations are reported in the “Legal Framework for the Worst Forms of Child Labor” or the “Social Programs to Address Child Labor” sections of the profiles.

Specifically, ILAB assessed whether governments have achieved the following activities:

- Established specific child labor policies, any related development policies that explicitly incorporate the issue of child labor, or any related development policies that do not explicitly target child labor but that could have an impact on the problem. (ILAB determined that because so few governments distinguish between worst forms of child labor and child labor, any policy on child labor, whether targeted toward the worst forms of child labor or not, would be reported.)
- Ensured that these policies include specific action plans, assign responsibilities, establish goals, and set timetables.
- Implemented established policies and plans.

Section VI: Social Programs to Address Child Labor

The sixth section of each country profile provides information on the fifth criterion in the TDA Conference Committee report on whether social programs exist in the country “to prevent the engagement of children in the worst forms of child labor and assist in the removal of children engaged in the worst forms of child labor.” (3) This section of the profiles reports key programs focused on child labor because countries often do not distinguish between the two when creating child labor programs. This section of the profiles also reports programs that focus on child labor specifically, and programs that address poverty, education, and other related matters that could have a beneficial impact on child labor. Only programs launched or implemented during the reporting period are included in this section.

ILAB generally considers the implementation of projects through international organizations to be government efforts because the projects can be carried out only with the consent of the government, and such efforts are sometimes considered part of a country’s national budget.

ILAB applied standards embodied in Articles 6 and 7 of ILO C. 182 to assess country programs to combat child labor. ILO R. 190 is also considered to determine the types of efforts that governments might make, such as giving special attention to girls, providing training to employers and workers, and raising awareness. With this in mind, ILAB assesses whether governments have taken the following actions:

- Participated in any social programs to combat child labor, including programs aimed at directly preventing and withdrawing children from participation in child labor;
- Implemented social programs with sufficient resources to combat the scope and magnitude of the child labor problem at issue;
- Targeted at-risk populations; and
- Implemented social programs successfully and sustainably.

Section VII: Suggested Government Actions to Eliminate Child Labor

The last section of the country profiles is a set of suggested actions. These suggested actions serve as a roadmap of efforts that individual countries can follow to more fully address the worst forms of child labor. The year in which a suggested action was first provided is listed in the table, followed by every year in which the action was included in the report and not addressed.

FRAMEWORK FOR COUNTRY ASSESSMENTS

Objective for Country Assessments

ILAB is using an assessment tool to clearly indicate and highlight the status of efforts by each country that benefits from U.S. trade preferences to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.

Research Question Guiding Country Assessments

The research question that ILAB is asking in its assessment of an individual beneficiary country is: “To what extent did the beneficiary country advance efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor during the reporting period?”

Scope of Country Assessment

As discussed, the TDA Conference Committee report outlines the following six criteria that the President is asked to consider in determining whether a country is implementing its international commitments to eliminate the worst forms of child labor:

- Whether the country has adequate laws and regulations proscribing the worst forms of child labor;
- Whether the country has adequate laws and regulations for the implementation and enforcement of such measures;
- Whether the country has established formal institutional mechanisms to investigate and address complaints related to allegations of the worst forms of child labor;
- Whether the country has a comprehensive policy for the elimination of the worst forms of child labor;
- Whether social programs exist in the country to prevent the engagement of children in the worst forms of child labor, and assist in the removal of children engaged in the worst forms of child labor; and
- Whether the country is making continual progress toward eliminating the worst forms of child labor.

The country assessment tool is intended to inform the sixth criterion on whether the country is “making continual progress toward eliminating the worst forms of child labor.” In preparing the assessments, ILAB evaluated the first five criteria, grouping them into the same five areas addressed in the individual country profiles: laws and regulations, enforcement, coordination, policies, and social programs. The assessment is based on an analysis of the status of each country’s efforts in these five areas considered as a whole and compared to the country’s prior efforts. The assessments do not take into account the impact of government actions on the problem, or whether they have a documented effect in eliminating child labor. This type of analysis would require rigorous impact evaluations and assessments based on data from solid research designs, which is beyond the scope of this report. It is important to note that the assessment is not intended to reflect a determination of “whether a country has implemented its commitments to eliminate the worst forms of child labor.” That determination is reserved for the President.

Method for Determining a Country Assessment

Each country profile in this report identifies a set of suggested actions for governments to take to advance its efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The implementation—or lack of implementation—of these suggested actions establishes a baseline or point of reference from which to assess a country’s advancement. These actions, in combination with other efforts undertaken by a country, were considered when assessing the level of a country’s advancement during the current reporting period compared with the previous reporting period.

After ILAB identified and assessed a country’s efforts, we considered the significance of the efforts—actions that could have an impact in eliminating the worst forms of child labor—undertaken during the reporting period, and the extent to which these efforts addressed the first five TDA criteria, outlined above, in a limited or meaningful manner during the reporting period. In addition, ILAB reviewed whether the government established or failed to remedy a regressive or significantly detrimental law, policy, or practice that delayed advancement in eliminating child labor. Finally, ILAB also examined whether countries had a policy or demonstrated a practice of being complicit in forced child labor in more than isolated incidents at the national, regional, or local level.

To promote consistency and transparency, and to operationalize these first five TDA criteria, each country’s efforts were analyzed according to a uniform set of guidance questions related to the five general areas of laws and regulations, enforcement, coordination, policies, and social programs. These guidance questions are listed in Appendix 5. Detailed information is given in the “Country Assessments” section of this report.

Reference Materials: TDA Criteria and Corresponding Guidance Questions

ASSESSMENT LEVEL

TDA Conference Report Criterion:

- “Whether the country is making continual progress toward eliminating the worst forms of child labor”

Guidance Questions

- What efforts did the country make to address child labor during the year?
- Has the government instituted minimally acceptable laws and regulations, mechanisms, and programs to address and prevent child labor (see Box 13)?
- *Did the government of the country establish or fail to remedy a regressive or significantly detrimental law, policy, or practice that delayed advancement in the elimination of child labor?
- *Was the government of the country complicit in forced child labor in more than isolated incidents?

BOX 13

Minimally Acceptable Laws and Regulations, Mechanisms, and Programs to Address and Prevent the Worst Forms of Child Labor

A country must have—

- Established a minimum age for work that meets international standards;
- Established a minimum age for hazardous work that meets international standards;
- Established legal prohibitions against forced labor that meet international standards;
- Established legal prohibitions against commercial sexual exploitation of children that meet international standards;
- Established legal prohibitions against the use of children for illicit activities that meet international standards;
- Designated a competent authority or institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor;
- Imposed penalties for violations related to the worst forms of child labor;
- Directly funded a social program that includes the goal of eliminating child labor or addressing root causes of the problem, such as a lack of education opportunities, poverty, or discrimination; and
- Ensured that child victims are not inappropriately incarcerated, penalized, or physically harmed solely for unlawful acts as a direct result of being a victim of the worst forms of child labor.

PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Guidance Questions

- *Were government officials complicit in the use of forced child labor in more than isolated incidences?
- What are the prevalent types of child labor in each country?
- Has the government conducted research on the prevalence and nature of the worst forms of child labor and made the results publicly available?
- Are specific populations vulnerable to child labor due to gender, race, ethnicity, origin, disability, language, or socio-economic status?
- Were there events during the year that destabilized the country, such as armed conflict; health epidemics and natural disasters; or other social, economic, and political crises?

LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

TDA Conference Report Criterion:

- “Whether the country has adequate laws and regulations proscribing the worst forms of child labor”

Guidance Questions

- Did laws meet international standards?
- Is the minimum age for admission to employment in line with ILO Convention 138?
- Is the minimum age for admission to hazardous work in line with ILO Conventions 138 and 182?

* Note: A “yes” response likely means the country will automatically receive an assessment of Minimal Advancement or No Advancement.

- Are criminal prohibitions on forced child labor, child trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation of children, and use of children in illicit activities in line with ILO Convention 182?
- Is the prohibition against recruitment of children under age 18 for state compulsory military service in line with ILO Convention 182 and the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict?
- Is the minimum age for recruitment into state voluntary military service in line with the UN CRC Optional Protocol on Armed Conflict?
- Is the prohibition against recruitment of children under age 18 by non-state armed groups in line with ILO Convention 182?
- Does the age up to which education is compulsory align with the minimum age for work and meet the standards in ILO Convention 138?
- Is the provision of free public basic education in line with ILO Convention 182?
- If the law permits light work, is the minimum age in line with ILO Convention 138 and are there appropriate safeguards as outlined in ILO Convention 138?
- Has the country ratified ILO Conventions 182 and 138, as well as other relevant conventions and protocols?
- If the country's constitution and laws are not compliant with international standards embodied in ILO Conventions 138 and 182, has there been any change in the constitution or laws that brings the country closer to being fully compliant?
- Are laws related to child labor available to the public?
- *Did the country establish or fail to remedy a regressive or significantly detrimental law that delayed its advancement in the elimination of child labor?

ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

TDA Conference Report Criteria:

- "Whether the country has adequate laws and regulations for the implementation and enforcement of such measures"
- "Whether the country has established formal institutional mechanisms to investigate and address complaints relating to allegations of the worst forms of child labor"

In this section of the country profiles, ILAB analyzes whether, or to what degree, a country has defined enforcement agency roles, conducted routine and unannounced inspections, and investigated and addressed complaints related to allegations of the worst forms of child labor. The analysis is based on the following guidance questions.

Guidance Questions

- Does the country have a Labor Inspectorate?
- Does the country have labor inspectors? Are its labor inspectors public servants as opposed to contractors?
- What was the amount of funding for the Labor Inspectorate? Was there an increase or decrease in the funding and resources to enforce child labor laws and regulations, and were these resources adequate given the incidence of child labor in the country?
- Was there an increase or reduction in the number of labor inspectors to enforce child labor laws and regulations, and was the number of labor inspectors adequate given the size of the country's workforce?
- Did the country offer initial training to new labor inspectors and investigators, including specialized training on child labor; training on new laws related to child labor, including its worst forms; and refresher courses?
- *Did the Labor Inspectorate conduct labor inspections during the reporting period?
- *Is the Labor Inspectorate legally authorized to conduct unannounced inspections?
- Did the inspectorate conduct unannounced inspections?
- Did the government develop and implement a labor inspection strategy that allowed for different types of on-site inspections of worksites, such as routine, targeted, complaint-driven, or unannounced?
- Were inspections conducted with sufficient frequency and in all relevant sectors?
- Did the government provide the Labor Inspectorate with sufficient authority to sanction child labor violations?
- Did the country make available information on labor law enforcement efforts related to child labor, including the number of labor inspections conducted at worksites and by desk review, the number of child labor violations found, and the number of child labor violations for which penalties were imposed and collected?
- Does the government have a mechanism for filing and resolving complaints expeditiously regarding child labor?
- Does a reciprocal referral mechanism exist between labor and criminal authorities and social services?
- Did the country make available information on criminal law enforcement efforts related to the worst forms of child labor, including the number of investigations, violations found, prosecutions initiated, and convictions?
- Did the government establish or improve a process for information sharing among enforcement authorities?
- Did the government ensure that all children engaged in the worst forms of child labor were protected from inappropriate incarceration, penalties, or physical harm?
- *Did the country establish or fail to remedy a regressive or significantly detrimental law enforcement practice that delayed its advancement in the elimination of child labor?

COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

TDA Conference Report Criterion:

- "Whether the country has established formal institutional mechanisms to investigate and address complaints relating to allegations of the worst forms of child labor"

* Note: A "yes" response likely means the country will automatically receive an assessment of Minimal Advancement or No Advancement.

In this section, ILAB analyzes whether, or to what degree, the country has institutions charged with coordinating overall efforts to combat child labor, including its worst forms. The analysis is based on the following guidance questions.

Guidance Questions

- Does the government have an agency or committee created to coordinate government efforts to combat the worst forms of child labor? Did it create such an agency or committee during the reporting period?
- Does the agency or committee address all sectors of child labor that are prevalent in the country, or does it address only certain sectors?
- Did such an agency or committee meet regularly and take actions, or did it not meet regularly and take few or no actions?

GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

TDA Conference Report Criterion:

- “Whether the country has a comprehensive policy for the elimination of the worst forms of child labor”

Guidance Questions

- Did the government establish any new policies or plans that specifically address the worst forms of child labor or any one of the worst forms of child labor?
- Did the government incorporate the worst forms of child labor specifically as an issue to be addressed in poverty reduction, development, educational, or other social policies, such as poverty reduction strategy papers?
- Did the government establish poverty reduction, development, educational, or other social policies, such as poverty reduction strategy papers, that did not explicitly address the worst forms of child labor or any one of the worst forms of child labor, but that might have had an impact on it or them?
- If the country established any of the above policies or plans, do they designate responsibilities, establish goals, and set timelines?
- Did the government effectively implement existing policies and plans?
- *Did the country establish or fail to remedy a regressive or significantly detrimental policy that delayed its advancement in the elimination of child labor?

SOCIAL PROGRAMS TO ADDRESS CHILD LABOR

TDA Conference Report Criterion:

- “Whether social programs exist in the country to prevent the engagement of children in the worst forms of child labor, and assist in the removal of children engaged in the worst forms of child labor”

Guidance Questions

- Did the government fund or participate in any new or ongoing programs that aim to eliminate or prevent the worst forms of child labor?
- Did the government fund or participate in any social protection programs that could reasonably be expected to have an impact on child labor? Were any of the country’s programs shown, through research, to have an impact on child labor?
- Did the government make efforts to reduce children’s vulnerability to the worst forms of child labor by addressing factors such as—
  - country- and region-specific practices that make children vulnerable to the worst forms of child labor and
  - barriers to education, such as a lack of teachers; lack of schools or inadequate facilities; lack of infrastructure to access schools; lack of transportation; violence, including physical and sexual abuse; birth registration requirements; and the charging of school fees.
- Are the country’s programs sufficient to combat particular forms of child labor, considering the scope and magnitude of those problems?
- Do the programs provide services directly to children?
- Do the programs adequately target at-risk populations?
- Were the programs fully funded?
- Are the programs meeting their goals?
- Are the program efforts sustainable?
- Did existing government programs improve or worsen in quality or effectiveness compared with the previous year?
- *Did the country establish or fail to remedy a regressive or significantly detrimental social program or other practice that delayed its advancement in the elimination of child labor?

* Note: A “yes” response likely means the country will automatically receive an assessment of Minimal Advancement or No Advancement.

WHAT CAN YOU

DO TO HELP ADDRESS CHILD LABOR AND FORCED LABOR?

ASK QUESTIONS.

Could some of the goods I buy be made by child labor or forced labor?

Do workers have a voice to speak out against labor abuses?

What are companies doing to end child labor and forced labor in global supply chains?

What are governments doing to combat child labor and forced labor?

TAKE ACTION.

Empower yourself with knowledge and download USDOL's Sweat & Toil and Comply Chain apps.

Make your voice heard by spreading the word among friends, family, and the companies you buy from and invest in.

Show your support for organizations that are working to end these abuses.

DEMAND CHANGE.

Advocate for a world in which:

Workers everywhere can raise their voices against child labor, forced labor, and other abuses.

Companies make serious commitments to ensure that global supply chains are free of products made by child labor and forced labor, especially those on USDOL's List of Goods Produced by Child Labor or Forced Labor.

Your investments have a positive social impact by promoting responsible labor practices.

Governments work vigorously to adopt the country-specific suggested actions in USDOL's Findings on the Worst Forms of Child Labor.
