A Chinese airport was shut down for more than an hour last month because air traffic controllers saw what they believed to be a UFO buzzing the airport, according to reports out of the country.

It is the eighth time since June that UFOs have been reported in China.

In the latest episode, several passenger jets were diverted from the airport at Baotou in Inner Mongolia for about an hour around 8 p.m. on Sept. 11.

The alert was triggered by bright lights in the sky that moved erratically, but reports claim that air traffic controllers at the Hohhot Air Traffic Management Bureau spotted the object on their radar.

After about an hour, the object and the lights suddenly vanished and passenger

It is a conspiracy because we do not have disclosure. The lack of positive acknowledgement on something that does not have a factual basis is not proof that it exists. jllondon, what do you think proves the conspiracy is actually out there?

Obama is in the dark about all of this too folks. The last president to have access to all of the UFO data that military intelligence has is old man Bush (unless he clued in Dubya' as well). A lot is being said about this lately, especially since it was dicovered last week that Gliese 581-g can probably support life. There is a big push going on for disclosure of UFO info lately.

pammielien-prove it. anyone show one fact that there are aliens out there. No one can offer any proof and just by saying something like the universe is too big for us to be alone is not proof, it's hope.
